ANNOUNCEMENTS

Last day for Name the Man and Vaudeville at Strand

This is the last day for that superlative program of Keith vaudeville and pictures at the Shrand.

Name the Man! Sir Hall Caine's latest drama to be transferred to the screen, now being presented at the Strand for the last time, takes rank with the best pictures of the year.

The story, adapted from The Master of Man, is replete with dramatic action. It carries one through the hearts of its people. It deals with both the lowly and the great—and the intermingling of the two. And though the observer is totally unconscious of the photography, it is surpassingly beautiful.

Conrad Nagel as the Deemster's son emerges with many laurels also. His action is repressed, and just strong.

Patsy Ruth Miller has a very sympathetic role and handles it in a manner to add new praise to her name.

Evelyn Selbie, De Witt Jennings and Greighton Hale are among the super cast who make live the characters as Hall Caine pictured them on the Isle of Man. Truly, Victor Seastrom has given the public one of the great pictures of the year and lived up to his reputation of being one of the ablest directors in the industry.

BREED THEATRE

As in its other current pictures, the Goldwyn company has given Emmett Flynn, the director of in The Palace Of The King, an exceptionally fine cast. Blanche Sweet, one of the best known leading women of the screen, appears as Dolores the heroine. Edmund Lowe, a comparative newcomer to the screen but a stage favorite of renute, plays Don John, the dashing hero. Pauline Starke, picked by Neysa McMein as the most beautiful woman in the movies, plays Inez, the blind sister of Dolores. Hobart Bosworth has a fine character role as General Mendoza, the stern but loving parent of the two sisters.

Sinister intrigue and plotting comprise the major portion of the story, and a capable group of bad folks are in the cast. Sam de Grasse, who played the wicked Prince John in Robin Hood, appears as the villainous King Philip II. The beautiful Aileen Pringle, who, by the way will play the Lady in Elinor Glyn's Three Weeks, appears in In The Palace of The King as the Princess Eboli. William V. Mong, as Perez, the King's crafty secretary, has a good chance for some villainous characterization.

While In The Palace Of The King is primarily a photodrama of a powerful and impelling love story, it is also a great spectacle picture, with a tremendous medieval palace and a thrilling battle between the Spaniards and the Moors.

WILL SHOW ECONOMIC VALUE OF BIRD LIFE

Announcement has been made by the Norwich Fish and Game association that its annual meeting will be held in the town hall on Wednesday evening, April 2, at 7.30 o'clock.

Arrangements have been made with the state board of fisheries and game by which the people of Norwich will have an opportunity to hear Wilbur F. Smith of South Norwalk deliver his lecture on the Economic Value of Birds, illustrating it by one hundred lantern slides done from life. Wherever Mr. Smith has been heard his talk has been both interesting and entertaining. He has studied birds for years and the photographs to be shown were made by him during his sixteen years' service as game warden of Litchfield county. It is stated with authority that two hundred and ninety species of wild birds pass through Connecticut during the season and that one hundred and thirty-five nest within its borders. They are of inestimable value and every one should know their economic value.

An invitation has been extended to the Boy Scouts to be present and has been accepted by Scout Executive Frederick Benton. It is also expected that many of the boys who have been engaged during the year in the manual training work in the schools building the bird houses which were on exhibition recently will be present.

This visit of Mr. Smith is made possible through the action of the board of fisheries and game in sending Mr. Smith to any community that desires his services without expense.

It has not been possible to comply with all the calls yet and Norwich is fortunate that the local association has been able to secure Mr. Smith at this time. The state board of education is co-operating with the fisheries and game commission in this work. The local association is distributing cards of invitation to all who are interested.

Henline Meeting Friday.

Because of the Dr. Spear meetings this week, of which the final one will be held Thursday evening at the United Congregational church, the address by Prof. M. A. Henline of Pasadena, will be held on Friday evening at the Central Baptist church instead of on Thursday evening.

Mrs. Maud Bauer, 31, was murdered last night along a lonely road on Staten Island, near Mariner's Harbor, evidently by a man who a few moments before had volunteered to assist her, her mother and her two children, whose automobile was stuck in the mud.

NEW LONDON CITY MANAGER'S RULING NOT ENDORSED BY COMMITTEE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 25—City Manager William A. Holt yesterday mailed to the members of the board of inquiry, who heard the charges made by Lieut. Benjamin Beebe, through Captain Charles A. Pinney, that Sergeant Charles Hammond was guilty of drinking while on duty, a recommendation that Hammond be dismissed from the force. Today the committee, after going over the testimony heard at last Friday's hearing, forwarded the city manager their unanimous disapproval of his action. The final disposition of the case is now directly up to City Manager Holt, for the board has no authority or power in the matter. As the power to discipline or exonerate Sergeant Hammond is entirely with City Manager Holt now and as that official has recommended dismissal, it is understood that the sergeant will be demoted, being allowed to return to duty within a few days, but as a patrolman.

The decision did not come to many as a surprise for it was generally understood that plans had already been formulated for Hammond's dismissal from the force, but the recommendation was somewhat of a surprise to members of the board and others who had knowledge of the nature of the testimony introduced at Friday's hearing. There was no direct testimony that the officer had been guilty of drinking, neither was he allowed the privilege of having witnesses in his own behalf present and there are several who would have testified in his behalf including fellow-officers. The testimony offered was to the effect that it was possible that Hammond had taken a "drink or two," but there was no direct evidence that the officer was under the influence of liquor. Even City Physician Cheney is reported as stating that Hammond was strictly sober and he examined the sergeant at the police station in the presence of Lieut. Beebe and Sergeant Hick.

The general opinion prevails that a well-planned action has been started toward promoting Patrolman William Babcock to permanent Sergeant and his ultimate promotion to lieutenant, to succeed Benjamin Beebe, who will undoubtedly be pensioned within a short time as he is fast failing in health and will not be able to perform active duty much longer. Members of the force realize that the advancement of Patrolman Babcock is in "the works," and many of them are now seeking the berths that are sure to be open because of the pending demotion of Hammond and the retirement of Beebe at an early date.

In the wake of the Hammond episode it became known today that Capt. Pinney has ordered Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan to report for duty April 1st. However, it is not likely that the officer will do as ordered, for it is known that he is physically unfit to perform patrol duty. Sullivan has been ill at his home on Montauk avenue for a number of weeks from asthma and his condition does not improve. It is also among the possibilities that this officer will be pensioned under the disability clause of the charter within a short time, unless his condition improves and such indication is not apparent.

Two of the three supernumerary policemen, Jeremiah Murphy and Thomas Lyden, have been ordered to report for duty April 1st. The assignment to duty of these officers is to inform patrol service while members of the force are enjoying their vacations, which start April 1st. A third supernumerary, John Sheridan, may also be assigned to duty, but he has not been ordered to report yet.

John J. Higgins, a teamster, was today fined $10 in the police court for intoxication. He was complained against by his wife who charged that he assaulted her and struck her, but she did not appear to testify against him, when he was presented in court. Then the charge of intoxication was pressed against him and he was found guilty. Higgins has appeared in court about once a year for a decade. He always has an excuse that he urges to show that he is more sinned against than sinning. Today he was given to understand that when he is next found guilty he will go to jail for a stay, that sort of treatment perhaps being more effectual in bringing about a change in his conduct than the position of a fine.

Caleb Green, not Darius that used the flying machine, but a detective in the employ of the New Haven road, had a tussle with John Haberek, a Pole on the tracks of the road today. Green came out best and landed Haberek in the lock-up in the prisoners' pen in the police court. Green told the court that Haberek grappled with him when the latter was found trespassing on the grounds of the company and was ordered away.

Green characterized Haberek as a person in the habit of taking coal from the railroad company. Green said that when Haberek tackled him, both rolled on the ground and then down an embankment, where Green shook off his antagonist. Haberek then took to his heels and Green opened fire on him. Green said that while he and Haberek were grappling the latter continually informed him that the place for him was under the wheel of a train. Haberek then recited his story and was to the effect that he did not grapple with Green and that no shots were fired. He declared that Green came into his yard and used a blackjack on his head. He said he could bring witnesses to tell what happened. There was no witness of the occurrence so the accused was given the benefit of the doubt and judgment was suspended.

Half a dozen employes of the shops on the southern side of the city were charged with trespassing on railroad property today in the police court. All admitted that they walked along the railroad tracks, but not in the sense that they were trespassers. They said that it has been the practice of persons living in the vicinity of the machine shops along Howard street and Pequot avenues to cross the tracks and they adhered to that practice. Not one of the half dozen denied the facts and their frankness appealed to the court, so they were treated with leniency. The court gave them to understand that there is a statute against trespassing on railroad property and that for the protection of their rights the railroad companies have made an effort to have the law enforced. The roads maintain a detective force to guard property. That is a task, but it can be accomplished if law-abiding citizens will lend their aid. The railroad company does not regard men of the character of those prosecuted in court today as vicious offenders, but to enforce the law, all must be treated alike in the matter of trespassing. Judgment was withheld in the cases today.

An automobile, owned and operated by Arthur S. Black, 13 Alice street, Norwich, struck Isadore Resnikoff, 4, of 20 Reed street, late this afternoon on Truman street, near the corner of Hempstead street. The child escaped serious injury, sustaining only minor bruises, as was determined by Dr. Harold H. Heyer, who examined the boy when he was brought to his office by Mr. Black. The child had been standing alongside the curbing and as the automobile approached the intersecting street the boy started to run across. The youngster ran directly in front of the automobile and then started to go back and was struck by the left fender and hurled to the highway. Mr. Black reported the accident at the police station.

Captain of Police Charles A. Pinney today caused the police of Springfield, Mass., to be notified that the New London authorities did not want Frank Carpenter, under arrest in the latter city for the theft of an automobile from the garage of Lieut. L. E. Denfield, on Nathan Hale street, last October. The cost of extradition, together with the fact that Lieut. Denfield has been compensated by an insurance company of Hartford and that company is now in possession of the stolen car, was the reason for the withdrawal of the warrant sent to the Springfield police charging Carpenter with being a fugitive from justice.

Nicholas Pettrosito, 79 Woodbridge street and Mrs. Michael Cleary, 49 Montauk avenue, were patients discharged today at Home Memorial hospital.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Max Zimmer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mendel Zimmer of Federal street to Miss Ray Markowits of New York. No date for the wedding has been set.

Mrs. W. S. Durkee of Garfield avenue, wife of Captain Durkee of the Central Vermont line steamer New London, has returned home after visiting relatives in South Braintree, Mass.

Mrs. Ludwig Mann of Montauk avenue and Mrs. Charles D. Carroll, of Bank street, have returned to their homes, concluding a month's visit in Hot Springs, Ark.

Lieut. and Mrs. E. F. Cochrane have moved from the Highland apartments on Granite street to 35 Chapel street.

Mrs. James Walsh of 19 Grand street is in Middletown, the guest of her son John Walsh, formerly of New London.

The wedding of Courtland Arnold Palmer, son of Mrs. Carlos C. Peck, of Post Hill place, and Miss Mary Margaret Cort, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nevin A. Cort, of Mount Pleasant, Pa., will take place at the Reunion Presbyterian church, Mount Pleasant, Saturday evening, April 5th at 8 o'clock.

St. Mary's Parochial School class of 1924 held a meeting at the school recently and elected the following officers: President, Hubert Dempsey; vice president, Corinne Kelley; treasurer, Cecelia Sullivan; secretary, John Farrell.

Two young men, representing themselves as being students of Yale Art school were complained of today to the Chamber of Commerce, when they appeared on School street attempting to collect funds from housewives. The act of the students was reported to the police and Sergeant Frank Howard located the young men near School street. They did not have proper credentials so they were ordered to cease their soliciting until such time as they obtained proper identification.

George A. Roy, 12 Mohegan avenue, complained to the police this evening that about 6.30 o'clock a Ford automobile stopped in front of his residence and two men alighted and stole his Gordon setter dog, the animal being placed in the machine and carried away. Roy declared that the machine bore registration 2473.

A special meeting of the city council is to take place Wednesday afternoon at 5 o'clock for the purpose of permitting the second reading of the ordinance prescribing the new tax rate 26 1-2 mills. City Manager Holt is anxious that the measure be passed and by reading the ordinance Wednesday the third and final reading can be made at the regular meeting to take place next Monday night.

S. Tulin of 82 Windsor avenue, Hartford, complained to the police today that the garage of his summer residence at 1158 Ocean avenue, this city, was being used without his permission or consent. Sergeant Frank Howard, was assigned to the complaint and ascertained that the garage had been rented to a motorist by an agent of Mr. Tulin.

Miss Blanche Chartier of Ocean Beach is a patient at Lawrence hospital, having recently undergone an operation for appendicitis. Miss Chartier's condition is reported as favorable.

The two New London youths who were suspected of robbing the store of J. Solomon, 30 Main street, last Saturday night, when entrance was gained through a broken rear window and $12.85 taken from the cash register, were caught in New Haven last night, shortly after they alighted from a freight train. The boys were held prisoners until the arrival of the train that reaches here at 2.40 o'clock and were then placed aboard the train and in charge of the conductor. The youths were supplied with funds and purchased their own transportation. Upon the arrival of the train in New London the pair were taken in charge by Patrolmen George Labous and David Nagie. This morning the boys were given a hearing in the juvenile court at which time their cases were continued until July 5th. In the meantime, the youths will be in charge of Probation Officer Richard W. Mangfield.

Don't Envy Me

Youth and beauty are at YOUR command

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I made myself a famous beauty. For 35 years as a stage star I have played a beauty's part. I have kept that beauty. At a grandmother's age I retain my youthful bloom.

I owe this to four great beauty helps, perfected by French experts. They form, I believe, the greatest beauty helps in existence. They have brought to many of my friends just what they brought to me. I am convinced that millions can obtain like benefits from them. So I am now placing these supreme helps at every woman's call.

White Youth Clay

One is my White Youth Clay. Not like the crude and muddy clays so many still employ. This is a superclay, white, refined and dainty—perfected by 20 years of scientific study. Its results will amaze and delight you.

Youth Clay purges the skin of all that clogs or mars it. It revives the skin—makes it clear and rosy. It firms the skin, combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores. It multiplies one's beauty. And my girlish complexion shows how it keeps one's youth.

Many women seem to drop ten years with one application of White Youth Clay. The cost is 50c and $1.

Two master creams

My Youth Cream is my cold cream. It contains products of both strawberry and lemon, also all the best that science knows to foster the fine texture of the skin.

I apply it after the clay. Also as a night cream, also daytimes as a powder base. Never is my skin without it. In all my world-wide search I never found another cream which brings comparable results. The price is 60 cents.

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser which I found in France. It contains no animal, nor vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. So it cleans to the depths, then departs. All the refuse, all the dirt and grime come out with it. No other method leaves the skin so clean.

The greatest beauty experts now advise this cleanser, but they charge $3 for it. My Facial Youth costs 75c.

My Hair Youth

My hair is my chief glory. It is heavy, silky, lustrous, and grows finer every year. I have never known dandruff, falling hair or gray hair. The reason lies in my Hair Youth. It is based on lifetimes of hair study. I supply it with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. There it combats the hardened oil and dandruff which stifle the hair roots. It stimulates and fertilizes. My luxuriant hair shows what that means, both to men and women. My Hair Youth costs 50c and $1.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's products. So all who wish may now enjoy these matchless beauty helps. Try one and you will use them all. Go now and learn how much they mean to you. With each one comes my Beauty Book and a guarantee. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

MARKET WAS ACTIVE.

New York, March 25.—Stock prices crumbled in today's active market under the weight of heavy short selling and extensive liquidation of long stock inspired by the omission of the extra dividend on American Can and the sudden increase in the call money rate from 3 1-2 to 5 per cent.

More than 50 stocks broke through to new low prices for the year including Baldwin at 114 3-8, Studebaker at 81 5-8, Chandler at 48 1-2, Stewart-Warner at 76 1-4, Maxwell Motors A at 43 3-8, American Tobacco B at 135 1-4, Bethlehem Steel at 51 1-2, Crucible at 55 5-8, Republic at 47 5-8, American Woolen at 62 3-4 and Marine Ped. at 26 5-8. The extreme losses in these issues ranged from 1 to 6 points but in the majority of cases closing prices showed partial recovery from the lows of the day.

Despite the fact that heavy selling of American Can late yesterday was based on alleged "inside information" that the extra would be omitted, several commission houses indicated in their morning wires that the $1 extra would be paid, bringing about short covering which carried can a point above yesterday's close in the early trading. When only the regular was announced, a flood of selling orders appeared, carrying can down from 114 3-4 to 108 3-8, the stock closing slightly above the low for a net loss of five points. More than 75,000 shares changed hands in the first hour of trading, the day's total sales being slightly below 150,000 shares, or more than one-eighth of the total business.

There was no special news to account for the selling of Baldwin but the weakness of that issue soon communicated itself to other parts of list and accelerated the general decline. U. S. Steel common closed nearly a point lower at 98 5-8 after having touched par in the early trading. Motors continued to yield to bearish reports concerning conditions in the industry.

Rail stocks continued to offer stronger resistance to pressure although Lackawanna broke nearly four points to 117 1-2 on semi-official denial of reports that a special distribution to stockholders was under consideration, and Atlantic Coast line dropped two points. Union Pacific lost ground in the face of an extremely favorable February earnings statement.

As overcrowded short interest in Central Leather and U. S. Rubber preferred issues was revealed in the premiums demanded on borrowed stock. Strength of farm implement issues came somewhat as a surprise in view of the recent decline in wheat prices. Some selling took place in the Pan-Americans on reports of labor trouble in Mexico, while other oils yielded in sympathy with the general decline in other quarters.

Call money opened at 3 1-2, advanced to 4, 4 1-2 and finally 5, where it closed. Time money was somewhat firmer, 30 to 60 day loans being on a 4 1-4 to 4 1-2 per cent. basis with lenders firm in demanding 4 1-2 for loans of three months or more. Commercial paper continued to rule at 4 3-4 per cent.

Trading in the foreign exchanges was quiet with fluctuations narrowing considerably. Demand sterling held around $4.29 1-4 and French francs just below 5.40 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 5. — Reactionary tendencies developed in today's bond market, as a wave of profit-taking broke out on the stiffening of money rates. U. S. government issues, which yesterday were the first to reflect the change in the money situation, declined still further today under continued liquidation, and a wide variety of railroad and industrial bonds yielded to selling pressure. Activity again was on a large scale, total sales running above $16,000,000.

An outstanding feature of the market was a revival of speculative interest in St. Paul obligations. Moving counter to the general trend, several of the road's issues, including the 4s of 1925 and the convertible 4 1-2s, moved up 1 to 3 points to new high levels for the year. Large institutions, which recently were credited with causing a sensational advance in these liens, were said to be accumulating additional bonds on the strength of the road's prospects for refunding operations next year. International and Great Northern mortgages also experienced a sharp rally.

Speculative railroad and local traction issues, which had been the strongest features in recent sessions, were the hardest hit by the Erie in money rates today. Seaboard Missouri Pacific, Frisco, Denver and Rio Grande, Interborough and B. M. T. bonds all reacted from 1 to 2 points as they were unloaded on the market in large amounts. Chemical and sugar issues also lost ground.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 25.—All deliveries of wheat smashed down today to a new low price record for the season. Heavy selling both to stop losses on the part of holders and to anticipate declines was chiefly responsible. Closing quotations were unsettled, 7-8c to 1 3-8c net lower, May 101 7-8 to 1.01 7-8 @ $1.02 and July $1.02 2-8. Corn finished unchanged to 1-8c higher oats 1-8c to 5-8c off, and provisions unchanged to a set-back of 10 @ 12c.

Apparently the wheat market was showing the effect of burdensome supplies. Exports of wheat from the United States up to this time since July 1 were figured as about sixty million bushels less than in the same time a year ago, and it seemed to be generally assumed that the carry-over into the new season would be above the usual average. Furthermore, the condition of winter wheat in the states of largest production was reported as mainly good. Under such circumstances, and with weather conditions favorable and Liverpool prices lower, offerings of wheat here far exceeded the demand. Besides, weakness of stocks and cotton put an additional strain on grain values.

As the wheat market approached nearer the dollar-a-bushel level, however, some change of sentiment became evident, and rallies took place as a result of buying based more or less on opinions that there had been decline enough for a least the time being. The fact that primary receipts of wheat today were the smallest in some time attracted but little notice as a rallying factor. Export sales of 250 000 bushels of durum were likewise nearly ignored.

Corn was sustained largely by prospective further delay to the crop movement. Wet weather precluded likelihood of increased receipts, even if farmers were willing to sell. The oats market, though, sagged in sympathy with wheat.

Provisions averaged lower, reflecting the decline of hog values.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 25.—Stock prices in today's curb market turned decidedly reactionary after an early period of moderate strength. Selling undoubtedly was inspired by the reaction on the "big board" as most of the trade news directly affecting curb stocks was of a favorable character.

Among the oils, Standard of Nebraska broke 3 points, Prairie Oil and Gar and Cumberland Pipe 2 1-3 each and several other relatively inactive issues a point or so, the losses in the leaders being limited to fractions. Wilcox Oil and Gas was one of the few issues to move against the current trend, improving fractionally on reports that a "wild cat" well had been brought in with an initial flow of 100 barrels. Creole syndicate crossed four to a new high for the year.

Industrials fluctuated within a narrow area, a loss of nearly 1 point in Cuba company being counteracted by a large fractional gain in American Light and Traction and the establishment of a new 1924 high by Colorado Power at 34 1-4, the stock dropping back slightly towards the close.

NORTH STONINGTON

Frank W. York, son of Clayton B. York of this town and Dorothy M. Maine, daughter of Jesse J. Maine of Westerly were married on the evening of March 20, by Rev. Lucian Drury at his residence in North Stonington village. They were attended by William Lamphear and Miss Susan Williams. Several other friends also witnessed the ceremony. The bride was attired in blue and carried white roses. The bridesmaid wore grey and carried red roses.

About twenty of the neighbors of Mrs. George A. Thompson made her a surprise visit on the evening of March 18, in honor of her birthday. Refreshments served included a large birthday cake decorated with candles. A pretty bar pin was presented Mrs. Thompson, as a souvenir of the evening, which was much enjoyed by all present.

The women of the Baptist church served a mid-day dinner Thursday of last week at the home of Mrs. H. M. Perkins.

Mrs. McDonald of the Farm Bureau gave a demonstration in home nursing, at the Congregational parsonage last Thursday.

Mrs. A. J. Whitelaw is visiting Mrs O. D. Fisher for a few days

Mrs. H. M. Perkins has sold her residence to Walter Lee and will move into the house adjoining which she owns.

The community prayer meeting is to be held this (Wednesday) evening at 7.30 in the Congregational parsonage. This will be the closing meeting of the winter's series.

The women of the Baptist church are to have a white cross sewing meeting this (Wednesday) afternoon at the home of Mrs. Charles C. Gray. Tea will be served.

Miss Evelyn B. Man, a student in Wellesley college, is one of three New England girls who had won the junior Durant scholarship. This is the highest honor attainable, except election to Phi Beta Kappa.

COLUMBIA

Mrs. John Lewis accompanied by her son Clinton, went to Norwich, Saturday with Clayton Hunt and attended the funeral services of her brother-in-law Charles Lewis, who has been ill for some time at a hospital in Norwich. He was buried in Yantic cemetery.

The severe wind storm recently has seriously injured the ornamental shrubs and shade trees on the green, and in some cases, ruined them. Residents have been occupied in trimming the broken branches and in gathering up the debris.

Sunday being a beautiful day many were out riding or walking. George Champlin accompanied by Raymond Clarke, took an automobile trip to South Norwalk and return.

At the church this (Wednesday) evening there is to be a public community sing.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

CHIPPY CHIPMUNK

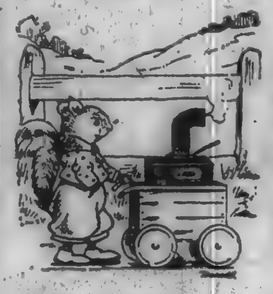
"It's growing late. Please wake up quick,
Wash your hands and face,
Brush your teeth and part your hair,
Then tidy up the place.

This afternoon at two, you go
To Lettucemere to give a show.
I hope you'll tell a dandy story,
So wake up, Uncle David Cory."

Sang the Old Red Rooster at the door of the Turnip Hotel.

In a short time, Uncle Dave finished breakfast and jumping into the Billy Goat stagecoach, told the Old Dog driver to stop at the dear Old Bramble Patch for Little Jack Rabbit.



"Shall buy a roasted nut, I say?"

Well, sir. When the Stagecoach reached the Old Rail Fence where Uncle Dave got out, he saw a little wagon filled with chestnuts. On one end was a tiny whistling stove and the man who owned it wasn't a man at all, but a little chipmnuk dressed in a red fur coak, a pair of striped fur trousers and a little striped fur cap. "Chestnuts, chestnuts! Roasted fine.

Who'll buy a roasted nut, I say?"

"I will," shouted a voice, just like that, quick as a wink and up hopped Little Jack Rabbit.

"Have some chestnuts, Uncle Dave," added the little rabbit, picking out a bag before he'd even opened his knapsack to get his carrot cents.

"Of course," almost shouted the little rabbit. "This is Chippy Chipmunk, Dealer in Nuts. Every day he wheels his wagon down here. All the bunny boys and girls buy nuts on their way to school."

"I'm glad to meet you, Uncle Dave," said Chippy Chipmunk. "I'll be over to Lettucemere this afternoon to hear you tell a story."

"Goodbye, we're off now," said Little Jack Rabbit. "It's getting late. Every day Uncle Dave and I go to some city in Rabbitland. He tells the little boy and girl bunnies all about the Shady Forest and Sunny Meadow."

Well, before Two o'clock, the little rabbit and Uncle Dave had shaken hands with the pretty goose who owned the book shop in Lettucemere. All the afternoon they were surrounded by a ring of happy rabbit children, who now and then would shout: "Did Danny Fox catch him?" or "Where did Robber Hawk go?" which made Little Jack Rabbit laugh to himself for, of course he knew these two bad people would never catch him.

NOTICE TO CREDITORS
AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 25th day of March A. D. 1924.

Present—NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Estate of Edwin F. Appley, late of Griswold, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, That the Executor cite the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order, on the signpost nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same Town, and by publishing the same once in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. AYLING, Judge.

Attest: HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE.—All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at Jewett City, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

ALBERTUS C. BURDICK,
mar26d. Executor

Pursuant to a Judgment of the Superior Court for Windham County dated February 16, 1924, in the case of Pina Albertstad vs August Albertstad, to me directed as a committee to sell the following real estate as a whole at public auction on the premises to the highest bidder on April 16, 1924, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. I will sell at said time and place by public auction to the highest bidder the following described real estate situated in the Town of Canterbury, County of Windham, State of Connecticut.

One certain farm or two tracts of land with all the buildings thereon standing situated on the North Society road so-called, in said Canterbury, containing about 112 acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:

First tract, bounded east by land of Anne E. Dawson and land of Horace G. Crawford, south by land of Edward Baker, Abel Larson, west by land of Anne E. Dawson, north by land of Horace G. Crawford, land of William Hill, land of Anne E. Dawson. This tract is divided by the above mentioned highway.

Second Tract, the woodlot containing about 12 acres located south from the North Society road, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by land of Horace G. Crawford and land of the Town of Canterbury, easterly by land of Edison and Carpenter, land of said Town of Canterbury and said Crawford, westerly by land of Hart W. Goff, land of Abbie Safford, northerly by stone wall abutting on land of said Crawford and said Edison and said Carpenter, said premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated March 24, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records Bk. 33, Page 383. Also another tract of land in said Canterbury bounded and described as follows: On the south side of the highway leading from the dwelling house of Frank E. Miller to North Society and known as the Pellet lot. Beginning at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by heirs of Hestus Hyde, and following said highway westerly about 28 rods to the northwest corner of said lot, thence southerly by fence or wall about 27 rods to the southwest corner, thence east by north by land formerly owned by Isaac Knight to land of said Hestus Hyde heirs, about 28 rods, thence north by east by said Hyde's land to place of beginning, containing three acres more or less, being the same premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated July 16, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records Bk. 36, Page 27.

Excepting from said three described tracts a tract of land containing about 1 3-4 acres deeded by the Plaintiff and Defendant to Horace G. Crawford October 30, 1919, recorded Canterbury Land Records, Bk 36, Page 30, said tract described as follows: One certain piece or parcel of land situated in Canterbury on the highway leading from Frank Miller's dwelling house to North Society School House, bounded and described as follows: North by land of Horace G. Crawford about 140 feet from northwest corner to stake and stones near gap in wall about 350 feet abutting on the west by land of said Albertstads, thence east to stake and stones at said highway about 220 feet, bounded south by land of said Albertstads, thence north on the west side of said highway to land of said Crawford about 350 feet bounded eastery by said highway, containing about 1 3-4 acres more or less.

Terms to be stated at time of sale.

CLINTON E. FRINK,
Committee appointed by the Superior Court. mar25d.

NORWICH TOWN

When the Elopement of Ellen was presented by several members of the First Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society, in Hanover recently under the auspices of the guild of Hanover Congregational church the proceeds were divided equally between the two societies. The Norwich Town young people put on the play in fine form. Excellent music was furnished by Mrs. William G. Park pianist, of Hanover and George Guile violinist, of Norwich.

The mid-week service of the Congregational church is to be omitted because of the lecture Thursday evening, at the United Congregational church, by Dr. Robert E. Speer, of New York.

Friday evening the Congregational church is to unite with others at the Central Baptist church, when Dr. M. A. Honline is to be the lecturer.

At the First Methodist Episcopal church Sunday evening, the Young People's Christian Endeavor service was in charge of Adelbert Rudd. Commander Wilbur of the Salvation Army was the speaker, giving an address on The Personal Touch in Winning Others to Christ.

Rev. James S. Aldrich, pastor of the Methodist church, is to leave this (Wednesday) morning for Providence, R. I., to attend the annual Southern New England conference of Methodist churches at the Mathewson street church. Because of Rev. Mr. Aldrich's absence during conference week, there will be no service at the Norwich Town Methodist church Sunday.

At the Sacred Heart church Monday morning, the pastor, Rev. Charles W. Brennan celebrated an anniversary requiem high mass for the repose of the soul of James Banning. Miss Mary Buckley sang the solos in the mass and at the close she sang, Lead Kindly Light. Miss Elizabeth Malone was in charge of the musical part of the mass. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends.

Rev. Edwin E. Crowdis, pastor of Taftville Congregational church, preached at the First Congregational church Sunday morning in exchange with the pastor, Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey.

The Young People's Christian Endeavor service was in charge of Henry T. Frazier. The topic was The Personal Touch in Winning Others to Christ, with several Scripture references.

Dr. and Mrs. Charles H. Lamb of Town street had as callers Sunday evening Dr. Lamb's sister, Mrs. Harriet E. Brainerd and her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Gremley, of Mystic, who were returning from a motor trip to Hartford. While there they called on Mrs. Kenacotte, a former Mystic resident, who although about 90 years of age, is noted for exquisite and accurate work done in embroidery, also for fancy work with her knitting needles.

FOUR RUM-RUNNERS WITH 500 CASES OF SCOTCH CAPTURED IN SOUND

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 25.—Revenue cutter Seminole put into port tonight with four rumrunners captured in the sound east of New London early today. Aboard the fourt boats are approximately 500 cases of whiskey, mostly Scotch. The boats were tied up at the pier of United States Coast Guard Academy at Fort Trumbull and tomorrow an investigation will be made by United States customs house authorities.

The boats which are of the J type, were sighted in the vicinity of Montauk Point and after a chase of several miles were overtaken by the cutter. When a search of the boats were made and their cargoes revealed they were taken in tow and brought here.

It is understood that the boats received their cargoes at a point between Block Island and Montauk Point and were bound either for New Haven or Bridgeport. The rumrunners were all equipped with powerful engines capable of doing about 25 miles an hour.

ANNIVERSARY OF DOCTORS' FAMOUS ROAD RACE

This week saw the anniversary of an event in the life of the late Dr. Patrick Cassidy which had all Norwich and New London excited on March 24, twenty-six years ago, the famous race from this city to New London between Dr. Cassidy's span of bays and Dr. Witter K. Tingley's pair of brown roadsters, each team driven by its owner. The start was from Union square and the finish at the Crocker house, which Dr. Cassidy reached in 52 3-4 minutes, Dr. Tingley arriving one minute later. The time was regarded as excellent, considering the condition of the roads. The defeated driver gave a dinner at the Wauregan house a few evenings later to the staff of the Backus hospital and a few other guests, covers being laid for twenty-five.

The rivalry between the two physicians as to the speed of their favorite teams led to the match being made under the conditions that it was to be a trotting race and the drivers were not to run their horses at any time. Before the start the drivers were warned by Mayor F. L. Osgood not to drive faster than eight miles an hour in the city limits and policemen were stationed in Thamesville to see that they obeyed the order.

At 3.55 p. m., both teams drove onto Union square, where a crowd of about 100 was assembled. With Dr. Cassidy was Dr. Rush W. Kimball as judge for Dr. Tingley and with Dr. Tingley rode Dr. Julian La Pierre as judge for Dr. Cassidy. At 3.59 1-2 the word was given by Superintendent Frederick Symington of the Backus hospital, who acted as starter. Both turnouts started over Church street, Dr. Cassidy ahead going up the hill. They continued at a moderate trot through West Main and Thames streets, Dr. Cassidy remaining ahead until they passed the city limits. The speed was then increased a little although the two teams were in sight of each other until they reached Montville.

Dr. G. R. Harris was at the junction of the turnpike and the road leading to the Montville station, and caught Dr Cassidy's time at 39 minutes. After passing this point Dr. Cassidy let out a little and from then until the end of the race was out of Dr. Tingley's sight.

After entering New London, Dr. Cassidy missed his road and went about three-quarters of a mile out of the way. Dr. Tingley meanwhile kept down Main street. Dr. Cassidy, however, finally dashed up to the Crocker house one minute ahead.

A crowd of about 200 was gathered there, among them a number of Norwich men who had gone down ahead by train. Dr. Leonard B. Almy was judge at the finish and the official time as given out was 53 3-4 minutes. Dr. Tingley's time was 53 3-4 minutes.

Dr. Cassidy left his horses in a stable, they being in good condition, and came home by the 5.25 train. Dr. Tingley's horses were not at all fatigued by the race. He returned to Norwich on a later train. The teams were driven up in the evening by the drivers of both doctors.

NTL. COTTON MANUFACTURERS TO MEET IN BOSTON

The National Association of Cotton Manufacturers, of which Robert Amory of Boston, is president, is to devote its semi annual meeting to New England. The convention will be held at the Copley Plaza hotel in Boston on Wednesday, April 30, and Thursday, May 1, and the main topic will be "Cotton—and the Making of Industrial New England."

Major Harry C. Meserve, the secretary, whose office is at 45 Milk street, Boston, is now completing the details for the big meeting. The principal speaker will be Samuel M. Vauclain, president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works of Philadelphia, who is one of the most distinguished industrial engineers in the world.

The morning of the first day, Wednesday, April 30, will be given over to registration and reports. On Wednesday afternoon, starting at 2.30, the subjects will be "The Founding and Growth of Industrial Centres," and "The New England Mill Village." The convention banquet will be held on the evening of the first day, April 30. The subjects for Thursday morning, beginning at 10.30 will be "The Community and the Industry," and "The Railroads and the Industry.' The session on Thursday afternoon will be of a technical nature. On Thursday evening a theatre party will be held.

ALLEGES DESERTION THREE DAYS AFTER MARRIAGE

Lillian Zakhem Margolis of Ledyard has brought suit for divorce from Morris Margolis, formerly of Ledyard and New York, but now of parts unknown. She alleges desertion since March 1, 1921. They were married Feb. 26 of the same year. She asks permission to change her name to Lillian Zakhem.

There are still more than 200 stage lines in Colorado.

METHODISTS ARE MEETING IN PROVIDENCE CONFERENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Providence, March 25—The eighty-fourth annual session of the New England Southern Conference opens tomorrow morning at 9 o'clock in the Matthewson Street Methodist Episcopal church, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes, of Malden, Mass., presiding.

This conference was constituted in 1840 by action of the general conference and was named the Providence Conference, which name was changed some years later to the New England Southern Conference. This conference comprises three districts named for three of the principal cities within the conference boundaries, each district in charge of its own superintendent. Following are the districts and superintendents: New Bedford, Rev. Robert L. Roberts, Ph. D.; Norwich, Rev. William H. Bath; Providence, Rev. Ira W. LeBaron.

This will be the seventeenth time that this conference has held its annual session in Providence which, being the largest as well as the most easily reached city in the conference territory, is quite naturally very often chosen as the place of meeting. The first session was held in Providence in 1841 and it was held there also in the following years: 1856, 1856, 1861, 1867, 1870, 1872, 1878, 1882, 1883, 1895, 1900, 1917, 1918, 1921.

The Matthewson Street church, which entertains the conference this year, was organized Oct. 19, 1846 with twenty-eight members. The organization was effected under the direction of the late Rev. Thomas Ely who was then Presiding Elder of the district. The late Rev. Elijah Hedding, the bishop who presiding over the conference in that year, gave full cooperation to the movement and the late Rev. William Livesey was the first pastor. The church doubled its membership the first year and at the close of the second year it had doubled again. A church edifice was erected, the lot being chosen and the building started in 1850 and was completed it being dedicated May 24, 1851, the entire cost with furnishings being $32,000. At that time, this was considered one of the finest pieces of church architecture in Methodism. The present church building was erected during the pastorate of the late Rev. M. S. Kaufman, Ph. D., 1893-98. Dr. Kaufman is well known in Norwich, Conn., and it was, as a result of his characteristic energy and tact, that the task was undertaken and after four years of effort the new church was dedicated in December of 1897 with the cost, together with an old indebtedness, fully provided for. The lot, building and furnishings were valued at the time at $235,000. This building is located in the business part of the city and is built of brick, its outward form being that of a fine business block. It is an interesting instance of a down-town church which, instead of withdrawing to a residential center, has adapted itself to the surroundings and built itself into the hearts of its constituency developing what is now the largest membership of any of the Methodist Episcopal churches in Providence. The Rev. Richard D. Hollington, D. D., the present pastor, has been with the church seven years and is regarded as one of the foremost preachers in the city. The church building is finely equipped, having attractive furnishings with parlors, gymnasium, reception rooms, etc., and is open seven days in the week. There is an elevator provided for continuous service and the plant is admirably adapted to make this the great institutional church that it is.

Matthewson Street church has had a few pastors in its history who have also, at some time in their ministry, served pastorates in Norwich, Conn. Rev. William Livesey, its first pastor, was pastor of the former Sachem Street church there in 1835. The late Rev. Edgar F. Clark, D. D., pastor there in 1870-72, served the former East Main street church 1862-63 and the former Sachem Street church 1864-66. Dr. Clark published a book during his stay in Norwich "The history of the Methodist Episcopal churches in Norwich" of which some Norwich people doubtless possess copies. The late Rev. William T. Worth who served Matthewson Street church 1882-84 was pastor of the former Central church in 1871 and was in his day one of the outstanding preachers of New England Methodism. The late Rev. Dr. M. S. Kaufman at Matthewson Street church as already referred to 1893-98 was pastor at Trinity church in Norwich 1905-11.

The conference program for the first day is as follows: Bishop Hughes assisted by some of the elders chosen by him, will administer holy communion at 9 a. m., which will be followed by the roll call and organization of the conference together with a business session.

At 11 a. m. will be the annual memorial serice for deceased members, Rev. J. H. Buckey presiding, with an address by Rev. Dr. J. P. Bartholomew. At 2 p. m., there will be a conference session, Rev. D. E. C. Bass presiding, with the annual sermon by Rev. R. A. Colpitts. At 4 p. m., will be an institute hour, Rev. J. H. Graham of Norwich, presiding and at 7.30 p. m. Bishop Hughes will deliver his great lecture "Three New England Preachers from the same Town."

The latest reports indicate that there will be but very few moves this year. The Providence district has the unique record this year that practically every pastor on the district has been invited by his respective church to return for another year. This seems also to be true of the majority of pastors and churchos on the other two districts. There will, however, be some changes without doubt, though but few.

As this is "general conference year" and delegates have to be chosen to that great quadrennial gathering which meets in May great interest will center around this week in Providence. The lay electoral conference which comprises one layman from each pastoral charge in the New England Southern Conference will meet on Friday at 10 a. m., in Grace Memorial church, located near the Mathewson Street church where the conference is being held and graciously loaned for the purpose. This gathering will name the lay delegates and the Ministers' Conference the ministerial delegates. Drastic changes in the plan of church government are being proposed and will occupy much attention at the general conference. These proposed changes, such as abolishing the life tenure of the bishops, electing the district superintendents instead of allowing the bishops to appoint them, restoring the time limit, etc., are likely to come before both the minister's and laymen's conference in Providence this week that the attitude of each have an opportunity for expression.

Rev. Edwin H. Hughes, D. D., the resident bishop of the New England area was elected a bishop at the general conference of 1908. Until 1916 he was the resident bishop of the San Francisco (Cal). area, when on the retirement of Bishop John W. Hamilton he was moved to this area to succeed Bishop Hamilton. Bishop Hughes has made himself very popular by the genuine interest and intelligent sympathy he has shown in his dealing with all the churches and ministers and being also an able preacher his coming to preside over the annual conference is always welcomed here.

The annual reception to the ministers' wives and the deaconesses will be held at the parsonage 411 Lloyd avenue, Saturday at 4 p. m. This reception will also include the bishop and Mrs. Hughes who will be the honored guests of the occasion. Mrs. William H. Bath, wife of the Norwich District Superintendent, is the popular and highly regarded president of the ministers' wives' association.

TO FORECLOSE MORTGAGE ON BROADWAY BUILDING

Suit against Max Silberman of Fleischmans, N. Y., and others to foreclose a $10,000 mortgage on the building on Broadway that was formerly occupied by the Y. M. C. A. has been brought in the superior court by the Chelsea Savings bank. The mortgage and note are dated Dec. 11, 1922.

Other defendants named in the action are Henry B. Sewall of Sidney, N. Y., trustee of the bankrupt estate of Max Silberman, Harry C. and Max Rosenthal of Mahattan, N. Y., who claim a $22,500 mortgage covering on this property and other property on Water street and Abner Schwartz of this city who claims a $15,000 mortgage on this property and other property on Water street, these accruing subsequent to the plaintiff's mortgage. Henry B. Sewall as trustee for the bankrupt Silberman estate is now in possession of the old Y. M. C. A. building. The suit is returnable in April.

MRS. LOUIS MABREY HOSTESS AT FLORIDA YACHT CLUB

The St. Petersburg, Fla., Times says:

Mrs. Louis Mabrey, winter resident here from New London, Conn., was hostess at a bridge luncheon at the yacht club, Thursday, entertaining 20 of her friends, winter residents in St. Petersburg.

The luncheon tables arranged to form a hollow square, were decoratively arranged with nasturtiums, lavender Lupin, yellow daisies, and clusters of baby breath, carrying out effectively a color motif of lavender and yellow. Vases of jonquils and baby breath were placed together with sprays of asparagus ferns, the length of the beautifully appointed luncheon table.

The afternoon was devoted to bridge, five tables being arranged in the parlor of the yacht club. Lovely prizes were awarded for high, second and low scores. Mrs. Clarence Williams of Mystic, Conn., received the award for high score, Mrs. Walter Pierson of Norwalk, Conn., second. The consolation award went to Mrs. C. E. Walker of Youngstown, Ohio. Mrs. Mabrey's guests were Mrs. Harriett B. Weaver, Mrs. William Starr, Mrs. H. L. Crandall, Mrs. E. D. Barker, of New London Mrs. F. B. Webster, Mrs. W. P. Rogers, Mrs. J. M. Hattler, Mrs. F. M. ### NORWICH SOCIETY HOLDS BANQUET IN NEW YORK

The Norwich Society of New York held its annual dinner Monday night at the Crescent Athletic club, Pierpont and Clinton streets, Brooklyn. Charles A. Beach, one of the society members is a member of the Crescent Athletic club which made it possible for the society to have the use of the club for the meeting. There were 53 former Norwich men who sat down to the dinner.

President William B. Klein presided after the dinner and introduced Prof. J. L. Bernard of the Radio Corporation of America who gave an interesting talk on the development of radio. After the talk Prof. Bernard had two of his assistants connect a super hytrodyne machine which furnished some fine music. Next moving pictures were shown which illustrated the different methods used in sending and receiving the sound waves. A vote of thanks was given Prof. Bernard and his assistants.

Letters were read by the secretary, William F. McNamara, from the following members who sent regrets at not being able to be present, John S. Burke, W. S. Gaylord, Arthur P. McWilliams, Dr. John H. Storer, Bert Dolbeare, who was in Oklahoma, Louis P. Chomousky, Charles A. Terry, Clark Huntington and Edw. C. Ely. The minutes of the last meeting were then read, also the treasurer's report which were accepted.

The nominating committee, Wm. F Converse, Edw. Crawford and Bruno Grodotzke brought in the nominated officers for the following year, who were elected as follows:

William B. Klein, president, Harold H. Thresher, vice president William S. Gaylord, treasurer; William T. McNamara, secretary; executive committee, E. C. Ely, C. A. Beach, J. S. Burke, Dr. J. A. Somers, J. H. Albertson.

President Klein then called upon several of the members, including Dr. James A. Somers, George Lucas, Reginald Reynolds, Edw. Crawford, Chas. A. Beach, Bruno Grodotzke, Fred Messenger, Howard C. Russ, James H. Albertson, Dr. Louis M. Alofsin.

Edw. Harland Miller said he had passed his 76th year and had lived in New York 53 years and for the past 20 years he had visited Norwich every summer. He thanked the society for calling on him so many times and for the flowers sent him during his enforced stay in the hospital last summer on account of a broken hip.

Francis P. Bent, chairman of the dinner committee spoke, telling of some of his experiences in speaking upon city matters. Mr. Bent also got off several jokes on some of the members which created a lot of amusement. He also requested the members to get in touch with any former Norwich boy who now lives in New York and get him to join the Norwich society, and that he would do all he can do to help the society.

Those present were William B. Klein, Harold H. Thresher, William T. McNamara, Charles H. Haskell, John J. Crawford, E. J. Crawford, David W. Lanman, E. D. McGuire, Bruno H. Grodotzke, C. # WESTERN PIONEER TELLS INTERESTING EXPERIENCE

Frank Rikert, well-known resident of North Sacramento, Cal., who came to the state from Illinois in a covered wagon in 1864, along with other hardy pioneers, recently exhibited a bottle of Taniac, which he had just purchased, to a friend at his home and remarked: "If I thought this was the last bottle of Taniac I would ever be able to buy, I wouldn't take one hundred dollars for it," thus proving the high valuation he places on the famous treatment.

"I believe Taniac really saved my life when I took it after the Flu about a year ago," continued Mr. Rikert, "for the attack left me 30 pounds off in weight, and unable to turn over in my bed without assistance. I tell you, I thought my time had surely come.

"But, thanks to my wife's insistence, I kept on taking Taniac till I was able to do all my work again, had back all my lost weight, and I've been feeling years younger ever since. I'm always telling my friends about Taniac, and can't say too much for it."

Taniac is for sale by all good druggists. Accept no substitute. Over 40 million bottles sold.

Take Taniac Vegetable Pills.

POETRY

The Sandpiper

Across the narrow beach we flit,
One little sandpiper and I,
And fast gather, bit by bit,
The scattered driftwood bleached and dry.
The wild waves reach their hands for it,
The wild wind raves, the tide runs high,
As up and down the beach we flit—
One little sandpiper and I.

Above our heads the sullen clouds
Scud black and swift across the sky;
Like silent ghosts in misty shrouds
Stand out the white lighthouses high.
Almost as far as eye can reach
I see the close-reefed vessels fly,
As fast we flit along the beach—
One little sandpiper and I.

I watch him as he skims along,
Uttering his sweet and mournful cry,
He starts not at my fitful song,
Or flash of fluttering drapery.
He has no thought of any wrong;
He scans me with a fearless eye,
Staunch friends are we well tried and strong,
The little sandpiper and I.

Comrade, where wilt thou be tonight
When the loosed storm breaks furiously?
My driftwood fire will burn so bright!
To what warm shelter canst thou fly?
I do not fear for thee, though wroth
The tempest rushed through the sky;
For are we not God's children both,
Thou, little sandpiper and I?

—Celia Baxter

The Wolf of Trouble

Trouble in the shadows of Lonesome Town,
Like a wolf o' the woods is smartin' roun'
An' the "One Hoss Shay" has broke down,
An' the fire on the hearth is dyin'

To the House o' Shadows comes the dark night's call,
With ghostly step roun' the hearth an' hall,
An' I cry, "Come in! Take all—take all,"
Where the fire o' Life is dyin'

An' this, to Myself is the word I say:
"You've had your time and your sun-shine day,
An' why should you shiver for to go away
When the fire o' Life is dyin'?

But Life to the lonely an'lost is sweet,
An' better is chorus than a Golden Street
Who'd go when they hear Life's dancin' feet,
Though the fire on the hearth is dyin'?

—Frank L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

AL. JENNINGS TO TELL HIS "WHALE OF A STORY" TODAY

Erstwhile Train Robber Reiterates Previous Statement—Promises to Tell Oil Investigators Details of an Alleged "Oil Deal" at the Republican National Convention in Chicago in 1920—Contempt Case of Harry F. Sinclair Today Will be Presented to the District of Columbia Supreme Court.

Washington, March 26.—The senate oil committee turned today from its public inquiry to consideration of pending legislation, but there were several developments incident to its labors outside of the committee room.

The contempt case of Harry F. Sinclair, lessee of Teapot Dome, who refused to answer questions before the oil committee, is to be presented tomorrow to the District of Columbia supreme court.

The treasury accepted the resignation of Clarence C. Chase, son-in-law of Albert B. Fall, as collector of customs at El Paso, Texas, but the house judiciary committee failed to act on the senate resolution contemplating impeachment proceedings as a result of his refusal to respond to questions before the oil committee.

President Coolidge was assailed in the senate by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, the oil prosecutor, because he did not "unceremoniously dismiss" Chase from office immediately after the testimony of Price McKinney, that the customs collector had sought to have him agree to say he had loaned Fall $100,000.

Al Jennings, one time train robber but now evangelist and politician, arrived in Washington and announced that he would have "a whale of a story" to tell the oil investigators tomorrow concerning an alleged "oil deal" at the republican national convention in Chicago in 1920.

A subpoena was issued for William Boyce Thompson, of New York, formerly chairman of the finance committee of the republican national committee, who is to be questioned about the methods of wiping out the $1,800,000 deficit the national committee had after the 1920 campaign.

Chairman Ladd made it known that a majority of the oil committee had voted adversely on the nomination of Samuel Knight, of San Francisco, to be special counsel in suits for the recovery of oil lands in the Elk Hills Reserve in California and there were intimations that the nomination might be withdrawn.

ROXIE STINSON THE STAR WITNESS IN DAUGHERTY PROBE

Washington, March 26.—Senate investigation into the administration of Attorney General Daugherty was continued today at another public session with a bare mention of $33,000,000 made in a few days by "five men" unnamed, through a "stock market deal in Sinclair Oil," as the most salient feature.

As before, Roxie Stinson, the divorced wife of Jess W. Smith, who shot himself in the attorney general's apartment last summer, was the star witness. Her story, replete with mention of considerable sums of money passed to her by the dead man during the two years of his association with Mr. Daugherty, was filled out by the introduction of scores of telegrams, taken by the committee from files in Washington, Palm Beach, and Washington Court House, Ohio, and a few letters from Smith to her.

The wire messages, some of them trivial and others obscure in terms and references, were signed by persons whose names in some cases have been heard, and in others unheard, during the previous progress of the committee's record.

Of the $33,000,000 deal Miss Stinson said she had been told by Jess Smith before his death, to whom she ascribed the statement that he and Mr. Daugherty were "sore" because they were not "in on it." When she professed unwillingness to tell of it further, or to name the men Smith declared to have made the profit, there was a moment of committee conference and an announcement by Chairman Brookhart that a decision as to whether the inquiry into that question would be pressed must await the committee's executive consideration.

Summed up, Miss Stinson's account, drawn out by senators, was that Smith came to Washington worth perhaps $140,000; that he gave her "several thousand dollars"; that he "lost heavily" in stock market transactions; that he paid his half share of $50,000 per year in living with Attorney General Daugherty, and that he died with $214,000 in assets listed by the probate court. Whether he had more at death, she said she did not know.

All through her examination, which brought her to the stand, the third time, Paul Howland, and former Senator Chamberlain, Mr. Daugherty's attorneys, sat waiting for an opportunity to cross-examine. Their opportunity would come tomorrow, the chairman said, when Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, directing the presentation of evidence, might be expected to return from an indisposition which had delayed the proceedings for several days.

"TIP" PREVENTED HOLD UP OF TRAIN WITH $400,000 PAYROLL

Pittsburgh, March 26—A "tip" from a messenger of the American Express company was credited by police with having prevented a holdup today of a Pennsylvania railroad train carrying $400,000 payrol lat Becks Run bridge, near Homestead, a suburb.

Six police officers were injured in an automobile crash when the police, prepared for the hold-up, attempted to halt a speeding machine, believed to have been the bandits' getaway car.

The safe containing the payroll money was delivered safely, under heavy guard to a bank at Clairton for distribution at the plant there of the Carnegie Steel company.

City and county detectives arriving at Becks Run where the safe was to be thrown from the train found an automobile containing four men parked there. That machine immediately speeded away. At another point on the road another police car in charge of Superintendent of City Police Edward J. Brophy, attempted to halt an approaching machine and when the driver gave no indication of slowing up, the police car was put across the road, and the crash followed. Superintendent Brophy suffered two broken ribs, Detective William McCready, a broken shoulder and four other officers superficial injuries.

A man giving his name as Louis Bianci, the driver of the car, was uninjured and placed under arrest. Police believe the machine was the same car that speeded away from the bridge with the approach of the detectives.

The messenger, according to the police, had been approached regarding the hold-up some weeks ago by four men, and led them to believe that he would enter into the plot, at the same time reporting the plans to his employers. The name of messenger was not disclosed.

STEAMER LEVYIATHAN WAS OPERATED AT A LOSS

Washington, March 26.—A loss of $70,897 was incurred by the government through eight voyages made by the Leviathan between July and December last year, according to the report today on the independent offices appropriation bill.

While a substantial profit was made by the big liner on her earlier voyages, she lost $338,800 on her last two trips. President Palmer of the emergency fleet corporation said the latter voyages were made during the winter when passenger travel was slack and that the ship had to be kept going to keep up with foreign competition.

Shipping board officials believe the Leviathan, just off the ways at Boston, will be able to wipe out the loss before next July, by making three or four voyages while tourist travel is at its peak.

FIFTY PERSONS KILLED IN LANDSLIDE IN ITALY

Rome, March 26.—Fifty persons are been killed in a landslide in the district of Amalfi, 23 miles southeast Naples, according to a despatch from Amalfi to the Giornale D'Italia.

Amalfi, on the gulf of Salerno, is picturesquely situated on the summits of lofty rocks crowned with embattled walls and ruined towers. It suffered from a landslide in January, 100, when a portion of the promontory on which it is located fell into the sea.

STORY OF $20,000 "SHAKE DOWN" IN CORCORAN TRIAL

Cambridge, Mass., March 26—A story of the alleged "shaking down" of C. Edson Curtis, of Simsbury, Conn., for $20,000 after he said, Curtis had been "picked up" by Mrs. Theresa Duggan at a Boston hotel, was told by Harry E. Levenson, Boston attorney, called as a government rebuttal witness today in the trial of William J. Corcoran, former district attorney, of Middlesex county, on charges of attempted extortion. Levenson, a former co-defendant of Corcoran in blackmail cases in Suffolk county, pleaded guilty and turned state's evidence.

Levenson, in describing the division of the money paid him, he said, as counsel for Mrs. Duggan's husband, said that Corcoran designated "Lacey and Spracklin" as sharers with himself and Levenson, on the basis of one quarter each, in the net proceeds of the sum obtained from Curtis.

BIG LIQUOR SEIZURE AT THE HUMMOCKS

Providence, March 26.—While several supposed bootleggers, armed with shotguns, lurked around, Boston and Providence prohibition agents Tuesday morning seized between 2600 and 3,000 cases of liquors and 425 gallons of alcohol stored in the garage and basement of the dining hall at The Hummocks, in North Kingstown. The seizure followed an all-night watch of the premises by four of the raiders, while Prohibition Director Harry G. Sheldon rounded up a force sufficient to cope with the situation, and procured the necessary search warrant.

When the raiders finally broke into the garage, at 5.30 a. m., no resistance was offered, and what had promised to be an exciting affair proved one of the tamest, raids in the experience of those participating.

JOHNSON FORGES AHEAD IN SOUTH DAKOTA PRIMARY

Sioux Falls, S. D., March 26—Senator Hiram Johnson of California nosed into the lead over President Coolidge as additional returns came in tonight from Tuesday's republican presidential primary in South Dakota. During the day the president has held a narrow margin but coming down the stretch tonight the Californian gradually lessened the Coolidge advantage, going into the lead when 1315 of the state's 1825 precints had reported.

Johnson's margin in those precincts according to unofficial figures, was a scant 126 votes and in the next two precincts reports he added six more to his majority, the vote giving Coolidge 24,945, and Johnson 25,077.

VERDICT AGAINST C. W. MORSE AND W. GUGGENHEIM

New York, March 26.—A verdict against Charles W. Morse and William Guggenheim for $88,285 was granted by a jury in supreme court today to James C. Davis, director general of railroads and the New York, New Haven and Hartford Railroad company. The suit was based on a guarantee by the Groton Iron Works, a Maine corporation, indorsed by Morse and Guggenheim, for the settlement of a claim.

Poincare to Remain Premier of France

Following His Resignation, He Has Acceded to the Request of President Millerand to Resume Office.

Paris, March 26 (By the A. P.)—Premier Raymond Poincare, with his entire cabinet resigned from office today, and when he announced his resignation he declared that his decision was final.

But tonight there is every reason to believe that he will acquiesce tomorrow in President Millerand's request that he resume office at the head of the ministry. M. Poincare's acceptance in principle of the president's earnest plea that he continue to direct French public affairs practically brings to a close the ministerial crisis, which broke like a thunderclap over comparatively serene conditions. M. Poincare's office acceptance of President Millerand's request is regarded as a foregone conclusion by the vast majority of those identified with French political affairs.

The advice emphatically tendered to President Millerand by both M. Doumergue and Peret, presidents of the senate and chamber respectively that M. Poincare was indispensable as premier in the continuance of the work undertaken in the past two years and the conviction of M. Millerand himself that the "surprise" vote in the chamber did not reflect lack of confidence of the parliament in the premier personally caused the president to dispense with the usual consultations in such cases with other prominent statesmen and send for M. Poincare immediately and ask him to carry on.

The defeat of the government in the chamber was on a question of minor importance. The premier himself was not present, being engaged at the time with the foreign affairs committee, and there were few deputies in the chamber. The vote against the government was 271 to 264, and many of the votes were cast by proxy.

In the conference which President Millerand had with M. Doumergue and Peret all agreed that public opinion, as overwhelmingly expressed by a great majority of the press, made it impossible for any other leader to assume power at this stage. M. Peret decided on the correspondents he did not consider that the Poincare cabinet had been placed in a minority. No other French statesman was even considered at this conference as a successor for M. Poincare.

The conference between the president of the republic and the premier was a touching scene. M. Millerand is reported to have greeted M. Poincare effusively as he earnestly impressed upon him that it was a public duty and a matter of patriotism that he continue his "magnificent work to its conclusion for France."

M. Poincare returned to the ministry of foreign affairs directly from Elysee palace. There General De Castelnau and Deputies Isaac and Chassaigne-Goyon, representing and delegated by the republican entente group of 170 deputies, republicans of the left, 86, and the democratic left, 36, reiterated M. Millerand's request that the premier remain "as a patriotic duty in the face of Germany."

The chamber lobbies were in a high state of excitement, being crowded with deputies until late in the evening, although the afternoon session lasted only a few minutes. The majority of the deputies appeared stunned at the overthrow of the government, which many learned only through special editions of the newspapers, as they were not present at the morning session, when less than 100 deputies were in the house, but were voted by proxies for a grand total of 535.

The opinion is generally advanced in parliamentary circles that M. Poincare will return to power with a somewhat changed cabinet. It is thought that the ministers of finance, agriculture and hygiene will be overturned, and, so that the premier's programme of economies may be begun in the right way, certain undersecretaries of state will be eliminated, and that possibly the ministries of agriculture and commerce will be conjoined.

DECLINES COMPETITIVE RACE ROUND THE WORLD

Washington, March 26.—Major General Patrick, chief of the army air service, has declined a suggestion made by Lieutenant Colonel L. E. Broome of the royal air service, that the British and American around-the-world enter into a competitive race.

The proposal was not made as a challenge, but solely in the interests of its sporting character and value as publicity propaganda."

Lieutenant Colonel Broome suggested that the American flight be made to date at the same time as that of the British. In declining General Patrick telegraphed Colonel Broome, then in Ottawa, as follows.

"Date of departure our flight from starting point so involved with laying down of supplies and schedule of steamer sailing that it is impossible to accede to your sporting proposal. Our best wishes for the success of your daring undertaking."

MERIDEN POLICE MADE SUCCESSFUL LIQUOR RAIDS

Meriden, Conn., March 26.—Three raids, each of which was far larger than any previously made here under prohibition, were carried out by the local police late today, the total haul being sixty barrels of wine containing about three thousand gallons worth at least $6,000.

The alleged owners who were arrested for prohibition violation, and the amounts taken at their respective homes are, Domenico Valenti, of Old Colony road, 18 barrels; Attilio Sartucci, of Old Colony road, 30 barrels, and Robert Lauder, of 41 1-2 Swain avenue, 12 barrels. The three were held in $500 bonds each.

LONDON TRAMWAY STRIKE REMAINS IN OPERATION

London, March 26 (By the A. P.)—There were no signs tonight of any settlement of the strike of the bus and tramway workers, and, with a threatened lockout in the shipbuilding trade and the dispute with the coal miners still unsettled, the mystery of labor seems destined for a while to have its hands filled with work.

Lower Freight Rates For Farm Products

Resolution With That Provision Has Been Approved by Senate Interstate Commerce Committee.

Washington, March 26—Reorganization of the freight rate structure so as to bring about the lowest possible rates on agricultural products and livestock at the earliest time practicable would be ordered by congress under a resolution approved today by the senate interstate commerce committee.

Chairman Smith announced that he would press for early action on the measure, which would declare a general policy with respect to farm freight rates in line with that recommended by President Coolidge in his first annual message to congress last December.

Several proposals for a horizontal decrease in farm rates by the interstate commerce commission have been made in the senate, but in approving Chairman Smith's resolution, the senate committee decided it would be unwise to attempt to dictate any specific rate.

"This resolution," said Senator Smith, "is for the purpose of declaring the policy of congress as to freight rates on agricultural products and directing the interstate commerce commission to carry this policy into effect.

"Congress having delegated to the interstate commerce commission the power to make rates, it was thought unwise to attempt to dictate any specific rate, but to direct the commission that in the exercise of its rate-making power that the products of agriculture should carry the lowest rate in the rate structure.

"This because the products of agriculture are the prime essentials in the economic structure of organized society. These products are produced under circumstances that do not permit the producer to pass the charges incident to their marketing to the consumer.

"The agriculturist pays the freight upon what he buys and sells, it seems, therefore, but just that provisions should be made to make his burden as light as possible, especially upon the things he produces.

The proposed declaration of policy by congress is in this language:

"That agriculture is hereby declared to be the basic industry of this country; and that it is the policy of congress to promote, encourage and foster the agricultural industry, in furtherance of which the interstate commerce commission is hereby directed, with the least practicable delay, to effect such lawful changes in the rate structure of the country as will promote the freedom of movement by common carriers of the products of agriculture, including livestock, at the lowest possible rates; provided that no investigation or proceeding to delay the decision of cases now pending before the commission involving rates on products of agriculture, and the policy herein stated shall be applied in such determination as soon as possible."

AT WORK ON THE REVENUE AND SOLDIESR BONUS BILLS

Washington, March 26.—Prediction that the revenue and soldier bonus bills would be reported to the senate by the finance committee within two weeks and that action on the measures would be speedily forthcoming was made today by republican leaders as the committee proceeded with a study of both bills.

With the floor fight approaching, democrats worked over the income tax schedule which they will offer as a substitute for the Mellon rates, leaders indicating some modifications would be made in the Garner scheme supported by the house democrats. Some intimated the maximum surtax rate of 44 per cent, in the Garner plan would be cut to 40 per cent., with a general revision of the brackets to which the various rates would apply.

The immediate attention of the committee was centered again today on the variance in estimates as to the cost of the house soldier bonus bill. The American Legion presented an estimate of $3,300,000,000 on the probable cost of the measure in comparison to the $4,850,000,000 estimate of Joseph McCoy, treasury actuary and the estimate of $2,119,000,000 made by the house on the basis of a report by the veterans' bureau actuary, H. F. Brown.

JUDGE BROWN FINDS STATE PENALTY TAX WAS ILLEGAL

Waterbury, March 26.—A $75 state penalty tax levied on $1,200 found in the safe of the late Albert Pagnozzi was declared illegal today, in a decision by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court. While the administrator of the estate was surprised to find this amount tucked away in the safe, yet Attorney Fred Dauch, counsel for the estate, contended that it was not liable to taxation, inasmuch as the decedant was not concealing it from tak. Judge Brown's memorandum of decision here in part says that while the court suspects the illegal sale of liquor may have had a part in piling up such profits, yet the court is convinced the money was not concealed for the purpose of evading tax.

POPE EXPRESSES KEEN ADMIRATION FOR AMERICA

Rome, March 26.—(By the A. P.)—Pope Pius took occasion today, in responding to the address of Cardinal Mundelein, of Chicago, on receiving the biretta at the hands of his holiness, to express his keen admiration for America, two of whose prelates have just been so signally honored by the holy see.

America's devotion was a miracle of charity, declared the pontiff, who alluded to the work of Archbishop Mundelein in Chicago as an example of perfect organization and his work as chaplain of the American army as a carrying out of duty praised in the highest terms both by the American command and the American people.

CHECKING FOOT AND MOUTH DISEASE IN CALIFORNIA

San Francisco, March 26.—The foot and mouth disease outbreaks in Los Angeles are being held in check and in San Francisco all evidences have been wiped out, federal and state officials announced today. In other parts of the state the epidemic situation is being controlled.

ST. MARK'S-IN-THE-BOUWERIE EXCLUDED FROM EPISCOPACY

Bishop Manning of the P. E. Diocese of New York Has So Informed the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie—Action Taken Because of the Rector's Refusal to Discontinue Eurythmic Dancing in Connection With Service at the Church.

New York, March 26—Bishop Manning of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of New York, today informed the Rev. Dr. William Norman Guthrie, rector of St. Marks'-in-the-Bouwerie that his church would remain "without Episcopal visitation or ministration" for its rector's refusal to discontinue eurythmic dancing in connection with services at the church.

On two occasions—last December and again on March 14—Bishop Manning expressed his disapproval of the ritualistic dances conducted by Dr. Guthrie which the rector of St. Marks' insisted to the bishop and publicly were not banned by church law and which were presented in the church last Sunday despite the recent admonition.

The bishop declared that as long as Dr. Guthrie refused to heed his admonitions and to act in accordance with his counsel, the parish would remain without visitation or ministration.

In the letter to the rector in which he made known his decision on Dr. Guthrie's attitude, the bishop said he declined to visit the parish and congregation and cancelled his visitation announced for Wednesday, June 11.

Bishop Manning's letter contained an outline of the list of services which he maintained were given contrary to the constitution and canons of the church. Excerpts from the constitution and canons relating to the subject also were sent with the letter, in part, was as follows:

"In December last I requested and entreated you to refrain from certain unauthorized and unlawful acts, and on March 14th, 1924, I solemnly counseled and admonished you that at or in connection with the approaching feast of the annunciation, and at or in connection with what you have denominated Indian day, May 11 and May 18, the Sunday nearest the full moon of May, and not merely on those occasions but in general at all other times, you were neither to use nor permit to be used in St. Marks church or any place within your spiritual jurisdiction as rector of St Marks': (A) any forms of worship composed in whole or in part out of American aboriginal material or out of Buddhist literature or any non-Christian forms of worship; or (B) any eurythmic or other dancing in the church building or in connection with divine worship.

"On Sunday, March 23, evening prayer not being said, you used and permitted to be used in St. Marks church in the afternoon and again in the evening a service or a special form of worship not contained in or selected from the book of common prayer nor authorized by this church or by the bishops of this church or the bishop of the diocese, which you described in your printed announcement as an office and eurythmic ritual in honor of the blessed virgin Mary for the feast of the annunciation and also as a festa service in which service or special order of worship, in disregard of my counsel and admonition, you used and permitted to be use eurythmic or other ancing in the said church.

"Now therefore in consequence of your unauthorized and unlawful action, and your disregard of my official counsel and admonition, I hereby notify you that I decline to visit the parish and congregation of St. Marks' church and that my visitation announced for Wednesday, June 11, 1924 is cancelled and that the parish of St. Marks' will remain without Episcopal visitation or ministration so long as you refuse to follow my said admonition and to act in accordance with my said counsel."

The action of Bishop Manning brought to a climax the controversy which has existed for months and which has attracted wide attention. Approval of Dr. Guthrie's programs had been given by some other clergymen of the Episcopal church and many of them were present at the dance ritual given last Sunday night.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

The house voted to modify the ban on enlistment of boys under 21 years of age in the army.

The senate recommitted the Wadsworth resolution proposing a new method of ratifying constitutional amendments.

The senate interstate commerce committee reported a bill proposing freight rate revision for agricultural commodities.

Officials were informed that the Honduran revolutionary leaders had agreed on Fausta Davila as provisional president.

Herbert Hess, American Legion actuary, told the senate finance committee the house soldier bonus bill would cost $3,300,000,000.

An unfavorable report was decided upon by the senate oil committee on the nomination of Samuel nightK to be special oil counsel.

Activities of tax experts formerly employed in the internal revenue bureau were explored by the senate committee investigating the bureau.

Roxie Stinson told the Daugherty committee of Jess Smith having mentioned to her a deal in which $33,000,000 was made by five men in 1922 and disclaimed any belief that Smith's death was other than suicide.

The senate land frauds committee, decided to subpoena telegrams sent from Washington by R. B. Creager, Texas republican national committeeman, or by his attorney, George Hill, to land companies or others in Texas since December 1.

District Attorney Gordon announced he would present the Sinclair contempt case to the grand jury tomorrow. The house judiciary committee failed to act on the senate resolution to impeach C. C. Chase, El Paso customs collector, who refused to testify before the oil committee. The treasury accepted Chase's resignation.

STATUS OF MUTINOUS IRISH FREE STATE ARMY OFFICERS

Dublin, March 26 (By the A. P.)—Conflicting views among the cabinet ministers concerning the status of the status of the Free State army officers who had a part in the recent mutinous movement and who later surrendered were revealed in course of debate in the Dail Eireann today. The debate was the outcome of a motion, put by Tom Johnson, laborite, leader of the opposition, which was carried by the Dail this morning.

Mr. Johnson in proposing his motion made known his dissatisfaction with the outline of the situation in Ireland made previously by President Cosgrave, in which it was declared that the Free State's military position was normal and generally satisfactory.

Joseph McGrath, former minister of commerce, asserted in the course of the debate that the agreement entered into by the government clearly meant there would be no victimization of officers who surrendered, while Foreign Minister Fitzgerald declared that at the time he challenged that interpretation, and had been assured that the agreement did not imply reinstatement of the officers. The other ministers who spoke seemed generally at variance on the interpretation, of the agreement and the debate developed some heat.

CANADA TO RECOGNIZE SOVIET RUSSIAN GOVT

Ottawa, March 26.—Canada is prepared to recognize the soviet government of Russia "in the best interests of both countries," Premier King today wrote A. Yaskoff, agent in Montreal of the Russian government, who had asked whether de jure recognition of Russia by Great Britain could be taken to signify recognition by Canada.

WHY PROHIBITION HAS FAILED IN NEW JERSEY

New York, March 26.—Because of wholesale bribery, bootlegging flourished and real beer was brewed and sold unmolested in New Jersey with the alleged connivance of high state and federal officials, Saul Grill and William E. Dunigan, special prohibition agents, testified today at the trial before Federal Judge Mack, of J. Harry Foley, once secretary to Governor Edwards, now superintendent of weights and measures of New Jersey, and Major Herbert L. Katz and the Patterson Brewing and Malting company.

The defendants are charged with bribery and conspiracy to bribe federal agents to keep Pennsylvania beer out of New Jersey and New York, and to permit the brewing of beer and conversion of alcohol into liquor in New Jersey.

Grill quoted Foley as having told him that the breweries had no fear of them, that a Paterson brewery closed by federal agents was to be reopened after the case had been "fixed" for $50,000. Katz, Grill said, gave him $2,000 to keep away from his brewery, the sum to be a weekly payment.

The witness described visits with Katz to New Jersey breweries when arrangements were made for graft collections nad when he said he was informed large sums were being paid for protection.

Dunigan asserted that between August 31 and October 18 of last year when, he said, the agents held conferences with Katz and Foley, the agents had received bribes totalling $60,960. He had reason to believe, he added that bribing had been going on for eight or ten moths.

Grill quoted Foley as having told him that the then Governor Edward would run for president and that if he were elected, Foley might be able to help Grill "become prohibition commissioner."

"I'm secretary to Governor Edwards and you know what that means," Foley said, according to Grill, adding: "I've heard a lot about you and I've wanted to meet you. I know everyone and everyone knows me. If we cooperate we can clean up and make a lot of money."

A heated exchange of words between Dunigan and State Senator Alexander Simpson of New Jersey enlivened the proceedings when cross-examining the agent, Simpson asked whether it was not true that he was working for former United States Senator Frelinghuysen. The witness houted a denial.

TO BE PLACED ON TRIAL FOR MURDER OF DAUGHTER

Bridgeton, N. J., March 26.—Thompson Dickson, 55, tomorrow will be placed on trial for his life for the murder of his 15 years old daughter, Emma, whose battered body was found September 22, last, near the Dickson home in Bricksboro.

The defendant's aged father, Benjamin Dickson, 81, will be the principal witness for the state. It was on information furnished the authorities by this man that led to the youngster Dickson's arrest and indictment.

The state will call more than 20 witnesses among whome are those who first heard the elderly Dickson tell the gruesome story of how his son had brutally ended the life of the little girl.

ARE BOOTLEGGERS POISONING ANTAGONISTS?

Mount Clemens, Mich., March 26.—The Rev. T. O. Sykes, pastor of the First Presbyterian church here whose efforts against bootleggers has resulted in the padlocking of several local "blind pigs" is suffering from effects of poison believed to have been placed in his milk, the family physician Dr. Joseph M. Croman announced today. Mrs. Sykes also is ill from the effects of the milk, her condition is regarded as serious.

A Wonderfully Fine Soap —

A Health Beauty Talk by the Health Doctor

The HEALTH DOCTOR says:

It has a peculiar purifying quality which is exactly what your skin needs to promote that clear underglow of health which is the secret of a radiant complexion.

Lifebuoy removes dangerous germs which constantly get on the skin.

I HAVE just received a letter from a Mother which is so like other letters Mothers are writing me that I am going to quote one paragraph:

"My children use Lifebuoy because I am sure that its antiseptic quality protects them from colds or worse—a skin affection of my little girl cleared up quickly after using it. I have recently been using Lifebuoy myself and my skin seems softer, cleaner and PERHAPS looking than ever before. You have emphasized the protective quality of Lifebuoy. I am sure that Lifebuoy AGREES WITH MY SKIN better than any soap I have ever used."

That's a point I want to settle once and for all.

Lifebuoy should be used every day

HEALTH and Health/Beauty cannot be secured by thinking about them spasmodically—or worse, waiting until we are sick before we begin to think about health and keeping well.

So naturally a soap which protects health is one which is made to be used many times a day. It should be the mildest, purest soap it is possible to make at any price. Lifebuoy is such a soap. It is even more than a pure soap—it is a health soap.

It agrees with your skin

THE oils of palm fruit and cocoanut used in Lifebuoy are recognized as most beneficial to the skin.

Palm oil is red so Lifebuoy is red in color. It would not do to bleach away from the red palm oil any of its peculiarly soothing qualities so particularly desirable in the care of a delicate skin.

The gentle antiseptic in Lifebuoy imparts mildness to the rich, creamy lather and a peculiar purifying quality which is exactly what your skin needs to keep pores from clogging and to promote that clear underglow of health which is the secret of a radiant complexion.

Avoid skin fatigue

ANOTHER thing—Lifebuoy rests the skin. When you are tired and nervously irritable all over, take a Lifebuoy bath. The network of tiny nerves just under the skin will be soothed. Skin fatigue is one of the worst foes of beauty.

Get several cakes. You will soon become fond of the cleanly, quickly vanishing Lifebuoy odor; it gives one such a comfortable feeling of being safely clean. Its habitual use is a very real protection to the whole family. And it agrees with your skin.

Herbert Gill, 21, Aniso Marceau, 19, and Antonio Deiudo, 16, the three local young men arrested Tuesday afternoon by State Policeman Heinold, charged with abuse of a minor female child, were presented before the Coventry town court in the town clerk's office, Wednesday noon. All three entered demurrers to charges of carnal knowledge and abuse of a female child and an additional charge of seduction against Marceau. The three young men were represented by Attorney Samuel B. Harvey of this city. Justice of the Peace William B. Hawkins overruled the demurrers, finding probable cause and the men were bound over to the next criminal term of the Tolland county superior court. A bond of $1,000 was called for in Marceau's case and bonds of $500 each for the other two. All were released upon furnishing bonds.

At the Y. W. C. A. Tuesday night, open house was held for the girls and women members and guests. Over two hundred were in attendance and the affair was a delightful success. Physical Director Leroy A. Dissinger was in charge of the program which was carried out by two classes —the grammar school girls and the employed and high school girls.

A calisthenic exhibition opened the program and was followed by group games by the grammar school girls and calisthenics, buck tumbling and indoor baseball by the older girls. Female spectators crowded the gallery. Swimming, diving and relay contests were then enjoyed in the pool. Little Miss Bernadette Walsh outclassed the grammar school girls and V. Brown took practically all the honors on the gym and in the pool for the older girls.

The State Master Horseshoers' association of Connecticut will hold its annual convention in this city, Saturday, May 3. Arrangements for the affair were being made here Wednesday by John D. Doyle of Hartford, the state president, and George Ide of Brooklyn, first vice president. The association has a membership of about 450 and the convention will be attended by some eighty delegates from the various locals and members of the women's auxiliary of the organization bringing the total number to one hundred and twenty-five. Dinner will be served at 1 o'clock, preceded by the convention meeting at 10.30 o'clock with State President John D. Murphy in charge. An address of welcome will be delivered by Mayor Hormisdas Dion and the response will be by William E. Murphy of Philadelphia, national president of the Horseshoers' Association. The convention here will be under the auspices of Local 428, which covers Windham and New London counties.

Charles Hansen pleaded not guilty, in the police court Wednesday morning, when charged with non-support of his wife and two children, one 2 years old and the other 2 months. Hansen said that he had done the best he could for his family. He had not had any work for two months but now had been promised a job in the local cotton mills, to begin next Monday. He believed that this would net him about $18 a week as the plant was only operating on a three-day-a-week schedule.

Mrs. Hansen complained that her husband offered her practically no financial support. She said her husband went to the county jail at Brooklyn last May for not supporting her but it did not seem to do any good. She worked to support her first child, until the birth of the second baby.

For over a month Mrs. Hansen said that she had been receiving help from the town of Windham. Her grocery bill was constantly growing and she owed two months' rent. She had been sent by her husband to the town hall to tell the personal tax collector that they could not pay the tax. At that time First Selectman Russell A. Andrews consented to give her some help.

Mrs. Hansen was not looking for profit. She said that any amount would please her as long as the current bills were paid and she and her two children could live. When Deputy Judge Curtis Dean asked her if $16 a week would be sufficient she was quite satisfied, saying that that would take care of matters for the present and when she got strong enough she could go back to work.

Selectman Russell A. Andrews told of the help given the Hansens. He said that the town was not very keen about supporting a full grown, husky man.

Hansen pleaded well in his own behalf. He said that it was impossible for him to secure work, but he has always been willing to give what money he had toward the support of his family.

The accused was found guilty of the non-support charge and ordered to pay the family $10 a week for a period of six months. A bond of $300 was asked for as security.

John Hansen, father of the accused, was seated in the spectators' gallery and he was asked if he would furnish bonds for his son. He said that he would gladly help out his boy but not "that woman." While making these statements he stepped up to Mrs. Hansen and pointed a threatening finger at her. The court reprimanded him for this action. The case against the accused was continued for one week to give him a chance to get a job.

At a gathering of Elks from all parts of eastern Connecticut, at Putnam, Tuesday evening, the ceremonies were in charge of the officers of Willimantic lodge, 1311, and their work evoked many compliments. Charles Hill acted as exalted ruler; Valentine L. Murphy, esteemed leading knight; Clarence M. Mathieu, esteemed lecturing knight; Albert J. Fournier, esteemed loyal knight; Louis J. Flynn, secretary; R. Ernest Melody, esquire; Albert J. Piche, chaplain; Conrad Dubeau, guard and J. P. Bogash, tyler. The local delegation numbered 75, the trip being made in automobiles. Thirty-seven candidates for Putnam lodge were initiated.

As a token of love and remembrance, Miss Susan Albro of Oak street was given a beautiful fountain pen by members of the Plus Ultra club and a few of the B. M. Minstrel entertainers, who gathered at her home this week. Miss Albro is to enter upon a new career as nurse, April 1.

A delightful evening was spent and was followed by the serving of lunch. Those present were Misses Irene McDonald, Cora and Mary Dawson, Gladys and Carrie Powell, Myrtle Ellis, Ione Butler, Ida Williams, Mrs. Grace Winters, Gladys and Blanche Potter, Gertrude Butler, Ella Donahue, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Bernet, George Lewis, Leo Beaulieu, Theodore and Raymond Ladd, Austin Connor, John Girard, Antonio Cagnon, Joseph Bernet, Jerry Montigney, Richard Tinker, Clifford Green, Forrest Richards, Rose Albro and Mrs. Albro.

Wednesday morning there were two automobile mishaps resulting from the same conditions. Both were caused by the backing out of vehicles to the street.

The large Stafford Springs-Willimantic jitney bus driven by Leslie Gorman was struck by the rear of one of A. Sugman's auto trucks, as the latter was being backed out of the driveway of the Gulf Refining gasoline service station on Main street. The side of the bus was damaged.

About an hour later one of the Standard Oil company auto trucks was being backed out of the front entrance of the Leonard Bros. company garage building and smashed into the side of a Ford coupe owned and driven by Walter Reed of Hartford. The Ford was quite badly damaged. Police headquarters were notified of both accidents and the owners of the machines came to mutual agreements.

"Resolved that four years of practical training and experience is preferable to four years in college, as a preparation for a business and industrial career" will be the subject of a debate at the final meeting of the season of the chamber of commerce next Tuesday evening. Egbert A. Case, principal of Windham High school, will assume the negative to defend the college training, while H. T. Burr of New Britain, former principal of the Willimantic State Normal school, will uphold the affirmative.

Each speaker will be given twenty minutes for debate and ten minutes for rebuttal to be followed by a general discussion by the members. Supper will be served at 6.30 o'clock.

Among the long service employes recently pensioned by the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad company is William Oscar Parsons, 57 Park street, this city. Mr. Parsons, who has had 45 years' continuous service with the New Haven retires as a train baggageman. Mr. Parsons was born Nov. 20, 1851. He came with the New York & New England railroad Sept. 27, 1879, as a laborer in the maintenance of way department, at Putnam. His first trainline was under Thomas Bradford, then foreman, and Charles Brown, then roadmaster. May 7, 1880, he was promoted to freight brakeman and May 1 1885, to the position of passenger trainman on the same railroad. On July 4, 1887, Mr. Parsons was appointed train baggageman on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad and served until Dec. 3, 1923.

The William H. Lincoln property, corner of Maple avenue and Church street, has been sold by Mr. and Mrs. Eugene X. Cote and the three-tenement house on Tingley street, known as the Eaton estate, to William Lennon.

Some two thousand medals were awarded during January and February to members of the Winchester Junior Rifle corps, one of which went to Eugene Leclair of 59 Chapman street, this city.

Tuesday evening, April 8, another stag party is to be held at the Y. M. C. A. A program is in the hands of the social committee. One of the features will be a wrestling match between "Dutch" Kemp and "Cyclone" Johnson, two Hartford "Y" matmen.

The condition of Paul Trowbridge, son of Mr. and Mrs. Adelbert T. Trowbridge of South Chaplin, who is critically ill, was somewhat improved Wednesday.

Mrs. Mary L. Sharpe of North Franklin recently purchased and is moving into the house owned by Mrs. Mabel F. Caswell, on Johnson avenue.

PAID MORE CLAIMS FOR DEATHS BY SUICIDE

Death claims to the amount of $1,300,000 for suicides were paid during the year 1923 by the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. This exceeds by about $100,000 the payments made by the company for deaths caused by automobile accidents last year.

"The prevention of self-destruction" according to the latest number of the insurance company's statistical bulletin," is one of the major problems in the conservation of human life. As yet, only a few successful efforts have been made in a small way to prevent suicides. That something can be done on a nationwide basis, uniting the force psychiatry, general medicine and practical religion is shown by the achievements of small groups of workers here and there in the United States."

The suicide rate for the working classes, as shown by the records of the industrial policyholders of the company, has fallen considerably since 1914, and the betterment of the economic condition of the industrial workers is considered by the company's statisticians to have been a large factor in the reduction of suicide mortality.

Guaranteed Relief From Rheumatic Pain With New Powder From Italy

Shake It in Your Shoes—No Medicine to Take

Science has at last found a harmless, external treatment for Rheumatism. This new discovery has brought almost miraculous relief from pain to hundreds of even the so-called "hopeless" cases.

Allesandro Volta, the well-known Italian physicist for whom the electric volt was named, discovered a scientific combination of certain ingredients which he prepared in the form of a fine powder that is intended to be a powerful Uric Acid Solvent. This discovery he has called VOLTA. It is not taken internally, but is shaken into the shoes, where immediately it seems to be absorbed into the blood stream through the myriad pores of the feet. This absorption is aided by the fact that the soles of the feet contain 10 times the number of pores found in any other part of the body.

So remarkable and rapid have been the results from the use of Volta powder, both in this country and in Italy, that the American distributors have authorized local druggists to dispense Volta with an unqualified guarantee of relief from the use of the very first package or money will be refunded.

If you suffer from rheumatic pains, Sciatica, Lumbago, Gout or Neuralgia, you owe it to yourself to try this startling scientific treatment. It is absolutely harmless and will not cost one cent if you do not receive wonderful relief.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Stockholders here of the Connecticut Mills company received on Wednesday the following statement from the executive committee of the corporation:

March 25, 1924.

To the Stockholders of Connecticut Mills Company:

For the fiscal year ending January 5th, 1924, your committee reports further progress in the re-establishing of the credit of your company (since the last annual report was issued).

The earings for the year, after deducting all expenses, including a liberal amount for depreciation on plant and machinery, amounted to $201,900.-.95. From these earnings dividends accruing on the first preferred stock amounting to $99,435 were paid. The balance of earnings was added to the surplus. The company operated throughout the year without borrowing money, and at the same time carried large balances in its banks. During the year the subordinated notes due the R. J. Caldwell company, Inc., were reduced from $260,076.47 to $15,-000. This $15,000 of notes represented the only indebtedness represented by notes outstanding on January 5th, 1924. The auditors' consolidated profit and loss statement for the fiscal year ending January 5th, 1924, is herewith enclosed. It shows total current assets of $1,891,653.28 as against total current liabilities of $166,802.28.

The tire fabric business in common with other textile business continues in a depressed condition, but forward business on your books is sufficient to warrant the belief that your company will operate at a profit during the year 1924.

Since the close of the year 1923 various changes have occurred which should be of interest to the stockholders:

The claim by the United States government internal revenue department for back taxes, against which a reserve for contingencies amounting to $100,000 was set up, and which appears in the balance shee enclosed herewith, has been settled at a cost of $15,727.53, so that liability no longer exists.

The selling contract with the R. J. Caldwell Company, Inc., expires April 1st, 1924, and your directors have arranged after that date to sell the company's product direct through its own employes.

Your directors have also negotiated a lease, with option to purchase, on the property known as Danielson No. 2 plant, on satisfactory terms. This property was purchased February 28th, 1920, and has never been used. The lease will, therefore, relieve your company of considerable expense.

The estimated total savings for the company, resulting from the foregoing and reductions of expenses and changes which have taken place throughout the year will amount to approximately $100,000 per annum.

The members of the executive committee, whose names are signed to this report, wish to express their appreciation of the loyal support of the officers and operatives of this company, and the confidence which the stockholders have uniformly shown in the management.

Respectfully submitted,

CHARLES WALCOTT,
J. PRESTON RICE,
LAURENCE P. DODGE,
HARRY L. BURRAGE,
OBADIAH BUTLER,
Executive Committee.

A beauty diet is detailed for women in a new cook book just published by Ida C. Bailey Allen of New York, formerly of this town. The beauty diet sets forth that some foods will make you beautiful, and, as a writer who has interviewed the author says, will give that spiritual, almost angelic glow, which only the truly beautiful woman possesses.

Before explaining about the balanced ration hereinafter set forth, the author insists that every woman must drink at least two quarts of water every day and take a reasonable amount of exercise in the open air and sleep at least eight hour each night.

The prescribed beauty diet is:

On arising: Juice of half a lemon in a glass of hot water, followed at once by a glass of cold water. (The combination of hot and cold water assists in the elimination process.)

Breakfast: Choice of oranges, grapefruit, apples; eggs, any way except fried, or a broiled chop or bit of fish; bran or whole-wheat bread, toasted; clear coffee or tea; glass of water.

10 a. m.: Glass of water.

Luncheon: A cup of bouillon, any kind; a green or vegetable salad with cream cheese, a chopped hard cooked egg, bits of chicken or fish with French dressing; entire wheat bread and butter; fruit, plain or cooked; tea; glass of water.

2 p. m.: Glass of water.

Dinner: Choice of fish or fruit cocktail or clear soup; broiled, boiled, baked, stewed or braised meat or fish; choice of potatoes, noodles, spaghetti, or bread and butter; choice of stewed tomatoes, spinach, chard, onions, carrots, parsnips, asparagus, celery, beets, string beans, peas, corn; any green salad, tomato, cucumber or asparagus salad with French dressing; any simple dessert, as custard, bread pudding, gingerbread, plain cake, fruit whip, simple gelatines, hot souffles; clear coffee; glass of water.

An retiring: An apple or the juice of two oranges and a glass of water.

Mrs. Allen adds a word of warning to this beauty diet.

"In working out my diet," she said, "avoid any excess fat. Do not eat more than one sweet at a meal (if using sugar in coffee or tea, this is all that should be taken), put in as many vitamine foods as possible and introduce plenty of bulk. Use only whole grain breads and prepare every food so that the food constituents are saved."

From his home on the West Side, the funeral of Louis Gaudin was held Wednesday morning with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Deschaux, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. The body was entombed at Holy Cross cemetery. The bearers were Gaston A. Maindon, Herbert Socquet, Henri Allerie, John M. Bessette, Alphonse Bineto and Joseph Mazzarelli. Louis E. Kennedy had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Wednesday afternoon, the funeral of Mrs. Mertha L. Franklin was held from her home in Dayville, with services conducted by Rev. William Swainson, at 2 o'clock, in the Congregational church at that place. Burila was in the Dayville cemetery. The bearers were Ralph Elliott, Marcus Elliott, Wayland Elliott and Francis Dole. Louis E. Kennedy was the funeral director.

Serving on the court of burgesses does not appear to appeal to numbers of the borough's citizens. No less than six men attending the caucus Tuesday evening declined, without hesitation, to accept nominations. To one who realizes the responsibility and is willing to devote the necessary time to the work the burgesses have to do, being a burgess represents a considerable sacrifice for a public not always too appreciative and often too given to finding fault.

This year's standard automobile route books will give Danielson greater prominence as a good road center than it has enjoyed heretofore. It will be listed as a junction point of great trunk line highways stretching away to the east and west, the north and south. It is on the shortest route between Providence and Hartford, and this fact alone, prominently set forth in the auto books, will divert a great stream of tourist traffic through this place.

Announcement has been made that W. Irving Bullard, of the Merchants National bank of Boston, formerly of Danielson, is to deliver a series of four addresses before the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration, at Dartmouth college.

Herbert Flagg, brother of Mrs. Orray E. Potter of Broad street, is seriously ill at the United States Naval hospital, Boston. Mr. Flagg was for years a resident of Danielson. He is a resident of Franklin, Mass., where he is employed in a newspaper office.

A meeting of the Danielson Rod and Gun club was held Wednesday evening at the rooms of the Bohemian club to pass on new by-laws for the organiation.

The Dayville Grain and Coal company of this town announced Wednesday that it has acquired railroad frontage property in Putnam and is to build a $20,000 grain mill and elevator there.

Edward B. Carpenter, renominated at the borough caucus for tax collector, an office he has filled for many years, is probably the oldest tax collector in Connecticut. Mr. Carpenter is 86 years of age, but as active and alert as many a man of 60.

Warden W. A. Burrows, who will retire from office following the Borough election next month, has served the borough as burgess and warden for about 20 years, and has made a record of faithfulness to duty and sacrifice for the public welfare that is matched by but few of Danielson's citizens. His has been a service without pay—a service that is a fine example of civic duty, well discharged.

Danielson business men have designated April 5 as spring opening day and will co-operate to make the occasion one of special interest.

The snow storm that set in out of the east Wednesday afternoon was just about as welcome as a boil upon the nose would be.

Harold Frederick of Worcester was a visitor with friends in Danielson Wednesday.

Haig S. Iskiyan is to be here this (Thursday) afternoon to speak upon the subject "Oriental Rugs" before the members of the Killingly Woman's club at the assembly hall in the high school building.

PUTNAM

The Dayville Grain and Coal company, doing business at Dayville and Danielson, is to enter the Putnam field. This concern, it was made known at the offices of the company in Dayville Wednesday afternoon, has acquired a large tract of land from the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. company, near the roundhouse in the railroad yards here, and will erect a modern grain mill and elevator. A side track will be built. The company will expend $20,000 in equipping its new plant, work will begin at once.

The building to be erected will have a bulk capacity of 30 carloads and a bag capacity of 50 carloads of grain. This building will be modern in all its arrangement and equipment. As yet the company has not decided whether the building will be of wood or metal.

A wholesale business serving all the territory hereabouts will be conducted from the new Putnam plant.

Negotiations for the land that had been acquired and plans for the establishment of the business here have been under way for months.

A decision for the defendant company has been rendered by Judge Charles B. Waller of the New London county common pleas court in the case of John Pflaum vs the Vito Construction company of Thompson. The case was heard at Norwich this month.

In the fall of 1921 the Vito company was engaged in building a state road between Norwich and New London. Pflaum charged that in setting off a blast of explosive his property was damaged. He claimed $100 for damage to his house, $50 for labor in making repairs and $50 for money expended.

The Vito company denied the charges of Pflaum that they were negligent and claimed that Pflaum had oversight of the blast which he claimed caused the damage. The company also produced a receipt from Pflaum releasing them from all claims for damages. Attorney Charles L. Torrey of this city was counsel for the Vito company.

A fine of $100 and costs of $40.29 were assessed against Fred Lamoureaux of Hartford, driver of a big truck of the New England Transportation company, of Hartford, when he was presented before Judge M. H. Geissler in the city court Wednesday morning. Lamoureaux, represented by a Hartford attorney, entered a plea of nolle.

Lamoureaux was the driver of a truck that was found upon being weighed by the state police here last Saturday to have an overload of 10,280 pounds. The truck was bound from Andover, this state, to Hudson, Mass., with a load of paper for use in making shoe counters.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Edward Lyon and Charles E. Lyon of Providence came here Tuesday for a birthday visit with Mrs. H. C. Bradford. Mrs. Lyon and Mrs. Bradford, formerly residents of Woodstock, are twin sisters.

To James Mishoe, who hauled him out from under the wheels of a passenger train from which he had jumped while it was rolling into the local station, William Ryan, about 50, of Attawaugan, owes his escape from death or very serious injury.

Though he was slightly better during the forenoon hours of Wednesday, Rev. J. J. Kitty of Pomfret remains critically ill at the Day Kimball hospital.

A letter to Judge M. H. Geissler from his mother, who has been spending the winter in Florida, tells of the homeward journey of the party by automobile being interrupted by impassable roads in Georgia. The party turned about for further sightseeing in Florida, and will visit at Miami.

The Northeastern Connecticut Fish and Game Club, with headquarters in this city, has twenty-five applications for membership. The last report of the club showed a membership of 198.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Lieut. George Clarence Cummings, son of Rev. G. H. Cummings, formerly of Thompson, and Miss Marjorie Roberts, at Christ church, Sausalito, Cal., Saturday of last week.

Herbert Flagg, formerly a resident of this city, is critically ill at the United States Naval hospital in Boston. Mr. Flagg is a compositor and for years has been employed on a newspaper owned at Franklin, Mass., by Carl Johnson, also critically ill at this time.

FORMER NORWICH MAN DIED AT AGE OF 96

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, March 26.—Reuben Maples, 96, the oldest resident of Putnam, died Tuesday evening at his home on Grand View. Up to very recently he had been in good health for one of his advanced years and took a lively interest in current events and all the things that normally interested him.

Mr. Maples was born in Montville, this state, February 15, 1828, a son of Abel and Lavina Church Maples. After attending school there he was apprenticed to learn carpentry and after three years went to work in Norwich as a journeyman carpenter.

Later Mr. Maples was engaged for years in and about Boston at his trade and while living there married Miss Mary Storey, of Milton, who died October 4, 1909.

In 1875 the family moved to Putnam from Franklin, where Mr. Maples had located after leaving Boston. For years the family lived in the Sunnyside section of the city and then moved to Grand View.

Mr. Maples made his home with Misses Lillian and Marion Warren, relatives. He leaves a son, Herbert of East Greenwich, and a sister, Mrs. Eunice G. Manchester, of this city.

SOUTHERN MILLMEN BALKED IN MANHASSET PLANT SALE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Putnam, March 26.—Now that the auction sales of the property of the Manhasset Mfg. company has been concluded, publicity may be given to an interesting feature of the transactions that it has been deemed best to withhold up to the present.

Among the buyers who came to the sale here was a group of southern millmen. They wanted machinery. They bid upon lots offered throughout the four days of selling and tentatively bid much of it in at ridiculously low prices, having machines that were as much as $1500, for instance, knocked down to them for as low as $50. Some of the machinery they stood to get was brand new and never used.

The fly in their ointment, however, was the stipulation that should the entire property, offered first as a unit, bring a higher bid than the aggregate of bids received for the property by lots and parcel, the unit bid would be recommended by the receivers for approval by the superior court.

The unit bid for the entire property, received within a few minutes after the opening of the sale, a week ago last Tuesday, was $475,000. Then the mill buildings were offered separately without a bona fide offer being made for any one of them. This at once indicated to the machinery buyers the difficulty of their position. There was a bit of hope for them, however, in the fact that an advance bid of $144,500 had been made by a Putnam man, representing local interests, for the 36 dwelling houses owned by the company.

Toward the end of the sale the southern men were convinced that they could still make money on their machinery buys if, over and above what they had bid for the machinery, they put in enough extra money, with the $165,000 the company would receive for the dwellings, to top the $475,000 unit bid. They figured they could well afford to do this, strip the plants of machinery and equipment and even abandon the buildings.

This fact was also sensed by the Putnam interests that had bid for the dwellings, so the Putnam bid of $144,-000 was withdrawn prior to the dwellings being offered for sale next Friday morning.

That action crushed the last hopes of the southern bidders for a clean-up and very probably saved intact one of the finest industrial establishments in the eastern part of the state.

Price Class"

the mysterious stranger in the motor industry

Does a difference in price indicate a difference in quality? Why is one car priced 25% to 50% higher than another of the same quality? The 4 questions that a buyer should ask when considering any car.

HERE are facts based on world's engineering authority. If you have any intention of buying an automobile, you are urged to read them.

No "Price Class"

There are only two kinds of automobiles today. Economically produced cars which give you more for your money. And cars which are not, and give you less.

Price does not indicate intrinsic worth. But an individual maker's cost of production.

Hence two cars may show a price difference of $400 to $1,200 and more. And be of the same quality.

The difference in price simply shows that it cost one maker more to make this car than the other. Judging value on price, this is folly. Price class is a myth.

Where the Difference Comes in

Studebaker, producing 150,000 cars yearly, has reduced engineering cost to $3.33 per car.

This is based on a total engineering cost of $500,-000 a year, which is the least on which any manufacturer can maintain an efficient engineering department.

Thus a manufacturer producing but 20,000 cars a year must add $25 per car for engineering, or eight times as much as Studebaker.

Other fixed overheads have been reduced proportionately. And these influence Studebaker prices.

A set of body dies costs $100,000. It will produce many thousand sets of body stampings, each one as perfect as though there were only a dozen made.

By building 50,000 bodies from a single set of dies, Studebaker reduces the die cost per body to only $2.00.

The average small manufacturer whose volume will enable him to build only 5,000 bodies from a set of dies in the same time in which Studebaker builds 50,000 has to charge each body $20 for die cost. The difference of $18 is in the price but not in the body. The customer pays it but he gets nothing tangible for it. It is one of the penalties of uneconomical manufacture.

Thus a car priced at $1,200 to $1,400 can be sold as low as $1045 when produced economically in quantity.

Such a car is the Studebaker Light-Six Touring Car, at $1045. A clear difference of between $155 to $355.

The uneconomical manufacturer is not profiteering. He is unfortunately situated, that is all.

Why Studebaker excels the world in body building

For 72 years Studebaker has been a builder of quality vehicles.

This historical tradition has been inbred in generation after generation of coach-makers. And the Indiana city of South Bend is known as a world-Mecca of artisans of this craft.

In the modern $10,000,000 Studebaker body plants, there are sons and fathers and grandfathers working side by side. Their religion is fine coach building. And this is reflected in their work.

As fine body builders, Studebaker stands supreme. No other maker has the experience of Studebaker. No other the Studebaker traditions to inspire him.

Equalled Only by Costliest Foreign and American Makes

All Studebaker models are equipped with Timken bearings. There are few cars in America, regardless of price, which equal ours on this point. In our Light-Six, for instance, we put more Timken bearings than are used in any competitive car, within $1,500 of its price.

We subject Studebaker cars to 30,000 inspections. That requires 1,200 men. All told over 70,000 hand and machine operations are performed in the manufacture of a Studebaker car. In so many operations, though each one is small, there is great opportunity for economy and savings. 15% premium is paid on many steels to insure Studebaker specifications instead of "commercial run" used in cars many times Studebaker price.

No finer car can be built than the Studebaker of today. Only famous foreign cars and the most costly of American cars, compare.

See a Studebaker—Then Decide

Buy no car until you've seen a Studebaker. Go over it, point for point. Consult any unbiased expert. Ask your banker. And you will own a Studebaker.

Get an Answer to These 4 Questions Before Buying Any Car

1—Is this an assembled car? Or "partly" assembled. Insist on this answer. Assembled cars pay a profit to from 75 to 100 parts makers alone.

2—What sort of bearings? Studebakers are Timken-equipped. Everlasting smoothness and quiet performance result.

3—How many cars a year does this maker produce? Small productions mean either a higher price or cheaper car.

4—What sort of upholstery? Studebaker closed models are done in Chase Mohair, the finest material for this purpose known. Open models are upholstered in genuine leather.

SPRING FIRES.

While the weatherman has come to the relief of a situation which promised a busy period for the fire department, it might be well to devote a bit of thought to the need of giving considerable more care to the prevention of grass fires, forest fires and fires of all kinds.

The clean up spirit bobs up serenely at this season of the year. It should not be discouraged for it is into the order of things admirably but there is such a thing as letting enthusiasm run wild with judgment. Destruction of rubbish under proper restrictions speeds the clean up results, but setting fire to rubbish piles, burning over grassland, destroying brush heaps ought not to be attempted on windy days, at points where there is any chance of endangering buildings or in such a manner that it cannot be kept under perfect control. In other words fires should not be started to which careful attention cannot be given at all times, and then only when there are enough available to see that it is kept within bounds.

Numerous fires are caused by the sparks from locomotives, but there are those who travel through the woods and lots who are not as careful as they should be to see that firebrands are out before being discarded. There is little excuse for thoughtlessness under such circumstances in view of what is really involved.

Fire departments are maintained for emergency purposes but that does not relieve the individual of the responsibility which he should assume in connection with spring fires. There is too much at stake at all times to tolerate carelessness, and it only requires a little common sense properly directed in order to prevent the conditions which threaten the loss of property or the destruction of homes. There are enough fires from causes which are less easy to prevent without having the hazards increased by the reckless or the thoughtless.

In the spring and fall there are large losses sustained simply because of the failure to observe a little bit of care.

BACK TO THE MELLON PLAN.

Has the senate finance committee gotten to the point where it believes that sound and sensible action should be taken upon the reduction of taxes? This would at least seem to be indicated by the manner in which it decided to return the Mellon rates to the tax cutting measure. The action of the committee thus far stands a chance of being upset because of the absence of two of the members who are regarded as either being opposed to the Mellon rates or considered leaning that way, but there cannot fail to be due appreciation given to the demands which are being made by the people in all sections of the country for a cutting of taxes in a straightforward, consistent manner, fully conscious of what is available for tax cutting purposes and intent upon carrying out such a move for the best interests of the country. It is not a time to make a bungle of the matter solely for political purposes.

How the country feels about this question is well indicated by the poll which is being taken by the Literary Digest, which shows that in every state of the Union with one exception there is a large majority committed to the Mellon plan of federal tax reduction. This comes as near being a referendum as anything could be and skip it. It is gathering the sentiment of millions upon a question that concerns them and we have no doubt that quite the same consideration is being given to this method of secret voting as there would be if the chance was given to pass judgment upon the same thing at the polls.

Tax reduction has failed to get from congress the attention which it has deserved. The opportunity to do something for the great body of people, directly and indirectly, and the indirect influence cannot be disregarded, ought to be considered from the non partisan standpoint. The people are entitled to the relief that it lies within the power of congress to give it to them. The senate committee, unless its action is upset, has done a wise thing in getting down to tax reduction basis that has a scientific foundation.

ROUND THE WORLD CONTEST.

Added interest is created in connection with the flight around the world on which American aviators have started by a similar attempt on the part of British aviators. The latter will follow a different route and will go in the opposite direction, and will depend upon a leap across the Atlantic with which to finish the undertaking.

Rivalry will exist to a certain extent, and while the American aviators have allowed much more than what might be considered the required time for covering the distance there are prospects that it will become more or less of a race even though under different conditions and over different routes.

The British are making their attempt in one machine, while four American machines are involved. It is of course a free for all. Any one with the courage and the equipment and the means of financing such a trip is at liberty to enter. There may be some question as to just what will be accomplished if someone is successful, but the honor of such an achievement is what is at stake now. After it has been done and the feat studied it may be disclosed just what real benefit has been obtained.

There was the time when the first trip was made around the world and since then it has been done in various ways, though it remains for someone to complete the circle in the air. The course for the flights underway have been carefully mapped out. There are scheduled to be followed and in each case advantage will be taken of the various deposits on the way for supplies and service.

Viewed in any manner it must be regarded as a chance-taking effort. The possibility of dropping into the sea on the hops over water, or of being forced down in some vast wilderness must appeal to those with an adventurous spirit. Certainly it is no trip for those who insist upon guaranteed delivery before setting forth. This is not the first time the British have undertaken such a trip, but that wouldn't prevent the world from properly acclaiming each should both expeditions make a success of the round-the-world flight.

THE BONUS BILL.

In the lower house of congress there has been passed a bonus bill by a large majority, in putting it through the claim was that the insurance plan would involve an expenditure of but a little over two billion dollars. Attention was directed to this because it meant more than the cutting in two of the sum which had been previously mentioned.

Now there comes the statement that the plan that is proposed and approved by the house for the bonus payments will place a burden upon the country that will be more than twice as much as has been predicted and that it will approach five billion dollars. There is a difference now that comes from the way in which the actuaries representing the house committee and the United States treasury figure the expense under the bill.

It is not believed that the action of the house represents the sentiment of the country. It is not believed that the country is in favor of the gratuity even though it would only amount to two billion, but it must be evident that something nearer the actual expense involved in any legislation ought to be obtained before congress lets go of this measure.

It makes a difference whether something is being approved that will involve only two billion dollars or whether it is being sanctioned under the claim that it will be two billion, when as a matter of fact it is known that it will amount in the long run to two or two and a half times as much.

The country doesn't want to be saddled with any such unjustified expense but if it is going to be forced into meeting bonus payments it ought to know at the beginning whether they are going to be two billion dollars or five billion dollars instead of having it spring on it when it has been made helpless.

GREECE'S DECISION.

Greece has been backing and filling for a long time in endeavoring to decide what form of government it would select. It has done no different than it did in regard to Constantine, in turning him out and then inviting him to return, or in getting Venizelos out of the country, calling him back again and then speeding his departure once more.

Whether Greece has decided to become a republic to the extent of a final express remains to be seen. Somehow Greece hasn't displayed that stability of decision of late that causes its action to be regarded as fixed. Even though its decision has been reached according to a vote in the national assembly to overthrow the Glucksburg dynasty and to replace it with a republic there remains to be seen whether it will be confirmed in the vote upon it that will be cast by the people. If the assembly represents the attitude of the people it seems to be settled. If it only represents the view of leaders the plebiscite can upset it.

Confirmation of the assembly's vote by the people will mean that Greece will launch out on new government plans, guided no doubt by the tendency to the passing of dynasties and inspired by the success of republics. A little over a century ago Greece felt the urge of independence. It couldn't shake it off and it accomplished its ambitions. After the benefits of a hundred years Greece ought to be as well if not better fitted to change its form of government as it was then. It must not overlook the fact, however, that the success of a republic in Greece will depend upon Greece.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

Evidence of the dangers of the highway continue to pile up in all too free a manner.

The man on the corner says: A temperary preventive for grass fires has been provided.

Had you put your snow shovel away in cotton batting and blue paper for the summer season?

With the trout fishing season about ready to open the rhubarb pie season cannot be far away.

According to the prices the hens are all cooperating in an effort to cut the high cost of living.

These investigations in Washington cannot shape for big attendances after the baseball season opens.

The large number of grass fires indicates the need of exercising just a little more care with a view to prevention.

It is tough on soviet Russia to be so near to that predominating influence in China and yet lose at the last moment.

The senate finance committee does the unexpected so suddenly relative to the tax bill that there is bound to be suspicion over its sincerity.

Preliminaries to the starting of work on the improvement of the Gardner lake road is welcomed by the large numbers who have occasion to use that highway during the course of a year.

FROM LUCILLES DIARY

Sometimes it seems to me that whenever I try the hardest to be kind to a friend something is sure to happen to mar my efforts. It is really discouraging. Last week I met Susy Marshbank downtown, and I exclaimed that is was simply ages since I had seen her.

"Yes," she said, "you see I have no maid and no convenient relatives to park my blessed baby with, so it isn't often that I can come into town. Today, by great luck, I was able to employ the services of a reliable woman, who sometimes goes out by the day. I'm simply flying around, trying to do everything at once!"

"Susy," I said impulsively, "can't you get that woman for another day soon, and come in and have luncheon at our house? I should just love to have a visit with you. Do try."

"Maybe I could get her for next Thursday. She told me a few Thursdays would be free while some people she works for are south."

"Then I'll expect you, unless I hear to the contrary," I said gayly, though I realised afterward that, as that is Tillie's day out, it wouldn't be a very good day after all. However, I decided not to change the plan, except to take her to a nice tearoom near us for luncheon. This was really necessary, for mother, Cousin Fannie and granny were all going to the church guild for a noon meeting.

Just after they had left the house on Thursday I was greatly surprised to hear Maj. Latewood's voice over the telephone.

"I've been ordered down to Washington," he explained, "and I am in town only between trains. Do come down and have mess with me, Lucile."

"Oh, I should perfectly love to, but—"

"But me no buts, young lady," he commanded. "You, an old canteener, surely wouldn't let a poor soldier eat alone in a big, strange city."

"I'll not," I returned laughingly, and I promised to meet him within the hour.

I tried to telephone Susy, but the woman who was taking care of the baby said she had been gone for more than two hours, so I knew that she might arrive at any minute. For an instant I was almost frantic. Then with my usual resourcefulness, I thought of putting a note on the door, asking her to meet me at one of the big stores for afternoon tea, and explaining how I had been suddenly called downtown on a matter of importance, which was imperative. I suggested that she could get her lunch at the neighborhood tearoom, and, of course, I said how dreadfully sorry I was that this had had to happen at such an inopportune time.

"There'd a pretty little woman looking at the back of your head, Lucile, with almost a ferocious glance," said Maj. Latewood as we were lingering over our dessert and coffee. Of course I turned to look, and I met the indignant gaze of Susy Marshbank. Although I was considerably startled, I bowed and smiled, and she made only the slightest response, by bending her head ever so little.

"She doesn't seem to be a very warm friend," remarked the major in an amused tone.

"Poor dear," I said sweetly, "she is really lovely, but at times she shows a strange coldness. I've always been glad that I'm not a temperamental person with varying moods. Probably when I see her later in the afternoon, as I expect to, she will be all smiles."

But, as it turned out, I did not see her, for she failed to keep the rendezvous I had appointed. I waited and waited for her. It was most annoying to have my time wasted in that way.

Although I was very much vexed with her, I thought best to telephone in the evening to ask why she had not met me for tea.

"If you don't know without asking," she answered crisply, "it seems hardly worth while to tell you. But I quite understand your defection, Lucile. A major in uniform is excuse enough for you for any—"

"But, Susy, you don't understand at all. You see, dear—"

"On the contrary, I think I do, and besides my baby is crying. Good night."

It was exceedingly rude of Susy.—Chicago News.

Today's Birthdays

Maj. Gen. Adolphus W. Greely, U. S. A., retired, best remembered for his trip of exploration to the Arctic region, born at Newburyport, Mass., 80 years ago today.

Rt. Rev. Joseph B. Cheshire, Episcopal bishop of North Carolina, born at Tarboro, N. C., 76 years ago today.

Mrs. Medill McCormick, wife of the Illinois senator and an active worker among women in politics, born in Cleveland, 44 years ago today.

Miller J. Huggins, manager of the New York American league baseball club, born in Cincinnati, 44 years ago today.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

George F. Baker, who today enters upon his eighty-fifth year, is regarded as one of the most remarkable figures in the history of Wall Street banking, and the last of the powerful financial leaders who held sway a decade or more ago. More than sixty years are Mr. Baker established the First National Bank, which today ranks among the greatest financial institutions in the world. A native of Troy, he had gained his first banking experience in the State Banking Department at Albany. Mr. Baker retained his place as active executive head of the First National until 1909 when he assumed the chairmanship of the board of directors, which he still holds. In addition to his bank duties, which have slackened little with the years, he maintains close touch with a score or more of great corporations of which he is a director. He has been active in many public welfare movements and a generous contributor to various causes and institutions. During the war he donated two million dollars to the American Red Cross.

EDISON LOST MANY A JOB

When seven years old, Thomas A. Edison heard his teacher say that he was "addled," and it would not be worth while to keep him in school. His mother had to teach him, but she died when he was 19.

A newsboy on the Grand Trunk railway at 14, printing a newspaper to fill out his income, and experimenting in the baggage car in spare moments. A lurch of the car, a broken phosphorous bottle, a fire, and he with his belongings was dumped upon a station platform, miles from home, without a job, avocation or hope.

Job after job in this country and Canada was lost because he neglected his work to experiment.

His first patent, a voting machine, was perfected in Boston, and he used all his funds to go to Washington, where he was told voting machines were not wanted anywhere.

Then on to New York with not enough money to buy breakfast. Finally a good position and a patent sold, the proceeds going into fruitless effort for bigger ideas.

In eight years he made 50,000 experiments before he perfected the storage battery. The phonograph took longer. He had to study photography to conceive the moving picture machine.

The incandescent light required years of thought and world-wide research. After its invention, came trouble in operating, followed by fierce competition and litigation, so that when the way was clear only three of the 20 years of patent protection remained.

The average time Edison spent on inventions has been seven years; some required 25 years, and some still are uncompleted.

But he never quit.

Today, Edison is honored by the world as a public benefactor. His is wealthy and happy. He has more than 1000 patents.

He says: "Genius is two per cent inspiration and 98 per cent perspiration."

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

New London in 1646.

Mr. Editor: The first English settlement in New London was made in 1646 and the township was laid out into lots in 1648. This place was called by the natives of Nameaug and from its being the seat of the Pequot tribe of Indians was called by the English at an early period Pequot. It was the seat of Sassacus, the grand sachem of Long Island and a part of Connecticut and Narragansett. New London has been rendered conspicuous for its sufferings during the Revolutionary war and as the theatre of various hostile operations.

On the 6th of September, 1781, a large proportion of the town was burned by Benedict Arnold. After the close of the war in 1783, the general assembly appointed commissions to ascertain and estimate the damages which had been sustained. From the investigation which was made in pursuance of this authority it was estimated that the damages sustained by the town of New London amounted to $486,980.

Gen. Jedediah Huntington, although a native of Norwich, was long a resident of this town. He died September 1818, aged 75 years. Having served every general officer of the revolution except General Stark, the hero of Bennington. General Huntington was educated at Harvard college. He entered the army at an early period in 1775 A. D. His intelligence, activity, bravery, judgment and fidelity as an officer secured to him advancement, and the attachment and lasting confidence of Washington. He continued in service through the war and attained to the rank of a general officer after the peace of 1783. Until the independence of the colonies he was appointed by General Washington collector of the public revenue of the port of New London. The whole registered and ship tonnage in 1805 was 13,397. New London in 1806 had 14 drygood stores, four drug stores, 43 grocery stored, two book stores, one hardware store, one tin store, two saddle stores, two hat stores, one shoe store, one silversmith, 10 public inns or taverns. Taxable property amounted to $42,618. The population of the town was in 1810 A. D. 5,283. There were 350 freemen or electors and about 475 dwelling houses. The city of New London was incorporated in 1784.

A Little Talk on Thrift

Highway Construction

One of the important factors in the development of our country—one of the best indices of national progress—is the amount of improved construction now taking place.

Just as the development of the nation's steam transportation lines a few generations ago marked the beginning of a new era in the progress of our people, so the present period of highway improvement is bringing about rapidly improving conditions.

According to figures that have been compiled by the bureau of public roads and the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce we are adding 50,000 miles of improved highways to our system each year and now have substantially 400,000 miles of roadways of this type.

In 1904 we had 153,000 miles of rural highways improved with some type of servicing, so that in the last two decades about 350,000 miles have been added or enough to circle the globe ten times.

These figures, of course, do not represent the total mileage of improved and unimproved roadways in the United States which on January 1, 1923 was 2,941,284, a gain of 789,000 miles since 1904.

This amazing development of highways has in many ways revolutionized modern life. Thousands of persons who formerly spent their lives in the great cities are now getting out into the country where their appreciation of this great land is made more comprehensive and where they are able to cultivate gardens and secure the many benefits of semi-rural existence. The former isolation of the farming community has largely disappeared, and the people of this nation have a better understanding of each other than ever before because of this closer contract.

New wealth is being created, new interests in life are being aroused and employment on an economically sound basis is being given to thousands of men.

Stories That Recall Others

Not Often Used.

He was getting ready for a trip south and decided to take his dress suit along. He began looking in the pockets and found a telegram dated 1907.

"Well, well," he remarked, "I remember that telegram, and after I read it I put it in my pocket. I didn't think then I wouldn't need this suit for so long a time."

In Bad.

A lonesome young man is introduced by the father to one of his two daughters. A few evenings later, having two tickets for the theater he calls up the father and through him invites his daughter to accompany him to the show.

Father for the instance forgets that he has one married daughter and asks the daughter at home whether she cares to accept the invitation to the theater. She's sorry and explains that another young man is to call on her that evening. The young man goes to the show with one of his men friends.

The next morning the young man sees the young woman with whom he is acquainted and tells her he is sorry that she couldn't accept his invitation to the theater.

"Oh, oh, ha, hum—well that's good, but I don't quite understand—you probably mean my sister. See that ring on my finger? I'm married and have the sweetest husband in the world," she replied.

"Beg your pardon, beg your pardon. I didn't knew it and neither did I know that you have a sister," explained the young man as he disappeared around the corner.

NEW PHASE OF SACCO-VANZETTI MURDER CASE

Dedham, Mass., March 26.—A new situation in the famous Sacco-Vanzetti murder case developed today when Judge Webster Thayer, of the superior court made a finding that the barrels of two pistols which had figured as evidence in motions for a new trial had been inter-changed. If this had been done wilfully, he said, it would be "clearly a contempt of court," adding:

"Whether this investigation may result in any further proceedings I do not now know."

Judge Thayer's report of his investigation into the matter disclosed that Albert H. Hamilton, a firearms expert for the defense, had admitted that the barrel from a new pistol which he had used for comparative purposes in some way had been transferred to the pistol taken from Nicola Sacco when he was arrested. The sacco pistol was introduced as evidence in the trial which resulted in the conviction of Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti for the murder of a paymaster and his guard at South Braintree in 1920.

STOMACH TROUBLES ARE DUE TO ACIDITY

So-called stomach troubles, such as indigestion, gas, sourness, stomach-ache and inability to retain food, are in probably nine cases out of ten simply evidence that excessive secretion of acid is taking place in the stomach, causing the formation of gas and acid indigestion.

Gas distends the stomach and causes that full, oppressive, burning feeling sometimes known as heartburn, while the acid irritates and inflames the delicate lining of the stomach. The trouble lies entirely in the excess development or secretion of acid.

To stop or prevent this souring of the food contents of the stomach and to neutralize the acid, and make it bland and harmless, a teaspoonful of Bisurated Magnesia, a good and effective corrector of acid stomach, should be taken in a quarter of a glass of hot or cold water after eating, or whenever gas, sourness or acidity is felt. This sweetens the stomach and neutralizes the acidity in a few moments and is a perfectly harmless and inexpensive remedy to use.

An antacid, such as Bisurated Magnesia, which can be obtained from any druggist in either powder or tablet form, enables the stomach to do its work properly without the aid of artificial digestants. Magnesia comes in several forms, so be certain to ask for and take only Bisurated Magnesia, which is especially prepared for the above purpose.

The body was brought by automobile cortege to this city Wednesday where burial was in Yantic cemetery at 1 o'clock. Local friends acted as bearers. There was a large attendance of Norwich relatives and friends at the grave; also many beautiful flowers.

C. A. Gager had charge of the local arrangements.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Marion Lee Bishop of Broadway is visiting her sister Mrs. S. Edward Rose, in Elmira, N. Y.

Mr. and Mrs. Elijah B. Lewis of Foxboro, Mass., former Norwich residents, have been passing the week with Mrs. Lewis' sister, Mrs. Frank A. Robinson, of Sachem street.

After several weeks' stay in St. Petersburg, Fla., Mr. and Mrs. Charles B. Lee have started on a leisurely return north, having reached Orlando, from which point they are taking interesting side trips.

THREE MACHINES DAMAGED BY ADAMS TAVERN GARAGE FIRE

A motor truck was a total loss and a Reo roadster and a Dodge touring car were badly damaged by fire Wednesday afternoon about 4.30 at Adams Tavern garage, 122 West Town street, conducted by Teodel Ethier, and a part of the building had the shingle roof burned off with some fire damage to the interior of the building. The section where the fire started and to which it was confined by the work of the Yantic fire department was a part of the building that is between Mr. Ethier's residence in what was formerly the tavern building and the large show room that he has built to the south. It was occupied by three cars two of which were pulled out all ablaze, but the truck could not be moved.

Mr. Ethier said that he believed the fire started from a short circuit in the Reo roadster where he had placed a new battery earlier in the day. The flames were bursting out in good shape at the northerly end of the building where the roadster was standing when the fire was discovered by a Mr. Briggs who was going by. A telephone call brought the Yantic Fire Engine Co., which had two streams of water on in quick time and had twenty-two members of the company at work. Chief H. L. Stanton and the squad wagon responded to the call that came to the Central Fire station but the chief had his men return as soon as he saw that the Yantic company was taking care of the blaze.

Mr. Ethier said that the three damaged machines belonged to him and he could not give any estimate of the loss as it had not been determined how much they may have been damaged by the fire.

METHODIST CONFERENCE ASKS RETURN OF BISHOP HUGHES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Providence, March 26.—The sacrament of the Lord's Supper was impressively administered when the New England Southern Methodist conference was opened this morning at the Mathewson Street church. Bishop Hughes was assisted by the following clergymen: Revs. I. W. LeBaron, W. H. Bath, R. L. Roberts, R. D. Hollington and L. C. Harris. The communion hymns were The King of Heaven His Table Spreads and According to Thy Gracious Word. The Gloria in Excelsis was chanted at the close by the entire congregation.

The roll was called by the secretary of the last conference and the conference was organized as follows: Secretary, Rev. J. Francis Cooper; assistants, George A. Grant, Thomas J. Steuart, Truman H. Woodward; statistician, Amos M. Bruce; assistants, I. W. Carter, Albert Abbott; treasurer, John S. Bridgford; assistants, Edgar J. Curry, Philip A. Ahern. A resolution was presented by Rev. Robert S. Moore asking the general conference, to be held at Springfield, in May, to return Bishop Hughes to the New England area for another quadrennium. The resolution was seconded and adopted with great enthusiasm. This is the first of the five annual conferences within the New England area to be held this spring, but there is little doubt that the other four of them will present the same enthusiastic purpose to secure the retention of this most popular and democratic leader in this section of Methodism.

Rev. Henry D. Robinson, veteran pastor and presiding elder, the senior member of the conference, was invited to the platform by a spontaneous and unanimous vote and G. A. Grant and R. S. Moore were appointed to escort him to his seat of honor. Amid the applause which greeted this scene as the veteran was entering the platform Rev. R. S. Moore, in his characteristic way, said "He who cared for us in our infancy is now being cared for by us in his middle age" and the applause was mingled with a friendly laughter and mirth.

Twelve clergymen present, including some recent transfers into this conference and some other visiting ministers, were called to the front and introduced to the conference. The modesty of some of these men causing reluctance to respond drew out the following remark from Bishop Hughes, "It is as difficult to get some of you men up here as it is to get a sinner forward to the mourners' bench." (Laughter.)

In introducing Rev. L. O. Hartman, D.D., editor of Zion's Herald, the bishop paid a fine tribute to this periodical and playfully said "A New England Methodist can hardly hope to enter the kingdom of heaven without he is a subscriber to Zion's Herald." As Dr. Hartman greeted the conference he said he hardly expected the bishop would try to hand to him the keys of the kingdom of heaven and his name was not "Peter" but, however, he thanked the bishop for the advertising value of this remark.

Question 18 was taken up, "Who have died?" and Rev. J. H. Buckey, chairman of the committee on obituaries, was called upon by the bishop to preside at this time. The names of the deceased were read as follows: Edwin F. Jones, Walter J. Yates, Matthias S. Kaufman, Walter S. McInfire, George H. Hastings, Joseph O. Rutter, all members of the conference; Charles B. Bromley, a retired local preacher who served several pastorates; Mrs. Delia F. Butler, the widow of Rev. George H. Butler; Mrs. Maria W. Stanley, widow of E. S. Stanley; Mrs. Abbie H., wife of W. J. Smith; and Mrs. Ella Luce, wife of W. A. Luce. Prayer was offered by Rev. W. I. Ward.

The memorial address was delivered by Rev. Dr. J. I. Bartholomew, who in his remarks stressed the amount of good influence these splendid men and women have left in the world. This service closed with the prayer and benediction by Rev. J. H. Buckey.

The report of Rev. Ira W. LeBaron, superintendent of the Providence district, was read as the morning session closed.

ATTORNEY JAMES' NIECE KILLED BY AUTOMOBILE

Attorney Charles V. James of this city learned Tuesday evening of the death in New Haven of his niece, Catherine James, 6, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George James of 9 Central avenue, Spring Glen, Hamden. The little girl's death occurred closely after she had been struck and run over by the automobile owned by Dr. Raymond Townshend of New Haven, and driven by his wife. The accident occurred shortly after school let out for the day and the child ran across the street directly in front of the Townshend car, Mrs. Townshend was held blameless for the sad accident by witnesses and Dr. Townshend who rushed the child to the hospital did everything possible to save her life, but to no avail.

SAYS RESURRECTION WAS WHAT CONVINCED PAUL

"Why St. Paul believed what he did about Christ" was the topic of the sermon delivered by Dr. Robert A. Speer Wednesday night at the United Congregational church, the fourth of the series of five lectures given under the auspices of the Norwich Young Men's Christian association.

If some prominent Roman were to come back to earth today, said Dr. Speer, he would be surprised to learn that men he believed famous meant nothing today, while St. Paul, of whom he had never heard was one of the most interesting characters in history.

The most interesting thing about Paul is that he radically changed his views about Christ, ending with an opposite opinion than that first maintained. Three things therefore interest us concerning Paul, first, what was his conception of Christ; second, on what grounds did he hold these conceptions; third, were the grounds adequate and was his conviction true.

Everyone of these five things would be large enough for Paul to base his belief. Paul says, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God with power —why—by His resurrection from the dead. Paul even goes further to express his reason for selecting this one point on which to base his belief for he says, "And if Christ had not been raised your faith is vain."

Do you think these are grounds sufficient for Paul to base his belief? Why should he cast aside the other important things, including the character, teaching and miracles of Christ, and chance all on the resurrection?

Paul did this because here in the very essence of Christian faith. Christ is risen, is the central thing about Christianity. Many other beliefs can duplicate to a great degree the character and other interesting things about Christ, but Christianity is the only belief that dares to preach the resurrection; that has a leader who held power over death. That is the one distinguished fact in our Christian belief and embodies in itself the great central ideal and dynamic of Christianity.

If you are crucified with Christ you shall live the life beyond with Christ, that is the message of life that no other religion holds. Christ came into a world that had lost all decency and told of a clean world, a righteous world. He released on earth a new power and energy; life over death, that which can take something which is not and make it real once again. This is the message and it ever the world needed it today is the day.

Once it was believed that blood would cleanse the world. Ten millions of the best lives in the world sacrificed in the past few years teaches us the fallacy of this belief. Men lose their hope and begin to say, "In the jungle we came and to the jungle are we returning." The Christian message is an utter repudiation of all this—we believe by the power of God who raised Christ from the dead all good may be achieved and all wrong overcome. I do not wonder that Paul picked the resurrection for his faith in Christ, a risen and living Christ, able to save the world. May God give us back at this Easter time that ancient and deathless faith of Paul, the essence of all Christianity.

PLAYS CLEVERLY GIVEN AT OSGOOD MEMORIAL

Before a large audience and under the auspices of the Mission department of Park Congregational church, two one-act plays were given Wednesday evening at the Osgood Memorial. The first play staged was A Fan and Two Candlesticks, an old fashioned party on St. Valentine's Night, by Mary MacMillan. The cast was as follows:

The second play was entitled The Crimson Cocoanut and the cast was as follows:

These were royally played, very carefully selected and coached, one a farce, the other a comedy, both clean, full of interest and wholesome amusement.

Music was furnished before and between the acts by a trio comprising Ebenezer Learned, cello; Tyler Gilbert, violin and Miss Annie Taft, piano.

Mrs. W. C. Burgy was heard in the following songs: Spring is Awoke by Gaines; A Spirit Flower by Campbell-Tipton; Within the Garden of My Heart, by Alecia Scott. Mrs. Charles A. Saxton accompanied at the piano.

The committees were as follows: Committee on selection of plays: Miss Hannah Crowell, Mrs. Frederick Sayles, Miss Amy Cogswell, Mrs. Cyrus Woodman, Mrs. William Birge, Miss Mary Anderson, Mrs. John Williams and Miss Louise Howe.

Committee on production: Misses Amy and Alice Cogswell, Miss Edith Bliss and Mrs. Charles A. Saxton. The dramatic committee had a joint chairmanship of Mrs. Frederick Sayles, chairman of properties and Miss Hannah Crowell, coach.

Mrs. A. N. E. Vaughn, chairman of Mission department, was in charge of the programs, tickets and ushers who were: Mrs. E. T. Phillips, Mrs. John Blackmar, Mrs. Franklin Willcox and Miss Dorothy Phillips.

PROMINENT HEBREWS TO SPEAK FOR KEREN HAYESOD

The 1924 Keren Hayesod drive will start in Norwich Sunday evening when a special meeting will be held at the Community house for the Hebrew people of the city. The local committee have secured three well known speakers for the meeting. The principal speaker will be Dr. Oscar Tron, Jewish leader of Poland, a member of the Polish sejm, leader of the Jewish bloc in Poland, and a well known Hebrew author. With him will come Archibald M. Silverman and Mrs. Silverman of Providence. Mr. Silverman is a well known Providence business man and an orator and Mrs. Silverman is known among the Hebrew people as a poetess.

At the last meeting of the Keren Hayesod held in the Brothers of Joseph synagogue, West Main street, Abner Schwartz was appointed chairman of a reception committee for the meeting, Sunday. The speakers will arrive in New London at 1 o'clock Sunday afternoon and will be met by the Norwich committee. Mr. Schwartz has appointed the following to act with him on the reception committee: Alex Pasnik, Matthew Thune, Dr. P. A. Schwartz, George Greenberger, Rabbi Joseph N. Rosenberg, Rabbi Max Stapnp, Michael Levine, Abraham Strom, Aaron Gorden, Harry M. Land, Charles M. Gordon, David S. Gordon, M. I. Silverman, Samuel Taylor, Reuben Kadish, Dr. Boris A. Sohn, Max Hanover, Morris Sussman, Abraham Cramer, Samuel Rauciear, N. Weisinger, H. Ehrenberg, L. Sachner, Simon Rosano, Abraham Schanker, Aaron Goldblatt, E. R. Siff, Joseph Reichman, Jacob Bokoff, Samuel Liebman, Joseph M. Lahn.

The reception committee and a great many of the Hebrews of Norwich will start at 11.30 o'clock from the Brothers of Joseph synagogue for New London to meet the speakers. Their machines will be decorated with the American and Jewish flags. The guests will be given a reception at the Wauregan house after which dinner for the guests will be served at the home of Alex Pasnik.

Dr. Boris J. Sohn is chairman of the publicity committee together with Samuel Taylor and M. I. Silverman.

WELCOMED NEW PASTOR AT GRACE MEMORIAL CHURCH

There was a large attendance at the reception Monday evening to Rev. J. M. Patterson, newly installed pastor of Grace Memorial Baptist church on Mount Pleasant street. The program was carried out as follows: greetings from the city, His Honor, Mayor Milo R. Waters; welcome to the church, Deacon Harrison Payne; auxiliaries of the church, Miss E. J. Minnis; from the Sister church, Mt. Calvary Baptist, Deacon Samuel Lacy; greetings from the A. M. E. Zion church, Rev. D. N. Brown; greetings from the New London association, Rev. Horatio Chase, Montauk Ave. Baptist church. Music was rendered by Ambrose Wilson's Harmony Chorus. Rev. S. Grimstead was the master of ceremonies.

Eastern Connecticut Health

The weekly morbidity report issued by the state department of health shows that during the week ending March 22 there were reported from Norwich two cases of diphtheria and two cases of scarlet fever. Communicable diseases reported from towns in eastern Connecticut for the week were as follows:

Scarlet fever: Colchester 3; Groton 2; Lebanon 2; Montville 1; New London 2; Norwich 2; Old Lyme 2; Stonington 3; Hebron 1; Stafford Springs 2; Putnam 4.

Snow Late in March.

Norwich had a considerable fall of snow Wednesday afternoon that began lightly about 1.30 o'clock and increased in volume through the afternoon and evening. The fall was about two inches as shown on the tops of automobiles that were out all through it, but it did not make much in the streets as it melted quickly after it fell on the highways.

DR. FAUSTO DAVILA HAS SAILED FOR HONDURAS

New Orleans, March 26.—Dr. Fausto Davila, reported in Washington despatches today to have been selected by the Honduran revolutionary leaders as provisional president, sailed from here yesterday for Honduras, it became known tonight.

Dr. Davila arrived here two weeks ago from Washington and although it was reported at the time he was en route to Honduras to become provisional president at the request of the revolutionists he professed to know nothing about it.

Dr. Davila at one time was Honduran minister to the United States and was serving as foreign minister when Lopez Gutierrez was elected president. Gutierrez had him thrown into prison where he remained a year and upon his release he came to this country.

I First Compounded This Remedy For My Own Neighbors

Their praise of this new form of iron has spread so rapidly that now, after nine years, over 4,000,000 people use it annually.

Years ago I began to wonder at the great number of my own friends and neighbors who were always ailing, complaining and doctoring without ever seeming to get any better. Both working men and their wives were frequently all tired out in the evening, and a great many were weak, nervous and rundown. One had pains in the back and thought he had kidney trouble. Another had pains around the heart, palpitations and dizziness, and was sure he was suffering from heart disease. Still others had severe headaches, floating spots before the eyes, tender spots along the spine and a great variety of alarming symptoms.

For years I made a special study of this condition, consulting a great number of physicians and chemists. An immense number of investigations by physicians all over the country showed that three people out of every four you meet lack 100 per cent iron in their blood. Lack of iron in the blood is the greatest of all devitalizing weaknesses. It is the iron in your blood that enables you to get the nourishment out of your food. Without iron, nothing you eat does you any good. Your heart, lungs and kidneys and all your vital organs get their nourishment from the blood stream, and when the blood lacks iron and is thin, pale and watery, you may suffer from the symptoms of a great number of diseases when the real and true cause of all your trouble is a lack of iron in the blood.

In the old days people often took metallic iron, which some physicians claim is not absorbed at all. In compounding Nuxated Iron I use the newer form of iron, which is like the iron in your blood and like the iron in spinach, lentils and apples. Unlike the older forms of iron, it will not injure the teeth nor disturb the stomach and it is ready for almost immediate absorption and assimilation by the blood. It is the people whose blood is rich in iron who possess great strength, force and energy. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test:

See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two 5-grain tablets of Nuxated Iron three times a day after meals for two weeks—then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. An astonishing number of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while, have greatly improved their their health and increased their strength, energy and endurance simply by taking this newer form of iron.

AMERICAN PRELATES TO RECEIVE RED HATS TODAY

Rome, March 26 (By the A. P.)—Cardinals Mundelein and Hayes today advanced another step toward the final stage of their elevation as members of the highest council of the Roman Catholic church.

The occasion was late this afternoon, when Pope Pius, in all the solemnity of the ritual, draped around their shoulders the rich violet silken capes called mozzettas and placed on their heads the scarlet four-cornered silk headpieces known as birettes.

The deeply impressive ceremony took place in the famous consistorial hall of the vatican where scarcely three days ago the two American prelates were nominated as cardinals at a secret consistory. There was only a small gathering, to witness the investiture. They were specially invited guests and mostly Americans.

The final ceremonies in the elevation of the American churchmen to the purple will take place tomorrow morning in the right transept of the basilica of Saint Peter's, where they will receive at the hands of the pontiff the red hats symbolic of their new rank. This public consistory, filled with pomp and pageantry, will be attended by several thousand Americans.

LEWIS LOCKS MANAGER IN HOTEL ROOM AND THEN GOES OUT AND GETS MARRIED

Chicago, March 26.—Ed "Strangler" Lewis, world's heavyweight wrestling champion, was married here late today to Miss Bessie McNear of Kansas City, Mo. Billy Sandow, Lewis' manager, to whom the champion is under contract not to marry while champion, was kept locked in a hotel room by Lewis' friends until after the ceremony.

Sandow was said to be under guard of several of Lewis' friends to prevent him leaving the locked room. Lewis for a time was engaged to the Russian princess, Marie Pravastki, whom he met in Paris last year.

The ceremony was performed by Dr. Fred Stone at the First Methodist temple in the heart of the loop.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Lewis returned to their hotel leaving a trail of old shoes and rice and grinning broadly. Sandow, who had been threatening to break down the door of his room if he was not released, was then freed.

"It's the first time Ed ever double-crossed me," he shouted angrily as he emerged from the room where Lewis' friends had held him.

Among the wedding gifts to Mrs. Lewis was the belt set with 21 diamonds, emblematic of the world's championship, which Sandow's brother gave the bride. The bride and groom will leave tonight for Wichita, Kan., where Lewis has an engagement tomorrow night.

Sandow is said to have prevented Lewis' marriage last year to a Russian princess, whom the champion met in Paris. Miss McNear, an attractive brunette, met Lewis in Kansas City where he staged many of his important matches. The champion, who is about 35 years old, once was married to a San Jose woman physician from whom he is divorced.

YALE-HARVARD RACE MAY BE ROWED EARLY

Cambridge, Mass., March 26.—The Harvard-Yale varsity race on the Thames at New London on June 20 may be rowed as early as 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Fred W. Moore, graduate director of athletics, pointed out today that high tide that day would come at noon and that because of shoals along the course it was necessary to row the race within a few hours of flood tide.

As a result of a meeting of Harvard and Yale officials at New Haven yesterday it is considered likely that an agreement will be reached to row the race some time between noon and 4 o'clock. Old time race followers say that the 1900 varsity race was the most recent in the Harvard-Yale series to be rowed early in the afternoon.

New London Sport Comment

The Rangers soccer football team have two games scheduled to be played in successive days. The first of these come, on Saturday with Taftville as the opposing quintet. On Sunday, the Rangers will travel to Crompton, R. I. to play that team.

The Bulkeley baseball team had to abandon the hopes of having an early practice by the inclement weather condition that existed yesterday.

Two games are on the card for the Submarine basketball tossers. The first is with Stonington at Stonington on Friday and on Saturday at the State Armory, the Gobs will oppose Essex. On this same night, the Headquarters Battery winners of the Military league will battle with the Danielson Battery in the preliminary game.

Edwards looms up to be one of the best forwards in the city. His playing in the game against theShip and Engine was a decided factor in the Headquarters victory over that team. Much is expected of him when the City series starts. Risch of the Ship and Engine is another classy forward. He leads the entire three leagues in the matter of scoring which is something to his credit.

Yale Wins Protest

New Haven, Mar. 26.—The protested water polo game between Yale and Columbia February 16 which was thrown out on the grounds of a Columbia player being ineligible, will be played over in the Columbia pool, Saturday at 3 o'clock, it was announced here today. Yale now heads the Intercollegiate league, leading Columbia by one game.

SHIP AND ENGINE TEAM TO ENTER STATE MEET

New London, March 26.—A meeting of the team managers of the Industrial league was held Tuesday night at the Y. M. C. A. The purpose of this meeting was to decide whether or not the New London Ship and Engine quintet winner of the Industrial league, should be sent to New Haven to participate in the elimination toursey to be held at the Yale Gymnasium on April 5. This tourney will decide the state winner of the industrial winners of the leading cities of the state.

After a short discussion it was decided by the team managers present to send the New London Ship and Engine to participate in this tourney. It was also voted to allow this team $36 for expenses, although the league can not spare this sum and wind up the season with a banquet. If automobiles can be secured it will save the league a pretty penny that would otherwise have been used to defray the expenses of the team by train. It is expected that Harry Bond Jr., of the New London Ship and Engine plant will donate the use of his car to carry the players to their destination. Mr. West and Mr. Streeter of the J. N. Lapointe Co. will probably give their cars for the occasion. Many other fans that have followed the activities of this league all season are also expected to come forward with a car.

Secretary Ralph W. Fistere reported that there was a total of $80.53 in the league treasury. This amount also included the $10 forfeit money that was put up by the team upon their entering the league. It was agreed that the forfeit money put up by the team managers would go towards defraying the expenses of a banquet. In order to raise some money it was voted that the Ship and Engine team would challenge the Mebs five, winners of the Y. M. C. A. House league for a three game series for the purpose of deciding the city championship. The winner of the series would then play the Headquarters five, winners of the Military league.

The teams that are entered in the fight for the industrial title of the state include some of the best basketball teams in the state of Connecticut. Of the number that have already expressed a willingness to enter a team into this tourney, the Safety Car and Heating Co. five of New Haven, loom up to be the strongest, taking this team into consideration in preferance to the others entered in the tourney because of the impressive record hung up by this team this season. The Chase Co. of Waterbury, the New Departure or the International Silver Co. of Meriden, the Underwood Typewriter team of Hartford and two teams from Bridgeport are the teams that have entered. The games will begin at 3 P. M. and will continue until 9 that evening. During the spare moments the members of the various quintets will have in between games, the Safety Car and Heating Co. of New Haven will meet its hosts in a friendly night the Safety Car and Heating Co. will play the Atlas A. C. five at New Haven for the city and state title.

Before the meeting adjourned, Manager MacNamara of the Connecticut Power five wanted to know when the Industrial baseball league would get under way. He was answered by secretary Fistere, who said, that this matter would be taken up at the banquet of the basketball league.

The teams that were represented are as follows: Manager MacNamara of the Connecticut Power, Peter Frew representing the J. N. Lapointe, Jack Russell manager of the champion New London Ship and Engine five, Secretary Ralph W. Fistere, Physical director Dr. A. B. Dawson and Joe Barry representing the Norwich Bulletin.

YOUNG COULON POPULAR WITH NEW BEDFORD FANS

Young Coulon of Taftville made a decided hit with New Bedford fans when he knocked out Gamble in the second round last Monday evening, according to the New Bedford Evening Standard which tells of the bout as follows:

Al Coulon Makes Good

The second preliminary was a poor match, but it turned out just the reverse of what taveryone naturally expected when they saw Young Gamble towering head and shoulders above Al Coulon, of Norwich, Conn., and enjoying an advantage in weight and reach that augured ill for the kid.

Defying convention, the Nutmeg flyweight kept after his bigger adversary and reached his jaw with enough right and left swings in the first round to win him the instant support of the crowd and the unstinted respect of Mr. Gamble.

In the second round Coulon tore into Gamble viciously, staggering him repeatedly with right hand punches to the chin. Gamble soon had enough of the little hornet's sting and dove into a horizontal position by way of resigning.

Coulon won a tremendous hand and can come back here any time. His style last night was reminiscent of that employed so effectively by Taunton Jimmy Wilde a couple of years back.

In the six round opener, Young Monis, who for some unapparent reason appears on the bill every week now, jabbed his way to a win over Young Casey of Tiverton, a willing youngster with a punch that was always a little too slow in getting under way.

McTIGUE OFFERED $75,000 TO FIGHT SIKI AGAIN

New York, March 26—Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, today was offered $75,000 by Edward Roberts, Panama promoter, for a 15-round title match at Panama City next July or August with Battling Siki, who lost the title to McTigue at Dublin a year ago.

Roberts came to New York primarily in an effort to compel Johnny Dundee to fulfill a contract to box Jose Lombardo, Panama featherweight at Panama.

West Pitched Good Ball

The box score of the Baltimore Orioles-Athletics game shows that Tony West, local boy, pitched three innings against the Athletics. In these three innings West allowed one hit, a double by Galloway, struck out one, Miller, passed three men and made one assist. No runs were scored on his delivery. West is known to his teammates as "Specks" Weso.

NEW LONDON "Y" STANDS HIGH IN BOWLING TOURNEY

New London, March 26.—The results of the second international Y. M. C. A. bowling tournament that was held on March 14, was announced as follows: New London with a pinfall total of 2687 in ten pins was tenth in the standing, the winning team and other teams were as follows: San Antonio, Texas, was first in ten pins by knocking down 2854 for five men. Brooklyn, N. Y., was second with 2831; East Cleveland, O., third with 2829, Carthage, Mo., fourth with 2826. In the duck pins New London placed fourth, with a total pinfall of 1346, the winner of this event was Brooklyn, N. Y., East District, with a pinfall of 1706. Ft. Monroe, Va., with 1634 was second, and Baltimore, Md., with 1576 was third. In the candle pins Augusta, Me., with a total pinfall of 1355 was first; Berlin, N. H., with 1345 was second.

In the individual scores in the bottle pins, Hugo Markland of San Antonio, Texas, with 356 was high man; J. O. Mitchell, San Antonio, Texas, second with 336; J. K. Sammon, Schoolfield, Va., third with 333; G. Sistare of New London, Conn., fourth with 326. In the duck pins, W. B. Doty of Brooklyn, East Side, was first with a high single of 141. W. Fingernagel of the same city was second with 139. J. H. Weston, Ft. Monroe, Va., was third with a single of 136. In candle pins A. B. Whittin of Berlin, N. H., was high with 106; Hervey Flagg, Augusta, Me., second with 104; Edward Lausier of the same city was high man in three strings with 289. A. B. Whitten of Berlin, N. H., was second with 280.

This year a new departure in promotion was that of holding competitions in three types of pins. Also, the preliminary contest in which twenty-nine states and eighty associations practiced attracted a great deal of interest.

The results of the senior hexathlon championship has been announced. Eighty-one associations located in 28 states and six Canadian provinces, competed in the 1924 contest. Four thousand two hundred men were represented. The association at Winnipeg, Manitoba, had the largest number of entries, viz: 202.

Toronto, Ontario, West End branch, won the Class "A" championship, scoring 5332 points; Brockton, Mass., won the Class "B" championship with a score of 4040 points, and Greenville, S. C., won the Class "C" championship with a score of 2917 points.

F. Kniffin of Bedford Branch, Brooklyn, won the high point championship, scoring 580 points in six events. A more complete report will be given out some time later by The Bulletin as soon as it is announced at headquarters at New York.

Other championships will take place in the near future, the first on the program is the basketball championships to be held in Cincinnati, O., March 27 to 29. These will be conducted in a first-class manner by Dr. C. A. Wilzbach.

Swimming championships will be held on April 12th. The national Y. M. C. A. swimming championships will be held at the Detroit association. The Y. M. C. A. headquarters has also announced that swimming championships will be held at Cambridge, Mass., on April 4. Also the New London and Norwich Y. M. C. A. swimming dual meet will be held at the New London Y tank on Saturday, March 29.

A change in dates has been made in the aquatic junior and senior pentathlons. The time these events were scheduled to be run off was the last two weeks in April. This date has been changed to the first two weeks in June.

The Central Y. M. C. A. in Pittsburgh, Pa., are anticipating a most satisfactory tournament in the volleyball championships to be conducted there May 3 and 10.

The reports for the junior hexathlon, which is being conducted this month, will have to be handed in before April 10th.

There is a physical directors' society meeting at Blue Ridge, May 28-June 2nd. The employed officers' conference will be held May 27-30, inclusive, and the physical directors' meeting will be held in conjunction with said following this.

COMMISSION SILENT ON CARPENTIER-GIBBONS BOUT

Detroit, March 26.—Louis W. Pliss, state boxing commissioner, today refused to cross the Gibbons-Carpentier fight bridge until he comes to it. He would make no prediction as to the stand the commission would take if promoters of the proposed Independence day match seek to put it on at Benton Harbor.

The commissioner recalled that subsequent to the Dempsey-Miske championship fight at the Benton Harbor arena in 1920, state officials expressed themselves as opposed to any repetition of open air title bouts in Michigan. The absence of any championship aspect to the proposed bout, the commissioner said, might be regarded as removing most of the features deemed objectionable at the Dempsey-Miske meeting.

Pliss said the matter now is before the governor of Indiana and that until the match is disposed of one way or another there, he will not forecast this state's attitude toward the bout. There will be plenty of time, he said, when application to hold the bout in this state is made.

REDS WILL HAVE ALL-VETERAN TEAM

Orlando, Fla., March 26—Bad weather and the death of Pat Moran have set the Cincinnati Reds far back in their training grind but Jack Hendricks, though less than two weeks at the helm, is rallying his forces rapidly for the 1924 campaign.

Hendricks was close to Moran, knew his plans and policies and will try to carry them through, camp observers are convinced. He is after the National league pennant and nothing less will satisfy him, the management or the Reds' followers.

As Hendricks himself sums up his situation and prospects, the Reds have a rookieless camp, the only one in existence. The owners and Moran gambled on added pitching strength alone. They stood pat on all of the 1923 regulars and simply bought three pitching stars to add to the quartet they already possessed.

Of the three hurling newcomers, Hendricks banks heavily upon Tom Sheehan, St. Paul acquisition. Jakie May, southpaw obtained from the Pacific coast league, reported in excellent condition and has shown a lot of stuff. Carl Mays, veteran underhand slinger bought from the Yankees, has displayed old time form in exhibition games. The veterans—Pete Donohue, Eppa Rixey, Adolfo Luque and Rube Benton—appear to be fit for a driving campaign.

Hendricks figures the club will make a better start than it did in 1923 because Daubert, who was sick last spring, is ready to start at first in good condition, and Eddie Roush, star outfielder, usually a holdout at this stage, has signed a three-year contract that gives the club the benefit of his speed and punch from the getaway.

Bohne, Caveney and Pinelli, all starting their third season, complete the infield, while Duncan and Burns two reliable performers, are Roush's outfield mates. Hargrave and Wingo will be behind the bat with Harper, Fonseca and the versatile Bressler as utility material.

The Reds have not shown much hitting so far this spring but Hendricks believes that, with a great twirling staff and brilliant defensive play, the punch will be sufficient to land the Reds on top.

HEADQUARTERS FIVE WINS NINTH STRAIGHT VICTORY

New London, March 26.—Headquarters Battery five won its ninth straight victory Wednesday night by defeating the J. N. Lapointe quintet in the scheduled Military league at the state armory by the one-sided score of 52 to 22.

Headquarters piled up an early lead of 10 points, but the Lapointes came back and scored six baskets and the lead. Headquarters displayed its earlier form and went into the lead again never to be headed. The score at half time was 22 to 12 in the guardsmen's favor. Headquarters outclassed Lapointes at all times. Both teams missed many chances to score.

GOLF CHAMPS WILL NOT HAVE TO QUALIFY

New York, March 26—The United States golf association, through its president, Wynant L. Vanderpool, today announced approval of the suggestion of the professional golfers' association to permit defending titleholders to play in the national open championship hereafter without being required to engage in the qualifying tests.

The effect of this decision, which is expected to be formally ratified by the P. G. A. executive committee at a meeting here April 7 will be to allow Bobby Jones to go direct to Detroit for the defense of his title on June 5 and 6 without participating in either of the sectional qualifying tournaments at Worcester, Mass., and Chicago, May 28 and 29.

The U. S. G. A. has reserved the right, however, to alter this arrangement if desired in the future.

EIGHT PLAYERS SEEDED FOR NATIONAL TOURNEY

New York, March 26—Eight of the seven players entered were seeded today in the draw for the national men's indoor singles tennis championship which starts next Saturday at the Seventh Regiment armory.

Heading the seeded list are Vincent Richards, of Yonkers, defending champion, and Francis T. Hunter, of New Rochelle, 1923 titleholder. They are in opposite halves and favored to battle once more for the championship in the final round.

The other seeded stars include Frank Anderson and S. Howard Voshell, of Brooklyn, both former champions; Herbert L. Bowman, present New York state titleholder; G. Carlton Shafer, of Philadelphia; three times joint holder of the indoor doubles title; Percy L. Kynaston, Rockville Center, N. Y., and Jerry Lang of Columbia, New York state intercollegiate champion.

DEMPSEY NOT TO BOX BEFORE LABOR DAY

Chicago, March 26.—Jack Dempsey, worlds heavyweight champion, will confine his activities to the business of being a motion picture hero until at least the first week in July, Jack Kearns, his manager, announced here tonight. Kearns left for Los Angeles to close a contract for Dempsey's services in the pictures involving $1,000,000.

Kearns said Dempsey would not box before Labor day and that his opponent would be either Luis Angel Firpo or Harry Wills, the negro challenger. In the event that Firpo still is unwilling to make another trip from South America, Dempsey will face Wills, provided a promoter and suitable inducements are assured.

FOOTBALL CHANGES WILL SPEED UP THE GAME

Hamilton, N. Y., March 26.—Changes affected by the national intercollegiate football rules committee in the gridiron code will have a tendency to speed up the game, according to Dick Harlow, Colgate university coach, but as far as Colgate is concerned, the team will not be affected.

"From the spectators' viewpoint there will be no difference in play," Harlow said, "and this is a good thing, for the public is just learning to understand football and any radical change would cause confusion."

MORIN CLASHES WITH FILLMORE THIS EVENING

Mike Morin of Taftville, will clash on the Aetna alleys this evening with Roy Fillmore in the second match of the Eastern Connecticut bowling tourney. Morin beat Dugas on Monday evening, 7 out of 11 strings. All Taftville is backing Morin to win over the Norwich pinster but Fillmore has a large local following.

PITTSBURGH TAKES FIRST GAME FROM BOSTON IN NATIONAL HOCKEY SERIES

Boston, March 26.—Pittsburgh hockey team defeated Boston Athletic association tonight, 3 goals to 2, in the first game of the series to decide the United States Amateur Hockey association championship. The contest was fast and there were few penalties. Drury, of Pittsburgh, and Geran, of Boston, each scored twice.

Pittsburgh's strength in attacks was indicated by the 18 stops made by Nickle, Boston goal tender, against 8 by Workers for the western champions. Pittsburgh scored all its goals in the second period, while Boston tallied once in the second and again in the third. Drury, who went in for McCurry at left wing in the second period, scored twice in rapid succession on brilliant rushes. Conacher netted the third on a long shot that passed between Nickle's legs.

Each Boston score was made when Pittsburgh had a man off the ice. Later in the second period when Conacher was benched for tripping, Geran eluded the Pittsburgh defense and found the net. When McCurry was fulfilling a minor penalty in the third period the Boston center scored again on a pass by Cronin from behind the net. The second game will be played here Friday night. The lineup:

MISS COLLETT REACHES SEMI-FINALS AT PINEHURST

Pinehurst, N. C., March 26—Miss Glenna Collett, of Providence, R. I., holder of the North and South women's golf title and former national titleholder, Miss Ronald Bartow, of Philadelphia, Miss Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, Ohio, and Mrs. F. E. Dubois, of Rye, N. Y., today entered the semi-finals in the annual north and south women's golf championship tournament today.

Miss Collett entered the semi-finals by defeating Miss Ruth Perry, of Philadelphia, Miss Bartow defeated Mrs. J. D. Chapman; Miss Fordyce won from Miss Marion Bennett, and Mrs. Dubois defeated Miss Dorothy Richards of Cleveland.

Miss Louise Fordyce, Youngstown, Ohio, defeated Miss Marion Bennett, New Britain, 6 and 5.

COLUMBIA PROTESTS YALE WATER POLO PLAYER

New York, March 26. — Columbia university today protested the playing of Caldwell B. Esselstyn, goal on the Yale water polo team and a Columbia extension department student last spring. The protest was based on the eligibility rule which prohibits a student from representing a college in any association meet within one year after his transfer from another school.

Should the complaint be upheld at the meeting of the Intercollegiate Swimming association on Friday, six of Yale's seven victories would be thrown out and Columbia would succeed Yale as leader of the league.

Norwich Clerks Win.

At New London Wednesday evening the Norwich branch of the Mohican Co. bowling team defeated the New London clerks 2 out of 3 strings. Carbray was the individual star, getting high single and high total. The New London team rolls at Norwich next Tuesday. The score:

ANNOUNCEMENTS

JACKS' SPORT SHOP IS AN ATTRACTIVE STORE

John E. Wilson, with his partner, John Hart, will open their sporting goods establishment on Ferry street today. The Two Jacks are well known in this city and both have a large circle of friends. They have opened the store in the old Vaughn building and have fitted it out with all up-to-date furnishings and a full and complete line of sporting goods. They will also carry a large stock of bicycles and will do bicycle repairing.

Jackie Wilson will be in charge of the sporting goods end of the business while Johnny Hart will have the bicycles under his care. Mr. Hart was for a number of years with C. V. Pendleton in the bicycle and sporting goods business and has a thorough knowledge of the business. Mr. Wilson has been popular with the sporting fraternity of this part of the state, having been a boxing promoter for several years, an ardent basketball fan and a lover of sports in general.

AT THE PALACE

Edouard, the world's greatest shadowgraph artist is the opening attraction at the Palace theatre today, Friday and Saturday. Norwich theatregoers will be highly edified and amused at the antics of his strange creations.

The variety Revue is a clever trio of novel dancers in a terpsichorean classic of acrobatic dance numbers. Two pretty girls and a clever fellow comprise this trio. It will readily be seen from the way these artists work that they have lately been recruited from musical comedy where they have been appearing for several seasons. No expense, time or effort has been spared to make their effort worthwhile.

Morgan & West, a genuinely funny couple offer their laugh-a-minute comedy skit entitled Divorce to Order. Their humorous discussion of the vagaries of modern divorce and its facility will cause laughter, and their ambsing songs complete a clever act.

Harvard Holt & Kendricks who offer a specialty entitled Basketball on Wheels is perhaps the only act of its kind on the vaudeville stage. This clever trio play an entire game of basketball while mounted on bicycles. The stage is transformed into a miniature basketball field with two sides competing, and the game is performed entirely on wheels. It is surprising how much genuine entertainment there is in such a specialty.

All the boyish tricks and pranks that we love so much to see in our own boys are admirably portrayed by Wesley Barry, the young freckle-faced star, in his new picture, The Printers Devil, which opens at the Palace theatre today.

With an admirable supporting cast, including Harry Myers, who played the wealthy young city man thrown upon his own resources; Katherine McGuire, as the beautiful young daughter of a small-town banker; George Pierce, her father; and Louis King, Ray Cannon, Mary Halter and Harry Rottenberg, the story reveals how a simple, fun-loving boy, working as a printer's devil on the village newspaper, brings about the happy conclusion to a story of petty cheating and intrigue on one side, and honest, open-hearted dealing and love on the other.

It is not too often these days that we have the opportunity of seeing a picture and leaving the playhouse just brimful of good feeling and satisfaction. But The Printer's Devil is just that kind of picture, with just the kind of cast, and with the unobstrusive but very tangible signs of the excellent direction of William Beaudine, to make one feel young again and think of the days when one went to school and had never a care in the world.

The story was especially written for Wesley Barry by Julien Josephson. It is a Warner Brothers' classic of the

Sale of North Stonington Real Estate.

Burdick & McNicol real estate brokers, have sold for Mrs. Mary E. Perkins her new seven room cottage and land in connection, located near the village of North Stonington, to Walter Lee who has purchased the property for a home.

Sale on Asylum Street.

Ernest M. Newbury has sold through Quinn Insurance and Real Estate Agency, his dwelling house at 124 Asylum street, to Nathan Mustat who buys same for a home.

TODAY'S EVENTS

Greetings to Maj. Gen. Adolphus W. Greely, U. S. A., retired, best remembered for his Arctic exploration, who celebrates his 80th birthday today.

Representatives of boards of trade throughout Canada are to meet at Ottawa today to pledge support to the government in its national economy campaign.

The musical club of Amherst college, the alma mater of both the president and Mrs. Coolidge, has been invited to give a concert at the White House today.

Rules for the regulation of radio throughout the Western Hemisphere will be considered and formulated at the Inter-American Electrical Communications Conference, which is to begin its sessions today in the City of Mexico.

William E. Chilton and Guy D. Goff, rival candidates for the United States senatorial nomination in West Virginia, are to be the speakers today at the dedication of the new Tyler county courthouse at Middlebourne, W. Va.

The public consistory at Rome today at which Archbishop Hayes of New York and Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago are to be created cardinals is expected to be one of the most imposing ceremonies of its kind in the history of the Catholic church.

Today is the date fixed for the sale at Wichita, Kas., of the Kansas City, Mexico and Orient railroad, under foreclosure proceedings to satisfy a government lieu. The terms of the sale provide that the purchaser must keep the road in operation.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BROADWAY THEATRE

What is said to be the year's finest offering of vaudeville and pictures will be presented at the Broadway Theatre the last of this week.

The featured vaudeville attraction is "A Holland Romance" with an exceptionally fine cast. "A Holland Romance" is as attractive as a fine bit of delf china. Here is a quaint musical comedy as distinctly different as it is distinctly charming. Charles Orr a tenor, whose voice has delighted vaudeville for some time has sponsored the production and plays in it. His supporting company has been carefully selected and includes such well known players as Nelson Riley, who was recently heard in the "Chocolate Soldier," Yoland Presburg as a splendid soprano and Lillian Van Arsdale a worthy contralto. "A Holland Romance" was written by Jean Havez and George Botsford is responsible for the music. Romance is romance regardless of its locale but a romance in Holland is naturally more picturesque because of its opportunity for costuming and scenery. Here is an animated vocal picture in an exceptionally attractive frame.

The other acts are as follows: Wright & Gayman offer a comedy: "Isn't He a Little Cuckoo"; Earl Broson & Irene Renee appear in "Vaudeville Hash." If you have confidence in it, you'll like it.

The Season's Sensation, The Wheeler Trio complete the bill.

What a cast! What a story!

AT THE STRAND

Moonlight bathing parties on tropical beaches among a set of society people, gay week-end affairs under the southern moon, where husbands and wives mix indiscriminately, and savory scandals hushed merely by the power of money—these are the things that bring about the separation between Marion Mason and her husband in "Alimony," the F. B. O. production coming to the Strand Theatre beginning today.

And the story tells how she utilized her alimony to win him back from the merry widows and trifling women with whom his employer, in an attempt to win Marion, had surrounded him. How she did it forms the basis for an interesting story in this F. B. O. production, in which Grace Darmond, Warner Baxter, Ruby Miller, Clyde Fillmore, Jackie Saunders and other well known screen stars appear.

Other fine subjects will also be shown.

AT THE PALACE

Charles K. Champlin and his company, playing next week at the Palace theatre, have added to their reputation as one of the best traveling stock companies on the road. It is Mr. Champlin's great desire to please to the utmost the patrons of the different theatres in which he plays. In each town that Mr. Champlin and his company appears in, it is only necessary for the announcement to be made to assure packed houses. C. K. Champlin company is playing a special engagement at the Palace next week and from the interest so far shown it will be no different from the other cities. Take for instance the play Mr. Champlin will offer for the opening Monday "East is West," which is without a doubt the greatest comedy the stage has ever known and which made the remarkable run of two solid years at the Astor theatre, New York, it is the most expensive production ever attempted by a stock company, and carries tons of special scenery. It is with management's guarantee that this will be one of the biggest amusement weeks in the history of the theatre. Following the production of "East is West" Monday, the company will present at the matinee and night Tuesday, the New York and Boston success "The Love Child."

BREED THEATRE

William Fox has made Cameo Kirby into a photoplay, with John Gilbert in the title role, and it is said to be one of the most entertaining pictures in which this popular star has yet appeared. It will be seen at the Breed theatre today, Friday and Saturday.

Cameo Kirby is just the type of role that Gilbert plays best. There are romance, action, real drama and through it all Gilbert battles his way to better things than being just a gambler, albeit a "straight" one. There are scenes of the old steamboat days on the Mississippi, with the tang of adventure to thrill your jaded nerves. Picturesque old New Orleans is the local of much of the action, which involves the honor of an old Southern family and shows Gilbert frustrating a crooked gambler and winning the belle of New Orleans after an exciting duel.

The Fox news and an Educational comedy make up the remainder of the bill.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

OFF IN A TAXI

"Good morning, Mr. Merry Sun,
I hope you'll shine all day
Upon the Sunny Meadow
And all the flowers gay.

I'm going after breakfast
With Uncle David Cory
To hear him tell the boys and girls

Then, parting his hair down the middle of his back and strapping on his knapsack, he hurried down to the breakfast table. Lady Love had already placed the lollypop porridge on the table and when the little bunny boy had finished, he called up the Rabbitville Taxi Company.

"Please send a car in time for me To reach Bunnybridge by 2:30."

"Very well, we'll send a taxi, but don't keep it waiting outside on the street, it might catch a cold in its four little feet."

"Ha, ha!" laughed the little rabbit boy, "you can't fool me! You mean wheels!"

Pretty soon, all of a sudden, a horn went, "Honk, honk!" at the little gate in the white picket fence and Uncle David Cory called out:

I've called you five times;
The clock on the tăxi
Is ringing up dimes.

Twill soon reach a dollar,
And then I must think
Of how I'm to manage
For vituals and drink."

In less time than I can take to tell it, out of the little white bungalow hopped the little bunny and into the taxi. Then away it went down Lettuce avenue, past the Rabbitville Station where the Choo, Choo cars run every day,

And sometimes twice on Sunday;
They take the people home from work
And bring them back on Monday.

They rumble past the Bramble Patch And across the Sippi River, Upon a bridge that's built so strong It doesn't even quiver.

"Maybe we'll come home that way," said Uncle Dave.

"Maybe we won't," laughed the little rabbit. "That's the way to Lettucemere, not to Rabbitville."

By and by the chauffeur shouted: "Bunnybridge!" Just like a conductor or a brakeman. And in the next story you shall hear what the little rabbit did in the book shop.

EPWORTHIAN ANNIVERSARY IS HELD AT CONFERENCE

Providence, March 26.—The Methodist conference was opened at the Matthewson St. church this morning at 9 o'clock.

The ministers were gathering during the day on Tuesday and the examination of the different classes went on as is usual the day before the formal exercises begin.

The Epworth League Anniversary took place on Tuesday evening. After the devotional service consisting of the singing of hymns, Scripture reading, prayer, and a solo "Jesus Thy Name I Love", Rev. V. V. Sawyer, the presiding officer of the evening, made a humorous address in which he reminded the Epworthians present of some of the jollifications connected with their Institutes of the past year and called for an offering which was enthusiastically gathered. The large congregation joined in rendering "True Hearted, Whole Hearted."

The speaker of the evening was Rev. W. E. J. Getz, D. D., of the Epworth League Central office, Chicago. The address was full of vivacity and life. The speaker critized the critics of the young people of this age. Said he, the world was here with its frivolites before they came. Someone handed him an article on "The Unspanked Generation". But these young people are not to blame because they were not spanked, said he. Not the people of 14, 15, and 16 years must we blame but the people of 41, 51, and 61 years must repent of their sins and serve God before they blame the young. Some people think the Epworth League is dead. A man said that the Epworth League must be dying as he was president of the Epworth League years ago and had not been president of any league for ten (10) years. It was not the league that was dead but it was he that was dead and a good thing it was that no league had him for president now. He said the Epworth League is at work in 31 different countries of the world. The Epworth League enrolled 25,000 young people in its Institutes last summer. A few years ago we heard that our Theological Seminaries were having trouble in finding students. Today our church college and seminaries are crowded and we are told by men who know, that the Epworth League institute movement is the largest factor in bringing about the change. The speaker said that all the great movements of history had been put over by young men and women. The early Methodist preachers were mostly boys. It was the boys who won the war for the Union and the boys who won the World War. Why do our district superintendents not send experienced ministers to the different places? Why do they send young and inexperienced men to such trying places? I will tell you. First, the experienced man will not go. Second, the experienced man knows so many things which "cannot be done" that he wouldn't try to do any of them. On the other hand the young man with the enthusiasm of his youth does not know what cannot be done and in his simplicity he tries and often succeeds in doing things.

The address closed with an eloquent appeal to the young people present to arise to the task ahead and prepare for the mighty conquests ahead.

Rev. G. A. Grant S. T. D. who was a pastor in Norwich thirty years ago, was among the arrivals on Tuesday. His friends will be sorry to learn that he had to leave his pastorate at Center Church, Provincetown, Mass. last October because of the illness of his wife. He is now making his home with a married daughter in Northampton, Mass. Dr. Grant has long been regarded as among the leading men of the conference in scholarship and ability.

Rev. Florus L. Streeter, another former Norwich pastor, has been the pastor of Howard church, New Bedford for the past seven years where he is much beloved. Mr. Streeter has received a unanimous invitation from the church to return for the eighth year though it is possible that he may move this year.

Chairman Smith of the senate interstate commerce committee announced he would propose an amendment to the cotton futures act prohibiting unlimited short selling off commodities on the exchange markets which he said was injurious to prices of farmers' products.

NO RABIES IN STATE FOR LAST SIX MONTHS

A record that is believed to be the finest in the history of any state in the country is being bettered daily in Connecticut which has not had a case of rabies of any kind since September, 1923, and has not had a rabid dog within its borders since July, 1923. In four last ten rabid dogs and one rabid calf were reported to the [illegible] domestic animals. In September one cow developed rabies. Since that time, for a span of six months which is constantly growing longer, Connecticut has been entirely free from this scourge of animals.

The record reflects great credit upon the efficient work of Commissioner James M. Whittlesey and Special Deputy Commissioner Howard A. Elliot. In all the outbreaks of the disease reported rigid quarantine measures have been taken immediately and all rabid dogs have been killed.

Mr. Elliott's report for the month of February indicates the activity of the department and of local dog wardens in checking up stray animals and in taking preventive measures against disease. There were 529 dogs captured, 98 redeemed and 433 killed. Sixty-four prosecutions for violation of the dog laws were completed and 353 complaints were investigated.

Connecticut long ago took the lead among the states of the United States in a campaign against rabies. The dog is the only method of transmission of the disease and Connecticut was the first state to advocate, through the department of domestic animals, the vaccination of dogs.

Deputy Commissioner George E. Corwin, in an address on the subject before the New Haven County Public Health association recently said that rabies exists in every part of the civilized world with the exception of Australia, where rigid quarantine is strictly maintained. The preventive vaccination advocated by the state department has done much to make the present record possible, according to Dr. Corwin's address. In 1922 a provision in quarantine regulations issued made vaccinated dogs not liable to the quarantine order.

There is now a record of 1,600 dogs in the state that were voluntarily vaccinated and in all outbreaks in which immunized dogs have been bitten the efficacy of the method has been proved. None have developed rabies.

STATE POULTRYMEN NOW PRODUCING FINEST EGGS

More than one hundred poultrymen in Connecticut who have secured registry numbers from the state department of agriculture under the new grading regulations for eggs which went into effect January 1, 1924, are now producing in every county the finest eggs that have been offered consumers in the state, Leonard H. Healey, secretary of the board of agriculture announces.

Not only are the Connecticut Newlaid fancy and Connecticut hennery eggs the best that have ever been offered for sale by dealers in this state, but they are more plentiful this year than ever before. The exceptionally mild winter, the sunny days of March, and rapid transportation of imported eggs have worked to make this food necessity plentiful and the price low. Hartford whole sale prices quoted in the Connecticut Market Bulletin Monday were as follows: Connecticut Newlaid Fancy 30-35c; Connecticut Hennery, 27-34c; gathered 25-28c.

Secretary Healy warns housewives that it is yet too early to put eggs down in waterglass. Unless care is taken at this time of the year eggs are apt to be "chilled" and their preservation is problematical. In two weeks or so this danger from cold weather should be past.

Connecticut Newlaid Fancy—Eggs laid in Connecticut, strictly fresh, not more than seven (7) days old, weight not less than twenty-four (24) ounces to the dozen. Clean, uniform in size, shape and color and with sound shells. Those eggs must be candled and packed by the producer or producers' organization in sealed cartons bearing the name, address and registry number furnished upon request by the secretary of the state board of agriculture.

Connecticut Hennery—Eggs laid in Connecticut, strictly fresh, not more than seven (7) days old. Weight not less than twenty-four (24) ounces to the dozen. Clean, reasonably uniform in size, shape and color.

Trains Make On-Time Record

Passenger trains on the New Haven road reached a splendid record of on-time performance of 95-1 per cent on March 24. Only two through trains were late, both due to hot boxes on coaches. But 4.9 per cent. of all trains run were late at destination. This makes three record days in March—the other two days being March 4 when 96.8 per cent. of all passenger trains were on time. For the first ten days of March the average per cent. of passenger trains on time was 93.4.

PROGRESS IN INVESTIGATION OF ENGRAVING BUREAU

Washington, March 26—The house committee designated to investigate alleged irregularities in the bureau of engraving and printing today directed Morgan Beach, clerk of the District of Columbia supreme court, to produce a batch of bonds which, it is charged, are duplicates.

The securities were impounded in the possession of the clerk by Justice Stafford after Charles B. Brewer, special department of justice attorney, who had investigated conditions at the bureau, filed suit to prevent Secretary Mellon and Attorney General Daugherty from obtaining the bonds which were then in his possession.

Brewer, who preferred charges of irregularities which resulted in President Harding two years ago dismissing 28 employes and officials from the bureau, today dropped his suit. He declined to assign any reason.

The house committee expects to get under way with hearings within a day or two.

VICTORY REPORTED BY MEXICAN REVOLUTIONISTS

Washington, March 26.—Revolutionary troops destroyed a column of 500 Obregon troops Monday near La Barra De Tonala, on the border between Vera Cruz and Tobasco and Major General Benito Torruco was killed, General Candido Aguilar reported today to De La Huerta representatives here.

"Our war vessels were invited by General Serrano to surrender," the message added, "but the captains indignantly replied that they would never do so. I can assure you that the Obregon government will find its tomb in the southeast."

PUTNAM PETITIONS ARE PRESENTED BY McLEAN

Washington, March 26.—Senator George P. McLean of Connecticut, introduced the following bill and petitions in the United States senate today:

Petition from G. Merle Jones Post, No. 95, American Legion, of Hebron, Connecticut, favoring the enactment of legislation providing adjusted compensation for ex-service men.

Petitions from A. C. Tyler Auxiliary, No. 14, United Spanish War Veterans of Willimantic; Frederick A. Hill Camp, No. 15, United Spanish War Veterans of Stamford; Mulvoy-Tarlow Post, No. 608, Veterans of Foreign Wars and South Norwalk and Ward Cheney Camp, No. 13, United Spanish War Veterans of South Manchester, all in the state of Connecticut, favoring the enactment of legislation providing increased pensions for Spanish War Veterans and their widows.

Petition from the directors of the Putnam chamber of commerce, of Putnam, Connecticut, in opposition to Senate bill, No. 2013, declaring an emergency in respect to certain agricultural commodities; to promote equality between agricultural commodities and other commodities, etc.

Petitions from Women's Baptist Mission society of New Haven and Thompson's Women's Christian Temperance Union of Putnam, both in the state of Connecticut, protesting against the enactment of legislation increasing the percentage of alcohol in wine and beer.

Petition from Connecticut Society, United States Daughters of 1812, of Manchester, Connecticut urging confirmation of the Star Spangled Banner as our national anthem and asking congress to make an appropriation providing for necessary repairs to the "Constitution".

NOON MEETING CONDUCTED AT RICHMOND RADIATOR

At the noon meeting, Wednesday, in the Richmond Radiator company, under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A., Rev. Charles H. Ricketts spoke to the men on The Christian as an Ambassador. The following is a condensed report of the address to which the men listened very attentively:

The topic is suggested by what Paul told the Corinthians about Christians; "Ye are ambassadors for Christ." The sense of this teaching all depends on what interpretation is given to the word "ambassador." It is a political term of varied significance every item of which may be applied to the Christian's duty.

An ambassador is (1) a representative. He is a person sent from one government to explain and defend its policy at the capital of another government. He must have intelligence, character, geniality, winsomeness and tactfulness. He is (2) a man with a mission to fulfil and a message to deliver. He is not the exploiter of his own ideas nor the advancer of his own private affairs. He is a man (3) who speaks with delegated authority. If he is sent from Washington to the court of St. James there is back of him the power of the American administration, and in these days that is heeded everywhere in the world. He is a man (4) armed with powerful credentials. An incident was here related how the showing of an ambassador's credentials prevented a riot on one of the Atlantic liners. He is a man (5) who is imbued with the spirit of the country he represents. He must correct errors, displace ignorance with knowledge, and create an atmosphere favorable to his constituency. He is a man (6) who must be diplomatic. He must be on his guard against blunders. Cases were cited to show how costly diplomatic mistakes have been.

The speaker then applied these ideas to Christian activity, stressing the following points:

1. To be an ambassador for Christ one must represent Him. He must have his spirit; must imitate his works; must believe in the final success of His kingdom.

2. The Almighty appeals to the world through his ambassadors. The condition of the pagan world and the pagan sections of our own country show clearly that general human uplift comes only through the work of Christ's ambassadors.

3. The chief work of a Christian ambassador is to create that atmosphere in which it is both natural and reasonable for man to be restored to the sonship which he lost through sin.

The men expressed their kindly sympathy for Secretary Hill who is confined to his home by illness.

PROVISION FOR ARMY OF PRESENT STRENGTH

Washington, March 26—Approval was given by the house today to provisions of the war department appropriation bill which would continue the regular army during the coming fiscal year at its present authorized strength of 125,000 enlisted men and 12,000 officers.

Representative Kvale, Independent, Minnesota, offered an amendment to reduce the enlisted strength of 62,500, while Representative Black, democrat, Texas, proposed a 100,000 maximum. Both amendments were rejected by a viva voce vote.

Representative Reece, republican Tennessee, offered an amendment to turn over to the department of agriculture for use in improving highways 1,500 tractors and 5,500 trucks from the reserve stocks of the army. It was thrown out on a point of order.

PERMIT FOR NEUROLOGISTS TO EXAMINE H. K. THAW

Philadelphia, March 26.—A decree permitting "one or more" neurologists to examine Harry K. Thaw, now an inmate of the Pennsylvania hospital for mental and nervous diseases, was signed today by Judge J. Willis Martin in common pleas court.

The decree was asked by Howard Irish and Walter Riddle, trustees of Thaw's estate, and is preliminary to the trial by jury April 10 to determine Thaw's mental condition. Thaw recently petitioned the court for such a trial and has the support of his mother, Mrs. Mary C. Thaw.

Counsel for the trustees explained that it was not their desire to oppose the release of Thaw, but that they wished to ascertain his mental condition before turning over his estate, said to be valued at more than a million dollars.

BEWARE THE COUGH OR COLD THAT HANGS ON

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking, according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

More than 46,000 of you, to whom this is addressed, own the business of Swift & Company.

When Gustavus F. Swift first started in business in New England in 1868, he was alone. When he incorporated the business in 1885 as Swift & Company, six persons comprised the list of shareholders.

Today, in 1924, there are consumers, retailers, producers of live stock, employes of Swift & Company, in fact, thousands of Mr. and Mrs. Publics in the list of shareholders.

No one man or family owns as much as 50 per cent of the stock of the Company; in fact, it would take about 900 of the largest shareholders to vote 51 per cent of the shares.

We are proud of the fact that about one-third of the list is made up of employes — and that these employes own over $20,000,000 worth of our stock.

WESTERLY

A special session of the third district court was held Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock in the office of the clerk of the court, Clerk M. Walter Flynn acting as judge, when two cases were heard.

John Lester, who had been arrested by Patrolman George Champlin on Canal street while under the influence of intoxicating liquors, and locked up at the police station, was presented on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, charged with having in his possession one-half pint of gin. He pleaded guilty and was fined $20 and costs amounting to $33.80 which was not paid and he was taken to the Kingston jail by Patrolman Champlin.

Leon D. Roche, 31, of Acton, Mass., who figured in the automobile collision with a telephone pole, Tuesday night, corner of Granite street and Newton avenue, was given a hearing on complaint of Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown, the writ having two counts, transporting intoxicating liquors and driving an automobile while intoxicated. After an explanation of his rights by acting Judge Flynn, Roche pleaded nolo.

Town Solicitor John Ferguson stated that the defendant Tuesday afternoon was operating a new Ford sedan and when coming into Westerly on Granite street about 5:40 met an automobile driven by Edwin Barber, Jr., going in the opposite direction. Barber was forced to drive his car on the sidewalk to prevent a collision which was averted by scant inches. The Ford car was traveling from side to side of the road at a speed in excess of 30 miles per hour. Several automobiles and pedestrians had narrow escapes from being struck before the automobile Roche was operating crashed into the telephone pole near Newton avenue, where the automobile was badly damaged.

After the collision Roche attempted to start his motor but was prevented from doing so. He was accompanied to the Rhode Island hotel where he was examined by two physicians, who declared that he was under the influence of intoxicating liquor. In the automobile was found a dozen bottles of beer. Roche said that he had eaten dinner and had two drinks of beer which he had procured in Woonsocket about noon time and that he was not peddling beer. A flat pair of tires he said, might possibly explain his erratic driving. Having left Acton, Mass., he came to Westerly through Woonsocket, Providence and Wakefield, R. I., and that he was "humiliated" by his own actions. In answer to questions by Clerk Flynn he said that he had left Providence about 3 o'clock and arrived in Westerly about 5.30.

Acting Judge Flynn said that serious charges were brought against him in Rhode Island which he understood would be more serious in Massachusetts and that the liquor one gets these days is most dangerous and harmful in its effects. Roche stated that he had traveled three years and worked for this firm for four years. Judge Flynn said that the defendant was most fortunate, in that injury had been done to none but himself. A fine of $100 was imposed for driving while intoxicated and on the count of transporting, a fine of $20 was given, the total being $135.80. As the Ford coach was Roche's property it was held for surety on the first count for $500, and the second count, transporting $200 and sentence was suspended for a day, that the defendant might obtain the money to pay the fine.

The snowstorm which began Wednesday afternoon about 3 o'clock, being the fifteenth of the winter season in Westerly, has put a temporary stop to the activities of the Westerly highway department. Noticeable improvements are in progress on the Watch Hill road, Shore road, Atlantic avenue and at Pleasant View. At the top of the second hill below Massatuxet brook, on the Watch Hill road, the highway has been widened on the east side, the steam roller supplying steam for the drills which are being used to break out the granite, which has been used for a face wall. On East avenue the rock along the roadside is being removed for a wider thoroughfare. At Pleasant View a section of Atlantic avenue between the travelled part and the new cement curb line is being filled with gravel taken from the bank where the shore road is being widened, near the B. F. Clark place. This will make an exceptional place for parking automobiles and still give use to the full width of the highway.

Driven by Donald Whaley, a Chevrolet touring car No. 36-528 R. I., ran off the Stonington road, Tuesday about 10 p. m., and struck the stone wall at Davis ledge. The right forward wheel was smashed when the fender dropped and the axle was sprung, the forward mudguard bent and twisted. Mr. Whaley escaped injury. The car was towed back to a Westerly garage.

Herbert J. Wells of South Kingstown, retired president of the Rhode Island Hospital Trust Co., of Providence, accompanied by his daughter was an automobile visitor in Westerly Wednesday.

Henry L. Burdick of Westerly was among the party of seventy head adjusters of the Travelers Insurance Co., who were in session Tuesday in the hall of the new building in Hartford. Under the auspices of the liability department with Secretary R. J. Sullivan in charge, President Butler gave an afternoon address. Luncheon was served as the Hartford club and dinner was taken at the Travelers club.

Howard Martin of Potter Hill, R. I., for a number of years in the employ of the Victor Laundry Co., will complete his services for the laundry company the middle of next month.

At the meeting of Hancock Woman's Relief Corps, held in the Wilcox Memorial building Tuesday evening, arrangements were completed for their attendance at the funeral of a late member, Mrs. William Tyler Collins.

Mrs. Stiles H. Ross of Stonington was a business visitor in Westerly Wednesday.

Charles E. Champlin and James McKnight of the West Side were in attendance at the session of New London county superior court in New London Wednesday as jurors and expect to complete their services this (Thursday) morning.

Charles P. Whitall of Springfield, Mass., was a business caller in Westerly, Wednesday.

Charles M. Kebbe of Westerly has been confined to his home on High street for a week suffering from a serious hemorrhage of the nose.

James H. Coleman of Westerly was a New London business caller Tuesday.

Assistant Librarian Miss Martha Eaton of the Wilcox Memorial and Public library, having been engaged as librarian of the Norwich Public library, Norwood, Mass., will complete her duties in a few days at the Westerly library and after a few days' vacation will begin her work in Massachusetts.

The work of installing the Peabody Washington County Law library, that includes the cases of some 400 volumes of valuable law works was begun Wednesday morning under the direction of Representative and Attorney Samuel H. Davis. The will of the late Attorney Thomas H. Peabody directed this disposition of his law library. The books have been placed on the second floor of the court house on Union St., and in the women's waiting room next to the superior court chamber.

Mrs. Hobart T. Saunders entertained at bridge Tuesday evening. Eight tables were in play. The evening at cards being followed by the serving of refreshments.

Alexander Aitken visited in New London Tuesday.

Carpenters and tinsmiths have been at work during the past few days renewing the roofing and gutters over the store fronts in the Rhode Island hotel block in Dixon house square.

Charles D. Maxson was an early morning business caller in Providence, Wednesday.

Antonio and Santo Trovato of Westerly were among Providence business callers Wednesday morning.

The Mistuxet bridge team, of Stenington, is to play the Westerly Masonic team and the Mystic Hooks play the Westerly Cycle club in Westerly this (Thursday) evening.

JEWETT CITY

The borough has been stirred more or less of late on account of the differences of opinion, entertained by two members of the stove-pipe club, as touching the date of the loss of the steamer Portland of the Eastern Steamship company's line. The marine records of the port of Boston have been investigated, which state that Steamer Portland left Boston on the night of November 26, 1898 in a blizzard from the northeast and was never again heard from. These findings were verified Wednesday by a letter from the chronological department of a Boston paper. The man who declared that the loss occurred 35 years ago, is thus proven to be mistaken. Locally the date is of much interest to many, especially to the one time Olympian male quartette. During the late afternoon of that day the quartette and their accompanist, Miss Alice D. Phillips, together with Miss Mabel A. Young made the trip to Voluntown, where they were to sing in Union hall. Miss Young at that time was singing as an obligato, for the quartette, the Pirate chorus, from the opera Enchantress by Balfe.

The afternoon was moderately warm with a light air from the south, which gave no hint of the approaching storm. After the entertainment at ten o'clock that evening Voluntown people strongly argued with the Jewett City visitors not to attempt the trip home on account of the raging storm which increased every minute.

"Little Joe", their driver, a Canadian was at the door and said if there was no delay in getting away, he would try to make it. It was a trip long to be remembered, and a dread memory best forgotten. The skill of the driver, and the fact that the nearly full moon was bright, were the two favorable conditions that won.

Mrs. George H. Prior, state president of the King's Daughters, leaves Sunday night to attend the Seventh General convention of the International Order of King's Daughters and Sons, to be held at Charleston, South South Carolina, from April 2nd to the 6th. Mrs. Prior's name appears on the programme as toastmistress at the luncheon Friday of that week, as a speaker during the open forum on Bible Study, and as a member of the resolutions committee. Mrs. Prior goes to Washington with the New Hampshire and Massachusetts delegates, and from there all the delegates travel by special train to South Carolina. She expects to be away for ten days, visiting Washington on her return.

A joint meeting of Whitsonsey Circle of the King's Daughters and the Mary F. Scranton class of the Baptist Sunday school was held at the Baptist parsonage Tuesday evening. There were thirty present. The affair had been arranged as a farewell to Mrs. A. M. Clarke, a much loved member of the circle and class. Miss Alice A. Brown presented Mrs. Clarke a handsome silver tray as a gift of appreciation and love. There were three musical numbers, a solo, My Soul is So Happy in Jesus, sung by Mrs. E. E. The annual meeting of the Baptist women's mission circle was held at the home of Mrs. A. M. Brown Tuesday afternoon. The officers elected are: Mrs. A. M. Brown, president; Mrs. S. F. Brown, vice president; Mrs. John Harris, secretary; Mrs. Martin Davis, treasurer; Mrs. G. H. Prior, auditor, Mrs. E. E. Scates, world wide guild counsellor. Mrs. A. M. Brown arranged the programme, the subject being miscellaneous information regarding the work of the northern Baptist convention. The subjects were The Crisis We Face and Its Solution, New England District News Items, New Plans for White Cross Work, Our Foreign Field in a Concrete Form. A Few Results of the New World Movement Today on the Foreign and Home Field. A story was a part of the programme. Mrs. A. M. Clarke has served the society as its secretary for fifteen years. Resolutions were adopted expressing great regret for the loss of so faithful a worker and appreciation of the splendid service of one who could so successfully plan and carry out the missionary work.

On account of fire Mr. Gittleman will be at 17 Soule street, until further notice.—adv.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Krug and daughter Alice of Preston City were guests Sunday at Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Krug's.

Leslie Hyde who has returned from Detroit driving a new sedan for Joseph Dudkowski, was accompanied by John W. Blake.

Reports from Mrs. John Perkins who is in the New Haven hospital are that she is making a good recovery.

Snow began to fall about two o'clock Wednesday afternoon and, with the wind in the 'northeast' was still falling during the night.

Thames Past Grand Association of Rebekahs is to have an all day session today (Thursday) in Odd Fellows' hall, with a roast beef dinner at noon, which will be followed by a meeting in the afternoon, and supper will be served. This association is composed of the past noble grands of Rebekah lodges in Norwich, Willimantic, Jewett City, Niantic, New London, Groton and Mystic and meets once a month in one of the above named places. Guests are therefore expected from all these lodges.

Evangelist Currie is to be in charge of the meeting at the Union Baptist church this (Thursday) evening. Rev. H. J. Case of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, of New London will be present, with some of the members of that church and an orchestra which will assist with the music.

C. Edward Grinnell of this place has purchased from Osmer D. Ballert of Providence, a parcel of land on the west side of East avenue, Westerly.

The Ladies' Aid society of the Methodist church is to meet this afternoon.

Rev. F. C. Williams, of St. Paul's church Willimantic, will be the preacher at the Friday evening Lenten service in St. Mark's church.

The warm air of the last few days has made those who have gardens begin to feel anxious to get to work, and one man who always has a very early garden planted peas Tuesday.

Next Monday evening the men who are in the Community house chorus are to entertain the women members of the chorus. There will be a special musical program when Byron M. Hatfield will sing and there will also be a male quartet.

A picked team composed of women who have been bowling on the church teams has issued a challenge to the Robinson Silk Co. team which recently won the tournament among the industrial women bowlers. The Methodist team defeated the Congregational team No. 2, Tuesday afternoon, 682 to 662.

PLAINFIELD

A meeting of Saint Paul's Brotherhood is to be held at Saint Paul's Episcopal church this (Thursday) evening, at 7.30. The pastor, Rev. Thomas M. Melrose, is to speak, his subject being, "The Far West."

Principal John L. Chapman will attend the two-day conference of high school principals which will be held at Willimantic today (Thursday) and Friday. The meetings will be held in the state normal school building. The program has already been given in the Willimantic news of The Bulletin.

The Lawton fire department was called out Wednesday at 11.30 for a fire at Nos. 217 and 218 in the New Village. The fire caught around the chimney and practically all of the damage was done on the top floor. The efficient work of the fire department, which is run by the mill, prevented a fire which might have caused great damage in that section, which is owned by the mill. As it was, the damage was very slight, the firemen getting the blaze under control in a remarkably short time. The occupants of the house were William LeClair, who is living in No. 217, and Mrs. Susie Kubis Davis, who occupies No. 218.

Mr. and Mrs. William Buell were in Eastford Tuesday, attending the funeral of Mr. Buell's grandmother. Mrs. John Gallup took Mrs. Buell's place on the teaching staff of the Plainfield grammar school during her absence.

EKONK

A number are suffering with grip colds.

A grange meeting was held Saturday evening. Owing to the bad traveling only a few were present.

A large flock of wild geese flew over the hill Sunday afternoon and robins and blue birds have been heard.

The frost is coming out of the ground and it is mud everywhere. The mail carrier made the trip with his automobile Monday for the first time since the near-blizzard.

Miss Sara Palmer, supervisor of schools, visited Sterling Hill school Monday and called on Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Gallup.

Rev. Mr. Witter, a missionary in India for many years, gave a very interesting talk in Sterling Hill church, Sunday, at the regular service.

Walter Barber, who has been spending the winter in Florida returned home last week and attended church on Sterling Hill Sunday.

Ekonk Community Club is to hold a meeting in Grange hall Thursday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. John Frink are ill. Their daughter, Mrs. Flora Gallup spent Sunday with them. Mr. Frink's sister, Mrs. Jane Place of Coventry, also called on them Sunday.

Mrs. Ida Frink takes the lead in house cleaning and is nearly through with the hard job well done.

Mr. and Mrs. Byron Young and son Byron Herbert were in Willimantic Saturday to attend the twenty-ninth district republican caucus to elect delegates at large to attend the state convention, April 23.

Mrs. Carl Gallup called on Miss Melinda Gallup Sunday afternoon. Miss Gallup has passed the 80th mark but beats all the young people for keeping cheerful and well.

If you are satisfied to remain poor the world will see that you do.

LISBON

CADILLAC

THIS WOMAN RELIEVED FROM SUFFERING

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. A Remarkable Story

Dover, Del.—"I wish every woman would take your wonderful medicine as it has done so much good to me. I had cramps and faint spells and very bad pains. One day I was over to my neighbor's house and she told me I ought to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. So I went to the store on my way home and got a bottle, and took the first dose before supper. I have been taking it ever since, and you can hardly believe how different I feel. I had just wanted to lie in bed all the time, and when I started to brush up I would give out in about ten minutes. So you know how badly I felt. I used to go to bed at eight and get up at seven, still tired. Now I can work all day and stay up until eleven, and feel all right all the time. My housework is all I do in summer, but in winter I work in a factory. I have told a good many of my friends, and I have had three come to me and tell me they wouldn't do without the Vegetable Compound."—Mrs. SAMUEL MURPHEY, 219 Cecil St., Dover, Delaware.

saves you the hardest work of washday
soaks dirt out—no more hard rubbing

Simply soaking in rich Rinso soapsuds takes the place of rubbing—does the hard work for you. The loosened dirt comes out easily. Even grimy places where dirt is ground-in come clean with so little trouble to you—just a light rubbing.

Because Rinso dissolves completely, it rinses out thoroughly. No bits of soap left to turn your clothes yellow under the iron.

You need only Rinso for your Monday wash—no other soap or soap powder. It is made by the makers of Lux, the largest soap-makers in the world. It is perfect for all types of washing machines—fine in the boiler—and just wonderful for soaking in set tubs.

Get a package for your next wash—regular size or big new size—from your grocer. Lever Bros. Co., Cambridge, Mass.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c

Sweeping Made Easy

Without Electricity!!

Here Is the Wonderful

Vacuette
Non-Electric Suction Sweeper

Picture shows the Improved Model "C" Vacuette

As efficient as an Electric—as easy to operate as a Carpet Sweeper

Here, madam, is the vacuum sweeper you have heard so much about—the one you've seen advertised in The Saturday Evening Post and already in use in more than 180,000 homes. We want you to compare it with any other sweeper you have ever seen or used. The Vacuette works mechanically—automatically. No electricity to pay for—no plugs, wires, cords or attachments to get out of order. Just a slight push sends it whirring across your floors—and all the dust, lint, thread, ashes, dirt and grit vanish into the bag. The Vacuette has a beautiful cast aluminum body and weighs only 7½ pounds. Convenient pistol grip handle makes it easy to guide

Lasts a Lifetime

So simple is the mechanism of the Vacuette that it requires practically no attention. All parts are "Parkerized" rust-proof and with ordinary care will last for years. Every Vacuette thoroughly examined and tested before leaving the factory, and you get it with the maker's guarantee.

FREE Demonstration

The very minute you see the Vacuette at work, you will realize that here is positively the "last word" in vacuum sweepers. Here is the really dependable cleaner—before which dust and dirt vanish as if by magic. Don't take our word for it. We will demonstrate the Vacuette on your own rugs and carpets. Let us bring this wonderful sweeper to your house, where you can actually test it yourself. No reason to hesitate—you will not be obligated in any way.

Phone or Write

Do this now—before it slips your mind. Take advantage of this opportunity to get a free demonstration at our sole risk and expense. You will be simply amazed at the thoroughness with which the Vacuette cleans your rugs and carpets. You will be positively delighted at the ease with which you can turn drudgery into play. You will be absolutely astounded at the low cost of this peerless vacuum sweeper. Madam, you owe it to yourself to see the Vacuette. Don't put it off a moment. Phone or write—NOW!

SKIPPER OF RUM-RUNNING CRAFT HELD IN BONDS OF $500, AT NEW LONDON

New London, March 26.—The revenue cutter Seminole's crew did not make as big a haul of liquor as was anticipated last night, when the cutter put into port with four rum-runners, for this morning it developed that only one of the three craft had a cargo of liquor, although there was evidence of liquor having been aboard the other three boats, but the authorities were without sufficient evidence to warrant a conviction being obtained against the crews, of the other boats, so they were released.

The runner containing the liquor was the fishing boat 178-J, in charge of John Erlacher and Robert Barber, both of New London, and employes of the Babcock Printing Press Manufacturing company, of this city. Erlacher was held in bonds of $500 for his appearance at the next session of the United States district court when presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson of Norwich, at the custom house. He furnished a surety on his bond in Genaro Cambarebello, a large property owner on Shaw street. Barber was allowed his freedom as it was proven that the trip was his first and that he had not absented himself from his employment in seven months until yesterday.

The cargo of the craft comprised 75 cases of whiskey, mostly Scotch, and a quantity of alcohol. Erlacher declared that the cargo was destined to the highway bridge at Saybrook where it was to have been delivered to waiting automobiles. He further declared that he received $350 for each trip and that the boat belonged to a resident of Groton, of whose identity he claimed to be ignorant, stating that the boat had been loaned him by the owner last June. The boat is not listed in the federal registry, but the license number is such as would have been issued by the New London district if the registry is a bona fide one, and it probably is not.

The capture of the rum-runner was the result of the activities of revenue cutters for several weeks past in an endeavor to capture boats and crews receiving liquor cargoes from the numerous big craft that distribute the liquor off Block Island. Yesterday the Seminole, Tampa and Manhattan were all stationed along "rum row" awaiting craft receiving their cargoes. At the same time there were a number of rum-running boats awaiting an opportunity to avoid detection when the runners went alongside the bigger boats. During the day the Tampa received orders to proceed to Boston and the Manhattan received orders to go to New York. With the departure of the two cutters, Capt. Wheeler decided to put into operation a plan whereby some of the rum-runners would be apprehended. The Seminole came to New London harbor and remained the greater part of the day. During the afternoon the cutter headed for Block Island and while en route there the four rum-runners were sighted, headed in a westerly direction. The cutter put chase and finally overhauled the 178-J. When the crew boarded the craft the chase for the other three boats was started, but it was not until four shots had been fired that the other three boats came to a stop.

A search of the 189-J revealed a large quantity of liquor and the boat with the other three, one of them the Pacific, a New York boat, were taken into tow by the cutter and brought into port. Upon the arrival in port of the cutter and the four runners, the crews of each boat were taken aboard the cutter and held for the night, but this morning the evidence only warranted the presentation of Erlacher before Commissioner Mathewson.

The Groton fire department was called out this morning for a chimney fire in a residence on Chicago avenue. The fire was confined to the chimney, being extinguished with chemicals and without material damage.

State Highway Commissioner MacDonald was in New London today in conference for a brief time with City Manager William A. Holt for the purpose of discussing possible road construction work that the state contemplates during the coming summer.

The funeral of Mrs. Jennie Comstock Eaton, widow of Luther C. Eaton, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at her residence in Flanders. The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Collins, pastor of Flanders Baptist church. Burial was in Flanders cemetery.

A still alarm caused the Nameaug Engine company to be dispatched to the rear of the National Whaling Bank, on Bank street, this afternoon where decayed grass and brush was making a lively fire. The blaze, which undoubtedly started from a spark of a passing locomotive, was quickly extinguished with chemicals.

Benjamin Mysiyaski of Westerly, Wilfred Scott of Niantic, Mrs. George North of Fort Terry, Miss Blanche Cartier of Neptune avenue, Harold Gillian of West Colt street and Master Walter Scott of Niantic, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Following the reception yesterday by City Manager William A. Holt of the disapproval of the board of inquiry of his recommendation to discharge Sergeant of Police Charles Hammond, the city manager stated this afternoon that he had not moved further in the matter. The disposition of the case now rests entirely with the city manager and he has a choice of one of three decisions—to retain the officer in his present capacity, suspend him, or demotion. As the recommendation of the city manager was that Hammond's services be dispensed with, it is practically a certainty that the officer will be demoted.

One of the most disagreeable storms of the winter set in this afternoon—rain and snow—with a cold northeast wind, indicating that March, in this climate, can provide all sorts of weather. The weather sent the robins that had ventured out from their winter home in the brush at the rear of the town farm, back to their shelter.

Groton taxpayers and residents in general are seeking to secure a return to first principles and to have a full-fledged post office in that borough. A petition is in circulation asking Postmaster General New to give them a post office instead of a branch office that is managed from New London. In the olden days when Groton was a much less important town than it is now, there was a post office there and the postmaster was selected from among the residents of the town, but some influence was used to bring about a change and the office in the borough was put under the control of the New London postmaster. The receipts of the post office expanded so that New London postmaster received an increase in salary. Groton people are now of the opinion that the postmaster there should be selected from among the taxpayers and they are determined to secure measures that will give them what they desire.

Mrs. George Watson of New York, an annual summer resident at Eastern Point, has arrived in New London and has taken an apartment at the Hotel Mohican, where she will remain until she opens her summer home the latter part of April or early in may. Mrs. Watson is accompanied by her sister.

Mrs. Bartnicka and infant daughter of Cedar Grove avenue and Mrs. Nathan Elgart of Deep River, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their respective homes today.

A local grocer, who has operated two stores in this city many years, is in financial straits and it is among the possibilities that he will make an assignment within the next few days. The merchant is heavily indebted, so much so that a meeting of his creditors was held this afternoon for the purpose of determining whether to cause attachments to be levied upon the stores or whether to attempt to effect a settlement. It is understood that the merchant will be consulted tomorrow for the purpose of ascertaining whether he can settle upon the basis decided upon this afternoon. The merchant has liabilities it is claimed, of close to $35,000, and with but little assets.

Walter Krapowsky, a youth residing at 52 Summer street, complained to the police last night that his bicycle had been stolen. This evening he reported that he had located the bicycle and that it had been returned to him, having been taken by another youth.

Mrs. William Spurgen, 57 Federal street, sustained a fractured left ankle this evening when she slipped and fell on the tracks of the Connecticut company, at the corner of Main and State streets. The injury is of such a nature, together with the fact that Mrs. Spurgen weighs over 200 pounds, that she will be confined to her home for a long time.

Mrs. Spurgen was crossing the street. In stepping upon the rails, which were coated with snow, her heel caught, slipped from the track and became slightly wedged between the track and guard rail, causing her to be thrown and in such a manner as to produce the fracture. She was given assistance by pedestrians and removed to her home, where she was attended by Dr. F. M. Dunn, who reduced the fracture.

Patrolman Walter Rohn of Perry street who has been off duty several weeks as a result of a bone felon, is another officer who has been ordered to report for duty April 1st. Other officers who are on the disabled list other than Patrolman Timothy T. Sullivan, who has been ordered also to report for duty the first of next month are Sergeant Nelson Smith and Patrolman William Graham. Smith will probably be able to resume duty April 1st, but it is hardly probable that Graham's conditnon will allow him to go back to his beat on Montauk avenue.

SLAYER OF PRETTY MRS. BAUER STILL AT LARGE

New York, March 26.—The "man in brown" who last evening killed pretty Mrs. Maud Bauer and dumped her body from his automobile to a lonely roadside on Staten Island, almost within sight of her mother and two small children, was still at liberty tonight.

Police admitted that the man with the blood-stained hat—a widely-known resident of the island—whom they grilled for eight hours today, had an alibi that was impenetrable. A half dozen other men who, wearing brown fedoras and brown ulsters, had been seen driving sedans near the murder spot, were quizzed and released.

Neither the murder victim's mother and children, who saw Mrs. Bauer drive off with the man in brown, nor the two urchins who found her body a few minutes later, were able to identify the suspects.

Highway police in nearby states were called upon tonight to help apprehend the murderer. Detectives expressed the belief that he left the island on a ferry immediately after disposing of Mrs. Bauer's mutilated body and headed down into New Jersey or north toward New England.

Meanwhile, an autoopsy enabled the authorities to reconstruct the story of assault and battle within the little closed automobile, which cost Mrs. Bauer her life. With the evidence furnished by her mother, Mrs. Mary Piero, her two little granddaughters, and the youthful discoverers of the body, the story was:

Mrs. Bauer was driving with her children and Mrs. Piero just before dusk last evening, when their automobile stalled in the sand. Just then a car, driven by a man in a brown fedora and brown ulster, stopped beside them.

"We're going to the farmhouse, for some rope to pull us out," she called to her mother as she drove off with the man.

Authorities believe the couple had gone only a short distance from the stalled car when the man in brown began to make love to Mrs. Bauer. She, surprised, struck at him, and threatened to expose him and he frightened, drew a pistol and fired twice. One bullet went through the woman's neck. Another penetrated her abdomen, lodging near the spine where it was found today—the bullet of a 25 calibre automatic.

After pushing the body from the sedan, the murderer apparently turned his car around and sped past the still stranded Bauer machine.

The description of the murderer broadcast by the police tonight was of a man 30 to 35 years old, smooth shaven, dark, and wearing tortoise-rimmed glasses.

Walter Bauer, husband of the victim, was unable to furnish a clue to the slayer. The theory of robbery as a motive was abandoned when it was learned that Mrs. Bauer's rings, hey only valuables, had been found at her home today.

COMMITTEE HAS RECORDS OF "MELLON" COMPANIES

Washington, March 26—Tax records of the "Mellon companies" were brought today to the committee room of the special senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau, but the committee did not reach them during the session. Its time was occupied with Charles P. Brown, one of the group of appraisal engineers dismissed from the bureau last year. Brown recounted the circumstances of his dismissal, making charges of incompetency against his former chiefs, later also separated from the bureau. He declared specifically, however, that he had no knowledge of any graft or corruption within the bureau.

At the conclusion of the session, Brown said he would present the case of another "Mellon company," on which he had worked. He named the Allen P. Davis & Co., a Pittsburgh steel concern, but bureau officials who were present said this was not a Mellon company. It developed that information that Secretary Mellon was interested in this company came from the engineer who assisted him on tax appraisals. The case involved a reduction of the tentative estimates made by Brown and on which taxation was determined. The reduction was made, Brown declared, by a "clique" in the office of the reviewing engineers of the unit in the bureau.

Pressed by Senator Watson, republican, Indiana, to say whether he had knowledge of any influence on the part of Secretary Mellon, or anyone else to bring about a liberal construction in the case, he said he had not.

The Mellon companies books, which a letter from Secretary Mellon to the committee yesterday said would be made available, consisted of a large number of massive volumes which were not examined today in any way nor were the names of the companies whose tax records they contained put into the committee minutes. It was indicated that the committee tomorrow would take up an examination of these cases, in which previous witnesses have made general allegations that the tax payers were dealt with liberally by the bureau.

Connecticut Patents

Following is a list of patents issued by the United States patent office to citizens of Connecticut, as contained in the Official Gazette, dated Tuesday, March 11, 1924:

DIRECTED PLAINAIFF VERDICT IN NOTE CASE TRIAL

Judge C. L. Avery in the superior court at New London Wednesday afternoon directed a verdict for the plaintiff in the trial of the suit of Attorney Marion R. Davis and Arthur T. Keefe against Jacob Solomon, all of New London. Damages of $6,000 were sought by the plaintiffs, they alleged that they were forced to pay a note of $6,000 that had been endosed by them after having been endorsed by the defendant. The note was one of the Shalett Dyeing and Cleaning Co., payable to the defendant, and was dated April 14, 1921. Before the bank would discount it, however, it demanded three endorsements.

The note was not paid and went to protest, and eventually Davis and Marion were obliged to settle the obligation with the bank. According to their complaint, they made demand upon Solomon for reimbursement but were never paid.

Court adjourned without day after concluding the trial of this case.

Eighth Birthday Celebrated

The eighth birthday of Newton Wilbur, son of Commaudant and Mrs. E. W. Wilbur of the Salvation Army, was pleasantly observed Tuesday at his home on Cliff street. The boy was born in this city when Commandant and Mrs. Wilbur were stationed here on their first assignment to have charge of the Norwich field.

Inquiry For Court Record

Police Chief Gerald Linton has received an inquiry from the Stamford police department as to the court record of John Foster, formerly of this city, whom the Stamford police have under arrest on the charge of indecent assault upon a female child. The man was arrested here last fall upon a similar charge concerning a child in Montville.

Motor Vehicle Office Hours.

In order to accommodate the many persons who are seeking registrations from April 1 on, the New London office of the state motor vehicle department will be open from 8 a. m. until 5 p. m. week-days and from 8 o'clock to 4.30 p. m. on Saturdays. These hours will go into effect today (Thursday) and will continue until further notice.

Has He Found a Cure for Asthma?

In New England, where bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other diseases of the throat and lungs are so prevalent, remarkably successful results are being reported following the use of a new form of treatment known as Oxidine, a physician's prescription.

Oxidine is a harmless but powerful combination of curative essential oils concentrated and compressed into a small tablet. One of these tablets slowly dissolved before going to bed seems to have the effect of releasing the muscular constriction of the bronchial tubes, opening up the air passages and regulating spasmodic lung action. This enables the patient to breathe easily and naturally while lying down and to get a comfortable night's sleep.

So much interest has been shown that local druggists, including Lee & Osgood Co., have secured a small supply and state that they are authorized to refund the money paid for the first package if in any case this new treatment fails to give relief. Oxidine is pleasant to take, contains no harmful habit-forming drugs and is not expensive. This makes their test an easy matter.

Hair Your Envy

I offer you what brought it
By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is the envy of thousands who see it, on the stage and elsewhere. It is heavy, silky, lustrous—far finer than 40 years ago. I have never had falling hair or dandruff, never a touch of gray. Yet mine is a grandmother's age.

I owe this to a formula which French experts made for me. I have supplied it to many friends. It has brought to them what it brought to me—luxuriant heads of hair. Now, by countless requests, I am placing this formula within every woman's reach. Men are also welcome to it.

Use an eye dropper

I call this formula my Hair Youth. One applies it with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. Apply just enough to dampen the scalp. This takes but a minute and it does not muss the hair.

It attacks the hardened oil and dandruff, which stifle the hair roots. It cleans the scalp; stimulates and fertilizes. Then hair flourishes as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden.

Hair troubles come from stifled hair roots. Gray hair comes from lack of pigment. The way to prevent these troubles, to make hair thrive, is to cultivate the scalp. The best ways science knows to do that are embodied in Hair Youth.

Worth a fortune

My Hair Youth has been worth a fortune to me. My hair is now, and always has been, my chief glory. I have so many friends who obtained like results, that I count this formula a boon which all should have. So I have placed it at every woman's call.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Hair Youth is now supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. Price 50c and $1, with eye dropper. They also supply my Youth Cream. Also my Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. Also my White Youth Clay—the last word in facial clay. My Beauty Book comes with each.

See what my Hair Youth does for your hair. You will be delighted. Then I think you will want the other helps which did so much for me. Edna Wallace Hopper, 500 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

VERDICT FOR $2,000 IN SHOOTING CASE

A verdict for $2,000 was returned in favor of John Kelley, in his suit against Lester C. Fowler, and William Taylor, all of New London, by the jury which has been hearing the case with Judge Christopher L. Avery presiding, in the superior court at New London for the past week. Kelley sued for $10,000.

Attorney Morris Lubchansky opened the arguments for the plaintiff and associate counsel, Frank L. McGuire closed. Attorneys John C. Geary and Arthur T. Keefe argued for the defendant. The jury was out 45 minutes.

Kelley claimed that Fowler or Taylor, or both, had shot him in a cornfield on Chester street, on the night of Aug. 30, 1930, while he, with several companions, were taking a short cut to Clarke lane. Fowler and Taylor, it is alleged, had gone to the vicinity looking for some of the gang that had molested the former and a young lady friend several nights previous, and had taken Kelley and his companions for this gang.

COUNTY COMMISSIONERS DECIDE FOR TREE OWNERS

First Selectman J. A. Vargas of Stonington has received the decision of County Commissioner Bradford, Fellows and Smith in the appeal taken from the finding of the tree wardens at a recent hearing. As a result of the decision the 16 trees in Water street, removal of which was asked because of the necessary work of constructing the new road bed of the street, will be allowed to remain standing.

BULKELEY DEBATERS WILL MEET WATERBURY TRIO

New London, March 26.—On Friday evening of this week Bulkeley high school will debate Crosby high school at Waterbury. The subject for debate is Resolved "That the Phillipines Islands shall receive immediate independence". Bulkeley will have the negative.

Bulkeley will be represented by experianced Varsity debaters. The first speaker will be Edward Henkle, a junior, the second, Abraham Watchinsky, a junior, and the third Freeman Elder, a senior. Because of their previous experience these boys are recognized as a formidable forensic trio and promise to give a good account of themselves. So far this year Bulkeley has confined herself to inter-class debates and the Crosby debate is the first inter-scholastic of the season.

The team will leave for Waterbury Friday morning, in addition to the three speakers previously mentioned, the Bulkeley delegation will comprise, Arthur Shugrue, business manager of the debation team, Thomas Elder the alternate and Mathew J. Denner coach of the debating squad.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR.

New York, March 26.—Stock prices moved irregularly lower in today's relatively dull session. Considerable readjustment of speculative accounts resulted in a confused movement of prices, special weakness cropping out in American Can, which was hammered down more than 5 points, and in the tobacco issues.

News developments during the day were varied in character. The fall of the Poincare ministry passed practically unnoticed in the foreign exchange market, French francs holding firm around yesterday's closing prices. Stiffer call money rates, which reached 5 1-2 per cent., contributed somewhat to the day's selling.

Steel shares held relatively firm on reports of the weekly trade reviews that production was still at a high rate. Some concern was expressed, however, over the decline in automobile output and the inclination of some of the independent companies to shade prices. U. S. Steel common closed unchanged at 8 1-2.

Speculative interest in the market was practically monopolized by American Can, transactions in which exceeded 125,000 shares, or about 20 per cent. of the day's total business.

Can touched 104 3-8, only 1-4 above the year's low, on selling attributed largely to professional traders.

Stability of the railroad shares was in marked contrast to the unsettlement in the industrial list. Strong buying support for the rails was based, in part, on the unusually favorable nature of most of the February earnings statements now making their appearance. The first 15 roads to report show net of $14,528,000, compared with $21,403,000 in January and $10,690,000 in February 1923.

Norfolk and Western, which recently reported February gross earnings of $7,630,000, an increase of $1,024,000 over the same month last year, was again in good demand, touching 129 1-2 and then slipping back to 128 1-8, up 3-4 on the day. Southern Pacific reacted only fractionally but enough to establish a new 1924 low at 85 1-2.

Two score industrial issues created new minimum prices for the year including Chandler motors, Mack truck, Bosch magneto, American agricultural chemical, Cerro De Pasco, Lima locomotive, Tobacco products A., Schulte, Phillip Morris, Marine Pref., American sugar refining, U. S. alcohol, Texas company and Producers and Refiners.

Studebaker, which has been under pressure for the last week, rallied a point. Motor accessory shares were in supply on reports of reduced sales. Speculative uncertainty over 1924 earnings was a factor in the selling of the tobaccos.

Call money opened at 4 per cent. and successively advanced to 4 1-2, 5 and 5 1-2, where it closed. Time money rates also were a shade firmer, offerings by banks at 4 1-4 per cent. having practically been eliminated. The prevailing rate on time loans is 4 1-2 per cent. Commercial paper rates were unchanged, prime names commanding 4 3-4 per cent.

Steadiness of the foreign exchange market in the face of the resignation of the French cabinet was construed here as indicating that no change in French fiscal policy is expected in European financial centers. Demand sterling ruled around $4.39 7-8 and French francs around 5.40 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 26.—Brisk activity in the St. Paul railroad issues, most of which attained new high levels for the year, featured today's bond market prices generally held firm with trading quieting down on the stiffening of money rates.

Buying of the St. Paul obligations apparently was predicated on the increase in February earnings. The month's showing was considered exceptionally favorable, with a gain of approximately $800,000 in net income over the same month last year to $1,373,021. Eclipsing the high record set on a previous spurt which followed reports that arrangements for refunding maturities due next year had been completed, the 4s of 1925 advanced 3 points to a new peak price for the year at 86. The convertible 4 1-2s and 5s and the refunding 4 1-2s, debenture 4s and general 4s also made similar gains to new high ground.

In the cross currents which marked dealings on other sections of the list, high grade rail and public utility liens showed conspicuous strength, while profit taking depressed speculative rail, traction and copper company issues.

New bond issues which were offered today found a ready sale, indicating that the recent dearth of new financing has increased the abortive capacity of the market.

The largest piece of individual corporation financing in the local market since the floatation of the Japanese loan will be the sale tomorrow of $35,000,000 Western Electric 25-year 5 per cent. gold debentures at 94 1-2 to yield about 5.35 per cent. Proceeds of the sale will be used to finance expansions.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 26.—Sudden upsetting of grain prices in the last half hour of the board of trade session today followed reports that New England was importing supplies of oats from Canada, duty paid. Wheat closed unsettled, a shade to 3-8 @ 1-2c net lower, May 101 1-2 to 1.01 1-2 @ 5-8 and July 1.01 1-4 to 1.02 1-4 @ 3-8, with corn unchanged to 1-4c off, and oats at 1-4c to 5-8 @ 3-4c down. Provisions the outcome ranged from 10c decline to 5c gain.

Until near the end of the day, wheat as well as other cereals had shown pronounced strength that in a measure appeared to result from news of the dissolution of the Poincare ministry in France. Leading traders here expressed the view that a different policy toward Germany on the part of France might be looked for, and that European demand would be broadened for wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley from this side of the Atlantic. The fact that liquidating sales which of late were burdening the wheat market had come to a halt, tended further to lift prices. Moreover, steady commission house buying throughout the greater part of the day encouraged some belief that perhaps a decided advance was at hand.

When the oats market gave symptoms of something like collapse however, numerous wheat traders quickly made a change of front.

Selling out of wheat purchased earlier was only effected, though, by the wiping away of all the gains and of little more besides.

Oats dropped more than a cent from the day's top prices. It was current talk that Canadian oats were being freely offered all over New England on a lower basis than oats could be sold for from here. Corn sympathized, although steadied by adverse weather.

Provisions were easier owing to hog market declines.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 26.—Trading in today's curb market was extremely quiet and uninteresting with prices failing to establish a definite trend.

Most of the active oil shares showed only fractional changes at the close. Prairie Oil and Gas, up 1, being one of the few exceptions. Creole syndicate, the most active issue closed unchanged at 3 5-8. Other South American oils were steady.

Motors were again heavy on further reports of decreased sales, Jordan dropping 1 point to 26 1-2 on the eve of its transfer to the "big board." Ford Motors of Canada dropped 10 points to 460 on one odd sale. Gillette Safety Razor moved up 2 1-2 points and Lehigh Power securities improved fractionally on fairly active trading. Trading started in Fairbanks Morse and company, stock at 28 and lower.

It takes a man with strong will power to listen to a reason when he is angry.

POETRY

The March Wind

The March wind is a blustering lad
From morn to eve, I find,
When first I rise and look about
And when I go to bed.

He whistles in the chimney flue
And through the key hole roars
And sometimes he comes down to play
With doors and windows, too.

On wash-days when the clothes are out
All pinned and hung so neatly,
He bids upon them with a shout,
And fills them up completely.

Around the laundry yard he tears,
With twist and turn and antic,
While all the things that come in pairs
Perform a ballet frantic.

And when night falls and heavy sleep
On every lid is hanging,
In through a crevice he will creep
To set some door a banging.

"Burglars," the startled housewife cries
And burrows 'neath the pillows,
While far afield the March wind flies
And laughs among the willows.

—Nellie Shephard, in Town Topics

Does the Pearl Know?

Does the pearl know, that in its shade and sheen,
The dreamy rose and tender, wavering green,
Are like the hearts of all the longing race,
That Beauty wears for gifts as rare as these?
Does it desire, sweet else when the rare blush
Reflects Aurora in the morning's hush,
Encircling all perfection can bestow,
Does the pearl know?

Does the bird know, when through the waking dawn,
He soaring sees below the silvered lawn
And weary men who wait to watch the day
Steal o'er the heights where he may wheel and stray?
Can he concalve his fee divine to share,
As free, joyous peer with sun and air,
Does the bird know?

Does the heart know, when filled to utter brim,
The least quick throb, a sacrificial hymn
To a great God who scorns the frown of Jove,
That here it finds the awful power of love?
Think you the new-born babe in first wise sleep
Fathoms the gift the heavens have made him keep?
Yet if this be—if all things are so—
Does the least know?

—Helen Hay

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"Did he borrow any money off of you?"

"Borrow! How can I tell unless he returns it?"—Boston Transcript.

Teacher: "Why are you looking at your watch so often, Johnny?"

Johnny: "I was afraid you would not have time to finish your interesting lecture." (College of the Pacific Weekly.)

Will Washington ever be dull and uninteresting again?—Boston Globe.

Perhaps not. But it may some day be cleaner and more fragrant.—Brockton Enterprise.

Walter found his mama talking to a very stout woman. "Walter," said his mother, "that is your great aunt."

"Yes," said Walter, grinning at her ample proportions, "She looks it."—Toronto Telegram.

"No, mam," was the reply, "dese eyewin's am plenty long enough as it is."—Everybodys Magazine.

"He lost all his money in a wild cat mining scheme," we stated.

"Why—mercy—!" replied the fair young thing. "I didn't known they them with books.—Kansas City Star. they caught them with hooks."—Kansas City Star.

A Boston man, whose early opportunities had been limited, after accumulating a fortune, took to reading, and began with Shakespeare. When he had finished the "book" he remarked:

"That is what I call a clever book; I do not believe there are a dozen men in Boston who could have written that book."—The Outlook.

Marie: "Mother, would you give me a nickel for a man that is crying in the street?"

Mother: "Why certainly. How thoughtful of you to want to help him. What's the matter with the poor fellow?"

Marie: "Oh, he's out there crying popcorn and peanuts five cents!"—Exchange.

KALEIDOSCOPE

The first woman barrister in Paris, Mlle. Marsi-Louise Moreau, has just received the Legion of Honor.

Glass mirrors backed with tin, which were used in the days of Pompey, have been found in Italy.

Celery culture in Nevada is a success, according to growers, who say that they can raise three cars to the acre.

Shipping returns from Hong-Kong last year showed that $60,000 worth of men's elastic bands were delivered in the colony.

More than 11,000,000 liquor prescriptions were filled in the United States and Hawaii last year.

Joseph R. Harker, president of Illinois Women's College, never went to college until he was a member of the college faculty.

Raising cane suitable for making saxophone reads is a new industry proposed for certain small areas in the United States, where the climate is suitable.

Mrs. Hettie Matthews, of Granby, Vt., has completed 48 consecutive years as postmistress in that town. Her first commission was signed six days after James A. Garfield was inaugurated president.

An analysis of the gases dissolved in underground water may give a clew as to whether or not the soil through which it has seeped contains oil. If it traverses an oil sand or one containing natural gas it will dissolve out a proportion of the hydrocarbons of which the oil or gas is composed. When the water is then exposed to the air at the surface, the vapors will be driven off and their place taken by air. The vapors can then be analyzed. The United States bureau of mines has devised a portable apparatus which may be used for this purpose.

LEGAL NOTICES

Pursuant to a judgment of the Superior Court for Windham County dated February 18, 1924, in the case of Fina Alberstad vs August Alberstad, to me directed as a committee to sell the following real estate as a whole at public auction on the premises to the highest bidder on April 15, 1924, at seven o'clock in the forenoon, I will sell at said time and place by public auction to the highest bidder the following described real estate situated in the Town of Canterbury, County of Windham, State of Connecticut.

One certain farm or two tracts of land with all the buildings thereon standing situated on the North Society road so-called, in said Canterbury, containing about 113 acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:

First tract, bounded east by land of Anne E. Dawson and land of Horace G. Crawford, south by land of Edward Baker, Axel Larson, west by land of Anne E. Dawson, north by land of Horace G. Crawford, land of William Hill, land of Anne E. Dawson. This tract is divided by the above mentioned highway.

Second Tract, the woodlot containing about 13 acres located south from the North Society road, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by land of Horace G. Crawford and land of the Town of Canterbury, easterly by land of Fidison and Carpenter, land of said Town of Canterbury and said Crawford, westerly by land of Hart W. Goff, land of Abbie Safford, northerly by stone wall dividing on land of said Crawford and said Edison and said Carpenter, said premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated March 24, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records BK. 33, Page 285. Also another tract of land in said Canterbury bounded and described as follows: On the south side of the highway leading from the dwelling house of Frank K. Miller to North Society and known as the Pallet lot. Beginning at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by heirs of Hestus Hyde and following said highway westerly about 28 rods to the northwest corner of said lot, thence southerly by fence or wall about 27 rods to the southwest corner, thence east by north by land formerly owned by Lake Knight to land of said Hestus Hyde heirs, about 28 rods, thence north by east by said Hyde's land to place of beginning, containing three acres more or less, being the same premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated July 10, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records Bk. 36, Page 23.

Excepting from said three described tracts a tract of land containing about 1 3-4 acres deeded by the Plaintiff and Defendant to Horace G. Crawford October 20, 1919, recorded Canterbury Land Records: Bk 36, Page 30, said tract described as follows: One certain piece or parcel of land situated in Canterbury on the highway leading from Frank Miller's dwelling house to North Society School House, bounded and described as follows; North by land of Horace G. Crawford about 140 feet from northwest corner to stake and stones near gap in wall about 250 feet abutting on the west by land of said Alberstads, thence east to stake and stones at said highway about 280 feet, bounded south by land of said Alberstads, thence north on the west side of said highway to land of said Crawford about 350 feet bounded easterly by said highway, containing about 1 3-4 acres more or less.

Terms to be stated at time of sale.
CLINTON E. FRINK,
Committee appointed by the Superior Court.

DIVORCES AND SUPPORT SUIT BROUGHT IN SUPERIOR COURT

Three suits for divorce and one for support and maintenance were among new cases for the superior court, returnable in April, which were filed here Wednesday at the office of Clerk George E. Parsons. They are the following:

Clara Dombroski Swanson of Norwich is the petitioner for a divorce from Morris P. Swanson of North Stonington whom she married April 11, 1922, and charges with intolerable cruelty since Jan. 1, 1923. She asks alimony and the custody of a son, aged 14 months.

On the ground of infidelity between Jan. 31, 1924, and March 1, 1924, and of intolerable cruelty since May 1, 1923, Edna Viola Spellar of Norwich has brought suit for divorce from Cecil L. Spellar, alias John L. Spellar of Norwich. They were married April 3, 1921. As the petitioner is a minor, she brings the suit through her father Henry J. Kendall of Lisbon, and she asks alimony, the custody of a 10 months old son and change of name to Edna Viola Kendall.

Gladys I. Foster of East Greenwich who married John F. Foster, of Norwich seeks divorce from him on two counts, the first alleging intolerable cruelty between Nov. 1, 1921, and May 1, 1923, and the second that Foster pleaded guilty on Sept. 6, 1923 in the superior court to an infamous crime involving a violation of conjugal duty and punishment by imprisonment in state prison.

The couple was married March 4, 1919, and have three children, aged 4 years, 20 months and five months, of whom the mother asks custody. She also asks for change of name to Gladys I. Johnston.

Damages of $7,000 are sought in a suit for support brought by Blanche Lajeunesse of this city against her husband, Theophile Lajeunesse, also of Norwich. They were married in Norwich June 24, 1913 and have five children, ranging in age from 7 years to 6 months.

It is alleged in the complaint that the husband has for a long time been habitually intemperate, that he has falsely accused his wife, of improper relations with men, has threatened to kill himself, has ordered the plaintiff from his home, and that she has been forced to leave his home on several occasions, and is at present living away from the home with her children, having been ordered out by her husband. It is further alleged that he refuses to provide suitable support for his wife and children and that he owns real estate to the value of $7,000 and has an income of $75 a week from his business.

The plaintiff asks that the court order the defendant to provide suitable support for his wife and children and that a portion of the defendant's property be placed in the hands of a trustee in trust to ensure such support. She also asks that the custody of the children be assigned to her.

BOYNTON SCORED HIGH IN WEST SIDE PINOCHLE

High score Wednesday night in the play of the West Side Pinochle club was won by Boynton with a score of 8180. He was closely followed by Haskell with 8125. As a result of their high scores Boynton jumped from twelfth to seventh place and Haskell went from eighth to fifth place. Schuler with 7935 went into second place less than a 1,000 points behind Pettis who continued to maintain his lead.

The scores for the evening were: Boynton, 8180; Haskell, 8125; Bailey, 7970; Schuler 7935; Pettis 7345; I. Jordan 7080; Parker 6920; Pendleton 6875; Underwood 6530; Lewis 6510; A. Jordan 6020.

Standings to date are as follows: Pettis $8,635; Shuler, $7,740; Parker, $7,660; Bailey, $7,010; Haskell, $6,850; J. Jordan, $5,980; Boynton, $5,915; A. Jordan, $5,895; Lewis, $5,395; Underwood, $5,190; Peckham, $5,140; Pendleton, $4,810.

Next week the club will play on Monday evening. P. Harwood substituted for J. Jordan Wednesday night.

FINE AND JAIL SENTENCE FOR LIQUOR VIOLATION

On the testimony of two witnesses that they had bought drinks of liquor Tuesday at the place kept by Frank Levanto at 26 Water street, Levanto was fined $200 and given a 15 day jail sentence and was given the same fine and jail sentence on the charge of keeping with intent to sell when he was presented in the city court Wednesday morning before Deputy Judge H. H. Pettis. The arrest was made by Officers Smith, Morgan and O'Neil. Levanto appealed and had a bond of $1,000 furnished for him by Luigi Lalima.

Acting on a lead given by the testimony of the witnesses on the Levanto case, the same officers arrested Thomas Dipolite and John Belloni at 38 Market street after court adjourned. Lalima gave bonds of $1,000 for each of them to appear in court this (Thursday) morning.

PRETTY BENEFIT TEA FOR MISSIONS DEPARTMENT

A pretty benefit tea for the talent money fund of the Missions department of the United Congregational church was given at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Edwin W. Higgins, 130 Union street, by Mrs. Charles T. Bard, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. H. M. Leron and Mrs. Higgins. Pussy willows, forsythia, jonquils and tulips were used in the attractive floral decorations and serving at the tables were Mrs. F. S. Camp, Mrs. B. P. Bishop, Miss Nancy Lucas and Mrs. Frederick W. Lester.

During the afternoon good reports were made of the sales of tickets for the organ and song recital that is to be given.

PRELIMINARY PLANS FOR HOSPITAL NURSES' HOME

Preliminary plans for the new nurses' home at the William W. Backus hospital have now reached the stage where they are to be submitted to the corporators, executive committee, of the advisory board and physicians and surgeons of the staff for examination, criticism and suggestions at a meeting at the hospital this (Thursday) afternoon at 4 o'clock. It is expected that Dr. S. S. Goldwater of New York, consulting architect, and Arthur M. Thompson, local architect, will be present to explain the plans.

On Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock the plans are to be submitted to the hospital staff, graduate and pupil nurses. Invitations to the inspection of the plans have been sent out by the special building committee, W. S. Allis, F. L. Woodard and S. B. Palmer.

Passes State Examination

Miss Lillian T. Ring of 211 North Main street learned Tuesday evening that she had successfully passed the examinations of the state board of nurses and had received her appointment as a registered nurse. Miss Ring is a graduate of the class of 1923, St. Joseph's Hospital Nurses Training School of Willimantic.

TELLS ROTARIANS WORLD NEEDS HUMAN TRUST

One of the most interesting talks given at the Rotary club was the one on Wednesday at the noonday meeting at the Wauregan house by Dr. Robert E. Speer of New York city, who is conducting a series of addresses in this city under the auspices of the Y. M. C. A. Dr. Speer's topic was "Human Trust" in which he graphically outlined the urgent need of keeping our faith in our fellowman, politically, economically and spiritually. Dr. Speer who was introduced by Shepard B. Palmer, and who in the course of his work with the Presbyterian church has traveled widely, said in part:

"Two years ago at this time I found myself with several others in Persia on our way home from the Asiatic countries where we had been making a study of conditions. It was necessary that we cross Russia to Constantinople but before we could do this we had to have permission to enter Russia. We secured this permission and crossed the Transcaucasia section of southeastern Russia, thence across the Black Sea and then into Constantinople. Transcaucasia was a thriving little province a number of years ago but when we went through it was a horrible example of political and economic ruin. This territory had been Sovietized and was under the control of Moscow. I can remember when it was teeming with business life, factories working, commerce pouring in and life and property fully protected. That is all changed now, not a wheel is moving in the factories, commerce is dead and it is a scene of utter desolation.

"It is an easy thing for a country to dissipate in a short period of a few years what it has taken 300 years to build up. These people did not realize what they did. But it can be seen what danger it is to trifle with things that have taken a long time to build. There was a lack of one of the greatest powers of progress—human trust. When there is an absence of human trust ruin eventually follows. We in the United States seem to take this human trust for granted but if we should lose it what would happen? We can see what it has done in European countries. In India you will remember that some time ago 1,200,000,000 rupees disappeared. They had been hoarded and hidden by the people who would not trust one another. India faced a financial crisis all because of a lack of human trust. Take China as an example. China is rich in natural resources; there is plenty of labor but no capital. Why? Because these Chinese lack human trust. If these people could only be made to trust each other China could become one of the most powerful nations of the earth.

"In comparison take our own country. We have large business enterprises, large stock companies in which multitudes hold stock and place their money in other people's hands with trust. So with us it is capital plus human trust that makes this nation one of the world powers. When a financial panic comes, our resources, money and everything is still here, but the human trust, that great power is gone. There is great peril in losing this trust and we must be careful or we will destroy it if we keep on in unthinking ways. We have only to look at Russia to see what would happen to us if we should lose the faith in fellowman. Human trust is a great power of stabilization of government and should this be undermined the government will totter and fall. We wonder if there is anything to destroy our trust in our political leaders, financial leaders and others. There are large numbers who would stifle free speech and our freedom in general. There is one author in particular who in her novels is preaching autocratic ideas.

"Another thing that we must get back to is the simple and frugal life of our forefathers. Of course we do not need to deprive ourselves of comforts of modern times but we must conserve our resources. In tips to waiters, attendants, etc., the people give away enough to support large numbers of people in other countries. In New York alone there is thrown into the garbage cans enough to feed a like population over across. Our timberlands are devastated by fires, our plains are uncultivated, all wastefulness that could be prevented. This squandering wastefulness of the American people must stop or what will the generations to come have? No nation ever starved from poverty, it was wealth and sin that caused the downfall.

"Our religious ideals must not be undermined. They must be preserved through the embodiment in our own life of these ideals. We have a greater inheritance than we know. We must get away from the old debtors' prison idea which was economic imbecility and all must work. Our one great business should be to scrutinize our inheritances, tear out the evil and leave the good to pass on to the generations that will follow."

At the conclusion of his talk which was heard with rapt attention Dr. Speer was given a rising vote of appreciation. President Saxton complimented Dr. Speer on his talk and then went on to thank the members and officers of the Rotary club for their hearty support during his term as president of the club which terminates next week, Wednesday's meeting being the last meeting of the fiscal year.

During the luncheon William G. Park was song leader and a number of the new songs were tried. There were selections by a trio and quartette selections by the various members of the club. Ladies Night was discussed and several announcements made regarding the affair which will be held on April 23rd.

The meeting closed with the singing of the Star Spangled Banner.

REV. EARL KERNAHAN TO COME TO NEW LONDON

Rev. A. Earl Kernahan of Boston, whose method of visitation evangelism was employed by the Norwich churches in a week in February while Mr. Kernahan was here, has just finished a campaign in Omaha, Neb., where he has assisted pastors in securing 840 new members to the church in seven days. In the campaign here over 400 decisions to join the church were recorded.

Dr. Kernahan leaves Omaha immediately for Rochester, N. Y., for a city-wide campaign of the Methodist Episcopal churches. He is also to direct a city-wide campaign of all the Protestant churches in New London, Conn., after which he will return to Des Moines, Iowa, for a two week city-wide Methodist campaign. Before leaving Omaha, Dr. Kernahan said he thought that 5,000 persons would be won there to Christ and the church with this new campaign.

"We have won 4,677 folks to Christ and the church since summer by this new method of evangelism," said Dr. Kernahan.

WATERBURY CIVIL ENGINEER PETITIONER FOR DIVORCE

Application by Civil Engineer Charles H. Preston, Jr., of Waterbury, formerly of this city, for a divorce has been filed in the superior court in Waterbury, and the case is returnable the first Tuesday of April.

Mr. Preston, who was a commissioner of the board of works under Mayor Sandland's administration, asks for a decree on the ground of desertion. The petition sets forth the fact that he married Elfis Harris at Norwich on Nov. 25, 1903, and that they have two children. He alleges desertion since 1918.

ADMIRAL LANMAN PAPERS DISCOVERED BY DAUGHTERS

In its Fifty Years Ago column several weeks since, The Bulletin had a notice of the imposing funeral services held for Admiral Joseph Lanman. Admiral Lanman's home was on Church street and in its time was one of the pretentious residences of "Norwich Landing."

Recently his daughters, Mrs. Blanche Lanman Carr, wife of Rear Admiral Clarence A. Carr, now residing on Montauk avenue, New London, and Mrs. Rosalie Richards, wife of Charles C. Richards, of Chicago, came across certain family papers bearing intimately upon the career of Admiral Lanman. These papers The Bulletin will reproduce before they are given into the custody of some patriotic or historical society of this state.

First in order comes the following letter:

Senator Lanman's Recommendation.

Senate D.

Washington, March 13th, 1852.

Hon. Samuel Southard, Secretary of the Navy U. S.

Sir: I take the liberty to request that you will receive upon your list of Midshipmen in the Navy, Joseph Lanman, a young son of Mr. Peter Lanman, lately a very respectable merchant in Connecticut.

He (the father) in consequence of being a large ship owner when the embargo and war occurred, suffered extremely in his fortune.

This son is a youth of good talents, morals, manners and appearance in his person, and of great zeal and ambition for a naval life.

I believe it will be found that in my section of the country we have hardly our share of youth on the Midshipmen List.

I am, Sir, with the greatest esteem, Sir, your obedient Servant.

(Signed) JAMES LANMAN
U. S. Senator from Conn., 1819-26.

From Father to Son.

Written by Peter Lanman to His Son, Joseph Lanman.

New York, April 22nd, 1824.

My dear Son:

As you are this day to leave me & commence new and arduous duties in life I cannot let you part without a word of advice in relation to the course which you ought to pursue in order to honour your profession, gain the love of your Countrymen & establish for yourself a character which shall live after your Mortal body is consigned to the dust. In the Old world there is still remaining so much of the relics of the Feudal system that it often happens that men in the Government—in the Church—in the army & in the Navy, are advanced to honours through the influence of the Family or Wealth which they never would have attained but for these aids; this is not the case in our Country and in looking at the Characters who have been most honoured in these States we shall find that they have made themselves.

You are now a Midshipman—your first attention is of course directed to the knowledge of your Duty, in that capacity—if you succeed in your primary character and on examination satisfactory evidence is given of your fitness for promotion & are advanced you will without doubt find it much easier to fill the next grade of duty than that to which you are now appointed—prompt obedience to the lawful commands of your superiors will be expected of you as a matter of course and as your Moral character will have a great influence with the Government, should it ever happen that a vacancy is to be filled by only one of any number of Officers of equal rank & merit in other respects. The best Moral character will have the advantage of his competitors—profane language or irreverence of the Deity is now wholly exploded among Gentlemen in civil life and so far as I am acquainted I understand that it is not practiced among the Officers either in the Navy or the Army. There is, however, a much higher & more important consideration which ought to govern you in relation to that subject and it is your duty to your God & religion—should you fall in Battle or be cut off by disease in a foreign clime—it would lessen the weight of grief and heart rending sorrow of your Parents were they to hear that although you had distinguished yourself as a Brave officer—you had also sustained a more important character—that of a good & moral Man. In your last visit at the home of your friend Mr. L. he told you that in all his intercourse with the world & he had often met with Flotspers he had never had occasion to have a hard word with any man—and this has undoubtedly arisen from his having early in life adopted for his moral government the precepts of the Gospel of our Saviour.

In a late speech in Congress the Hon. Mr. Everett declared that there was not a man in existence against whom he had an unkind feeling. This sentiment in Everett's point of view, is worth more than all his other honours. Christian Nations with the exception of Spain, South America & Mexico are now at Peace but the History of the World will not justify the expectation that there will not be before many years shall have elapsed collisions of some sort that shall eventuate in War, to which the U. States shall be a party. Should this be the case you will never suffer yourself to harbour individual enmity against the subjects with whom you may be engaged. Duty of course will call you to Battle & when the victory is gained make the vanquished your friends, by that humane and generous treatment which gained for our Officers in the late War as much honour as they acquired in being victorious in Battle.

Be courteous to all. Be to your Superior Officers attentive—never appearing negligent in your dress or Deportment—have very few intimates—review what you studied last year & remember that it is much easier to acquire theoretical knowledge necessary to the profession now than at a future day. Bear in mind, my Son the importance of being qualified to pass—and that too without limping in your gait.

Remember and write when you get to Norfolk & again when you Embark. Keep your journal in a fair hand & do not fail to correct your orthography—careless manner in spelling may be pardoned in a Napoleon but not in you.

We love you sincerely & I am
Your Affectionate Parent

RETIREMENT OF DAUGHERTY AGAIN UNDER CONSIDERATION

Piling Up of Charges Against the Attorney General is Embarassing the Administration—Delaying Current Business of the Depratment of Justice—Two Conferences Were Held by President Coolidge and Mr. Daugherty Yesterday.

Washington, March 27.—Retirement of Attorney General Daugherty from the Coolidge cabinet has again been brought under serious consideration and indications today point to developments in the near future.

President Coolidge has almost, if not entirely, come to agreement with many of his closest advisers that with charges piling up daily against Mr. Daugherty's administration of the department of justice, continuance of the attorney general in office is more of a load than any administration justly can be called upon to bear.

Inquiries made by the president are understood to have failed to convince him that the current business of the department is being administrated with the expedition the country has a right to demand. This circumstance is believed to have weighed more heavily with Mr. Coolidge than any other factor.

Two conferences held by the president with his attorney general yesterday are understood to have been devoted largely to a consideration of this subject and to have brought the matter nearer to a head than it ever has been before.

At one time during the day the message went over the mysterious wireless which warns those in the official know of big things about to happen, that President Coolidge was rapidly approaching a definite decision on whether he would keep the attorney general in the cabinet and that it would be announced publicly.

Preparations for the issue of a statement were under way at the White House and also at the department of justice. Then Secretary Hughes had a conference with President Harding and the prospects of an announcement disappeared. The attorney general also dismissed his preparations for making a statement and went home where he denied himself to inquiries.

The word went out that there would be "nothing doing tonight." None of those close to either the president or the attorney general would commit themselves by statement as to what tomorrow or the next day might bring forth.

President Coolidge is known to have had the situation surrounding Mr. Daugherty's tenure of office much in mind for nearly a week after a lapse in attention given it because of a feeling that the attorney general should be given an opportunity for a hearing before the senate committee investigating his conduct of the department of justice. With each day of testimony before the senate committee the demand that the president's request Mr. Daugherty to resign has grown more insistent. It has come from some of the president's closest friends and advisers and has been supplemented by numerous letter received in numbers at the White House.

The president having considered both sides of the question held two conferences yesterday with Mr. Daugherty the first meetings outside of the formal cabinet sessions that he has had with the attorney general since that official returned to Washington from Florida about three weeks ago. What went on in those two conferences was not disclosed. The public statement was made that "departmental matters" were considered but intimations came from authoritative sources both yesterday and today that the "departmental matters" concerned primarily the matter of continuance in office of the head of the justice department.

Inquiries made by the president prior to his meeting with the attorney general were understood to have failed to convince the executive that the business of the department was being transacted with the efficiency and dispatch that the country had a right to expect.

Reports had been received by the president that the uncertainties produced by the senate investigation together with the inquiry's succession of sensational statements regarding departmental affairs had hampered work and in some cases demoralized the efficiency of the employes.

Mr. Coolidge, regarding this a matter requiring consideration apart from any findings of the senate committee, is understood to have asked Mr. Daugherty many questions about the progress of departmental business during yesterday's conferences.

The conferences apparently did not satisfy the president and accordingly increasing evidences appeared today of the approach of the separation of Mr. Daugherty and the attorney generalship.

Mr. Daugherty has declared repeatedly he would never resign under fire. The situation accordingly has resolved itself once more into a question of whether President Coolidge will demand his resignation. Indications today were that the executive was nearer to that point than he ever had been before.

ROXIE STINSON HAS COMPLETED HER TESTIMONY

Washington, March 27.—Roxie Stinson, divorced wife of Jess W. Smith, practically wound up her testimony today before the Daugherty investigating committee, but not until she had provided the occasion for another row between the committee and the attorney general's counsel.

Former President Harding's name was again brought to the edge of the inquiry but the committee disclaimed any intention of letting it get in. Attorney General Daugherty's counsel, seeking to develop her story that Smith had told her five men in Washington made $33,000,000 in an oil stock deal insisted on knowing who the men were.

"My impression is that she will name the president of the United States," former Senator Chamberlain, one of Mr. DaDugherty's attorneys exclaimed, amidst the turmoil when the committee stopped the pressing of the question. Miss Stinson left the stand without answering.

"We are not going to walk into your trap," shouted Senator Ashurst, democrat, Arizona, to the attorney general's counsel. "You would like very much to have us be charged with impeaching the name of someone dead, but we are not going to walk into your trap."

Meanwhile the attorney general's contingence in the cabinet again became the subject of speculation throughout official Washington.

Further proceedings of the inquiry committee brought out a qualified refusal from the attorney general to allow the committee's agents access to his department's files for "a general fishing expedition;" additional testimony concerning prosecutions of war-time frauds in aircraft with the possible passage of bribe money to "block" their continuance. The day was concluded with Chairman Brookhart preparing to appeal to President Coolidge for the files the attorney general was refusing.

Senator Wheeler, democrat, Montana, was back to direct the taking of testimony when Miss Stinson was recalled today.

Paul Howland, one of Mr. Daugherty's lawyers, ended a short cross-examination by citing her testimony of the previous day, to the effect that Jess Smith told her that "five men" had made $33,000,000 in a few days in a deal in Sinclair oil stocks. He directed her to give the names. The examination stopped while Former Senator Chamberlain, assisting Mr. Howland, Senator Wheeler and Senator Ashurst, and Chairman Brookhart took part in a bitter wrangle as to what Miss Stinson had said, and as to what she should be allowed to say.

The committee ruled, Chairman Brookhart said, that her statement of the names would not be pertinent to the inquiry, and as Senator Wheeler charged Senator Chamberlain with misrepresentation, the latter warned him to "be careful," and spoke of "senatorial immunity," which Senator Wheeler offered to waive. Senator Chamberlain then made his statement as to what he expected her answer would be.

"MELLON COMPANY" RECORDS HELD BY OIL COMMITTEE

Washington, March 27.—Tax records of the Gulf Oil corporation, a "Mellon company," practically are impounded today by the special senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau. The committee's action allowed testimony to the effect that the corporation had been allowed "excess depletion" reductions in the settlement of its cases for 1917-1919, made in February, 1923, and by which it was credited with "net excess payments," for the three years of $8,775,000.

Senator Couzens, republican, Michigan, whose resolution brought about the investigation, obtained from A. C. Ensel, Cleveland, Ohio, accountant whose firm worked up the consolidated returns for the Gulf group companies, a statement that the "excess depletion allowances" had been granted by the bureau in the 1921 Gulf settlement.

Turning to S. M. Greenadge, a bureau official, Senator Couzens was told that Secretary Mellon did not approve the treasury regulation granting "excess allowance," on oil well depletion until 1922. Greenadge said he knew of no other case in which this allowance had been granted prior to the 1922 approval and added that the regulations effective in 1921 were to the contrary. The question was long under debate in the bureau before a decision to grant lessee depletion was arrived at, he said.

"The Gulf oil knew it in 1921 but the public didn't know of it until 1923," Senator Couzens said. "How is the public to know if the regulation isn't published until a year after the allowance was granted to a particular corporation."

Greenadge said the great majority of oil concerns knew the question was up and delayed settlements until the ruling was handed down. Solicitor Nelson T. Harrison of the bureau interrupted to point out that when it was published, taxpayers had the opportunity to have their cases re-opened and collect refunds based on the ruling.

"I want to know what that allowance meant to the Gulf people in dollars and cents," Senator Couzens declared.

Harrison said it would take time to produce the figure as it involved search of the individual accounts of Gulf subsidiaries.

At this point Senator Couzens suggested that the committee impound the Gulf records in custody of the sergeant-at-arms. Harrison objected. Questioning the legal right of the bureau to surrended possession. After a brief executive session, the committee solved the problem by putting Harrison and Greenadge under oath as custodians of the records until the committee resumes its work Monday.

CONDITION OF LAFOLLETTE REPORTED COMFORTABLE

Washington, March 27—Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, who is ill at his home here with pneumonia, was said by Dr. C. C. Marbury, the attending physician, to have had a very comfortable day.

A bulletin issued this morning after a consultation of physicians announcing that Senator LaFollette was suffering with pneumonia was a shock to his friends who had been expecting his early return to his congressional duties. The apprehension aroused among those who knew that for three weeks he had been unable to throw off what was considered a bronchial cold was not allayed by the announcement in the bulletin that the physicians considered his present condition as satisfactory.

SON SUMMONED TO BEDSIDE OF SENATOR LAFOLLETTE

Madison, Wis., March 27—Phillip LaFollette, son of Senator R. M. LaFollette, left Madison this morning for Washington having been summoned to the bedside of the senator, who is reported to be ill with pneumonia. Other members of Senator LaFollette's family are in Washington.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

POINCARE HAS CONSENTED TO RESUME PREMIERSHIP

Paris, March 27—Mr. Poincare, despite the fact he is finding the work of setting up a new government harder than he expected and has therefore been unable to complete it, informed President Millerand this evening that he accepted the task of resuming the premiership and constructing a ministry.

After a morning of fair sailign, M. Poincare this afternoon grappled with the big difficulties of organizing his cabinet to fit the new political situation resulting from the chamber's attitude on the pension bills and to accord wih the policy of economies for which he had fought so hard for several weeks in the chamber and senate. His conclusion after the day's negotiations as expressed to the newspaper men, was: "it is going to be long."

This is as far as the premier has committed himself regarding his actual plans. From his negotiations with members of parliament, however, the impression has developed that he is going to inaugurate in the formation of his cabinet the economies he has promised the country. He has in view, it is understood, a reduction of the ministries to seven or thereabouts and the suppression of most of the under-secretaries of state.

It is believed that M. Poincare has decided to consolidate the ministries of agriculture and commerce under the name of the ministry of economy, and to combine the ministries of labor and hygiene, the under secretaryships of merchant marine and aviation to be attached to the ministry of national defense.

The radical party, which eliminated M. Serraut, minister of colonies because he supported M. Poincare's tax measures, and expelled other deputies who voted for the government, is up in arms against the suggestion that Maunoury be replaced in the interior department, on account of the strong influence the holder of that portfolio is able to exercise in the elections. As the radicals are expected to vote against any Poincare cabinet it is thought likely that the premier may disregard its protest.

NO CLUE TO MURDERED OF MRS. MABEL BAUER

New York, March 27—Baffled by the failure to catch "the man in brown" who last Wednesday murdered pretty Mrs. Mabel Bauer in the suburb Chelsea, Staten Island, detectives tonight renewed their faith in the story of a 14-year-old schoolgirl and spread their dragnet again.

The girl insisted that the man into whose sedan Mrs. Bauer climbed a few minutes before her corpse was thrown out upon a lonely roadside was an insurance agent. She had seen the couple drive away from the stranded automobile in which Mrs. Bauer's mother and two children waited while the young wife went with "the man in brown" to fetch aid.

"I saw his face and recognized it, and his brown hat and coat," the girl told detectives. "He was the insurance man. He often came to houses in our neighborhood."

Although authorities already had quizzed several Staten Island insurance men in a vain attempt to shatter the girl's alibi, they tackled this last clue again. The dragnet was thrown over every agency, and orders were issued that all insurance solicitors who owned sedans resembling the murder car be brought to headquarters.

The spur of a $1,000 reward for information which would lead to the slayer was added by a New York newspaper, and John A. Lynch, president of the borough of Richmond, announced he would ask the city tomorrow to offer an even greater sum.

Accepting the police theory that Mrs. Bauer was the victim of a maniac moron, Borough President Lynch also demanded that Staten Island police immediately round up all "lounge lizards, motor car shicks and curb crushers," on the ground that such persons, "with the brains of fiends and the manners of Princes Charming" were a menace to girls and young women.

The mystery of the identity of "the man in brown" was only deepened today by the few promising leads that cropped up and then, as detectives ran them down, fell flat.

JOHNSON WINS PRIMARY IN SOUTH DAKOTA

Sioux Falls, S. Dak., March 27—Senator Hiram Johnson of California, won the republican residential endorsement in Tuesday's primary in South Dakota on the face of unofficial returns compiled here by several newspapers.

With only 146 scattered precincts missing in twenty two counties, the unofficial tabulations gave Johnson a lead of 1,745 over President Coolidge in returns available tonight.

The 1,684 precincts reported and compile dhere, gave the Californian senator 40,243 votes and the president 38,500.

Most of the returns are semi-official as they are taken from the records county auditors are preparing for the state canvassing board.

Based on these unofficial returns, the president would have to carry the unreported precincts nearly five to four to overcome Johnson's lead if the volume of votes in unreported precincts averages the same as in the last 300 precincts to report.

In the 22 incomplete counties, Johnson leads in nine with thirty precincts missing, while Coolidge has the advantage in 13 with 116 precinct unreported. In those counties, 601 precincts have reported.

Taken as a group, returns in those twenty two counties gives Coolidge a lead of 1,472, Johnson polling 11,235 to the president's 12,707. This means an average majority of less than 2.6 votes in precincts for Coolidge in the incomplete counties to date.

If this average majority for the president in maintained in the 146 outstanding precincts, the final unofficial figures would trim Johnson's majority to less than 1,400. These mathematics would indicate the unreported vote will not total 3,000.

Johnson led in twenty seven of the counties that have reported complete returns and Coolidge led in fifteen.

GUILTY OF GRAND LARCENY FOR SALE OF "GOLD STOCK"

New York, March 27—Dr. Jacob E. Conner, American consul to Leningrad, Russia, from 1909 to 1914, V. Cherniak, I. Sidorkin, and K. Shevchenko of Philadelphia, today were found guilty by a jury in general session court of grand larceny in connection with sale of stock in property in Yonkers which, they claimed, contained rich gold-bearing ore, sentence will be imposed April 8.

When the jury returned its verdict after one hour of deliberation, Cherniak fainted. Dr. Conner swore violently at the juryman and had to be quieted by attendants.

Senators Favor the House Bonus Bill

Washington, March 27.—Renewing their program of day and night sessions the senate finance committee today practically cleared up the many administrative provisions of the revenue bill. The schedules of excise and miscellaneous taxes, most of which were revised by the house, are to be taken up immediately.

Meanwhile democratic members of the committee spent another afternoon in an unsuccessful effort to reach an agreement on the income tax schedule which they will offer as a substitute for the Mellon rates voted into the bill by the finance committee.

The surtax rates proved the stumbling block. Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, presented a schedule which it is understood followed the general lines of the Garner plan supported by house democrats with a revision of the brackets and a reduction of the maximum rate to about 40 per cent.

Before taking up the revenue bill today the committee heard army and navy officers on the soldier bonus bill passed by the house, with a view to determining the number of veterans who would be eligible for the insurance provision and the average length of service of the veterans.

While representatives of the navy and marine corps said their records would be able to show the figures needed, army officers explained considerable work would be required to lay the foundation for administration of the proposed bill.

As a result, Chairman Smoot declared, costs of administration of the measure would amount to "millions of dollars."

Quick action on the bonus measure is expected when it is formally presented to the committee, republicans indicating today there was a general disposition among their group to favor the bill passed by the house against the modified insurance plan advanced by Chairman Smoot. The latter calls for policies payable only at death rather than of 20 years endowment as in the house bill and would cut put the borrowing privilege on the policies allowed by the house. Democrats are expected to stand for a full cash payment option.

Democrats at their meeting this afternoon also discussed the calling of a party caucus to bind members as was done by the house democrats on the Garner plan. No conclusion was reached, however.

While members of the finance committee prepared to work out their own estimates as to the cost of the proposed bonus bill in the light of the dispute between government actuaries involving a difference in estimates of more than $2,500,000,000, Chairman Green of the house ways and means committee, issued a statement charging "a deliberate effort to misrepresent the cost of the soldier bonus bill."

Mr. Green declared the estimate of Herbert Hess, American legion actuary, that the bill would cost $3,800,000,000 was misrepresented by a committee spokesman for Mr. Hess. He declared the figures of Mr. Hess conformed to those of H. P. Brown, Veterans' bureau actuary, that the insurance would cost $2,050,000,000 and the estate of $3,300,000,000 was put forward by Mr. Hess as the cost of the bill if the payments on the policies were not amortized. "were all deferred until the end of the insurance period. Joseph McCoy, treasury actuary, estimated the bill would cost $4,850,000,000.

HARTFORD COMPANY INSURES PEACH CROP

Hartford, March 27—Confirmation was given today from the home office here of an insurance company which issues automobile insurance of reports from the south that it had insured the peach crop of growers represented in the Georgia Peach Growers Exchange. Weather, crop transportation and fire hazards are covered.

10,000 Persons at Public Consistory

Rome, March 27.—(By the A. P.)—The final ceremonies of elevating Archbishop Mundelein of Chicago and Archbishop Hayes of New York to membership in the highest council of the Holy Roman Catholic church took place this morning in the right transept of the Basilica of St. Peters, when Pope Pius gave to them their broad-brimmed red silk hats, symbolic of their new rank of Cardinals.

The ceremonies were resplendent with medieval pageantry. Fully ten thousand persons attended the function. Americans formed a great majority of the throng. Many persons, unable to obtain admission to the actual scene of the conferent of the red hats, jammed the spacious aisle vieing to obtain at least a fleeting glimpse of the pontiff as he was borne in the sedia gestatoria to and from the specially erected throne.

This morning's solemn investiture of the red hat was merely a time honpiece being used for both the Amerored custom, the same symbolic headican prelates. The red hats which they actually will take back across seas with them were given them late this afternoon by special papal Emissaries during semipublic ceremonies. Those for Cardinal Mundelein were held at the college of the propaganda and those for Cardinal Hayes at the American college. The red hats never are actually worn. But will be taken back by the prelates and suspended by golden wires over high altars in their respective cathedrals, there to remain until the death of the cardinals, when they will be ceremoniously taken down and placed over their tombs.

The public consistory of this morning was followed by a secret consistory at which Pope Pius placed on the fingers of the new Amrelcan members of the sacred college their large sapphire rings and performed the centuries old ceremony, known as the closing and opening of the mouths of the cardinals, and also formally assigned to them their titular churches, since each member of the college of cardinals must be ipso facto pastors of some roman catholic church.

Cardinal Mundelein's titular church will be Santa Marcia Del Popolo and that of Cardinal Hayes the church of Santa Maria in Via Lata both of which are rich in medieval traditions. Henceforth Cardinal Mundelein's full title will be, "George Williams, of title Santa Maria Del Popolo, Cardinal Mundelein, Archbishop of Chicago," and that of Cardinal Hayes "Patrick Joseph of title Santa Maria in Via Lata, Cardinal Hayes, Archbishop of New York".

Shortly after the ceremonies today had ended, Pope Pius gave to the Associated Press through Cardinal Gasparri Papal Secretary of state, the following statement":

"The Holy Father; in rising two eminent members of the American hierarchy to the dignity of the cardinalate, has had in mind not only the personal merits of the new cardinals but also the generous activities of the great American people on behalf of the suffering peoples of the world thus promoting a spirit of peace and fraternal good will among the nations".

SUBPOENAES FOR PERSONS ON BOOTTLEGGERS' LIST

Hartford, March 27—Subpoenaes were issued by State's Att'y Hugh M. Alcorn late today for some thirty persons whose names were found on a list in the possession of Harry Bliss and Donald Seigel, alleged bootlegger delivery agents, arrested here on Monday and who have been called "society bootleggers." Both Bliss and Seigel, who belong in Providence, R. I., will appear in court tomorrow for a hearing on charges of violation of the state liquor laws.

The list is said to include names of some of Hartford best known people, doctors, lawyers, merchants and well-to-do retired residents of the city.

REPRESENTATIVE LANGLEY INDICTED IN LIQUOR CASE WITH SIX OTHER MEN

All Charged With Conspiracy in Illegal Withdrawal and Transportation of Liquor

Washington, March 27.—Indictments charging Representative John W. Langley, republican, Kentucky, Millard F. West, a former deputy commissioner of internal revenue, and four others with conspiracy to interfere with the operations of the government were returned here today by a federal grand jury.

Langley alone was named in one indictment. Another was against him, West, Russell M. Sackett, a prohibition agent in Pennsylvania; Hen L. Moses and Harry Sattler, co-partners trading as the Union Drug company of Pittsburgh, and Sidney Reis, described as a procurer of liquors in large quantities.

The conspiracy section of the criminal code prescribes punishment of not more than two years' imprisonment, or a fine of not more than $10,000, or both.

Langley, who is chairman of the house public buildings and grounds committee, is serving his ninth term in congress. He is said to have been one of the "two members of congress" referred to in the report of the Chicago grand jury which investigated alleged veterans' bureau frauds as having been charged in testimony with accepting bribes for improper use of official influence.

On the floor of the house Langley and Representative Zihlman, republican, Maryland, recently declared they had unofficial information that the Chicago grand jury's report was directed at them. Both protested their innocence of any wrongdoing and demanded immediate investigation of the charges. No mention of Zihlman was made in today's grand jury report.

Referred, however, was made in the report to John W. Kramer, former prohibition commissioner. Elias H. Mortimer, star witness before the Chicago grand jury, Arthur McKean, Ralph E. Clepper, Herman Geltzeiler and Donald J. Delancy. All six, the grand jury charged, were involved in the conspiracy but were not indicted because they testified before it.

The indictments charged that the accused men and othgrs conspired to pay $100,000 to Mortimer, Geltzeiler and Delancy to secure the purchase, withdrawal and transportation by Moses and Sattler of whiskey from a distillery warehouse to the Union Drug company. Of the $100,000, it was charged that $5,000 was to have been paid Langley to prevail upon him to induce Kramer, West, McKean, who at the time was prohibition agent at Pittsburgh, Clepper and Sackett, "by promise to them of official tenure and promotion, to connive" at the removal and transportation of the liquor. Four overt acts, beginning in April 1921, were set forth.

The joint indictment also alleged that the six accused men combined to defraud the federal government of the $4.20 a gallon internal revenue tax due on liquor sold for beverage purposes and "corruptly" to defeat the internal revenue laws and the federal prohibition act.

The indictment sets forth that Langley and Mortimer met at the house office building, April 15, 1921; that Langley met West in the internal revenue commissioner's office on May 4, 1921; that West and Mortimer, two days later, met in the same office; that on the following day Langley and West conferred with Kramer and Mortimer and caused Kramer to write a letter to McKean authorizing withdrawal of 4,000 cases of whiskey from the Penwick Distilling company's warehouses at Chedwick, Penn., and that on May 20, 1921, Langley and Mortimer caused the liquor to be transported to the Union Drug company's place of business.

AL. JENNINGS' "WHALE OF A STORY" PROVED TO BE "FISHY"

Narrative That Would Incriminate Late President Harding, Harry M. Daugherty and Will M. Hays, Consisted of Alleged Quotations of Man Now Dead, the Late Jake Jake Hamon, Who at the Time Was the Republican National Committeeman From Oklahoma—Had Nothing to Substantiate His Tale of Corruption at the Republican National Convention in Chicago in 1920.

Washington, March 27.—Al Jennings, once a famous train roober and now a California real estate dealer, related today before the oil committee one of the most unusual tales congressional investigators have ever heard.

It revolved around a $1,000,000 payment which he said he had been told figured in the republican national convention at Chicago, in 1920. He said his only information, however, had come from the late Jake Hamon, who at the time was the republican national committeeman from Oklahoma.

In a Chicago hotel room during the convention, the witness said, Hamon told him that the nomination of Harding would cost him $1,000,000; that he (Hamon) had "put up," $250,000 of this sum to the late Senator Penrose, of Pennsylvania $25,000 to Harry M. Daugherty; $25,000 to Will H. Hays, the chairman of the republican national committee, and another $35,000 to a fourth man from Ohio named Manning, or something similar.

Besides he quoted Hamon as saying, "Money was used indiscriminately with the Oklahoma delegation and it cost him like hell to get the New York delegation." Jennings said he could not recall that he had been told of any other individual payments of money.

It also was a part of the story that Daugherty, Hays and others had agreed to make Hamon secretary of the interior; that Hamon was to take over what the democratic admiaistration had left of the public lands and that Hamon expected to make a great deal of money out of them, and then get himself elected as the next president.

Hamon was quoted as saying that Daugherty at first had wanted Albert B. Fall as secretary of the interior, but that he had "put it all over him," on that proposition. Asked as to the correctness of Hamon's expectations, Jennings replied that of course they were not fulfilled as he had not lived. Hamon was shot and killed by Clara Smith Hamon late in 1920.

Jennings was on the stand less than half an hour and was subjected to only a brief cross examination. Senator Spencer, republican, Missouri, brought out in which instance of their names were mentioned that Harding, Penrose and Hamon are dead.

Immediately after Jennings was excused, Senator Walsh, the committee prosecutor, and Senator Spencer, who only recently was appointed to the committee, got into a row which promises many new developments both within the committee and on the floor of the senate.

Declaring it was the duty of the committee to investigate Senator Walsh demanded that Senator Spencer furnish the information on which he had based a statement in a New York last night that "as to the oil leases the situation was exactly duplicated under the late Secretary Payne." After a sharp exchange, the Missouri senator declared he would wait until his information was complete and then I will bring it out in due form."

Later in the day Senator Spencer laid the ground work for an inquiry along other lines, causing subpoenas to be issued for George White, former chairman of the democratic national committee; Wilbur Marsh, ex-former treasurer; Edward L. Doheny and John Walsh, brother of Senator Walsh, and a Washington lawyer. The subpoenaes for White and Marsh are returnable next Monday, and those for Doheny and Walsh on April 3.

Through the former democratic committee officials Senator Spencer will go into democratic campaign contributions in 1920, but the reasons for summoning the other witnesses remained obscure. Senator Spencer characterized as "improper," a question as to why Senator Walsh's brother had been summoned.

After the subpoena was issued Senator Walsh stated that he was well known his brother had been under investigation for two months or more. He previously had stated that a full investigation of both himself and his brother was courted.

MISS DENNIS FINED $25 FOR FORTUNE TELLING

New York, March 27.—Miss Eugenie Dennis, 38 year old clairvoyant of Atchison, Kan., whose psychic powers have been demonstrated to scientific societies and high police officials here within the last two months, was fined $25 in magistrate's court today on a charge of fortune telling preferred by Mrs. M. A. Foley of Astoria. Mrs. Mary Dennis, the girl's mother, was fined $25 on a similar charge.

Mrs. Foley alleged that Miss Dennis, at a seance, told her that her missing son could be found in California. Subsequently, the complaint asserted, the boy returned home and told his mother he had never been in that state.

Magistrates last week found that the girl and Mrs. Dennis had violated a section of the criminal code relating to fortune telling.

Miss Dennis paid both fines.

In imposing the fines Magistrate Rytlenberg said the girl was a victim of circumstances in having been brought here to be exploited for commercial purposes. He said he was also taking into consideration the fact that Police Captain John Ayers, of the missing persons bureau, was on hand in court to testify, the girl had aided the police in work of locating missing persons.

"However, under the law I may impose a fine of $200 or a jail sentence of six months and if you come back before me again I shall impose a jail sentence," said the magistrate.

SLEW HIS BROTHER FOR VIOLATING GREEK TRADITION

New York, March 27—Violation by her husband Thomas Gevelos, of Long Island City, of what she said was an ancient Greek tradition forbidding a younger brother to marry before his seniors, caused him to be attacked by his elder brother James whom he murdered in self defense, Mrs. Gevelos declared in police court today.

Defying the tradition, Mrs. Gevelos said, she and her husband were wed in Greenwich, Conn., last October. As a result, according to Gevelos, he quarreled with his elder brother and decided to dissolve their artnership in a laundry business.

Discussing dissolution of the partnership last night, Gevelos said, the marriage came up again, his brother slashed at him with a knife, and, in self defense, he parried with another knife and cut his brother's throat.

To satisfy another tradition, Gevelos told the police that he took from his brothers' throat a cup of blood which the ancient custom dictated was to be sprinkled over the grave of a slain man, while a prayer for forgiveness was intoned. The trail of blood, which he left when he ran away with the cup last night enabled a policeman to follow and capture him, he said.

THREE ARMY AVIATORS KILLED IN HONOLULU

Honolulu, March 27—(By the A. P.)—Three army aviators were killed today and one injured when a Martin bomber airplane, taking off at Luke field, struck an air pocket, crashed to the earth and burst into flames.

The dead:

First Lieutenant W. G. Moore.

First Lieutenant Oscar Bonthan.

Private Jetsinger.

Private Torres and Private Baltice, were injured seriously.

The officers and Private Baltice were members of the twenty-third bombardment squadron; Jetsinger was a member of the sixth pursuit squadron; Private Torres is a member of the 65th service squadron.

MEXICO TO IMMEDIATELY PAY INTEREST ON BONDS

New York, March 27.—First disbursements of interest upon funds deposited under the Mexican debt readjustment plan will be made immediately. Thomas W. Lamont, of J. P. Morgan & Company, chairman of the international committee of bankers on Mexico, announced tonight. More than 90 per cent of all bonds covered in the agreement, Mr. Lamont said, had been deposited with the committee.

Inauguration of interest payments brings to an end a long period of delay and minor controversies which followed the signing of the agreement in the summer of 1922 with Adolfo De La Huerta, then finance minister and now leader of the rebellion against the Obregon government. A court action by the Oliver Trading company to attach funds of the Mexican government in New York hindered consummation of the plan.

Distribution of interest, covering full service for 1923, will be made first on six issues of bonds which are ready for re-delivery to depositors. These are the state of Vera Cruz 6s, Pan-American Railroad company general mortgage and first mortgage 5s, Mexican Central Railway 4 per cent equipment notes and two issues of the National Railways of Mexico 6 per cent secured gold notes. It is expected that cash disbursements will on other issues covered by the agreement can be made in the near future. Redelivery of these bonds will be made as soon as possible.

NEW HAVEN ROAD SHOWS INCREASE IN EARNINGS

New Haven, March 27—An increase in operating revenues of the New York New Have nand Hartford railroad amounting to $411,000 for the month of February as compared to the same month last year, was shown in an official statement issued today for the combined months of January and February, this year, the increase recalled. $812,000.

These figures are offset by the increased expenses for February, 1924, over the same month last year of $531,000 and an increase for January and February this year over last year of $1,884,000. Most of the increase is credited to transportation.

The operating income [illegible] crease of over $2,000,000 [illegible] uary-February period [illegible] net income deficit increased [illegible] as compared with the [illegible] first two months of last year.

THREE MEN INDICTED FOR COUNTERFEITING

Washington, March 27—Charged with conspiracy to make counterfeit thousand dollar federal reserve bank bills, three men were indicted here today by the federal grand jury.

One was James C. Haughton, for twenty seven years an employe of the bureau of engraving and printing. The others were Curt Jacobsen of New York, and August C. Hablett, a local engraver.

Secret service men captured the counterfeit plate and some sheets in process of making.

WILLIMANTIC

NORWICH BULLETIN
31 Church St. Telephone 1062

The common council is to hold a special meeting this (Friday) evening on a call issued by Mayor Hermisdas Dion, to dispose of the highly important question of how the city ice supply will be sold this year. The water committee has let the sale of the city ice by contract in the past, this action being taken without the sanction of the entire board as a body. Under the plans of the present administration, however, the whole board will confer on the matter. One of the outstanding reasons for this procedure is the cost of the plant at the pumping station pond, which was rebuilt after the fire last August, which has amounted to several thousands of dollars, along with the extra expense of harvesting the ice crop this winter.

At the meeting of the council, the exact figures will be made known and the board will then formulate some plan for the sale of ice in the future years so as to bring in a revenue in excess of the ordinary expenses.

Many of the taxpayers will look with amazement at the total expenses for this year; but now that the plant is in excellent condition and everything is running smoothly, the water committee, Alderman William A. Buck, Pierre S. Laramee and Charles H. Beebe believe that this part of the city's business can be conducted to show a yearly balance on the ledger.

At the meeting this evening the council will determine whether the city ice will be sold entire, at once, at a moderate figure, over and above the actual cost of harvesting, or if the contents of one house at a time will be sold.

The old plan of selling the ice to a contractor who paid for the ice as it was taken away from the plant, has never been favored by most of the tax payers and will undoubtedly not be repeated this year.

Instances have been pointed out where the contractor who bought up the city ice had ice of his own which he disposed of first, with the result that the city ice was not put on the market until quite late in the summer.

Some five or six housand tons of ice have been harvested at the municipal plant. With close to twenty thousand tons of ice harvested by independent dealers, the ice committee is of the opinion that Willimantic will have an ample supply of ice this summer.

The water committee is to be instructed tonight to advertise for bids for the sale of ice at the best possible terms for the city.

Drs. Carleton and Williams, humane agents of Hartford, swooped down in to Colchester Wednesday afternoon and made unexpected calls at a number of farms and slaughter houses, including that of Elias Glaubinger, who was fined in police court here over a week ago for cruelty to animals.

At the Daniel Goldberg farm, a pig was found suffering from a broken leg which had been neglected and another pig was in a most pitiful condition.

Goldberg was brought before Justice of the Peace William T. Curry in Lebanon Wednesday night and fined five dollars and costs on a charge of cruelty to animals. Justice Curry also imposed a thirty day jail sentence which was later suspended when Goldberg gave his promise that he would be more careful in the future and have more regard for his animals.

Colchester's long awaited fire engine has at last arrived in town and was on a flat car on the railroad siding waiting to be unloaded Thursday. The apparatus is a Reo combination chemical pumper and is expected to prove of much value to the town in which many disastrous fires have occurred in past years, gaining considerable headway in many instances through the lack of proper fire-fighting equipment.

It was necessary to levy an additional twelve mill tax to that of twenty-one mills already laid by the town and borough, making a total of forty-three mills which the property owners must pay this year in order to have the new fire truck.

The Tolland County Older Girls' Conference is to be held in the Congregational church at South Coventry today (Friday) and Saturday. A fine program has been prepared in anticipation that the attendance will be large. Girls from 15 to 21 years are to form the conference. Following is the program for today (Friday): Theme, The Girl in Her Church and Community. 3.00 p. m., registration; 4.00 p. m. get-together, games, etc.; 6.00 p. m., banquet, toastmistress, Miss Josephine Pregue; 7.00 p. m., opening devotions, Mrs. Arthur Vinton; 7.15 p. m. business and announcements; 7.30 p. m., evening worship, open to the public; 7.45 p. m., address, "Opportunities the Church Should Offer Youth", Rev. A. Avery Gates of Hampton.

The case of Mrs. Josephine Marino, arrested March 14, after she had struck and seriously injured, Mrs. William Hassig, while driving an automobile near Winchester Corner, Winsted, will come before Judge Frank W. Seymour in the Winsted town court, this (Friday) morning. Mrs. Marino will be charged with reckless driving. She is at present at liberty under bonds of $1,500. The car which the accused was driving is being held at Vita's garage. William Hassig, husband of the injured woman has instituted a suit against Mrs. Marino for $15,000.

An inter-city racing circuit in this part of the state has not become a possibility. The circuit will be formed of six cities, including Willimantic, if the project is put through. Interests in Hartford and Chicopee, with endorsement of the plan from the East are looking with favor on such an organization and hope to see a course built in this city at an early date. Representatives were in this city some time ago and inspected proposed sites at Herbert T. Clark's property at The Ridges and the Merrill H. Jones farm on the Windham Road. Should one of these places be converted into a race track and a local organization formed there is but little doubt that Willimantic would realize that opportunity is knocking at the door and within short notice enough financial backing would be secured to place this city back on the map as a horse-racing center.

The other cities in the proposed circuit would be Woonsocket, R. I., Springfield, Mass., Hartford, Rockville and Stafford. Woonsocket, Rockville and Stafford have half-mile tracks and the half mile track at the Charter Oak Park, Hartford is to be put into condition again.

Officers for the year were elected as follows at the meeting of Willimantic Lodge, No. 1440 Loyal Order of Moose, held at the Al-Pierre Tabarin: Dictator, Thomas Moran; vice dictator, L. E. Thompson; prelate, Raymond Dodge; treasurer, Albert J. Fiche; trustee for three years term, Thomas J. English; delegates to the national convention to be held in New York City in July, Clifford C. Smith; alternate, Pierre J. Laramee. The officers will be installed at the next regular meeting of the lodge on April 9. The eleventh anniversary of the institution of the lodge will be observed October 26. The following committee was appointed to carry out the arrangements: Albert J. Fiche, Joseph Bosse and Thomas Moran.

Information was received here on Thursday that about forty members of the American Thread Athletic association from the William Clark Mills, Westerly, R. I., will come to this city with their teams for the return bowling matches with the local threadmakers, Saturday afternoon. The visitors from Little Rhody will be given a royal reception.

The delegation will arrive at the Elms about 3.30 o'clock. The matches will start about three o'clock at the Wood Alleys. After hostilities the team and guests will attend a banquet at The Elms where their opponents will be hosts. The members of the two associations will then enjoy a dance at Washburn Hall, the Lyric Dance Orchestra playing.

Music lovers from this city and surrounding towns attended the concert by the Burnham River Quartet at the Congregational church in Mansfield Wednesday evening. Among those from here were: Mr. and Mrs. Robert H. Fenton, Mr. and Mrs. Harold C. Lincoln, Mr. and Mrs. Russell W. Potter, Mrs. Charles F. Riesdorf, Mrs. E. O. Sumner, Mrs. Fred D. Jordan and Miss Myrtle Jordan.

Captain Carroll Bryant of the American Red Cross Life Saving corps came to this city Thursday from Washington, D. C., and has made arrangements to give a free demonstration at the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool this (Friday) afternoon at four o'clock for men and boys. Captain Bryant was in Norwich Wednesday. Friday evening he will appear in South Manchester.

Peach growers stated that the snow storm Wednesday will not hurt the prospects of the coming season's crop, but will actually prove a help. It was said that the recent warm spell had served to force peach buds but that the snow would retard their growth probably enough so that they would not be developed sufficiently to be effected by frosts later on.

Archibald W. Buchanan of Mansfield Center, agent for the state board of education was at the common council chamber Thursday forenoon and gave the required tests to six children between 14 and 16 who wished to secure employment certificates.

Twenty or more applicants called on State Policeman Henry Heinold of the Five M Stafford Springs barracks at the police station Thursday to make applications for motor vehicle drivers licenses.

Today's Willimantic advertisements are all interesting as usual. To read them carefully means money-saving for shoppers.

A. J. MARTINEAU IN UNDERTAKING BUSINESS 12 YEARS

Through an error, it was stated in giving the history of The Martineau-Bacon Co. Inc., last week that Mr. Martineau, the President and Manager, had started in the undertaking business in July, 1923. The year should have been 1913. At that time he was employed by the J. C. Lincoln Furniture Company. In 1916 he removed to the present location of the firm at 31 Union street where he established his furniture and undertaking business.

LEONARD BRIDGE

Relatives, friends and former neighbors joined in sending a shower of congratulatory messages to Mr. and Mrs. Dwight Spaulding of East Norwalk, former residents here, in honor of their golden wedding anniversary, March 18. A letter was received this week by Mrs. David Walsh from Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding, acknowledging the congratulations. Their anniversary was very quietly spent, as Mrs. Spaulding was recovering from a severe attack of grip and Mr. Spaulding having a hard cold. However they enjoyed reading the messages which came during the day by mail, over forty being received from Florida, California, Missouri, New London, Norwich, Hartford, Lebanon, Goshen and this place. Their supper table was decorated with a large spray of yellow roses and they were presented a gold coin.

Mr. Spaulding was born in Evanston, Mass., the elder son of the late John and Parmelia Randall Spaulding. When he was three the family moved to Goshen, Lebanon, and it was here that his two sisters and brother were born. Mr. Spaulding's parents spent the greater part of their lifetime in the town of Lebanon and their deaths occurred here several years ago at an advanced age. Dwight Spaulding received his early education in Lebanon public schools. March 16, 1877, he was united in marriage with Miss Nancy Haynes, only daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Haynes of this place. The wedding took place at the home of the bride's parents and only relatives and a few intimate friends were present. As the Exeter church with which the bride and groom were affiliated was without a regular pastor at that time, Rev. Daniel B. Lord, of the Goshen church performed the wedding ceremony.

For several years Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding resided with the bride's parents and it was here that both their children were born. Later the family moved to East Norwalk, where they have resided for thirty-two years. Mr. Spaulding has been a faithful employe of the firm of Hotch and Bailey of South Norwalk for several years.

Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding come to Lebanon each summer and spend a month, two weeks of which they are joined by their children and grandchildren for a vacation with them. The remaining two weeks Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding spend with Mr. Spaulding's sisters, Mrs. Arthur C. Williams and Mrs. Fred G. Stark at Lebanon Center.

Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding have been blessed by Providence in that they have had good health and their family circle is unbroken. They have two children, a son, Frank Edgar Spaulding of West Haven, a traveling salesman for a New Haven paint concern, and a daughter, Mrs. Edward B. Robertson of East Norwalk. There are two grandchildren, Frank E. Spaulding, Jr., and Katherine D. Spaulding of West Haven.

Mr. and Mrs. Spaulding reside with their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edward B. Robertson, at 21 Sea View avenue, East Norwalk. Their home commands a fine view of the water and during leisure hours Mr. Spaulding has drawn and painted many scenes while looking out over the view their home affords. His friends here have been remembered with some of his paintings. Other leisure moments he devotes to writing poetry and some interesting lines were written by him for their anniversary.

ROCKVILLE

Funeral services for Orrin Gardiner Woodmansee, 67, who died March 19, were held at his home here in the village, Saturday, and were conducted by Rev. Paul S. Burdick, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church. The funeral was attended by many relatives and friends. The bearers were his two brothers, George of New York and La Clede of Westerly, Samuel Greene of Cross Mills and Samuel Crandall of this place. Burial was in Rockville cemetery.

Mr. Woodmansee was a son of William W. and Almedia Burdick Woodmansee. He was born here and had spent the greater part of his life here. He married 46 years ago Eugene Austin, who survives him with four children, Misses Elva and Ada Woodmansee, and Lloyd and Howard Woodmansee, all being at home. Two children died in infancy.

Leslie Kenyon motored to Providence Sunday.

Mrs. Rensselaer Palmer has been ill for several days.

Everett Jencks and Mrs. Jennie Palmer were in Providence Tuesday.

WILSONVILLE

Mrs. E. Keegan had as visitors on Sunday the Misses McGolly, of Webster.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Boulet and child of Webster were with the former's parents for the week-end.

Mrs. Pratt of Webster is at her daughter's for a short time.

The case of Dr. Joseph Spoth, of Canaan, held in connection with the killing of Mrs. Spoth, was continued to the May term of the criminal superior court in Litchfield, by Judge William M. Maltbie.

WILLIMANTIC STORES
Know What To Buy—How To Buy—Where To Buy

THE WILLIMANTIC ART STORE OLDEST OF KIND IN EASTERN CONNECTICUT
Established nearly 30 years ago, next door to the present location in the Johnson Block on Church St. by Hiram M. Fenn in connection with his undertaking business the Willimantic Art Store as one of the oldest in this part of the state. About 20 years ago the Art and Picture business and grown to such an extent that Mr. Fenn was forced to rent the store next door to which he removed his stock and which is the present location.
Five years ago, Mr. Russell W. Potter purchased the Art Store from the Hiram M. Fenn estate, following the death of Mr. Fenn and he has been its successful proprietor since that time.
A number of new lines have been added and a year ago Mr. Potter found it necessary to enlarge the store to take care of the ever increasing business. The Art Store has always done picture framing work and has an enviable reputation in this section for the kind and quality of work done. Much of this is due to the fact that a complete stock of Moulding is carried and a well equipped frame shop is maintained.
The store carries a display of pictures that compares favorably with any in the larger cities and a cordial invitation is always extended the public to call and see them at any time.
During the past few years the Greeting card has become a necessity to the American people and this store always has a beautiful showing of them. Explaining to some extent the oft heard phrase "You can secure just the card you want at The Art Store for any occasion."
Although the Gift Shop is an innovation in stores, Mr. Potter foresaw the coming demand and has added many new and unusual articles designed for small gifts and the store is rapidly gaining popularity in this line.

A. J. HARPER'S, HOME OF EXIDE BATTERY IN WILLIMANTIC
The Exide Battery Service Station established at 32 Church street, Willimantic, in 1915 is the pioneer of battery service stations in this section. At that time, the business was conducted by Elmer M. Young and was under the managership of Arthur J. Harper, an expert battery repair man.
When Mr. Young disposed of his interests on November 12, 1921, Mr. Harper continued in the battery repair work until January, 1922 when an increased volume of business forced him to seek larger quarters and he established a battery shop in the Clark building, No. 31 Church street, the present location of the Willimantic home of The Exide Battery.
The new shop was fully equipped so that all battery work could be handled with facility and through prompt service and expert work the Exide Service Station has defied all newcomers and stands well as the leading battery station in this city. All work is done under the personal supervision of Mr. Harper and the same careful attention is given to small and large repair jobs. One of the predominating features of the business, which has come well to the foreground within the past few years, is the distribution of Radio Batteries. The various types of Exide Batteries used in connection with radios, by far outclass all other makes and this line of the business has been favored with remarkable growth.
For the added convenience of customers Mr. Harper has added a stock of automobile accessories which consists of all standard articles of high quality.
In 1911 the first automobile to be furnished with an electric starting and lighting equipment made its appearance. It had an Exide Battery. Yet, long before that momentous occasion, Exide Battery had been building up an enviable reputation in every other field of battery usefulness which has since included farm lighting, radio, etc.

DANIELSON

One man who translated the name into English Thursday afternoon, said that Martin Rzinkleisos means Paul Revere, but however that may be, Martin arrived here on horseback about the noon hour and all the world within hearing distance was soon aware that something was troubling Martin rather tempestuously

Martin has a good voice—a real loud speaker—and he was using it to the utmost of its broadcasting capacity, as his steed thundered into Main from Water street on the trail of a speed wagon that the pursuer seemed bent on overhauling or at least subduing to a reasonable speed.

The tumult attracted the attention of Chief John McFarland, who was at his post near the Attawaugs hotel. The chief's first impression was that the truck had hit a vehicle of the man who was cheering the machine on horseback and as the truck rolled up he blew his whistle for the driver to halt. The driver didn't seem to get the stop signal until it had been repeated twice and then reluctantly stopped his machine.

Up raced the mounted Rzinkleisos. He said things as fast as a multiple telegraph system can transmit words, but out of the deluge of accusations and vociferations Chief McFarland finally ascertained that Rzinkleisos wanted and expected most confidently to recover 81 grain sacks that were aboard the truck and which, he said, had been taken by a man on the truck from his farm in the Horse hill section of the town, over by South Killingly.

Rzinkleisos said that his wife was alone when the two men on the truck called, looking for bags to buy. She does not speak English. The sack buyers are specialists on high signs, nods and shrugs and after watching De woman to see what her reply would be to the offers to buy, took the bags, loaded them on their truck and drove off. Somehow they neglected to pay her anything.

Soon afterwards Rzinkleisos arrived at his home. He heard the story, leaped astride his horse and Paul Revered it over hill and dale down through the old Furnace territory to Water street, where he picked up the truck and began to sing out his S. O. S. for the police.

The two men on the truck heard the farmer's story with amazement. How could such a thing happen? Chief McFarland thought maybe the court had better answer, and ordered the men under arrest. That brought results, but not very promptly. There had to be a session with Prosecuting Attorney A. G. Bill, who placed the men under bonds and ordered them to appear for a hearing at 10 o'clock this (Friday) morning.

Then Hyman Marks, of the pair on the truck, made a proposal. He would restore the farmer's bags, he would take him back to his farm, if he wished, and he would pay him $5 for his trouble, presumably for winning the race. Rzinkleisos finally agreed and a settlement was reached. Therefore, there will be no session of the court this morning, and there is rejoicing in the Marks home in Providence.

Rzinkleisos will have one question to ask his wife about the matter. Marks said she nodded "yes" when he asked her if she wished to sell the bags. That wasn't what she told her husband. Martin will inquire as to his spouse's knowledge of nodding one's head or vigorously shaking it—in English and in her native tongue.

Three stowaways—not booked on the passenger list—arrived here from Providence when one of the buses of the Interstate line rolled in, early Thursday afternoon. Master Joseph Grady, 14, and Master Joseph Fermey, 14, both of Harris avenue, and Master John McDonald, 10, of Westminster street, inoculated with germs of an early developing spring fever, hopped aboard the luggage-carrier on the big bus, as it was making its way out of Providence about noon and in an hour and a half or thereabouts found themselves in another good town. They had been unobserved throughout the entire trip

The sights of this little city seemed to enthrall them. Being accustomed to a lot of one-way streets over in Providence, they didn't appear to know just exactly what to do in the face of a situation where traffic was moving in both directions, as well as threatening to do so in several others, so parked themselves near the Danielson Trust company building and stood gazing upon the passing show—the matinee, if you please.

There was something about them that attracted the attention of Chief John McFarland. Only a brief interview was necessary to get their story, told truthfully, be it said.

Things broke good for the boys. It was not long before the chief had arranged to send them back to their home city. The officer talked with a friend of his that drives a truck up here every day from Providence, distributing bottled-in-bond bread, or something like that—it's bread, anyway—and the driver said he would take the boys home, which he did.

The funeral of Albert Lyon Cole was held from his home in the Howard Hill section of Foster, Thursday afternoon, with funeral services conducted by Rev. Gilbert B. Cutler of the North Scituate Baptist church, at Foster Center church. Burial was in Spear's cemetery at Foster. The bearers were four nephews, Frank Brayden, William Howard, Almon Howard and Everett Howard. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

The strength of the federal reserve system is behind your money if deposited in the savings department of the Windham County National bank.—adv.

Banking as a Profession, Financing Fundamental Industries, and Breaking into Business will be the subject of three of the lectures that W. Irving Bullard is to deliver before the Amos Tuck School of Business Administration at Dartmouth college.

Delegations from Killingly and all the surrounding towns will be in Hartford Wednesday and Thursday of next week for the republican state convention that will name delegates to the republican national convention to be held in Cleveland.

Merril A. Marvin of Bridgeport was a visitor with friends in Danielson Thursday.

Rose of Lima council, K. of C., has a class formed to receive degrees during April. It is likely the third degree will be conferred about Palm Sunday.

A flock of swallows number from 200 or 300 made an appearance in Danielson Thursday morning and were regarded as another herald of the approach of real spring weather.

A number from Danielson will be at Providence Sunday to attend services incident to the New England southern conference of the Methodist Episcopal church.

Mrs. Emma Warren has gone to New Jersey for a visit with friends.

As is usual at this time of year, some inquiries are going the rounds as to the possibility of forming a mill league in this territory for the baseball season to open during the coming month.

Because of the low water in the brooks, trout fishermen are looking for some exceptional early season catches this year unless there are heavy rains between now and next mid-week.

Major Albert Warren, U. S. A., an instructor at West Point and son of Mrs. Emma Warren of Danielson, is a patient in the Walter Reid hospital in Washington, where he has successfully undergone a surgical operation.

Edward McBride was at Readville, Mass., Thursday to inspect the more than 200 horses that are in training there for the spring and summer campaign on New England and other race tracks.

Many cords of wood accumulated from trees blown over or badly damaged in the heavy snowstorm of March 11-12 are to be seen about the borough.

The borough's annual period for playing marbles has arrived and is being made the most of by youngsters who enjoy playing "for keeps" as much as did a former generation.

Thomas J. Aylward was in New York Thursday on a business trip.

Prizes will again be offered to its members this season by the Danielson Rod and Gun club for trout taken in territory hereabouts.

PUTNAM

A convincing success has been made of the Pure Bred Bull campaign, that has been conducted in Windham county, under the auspices of the County Farmers' association, assisted by the specialists from various nearby states.

It was made known Thursday at the offices of the Farmers' association here that orders have been received from dairymen for 43 pure bred bulls that eventually will be at the head of herds in nine different towns of the county. Such a response to the call to head herds with pure bred sires has been a source of elation and gratification to the Farmers' association heads and forecasts a great advance in the quality of the county herds.

Though the four big meetings that were held in county towns to boost the pure bred bull campaign came right after the exceptionally heavy snowstorm of March 11-12, when the traveling conditions were particularly arduous in country sections, the attendance totaled 175 dairymen. The men were representative of the majority of the towns of the county.

Getting the bulls for which orders have been placed presents a problem that has not as yet been worked out. Plenty of bulls of the kind wanted are available in this and neighboring states, but filling so many orders on such short notices represents something to do.

County Agent Davis has one plan in mind that may be adopted, but he was not ready Thursday to make it public.

Other dairymen in addition to those who have ordered bulls are interested in what is being done and all of these will be canvassed at an early date. It is likely that the total of pure bred bulls booked to come into the county as the result of the campaign will be in excess of 60, before the campaign is definitely brought to a close.

The program for the meeting of W. C. T. Unions of the county arranged to be held at the Congregational church here Thursday next is as follows:

Morning program, singing, scripture, Rev. Mr. Stoddard; prayer, Rev. Mr. Cozad, singing.

State and county superintendents will speak for their departments. Each union represented tells of its early history.

Short story about the Crusade of 1874 in other states.

Which departments and lines of work must be stressed to improve public sentiment.

Adjourn at 12.15.

Afternoon program, singing, scripture and prayer, Rev. Mr. Burton; A Three-Fold Vision, To Up-Hold the Law, A Citizenship Obligation; from the viewpoint of a woman, from the viewpoint of a lawyer by State's Attorney Charles Searls of Putnam; from the viewpoint of a party leader by Frank Fenton of Windham, music; reading, "Killing the Dragon", Kathleen Norris; talk, "The Greater Task Ahead." Speaker will be announced later.

The State President, Mary B. Wilson, will be present.

Employment conditions promise to show some improvement throughout this territory during the coming month. There is no indications right now of an increase of activities in the textile industry, but with the coming of out-door operations in the spring there will be work for many who have heretofore found employment in mills. It is expected that the next two weeks will begin this period of outdoor activities.

A Meriden paper recently announced the approaching marriage of Miss Amy Langdon Peck, grand-daughter of H. Wales Lines of that city and David Hobart Yale. Miss Peck is a teacher in home economics department of the Putnam Trade school. She is a graduate of the Connecticut college for women. Both Miss Peck and Mr. Yale are well known in Meriden.

A considerable number of Putnam people plan to be in Providence on Sunday to attend the New England Southern conference of the Methodist Episcopal church. Sunday services are to be held at the Majestic theatre.

Law firms that lost their quarters when the the Donahue block was destroyed by fire a year ago last Washington's birthday and who have since been occupying temporary quarters in the law library of the superior court will be in their new offices in the new Seder building soon after the first of the coming month. Those new offices are practically ready for occupancy.

The quarterly meeting of the Woman's Broad of the Day Kimball hospital is to be held this (Friday) afternoon at 3 o'clock in the chamber of commerce room. The meeting of the executive committee comes a half hour earlier.

Mr. and Mrs. Malcolm M. Willey, of Hanover, N. H., are expected here today to visit with relatives for a few days. Mr. Willey is one of the instructors in the sociology department at Dartmouth college.

George H. Hamilton of Woodstock has gone to Europe to remain for about six months.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest B. Kent, Mrs. Warren Ames and Mrs. John G. Fox have been at Providence attending the eastern Connecticut and Rhode Island conference of the Advent Christian church.

Next Sunday being conference Sunday, there will not be any services at the Methodist Episcopal church in this city.

Members of W. C. T. U. in Windham county have been invited by the Putnam union to attend a conference to be held at the Congregational church here Thursday afternoon of next week.

William Oscar Parsons, of Willimantic, recently pensioned by the N. Y., N. H. and H. R. R. company, is well remembered by many Putnam people as a member of the crew of Conductor James Bacon's train that made up in Putnam. Conductor Bacon also is on the pension list of the road.

County Agent F. L. Davis of this city will speak on the subject, Building A Rural Community, in Grange hall at Hampton, this (Friday) evening. This lecture, given by Mr. Davis at Walt Den Krange in Pomfret this week, is illustrated by lantern slides.

Three inches of snow that came in the storm of the afternoon and the night before, largely disappeared during Thursday and does not rank as a real delay in the coming of spring. It is likely that the superior court will take up the matter of passing upon the bid recommended for acceptance by the receivers of the Manhasset company within the next few days.

Members of the Arcanum club will assemble at the club house this (Friday) evening for the annual adjourned meeting of the organization, matters of importance to come up for consideration.

Mrs. George W. Gilpatrio, Mary B. Bishop, Miss Mary Wheaton of this city and Mrs. Charles Hopkins of Hartford are representatives of Elizabeth Porter Putnam chapter, D. A. R. to attend a state conference of the D. A. R. at Center church, New Haven, Thursday and today (Friday).

State Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald, formerly of this city, is to be one of the speakers at a three days' conference on motor vehicle problems to be taken up, from a traffic standpoint at Yale university on April 9, 10, 11. Mr. Macdonald is to speak on the 11th.

CLARK'S FALLS

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson D. Maine and daughter June, of Westerly, were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Maine Sunday afternoon. Mrs. Maine accompanied them home for a visit.

The Amos Chapman farm was sold for a good price. It is rumored that Victor Rugich has bought it and will occupy it in a short time.

There has been two cases of scarlet fever here. School was closed one week, but began again the next week.

Mrs. Eleanore Rusich and one of her children have been ill with tonsilitis.

It is expected that there will be services in the chapel next Sunday morning, held by Rev. F. S. Robbins.

Mrs. Annie Asher Smith, of Fredericksburg, has the distinction of being the first woman to hold office as county treasurer in Virginia.

Savant To Test Einstein Theory

COPYRIGHT KEYSTONE VIEW CO., NEW YORK

Prof Albert Michelson, of the University of Illinois, who is one of the scientists to make final tests of the Einstein theory. He seeks to measure the velocity of light in connection with the movements of ether, although Einstein has disregarded ether. With a tube one foot in diameter laid in the earth in the form of a square, 1,500 feet to each side, he expects to make final tests. If ether travels with the earth, he holds that a beam of light will require the same time to go around the pipe in each direction, but if the beam travels faster in one direction than in the other, he considers it would indicate that the ether does not move with the earth and does effect the velocity of light.

HIGHWAY MARKERS.

The decision of the Standard Oil company of California to remove its signboards from many miles of highways on the Pacific coast has evidently made a good impression upon the Standard Oil company of New York which has announced that it contends doing the same thing. It sought publicity when the billboards were erected and it is going to get more because of its decision to take them down and give the users of the highways the chance to enjoy the beauties of nature.

In each instance it reflects the growing sentiment against the disfiguring of the countryside with gaudily colored structures and an eagerness to respond to the demand before it is actually forced upon them. The opposition to billboards whether they are located in the cities or in the country has been growing for years. Legislation is dealing with the problem in many states. Public sentiment is apparently having its effect in other.

But while the signboards for advertising purposes are coming down, or responding to regulation it is time that a bit more thought was given to the need of seeing that the great network of highways is better marked. Enter a city and there is some system of markers whereby the names of the various streets can be determined without stopping to inquire, but the situation is much different in the country. If the roads, or the localities to which they lead, have been marked in the long distant past they are gone now. Efforts are made to mark prominently some of the new and important highways but it is not always the case that branch roads, even though modern and carrying much traffic, are conspicuously marked. As for the forks of the road, the three corners or the four corners on the country roads it is unusual when any signboard that can be read is to be found.

When there is more highway building than ever before this constitutes a condition that should get a correspondingly prominent attention. The removal of certain billboards might well be accompanied by the erection of more highway markers.

GOVERNMENT OIL LANDS.

Since the situation in regard to the oil leases, has been brought to light there has been a chance to look upon both sides of the question. In connection with the reserve of oil for the navy's demands there cannot fail to be considered the possibility of these resources being mapped by those who have driven wells on oil land adjacent to the government reserves. That was a feature which figured prominently in connection with the decision to grant the leases. The argument that it was preferable to obtain and hold this oil in reserve above ground instead of trying to hold it in reserve underground, while others were draining it off presents a question that may have two sides.

As to the importance of maintaining the reserves there can be no question. The thing to do is to ascertain whether there is merit in the claim that the oil fields will be capped if the effort to keep the oil stored underground is maintained should it be possible to vacate the leases through the courts.

By the naming of a special commission that will dig into this matter and give an expert opinion as to what is the best thing to do President Coolidge has taken a timely and wise step. The commission named is made up of men in whom the country has confidence, men qualified to determine how the fuel supply of the navy can best be conserved, and of protecting other reserves not so prominently in the public eye.

Regardless of what was known about the country's oil lands in the past it has become apparent that they are deserving of far greater attention both for the purpose of determining where the oil lies and what course is the wisest for insuring the benefit of it for the future. This matter of the underground draining of government oil fields cannot be too fully gone into.

POINCARE'S DECISION.

Premier Poincare of France has made a wise decision in agreeing to again take up the reins of the premiership which he so quickly threw down when it was disclosed that the vote of the French chamber of deputies was against him.

It is evident that France needs the services of the premier at this important period. Though the vote was against him it was cast on a minor matter, when there was a mere handful in the chamber and by the use of hundreds of proxies, in which subsequent reports show that none too much care was displayed. The situation would have been far different had it been a decisive majority or had the vote been taken under different circumstances and upon some important issue.

France has no one ready to step into his place. He has been involved in one of the hardest kinds of fights to maintain the French position and it has been noticeable that he has obtained support on vital matters when there was some question whether he would be able to bring it about. This was particularly true in regard to his taxation plan. It was an unusual course, and particularly so in view of the conditions, but drastic action was demanded to meet a serious situation and he won. For another to take up the responsibilities of leadership at this time under the conditions of his defeat would have been out of the question.

Poincare was needed to carry through his programme until the election date, to continue the negotiations with Great Britain and to deal with the report which is to come soon from the committee of experts at work upon the reparation question.

His decision to resume his duties is not only a logical one but must be a source of much relief to France. Regardless of the opposition that he has encountered he is recognized as the man who is needed if France is going to carry on and deal effectively with the numerous problems which it will face in more than five years after the close of the war. Poincare's decision means much even outside of France.

INSURING OUR LUMBER SUPPLY.

Secretary Wallace of the department of agriculture is not only concerned over the lumber situation in the country but is determined to bring it more closely to the attention of the country itself. When he emphasizes the situation he is continuing the efforts which others have made, but because conditions have been steadily growing worse he can send home stronger arguments than ever.

When the secretary declares that the wanton waste of virgin lumber has been so great that it has forced prices to the point where a 40 per cent curtailment in consumption is necessary that is being told only the story that was promised a number of years ago if remedial action was not taken.

The need of giving serious thought to the proper use of available timber and of producing more on a far greater scale than has been undertaken in the past cannot escape the discerning eye. We cannot continue to eat our cake and still have it. We cannot make great inroads into our forests, waste the timber and the lumber right and left, and expect that the supply is going to last forever. We cannot stand idly by and see the supply dwindle and do nothing in the way of stimulating new timber growth without coming face to face with the fact that something effective must be done to insure a continuous supply.

It is a subject upon which much has been said. Some reforestation work, some forest protection work and some cutting down of waste have resulted but not on the scale that is demanded if the needs of a growing country are going to be met. Substitutes for lumber may be available but the time is not near when increasing quantities will not be required for the same general purposes that have marked the past. To get the supply proper provision for it must be made.

JUGOSLAVIA'S PREMIERSHIP.

Cabinets come and cabinets go. There are times when the ousting of one ministry and the inauguration of another is accomplished with little or no difficulty. At other times there are such divisions that cause many obstacles to stand in the way of united action.

Complications made it possible for M. Pashitch to become premier of Jugoslavia, and now added complications have been created because of his resignation in anticipation of being ousted. M. Pashitch is the head of the so-called radical party, though the party which can present the best claim of being conservative, which has the largest number of seats in the parliament as the result of the last election. But Jugoslavia is not a two party country. There are several parties and all succeeded in getting some seats in parliament. Because the party representing the Croatian peasants did not like the constitution their 70 members elected refused to take their seats. This aided in the choice of Premier Pashitch. Opposition, however, has been active to the extent of getting the Croatian party members to take their seats for the purpose of removing Pashitch. In anticipation of this move the premier hands in his resignation.

Four parties had united to accomplish the ending of the Pashitch government, but they were united on no other questions. The resignation of the premier in anticipation of their move leaves the situation somewhat muddled with slight prospect of unity and no indication that they can be brought into harmony concerning a new premier. Whether the situation can be met otherwise than by a new election remains to be seen.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

'Twas the first snow of spring, but may it be the last of the season.

The man on the corner says isn't it about time for the spring fever to break out?

It is really the abrupt manner in which the prince of Wales is inclined to dismount that makes his riding conspicuous.

According to some in congress there ought to be a lot of extravagant spending before there is much attention paid to tax reduction.

When one man says he'd rather be a spigot-bigot than a spigot-swigit it is time to stop. Someone will get hurt if such methods are continued.

With "thousands" jobless and appeals being made to congress for help it would be a great time to set up demands for less hours and more pay.

Senator Wheeler says he has testimony to come that is unbelievable. Does he have reference to what he expects Secretary Daugherty to say?

The public debt of the United States is just under $23,000,000,000 and yet there are those who want to boost it by five or more billion for a bonus.

If broadcasting is going to make a universal language necessary, it also shows the need of insisting on all Americans being able to read, write and listen in English.

MORNING SONG

"This being late in the morning has got to stop!" announced the head of the house frowning terribly. "I have missed my train three times this week and Horatio, who is just starting out in the business world, has been late twice and probably his whole future career and Genevieve has been late to her first classes for five days! Is ther any reason why we can't be on time in this household. I'd like to know?"

"None whatever," responded the busy housewife, releasing a waffle from the electric waffle iron and trying to decide which of the three hungry ones needed it worst. "Except a few little things which I will briefly mention. One of them is that you simply don't get up; that's all!

"Why, when I shake you and Horatio you both growl. Clear down in the kitchen I can hear the sounds of combat when you do arise. Of course technically you are supposed to have priority rights in the bathroom, but if Horatio beats you to the shower by three minutes before your stated time he cannot, as he splutteringly points out, abandon the room to your demand. Scarcely anybody in the midst of a bath could do so. While the argument rages he bathes, shaves and emerges scornfully and as you turn wrathfully to continue the discussion Genevieve who has impatiently been waiting he chance, slides in under your outstretched arm. Always be polite to ladies, you have taught your son, so there is nothing much you can do to Genevieve. Of course when she insists on dressing in the warm bathroom, too, you do have ground for more remarks which fall harmlessly upon the bathroom door until she gets ready to come out.

"When you do get a chance you find that neither of them has mopped up and you want to know whether you are expected to take a swim on the floor and how can you spread out your shaving things when Horatio hasn't put his away — and Horatio shouts, 'Gee! How could he put anything away with somebody howling at him to hurry up and get out?' and Genevieve says plaintively that it takes time to leave a tub and bowl immaculate and of course she thought you wanted her to hurry and didn't she hurry and now look what happens! She gets criticised, jumped on like fury!

"And 'What is the right time?' she asks. If she is late to Latin again heaven help her. Yes, she has a watch but something seems to have happened to its insides.

"Then Horatio calls down wildly to know where his new striped tie is—no, not that one, the other striped one! He left it right there yesterday. Well, some where, if not there. Say listen! comes fro you in the front room, haven't you any darned socks? Well, you have looked there and there is a whole drawerful with big holes in 'em—oh, the other drawer! Well, how were you to know those were the socks I was making carpet rags of! Gee whiz, and it's so late—have breakfast right on the table! As though I was not standing first on one foot and then the other waiting to put it right in your mouths!

"Then when you get down you remember you have to fix the darned furnace, and Horatio recalls he just has to phone Annabel, and Genevieve says heck she's left all her books upstairs and where are her clean hankies and will I just tie up that fudge she is taking to Charlie! And when you do get to the table the eggs are cold and the coffee chilled and you want to know in dignified accents why I can't have things hot when they ought to be hot! Is that clock right? Glory!

"And so it goes! But you want to get a divorce because I object to your sitting up till 1:30 with the latest novel. You're not a bit sleepy, you explain belligerently. So if you yearn to be on time——

"Can you beat it!" cried the head of the house, jerking out his watch. "I'm late again! When we're going to have waffles——"

"And sausages," said Horatio.

"And those delicious muffins," said Genevieve.

"You ought to let us know so's we'd get up in time," aggrievedly chorused everybody. "Tisn't our fault."—Chicago News.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Rear Admiral Joseph Strauss, who is serving the Government as one of the joint receivers of the Teapot Dome property, is a veteran officer of the United States Navy, and for many years chief of the Ordnance Bureau. He is an authority recognized through out the world on all theories and practical details of explosives and ordnance manufacture, and it was he who invented the superimposed turret system of mounting guns on battleships. During the World war he was the head of the greatest mine-laying expedition ever attempted when an American and British fleet, working under his orders, spread 70,000 mines across the North Sea from the Scottish coast to Norway, and virtually bottled up the submarines operated by the Germans from Heligoland and Kiel. In recognition of this work in laying the mine barrage and subsequently removing it, Admiral Strauss, in December, 1920, was made commander in chief of the American Asiatic fleet. He is a native of New York and a graduate of Annapolis.

File Sufferers

Can You Answer These Questions?

Do you know why ointments do not give you quick and lasting relief?

Why suffering and operations fail?

Do you know the cause of piles is internal?

That there is a stagnation of blood in the lower bowel?

Do you know that there is a harmless internal tablet remedy discovered by Dr. Leonhardt and known as HEMROID, now sold by Lee & Osgood and druggists generally, that is guaranteed?

HEMROID banishes piles by removing the internal cause, by freeing blood circulation in the lower bowel. This simple home treatment has an almost unbelievable record for sure, safe and lasting relief to thousands of pile sick sufferers, and saves the needless pain and expense of an operation. There is no reason why it should not do the same for you.

ROOSEVELT, THE SICKLY YOUTH

Theodore Roosevelt was a great lover of nature—and he was born in crowded New York.

A sickly, delicate child, suffering from asthma, he frequently had to be taken away where he could breathe. As a boy, he had little physical strength, and other lads did as they pleased with him. Until 14 years old he groped his way, unaware that he was very near-sighted, and wondered why other boys could see things invisible to him. He was not strong enough to attend public school, and was taught at home, even when preparing for college.

He was not brilliant at Harvard. When he was graduated and thrown into the world he was, because of his handicapped youth, unable to compete with boys who had had ordinary advantages.

Nervous, timid and distrustful of his prowess, he faced the conditions and supplied his natural defects by painful and laborious training of body, soul and spirit. It took him three years to learn to box, wrestling was difficult and horseback riding more so. Voluntary life as a Montana cowboy rounded out his health; will power supplied courage and self-control.

As a member of the New York state assembly, as governor, and as Police Commissioner of New York City he hit hard when he fought politicians and systems. As United States Civil Service Commissioner and as Assistant Secretary of the Navy he cut red tape and produced striking results. As colonel of the Rough Riders during the Spanish-American war he won honorable mention for bravery in battle.

Elected Vice President of the United States, he became President when McKinley was assassinated, and his vigorous conduct of the office won his re-election by the largest popular majority that had then been given a president.

"It is not often that a man can make opportunities for himself," he wrote, "but he can put himself in such shape that when or if opportunities come he is ready to take advantage of them."

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

NATAL

Another of the many efforts to lessen the United States' long supremacy in cotton production may be made in a new quarter—Britain's South African province of Natal. There the construction of a new railroad will open up a quarter of a million fertile acres of what British experts consider as good cotton land as is to be found in America. A bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society tells something of the province "around Africa's corner."

"Dwellers in the Western Hemisphere hear about as much of Natal nowadays as Europeans do of, say Arkansas or Alabama" says the bulletin. "This reciprocal inconspicuousness is not because any of the three regions are unimportant, but because they are merged in a greater whole that attracts all the attention at a distance. Natal is now one of the divisions in Africa's United States, the Union of South Africa. But like our own Texas it started out as a colony of another power and later had an independent existence of its own as a republic. Settlers from Holland first planted it in the fold of European colonies and later organized it as an independent country. Great Britain took it over in 1842 and merged it into the Union of South Africa when that federation was formed in 1910.

"Natal lies just around Africa's corner, only a little way beyond the Cape of Good Hope, by turning which Vasco de Gama, in 1497, found the all-important water route to the East. Natal fronts, therefore, on the southern part of the Indian ocean. It extends roughly between south latitudes 27 and 33, and has a position corresponding in the Northern Hemisphere to that of northern Florida and the southern and central portions of the other Gulf states. In the matter of location, then, it can be seen that Natal should have an excellent chance to become South Africa's "Dixie."

"In area Natal is some 5000 square miles greater than South Carolina. As in that and other of our South Atlantic states, the coastal belt of Natal is relatively low and warm with a sub-tropical climate. It is in this zone that Natal's potential cotton lands are situated. There, too, is a considerable sugar industry and large tea plantations. Back about 30 miles from the coast the midland belt begins. This zone is higher and cooler as in the back country of the American gulf states and constitutes a 'corn belt.' Still farther from the coast are the uplands of Natal, where higher altitude and lower temperature combine to create conditions like those of the plains of Texas and Oklahoma. And, as in the uplands of those states, stock-raising and cereal production are the dominant industries.

"As regards its inhabitants Natal has had a tragic history. Alien tribes from the north swarmed into the country a hundred or so years ago and slaughtered great numbers of the former black natives. It became the war field of the Zulus. Many early Boer settlers were massacred by those fierce blacks early in the 19th century. After seemingly unending wars among the blacks the land was almost vacant when the British took it over in 1842. The natives have not been on the war path since they were crushed in the Zulu war of 1879.

"Natal has a population of about 140,000 whites and approximately ten times as many negroes and East Indians. The latter are greatly in the minority but are an important factor economically since most of the market gardening and much of the small shop-keeping is in their hands.

"Durban, the chief port of Natal, looking off to the east over a warm, sun-bathed ocean, is close to the corresponding latitude of Jacksonville, Florida, Savannah, Georgia, and New Orleans. In recent years a sandbar across its bay has been placed, giving the city a large, well protected harbor. It has a population nearly twice that of Savannah. In spots it has much of the flavor of the East with a Mohammedan mosque, coolie markets and Hindoo shops. Until a few years ago jinrikishas were common on the streets.

"The capital of Natal, Pietermaritzburg, a town of about 40,000 inhabitants, is situated in the uplands some 50 miles inland from Durban. It preserves much of the old Dutch flavor given by its founding Boers. It has one of the most equable climates in South Africa and is a favorite health resort."

Getting Skinnier Every Day

Something Must be Done and Done Darn Quick, Too.

Tens of thousands of thin, run-down men—yes, and women too—are getting discouraged—are giving up all hope of ever being able to take on flesh and look healthy and strong.

All such people can stop worrying and start to smile right now for McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets, which any druggist will tell you all about, is putting flesh on heads of skinny folks every day.

One woman, tired, weak and discouraged, put on 15 pounds in five weeks and feels fine.

We all know that Cod Liver Oil is full of flesh producing vitamines, but many people can't take it because of its horrible smell and fishy taste, and because it often upsets the stomach.

McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Tablets are as easy to take as candy, and if any thin person don't gain at least 5 pounds in 30 days your druggist will give you your money back—and only 50 cents a box. Ask Lee & Osgood Co., or any live pharmacist anywhere.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Tax returns of "Mellon companies" were explained before the senate committee investigating the bureau of internal revenue.

The new immigration bill providing a basic quota of two per cent. of the 1910 census was reported by the senate immigration committee.

Representative John Langley, of Kentucky, and five others were indicted on charges of conspiracy to obstruct the operations of the government.

Al Jennings told the oil committee that Jake Hamon told him of plans to nominate Warren G. Harding at Chicago in 1920 and it had cost Hamon $1,000,000.

The oil committee subpoenaed the treasurer of the democratic national committee; George White, the former chairman and E. L. Doheny to inquire about campaign funds.

The senate Daugherty committee heard the cross-examination of Roxie Stinson and charges by H. L. Scaife that he had been blocked in efforts to expose alleged aircraft frauds.

A federal reserve board study of practical methods of stabilizing international exchange and extension of the department of agriculture's service were decided upon by President Coolidge as farm relief steps.

HARRY B. STEADMAN SUED BY DAUGHTER-IN-LAW

New York, March 27.—Mrs. Blanche Dorothy Stedman today filed suit to compel her former father-in-law, Harry B. Stedman, wealthy banker of Hartford, Conn., to fulfill an alleged agreement to pay her $25 a week for divorcing his son Harry Stermni, Jr., two years ago. She also asked $2,500 in back payments.

Before her marriage, Mrs. Stedman was a nurse in New York hospital where the younger Stedman was undergoing treatment. They were married in 1915. According to Mrs. Stedman, her former husband's father and other members of the family told her that her husband was the "black sheep of the family" and intimated that if she would "make a man of him" the father would take care of her and her family. Mrs. Stedman said that two years later her husband started drinking again and she left him on advice of his father. The younger Stedman was sentenced to a year in the city prison for grand larceny.

OBITUARY

Miss Catherine I. Hoye.

Relatives have received news of the death, Wednesday, at the home of her nephew, Dr. Leo McCready, at Jamaica Plain, Mass., of Miss Catherine Isabel Hoye, following several days' illness with pneumonia.

Miss Hoye leaves two brothers in Providence, P. F. Hoye and Thomas J. Hoye, and a brother, M. J. Hoye in Massachusetts. She had a number of nieces and nephews. For many years she had visited in Norwich and New London, and she spent several weeks the past summer with her niece, Mrs. Walter S. Skelly, of West Thames street, Norwich. She was a well informed woman, agreeable in conversation, sympathetic and kindly.

Burial is to be in Providence Saturday.

William Earl Brosofske

William Earl Brosofske of 588 Boswell avenue died Wednesday night following an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Brosofske had not been feeling well and on Monday he decided to have the operation performed.

He was born in Norwich, February 3, 1896, the son of William and Louise Hintz Brosofske. He received his education in local schools and entered the employ of the J. B. Martin Co., being employed at the Franklin street plant at the time of his death.

Before the outbreak of the World war he enlisted in the 56th regiment, Coast Artillery, and went overseas when the local company was sent to France, and served his country as a true soldier. Fraternally, Mr. Brosofske was a member of the order of Moose, the Sons of Hermann and Richard E. Bourigan Post, Veterans of Foreign Wars. He was a member of Park Congregational church.

He was a loving son and brother, and was always willing to assist others less fortunate than himself. As an employe he was faithful to every trust. The sympathy of many friends goes out to the family in their loss.

Besides his parents, Mr. Brosofske leaves one brother Edward of Norwich; six sisters, Mrs. Humphrey Brennan, Mrs. Arthur Wunderlick, Mrs. Clara Murphy, Mrs. Roy Lee Hill, and the Misses Frieda and Edith Brosofske, all of Norwich. In 1909 another brother was drowned at Mohegan park when he broke through thin ice while skating.

PROPOSE BUILDING 118X36 FEET FOR NEW NURSES' HOME AT HOSPITAL

A number of corporators, members of the executive committee, ladies of the advisory board and physicians and surgeons of the staff, assembled at the Backus hospital at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon to look over preliminary plans and suggest possible improvements for the proposed new nurses' home.

The meeting was opened by W. S. Allis, chairman of the special building committee, who explained that the problem had been carefully worked out by the members of the special building committee and plans submitted by Dr. S. S. Goldwater of New York, consulting architect, and Arthur M. Thompson of the firm of Cudworth and Thompson, architects, which were ready for approval or corrections.

The first plan, said Mr. Allis called for a building 100 ft. long having rooms for 42 nurses. In this plan the dining room would of necessity be in what is now the store room in the administration building. The second plan called for the enlargement of the southwest corner of the basement of the new home to make room for the dining hall. As a third plan, by far the better of the three, the original plans had been revised. The nurses' home would be 118 feet in length, have accommodations for 44 nurses and the dining hall would be in the building.

Architect Thompson was then asked to explain the features of the building last mentioned, Mr. Thompson explained the features of the proposed nurses' home in detail. The building, he said, would be located to the right of the administration building, facing southeast. The building would measure 118 by 36 feet, the outside structure to be of brick with stone trimmings, the inside construction to be of steel, wood floors and hard wood trimmings. The intent, said Mr. Thompson, was to make the buildings a semi-fireproof structure.

On the second floor there would be 19 rooms for nurses, with suite of two rooms for the superintendent of nurses. On the third floor would be 22 rooms for nurses fitted in a similar manner.

Each room would be well lighted, size 8x14 feet, having separate closets for clothing. Ventilation would be excellent the hallway being subject to cross ventilation. The solarium would be placed at the rear of the building as it would perhaps be used for a sleeping porch this location was best.

Each floor would be equipped with all modern conveniences, with bathtubs, showers, washbowls and ample toilet facilities, nothing being omitted for the convenience of the nurses.

The basement of the building would be finished off in the main with finished walls of concrete. In the front of the building would be located the laundry room, trunk room, linen and sewing rooms, dietetics room, instructors' room and a large well-lighted instruction room for nurses. At the rear of the building would be located the demonstration room, serving room and the dining hall which would measure 26x41 feet.

A graduate nurses' room and toilet room would complete the facilities afforded on that floor. The building would be connected with the administration building by tunnel connecting basements of both buildings.

At the close of Mr. Thompson's talk, Dr. Goldwater spoke briefly, touching on advantages not mention by Mr. Thompson and then followed a general discussion, the general opinion being that the home had been planned exceedingly well.

It was suggested that approximately $5,000 would be necessary to equip the building.

The second part of the meeting was devoted to a discussion of such changes or new construction in the hospital proper, particularly in the present nurses' home, when vacated, as may best increase the clinical capacity and efficiency of the institution.

Dr. Franklin S. Wilcox, superintendent of the Norwich state hospital, suggested the establishment of an out-patient department holding out-patient clinics, stating that this was of vital importance and a needed thing in Norwich as it would take care of many minor ailments without the person remaining at the hospital.

Dr. Goldwater suggested a number of changes in the hospital, revising ward classification, separating male and female wards to better advantage, changing of the children's ward to the old nurses' home, and fitting the remaining rooms of that building for private or semi-private cases, thus allowing more room in the hospital proper for maternity cases.

Several other members of the staff spoke urging the taking over of the old nurses' home to be used entirely for maternity cases thus giving rooms in the present building used for this work, over to the surgical department.

A number of other suggestions for the betterment of hospital facilities were made and after a general discussion of all proposed changes, Chairman Allis stated that the committee welcomed the recommendations of the physicians and surgeons of the staff and would endeavor to carry out the policy of changes to the advantage of all departments of the hospital. The other members of the special building committee acting with Mr. Allis are F. L. Woodard and Shepard B. Palmer.

FINDS NO AUTHORITY TO ACCEPT POWER CO. OFFERS

The board of gas and electrical commissioners of Norwich have returned an answer to the Eastern Connecticut Power Company's offer to sell electric power to the city or to buy the municipal plant to the effect that they have no legal right to accept either of the propositions that have been made without instructions from the citizens and by vote of a city meeting.

The board, which comprises James L. Case, president; Martin E. Jensen, secretary; Fred A. Fox, C. E. Carpenter, and Frank P. Welch, reached this decision at a meeting last Monday night and was announced to Mayor Water and to Harold D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., in the following letters:

(Copy of Original)

Mr. Harold D. Larrabee, General Manager, The Eastern Connecticut Power Company, Norwich, Conn.

Dear Mr. Larrabee:

At a special meeting of the Commissioners of the City of Norwich Gas & Electrical Department, held Monday evening, March 24th, the two propositions submitted by your company were considered at length.

I was instructed to reply to you that the commissioners did not feel that they had a legal right to act upon any proposition that would contemplate the sale of the city's property. In their opinion, such a proposition should be submitted to his Honor, the Mayor of the City of Norwich and the Court of Common Council.

Your offer to furnish electrical current to the department has as you know been given most careful study by our general manager, and his report, in relation thereto, was considered in detail.

It was the opinion of the commissioners, that, inasmuch as the proposition submitted by you contemplated the abandonment of the city's generating plant, at least temporarily, or in part, affirmative action could not be taken by them, without instruction from the citizens, and by vote of a city meeting.

I am therefore sending a copy of this letter to his Honor, Milo R. Waters, Mayor of the City of Norwich, for his information and consideration.

Very respectfully,
JAMES L. CASE,
President of the Board.

Norwich, Conn., March 25, 1924.

Hon. Milo R. Waters,
Mayor of the City of Norwich,
Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

I am enclosing herewith a copy of a letter which I have today sent to General Manager Larrabee of The Eastern Connecticut Power Company.

It contains a statement of the action taken by the commissioners at a special meeting held last night, in relation to two propositions which were submitted by the said Eastern Connecticut Power Company, to the commissioners.

One of the propositions contained an offer for the purchase of the property and the second proposition contained an offer to furnish electrical current to the department, conditioned upon the abandonment of the city's generating plant, at least temporarily, or in part.

The commissioners would be pleased to furnish you copies of the said propositions, if you would care to have them for your information and consideration.

Very respectfully,
JAMES L. CASE,
President of the Board.

DR. SPEER CLOSES SERIES OF FIVE SERMONS HERE

Consider Christ was the topic of the sermon delivered Thursday night at the United Congregational church by Rev. Robert E. Speer of New York. This was the final sermon in a series of five which Dr. Speer has delivered at the United church this week under the auspices of the Norwich Y. M. C. A. the Protestant churches of the city uniting in the services. James C. Macpherson, president of the Y. M. C. A., led the service and the scripture selection was read by Rev. Dixon Brown, pastor of the A. M. E. Zion church. Rev. Mr. Brown also offered prayer and the Lord's Prayer was repeated in unison by the large congregation, Rev. Mr. Brown leading. In part Dr. Speer said:

What Christ asked men to do was to rise up and follow Him. He said, I am the way, the truth and the light. Christianity began just what Christianity is today. It is nothing but Jesus Christ. Consider Jesus. After all, unless we can get our faith expressed in some such living, simple terms as this, it will not avail us much.

To what end must we consider Jesus? When He was here on earth He was trying to make men and women appraise Him at His full value. We are realising today that our supreme need is to think clearly through the issues that confront us. We are confronted by no more important duty today than to consider Jesus Christ. He is the only way out of this great tangle of today with which we are confused.

The world needs an emperor and Jesus Christ is the only one capable of filling that place. Consider Him "lest ye be weary and faint in your minds." Men fight shy of every proposal of world organization. They have no faith in these things. It is a very weary world "faint in its mind" The one elemental and all comprehending law is "Consider Jesus." Consider Him when those times of testing confront us everyday.

Haven't there been times in life when there hasn't been anything else to do but to consider Jesus? If you ask me why we are to consider Him I would answer by saying that we are to consider Jesus because He is so unlike us. He is the masterpiece. Here is the one character without a flaw. We ought to consider Jesus, also, because He is so like us. More like us than we are like ourselves. If one wants to see himself the place to look is not in the mirror but in the face of Jesus. He is the picture of every man's ideal self. He is what the Father wanted every one to be. He is what you and I ought to be.

In closing his sermon Dr. Speer took occasion to extend his thanks for the invitation to come to Norwich and speak and thanked those who attended the meetings to hear him speak.

HUMANE POSTER CONTEST IS NEARING CLOSE

The humane poster contest in the schools of Connecticut conducted under the auspices of the Connecticut Humane Society closes this week when all posters must be forwarded to the Connecticut Humane Society, 300 Washington street Hartford, to reach there on or before next Monday, which is the last day. A great deal of interest is being shown in this school event and the entries so far received are ahead of the contest of last year when there were nearly 3,000 posters from one hundred different towns in the state. All teachers are expected to notify the children who are sending posters to mark on the back of each poster their name with age and home address, also the name of the school and grade as those details are important in the judging of the work. There are several special classes of posters but the two leading groups are those submitted under the supervision of an art instructor or drawing teacher and those drawn by the children without the supervision of a special teacher. Cash prizes amounting to six hundred dollars besides a large number of honorable mentions will be awarded. The posters will be on exhibition in the old state house in Hartford from April 1 to 12 inclusive.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS HOLD WORK CLASS MEETING

At the regular meeting of Okiya Camp Fire Girls of Park Congregational church, held in the Hugh Henry Osgood Memorial, there was an attendance of about 25, including one visitor. During the business session the guardian, Mrs. Louis Walden, presided. The two assistant guardians, Mrs. Benedict C. Pullen and Miss Mary Tirrell, were present at the meeting, which was in the form of a work class meeting, at which members continued working on their camp fire uniforms. A part of the evening was devoted to playing games and to songs.

SEVEN NEW DIVORCES IN SUPERIOR COURT

Seven divorces are included in new suits returnable in April in the superior court for this county, which were filed Thursday at the clerk's office here. They are the following:

Manning M. Thomas, Jr., of New Haven seeks divorce from Viola Merritt Thomas of New London on the ground of desertion since Feb. 20, 1921. They were married at New London Jan. 21, 1911, and have a 9-year-old daughter.

Ray C. James of Waterford sues for divorce from Sarah Kane James of Old Lyme on the ground of desertion since Jan. 10, 1921. They were married July 24, 1918, at New London and have a son who will be five in June and a daughter who was 2 in February. The husband asks custody of the son.

Benjamin Rogoff of Trenton, N. J., is the petitioner for divorce from Irene Blaisdell Rogoff of Montville, where they were married July 14, 1920. He alleges desertion on Sept. 1 of that year.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty between June 1, 1922 and August 4, 1923, Hertha Lancaster Norton of New York, seeks divorce from Harold H. Norton of Groton whom she married June 17, 1919. She asks the custody of their two children, a son aged 4 years, and a daughter, aged 10 months.

Alleging desertion on Sept. 12, 1916, William N. Holt of New London asks divorce from Nellie Beebe Holt of that city. They were married March 22, 1895.

Margaret Pritchard Johnson of Waterford, a minor, who brings suit through her mother, Annie Fitzgerald, seeks divorce from Jesse Hill Johnson, alias Henry Thomas Moore, formerly of New London, now of parts unknown. She alleges that she married the defendant at New London on May 26, 1920, under the alias of Henry Thomas Moore and that he deserted her in September of that year. They have no children. She asks to have her name changed to Margaret A. Pritchard.

On the ground of intolerable cruelty since July 1, 1921, Annie Erickson of New London asks divorce from Albert Erickson of New Suffolk, L. I., whom she married May 7, 1921. She asks to have her name changed to Annie O'Loughlin.

SHOWED PROPER METHODS FOR SAVING FROM DROWNING

Captain Carrol Bryant of the Red Cross Life Saving Corps of Washington, D. C., visited Norwich Wednesday, co-operating with the Boy Scout organization and the Y. M. C. A. in the interest of the Red Cross program of life saving work. The captain gave an excellent demonstration in the Y. M. C. A. swimming pool in the afternoon, demonstrating and explaining in a very practical and interesting way the various methods for rescuing drowning persons, as well as pointing to some facts of interest to all swimmers.

In his remarks the captain touched upon the dangerous stomach cramp, which renders even the good swimmers helpless in many instances, and is largely the result of entering the water too soon after eating. Captain Bryant advised against the matter of a poor swimmer attempting to swim to a person in danger, saying that it would be far safer, to quickly locate a board or other floating object and place it within reach of the drowning person. He emphasized the need for all persons knowing how to swim and be capable of assisting persons in danger.

This, however he said, requires a knowledge of the proper methods and must be practiced, and is being made available to the public throughout the country through the efforts of the Red Cross and Y. M. C. A.

Captain Bryant met with local groups throughout the day, and in the evening conducted a session when local swimmers received valuable coaching and instructing in swimming and life saving. Captain Byrant is scheduled for Connecticut Agricultural College for today giving lectures and demonstrations to the students.

WAR EXPERIENCES TOLD BEFORE LIONS' CLUB

One hundred per cent strong attendance was a feature at the meeting of the Norwich Lions club held Thursday noon at the Wauregan Hotel when Secretary Edward Carpenter called roll. Lion Fred Watson was song leader for the day and several lively numbers were enjoyed.

Rev. R. B. Day, a member of the club, gave an interesting talk on his experiences while in the World War with the Canadian forces. He described the days of 1915, in the early part of the war and stressed the importance to bring about the day of tance of a more united action between national Attendance contest would be peace.

It was announced that the Intergin next week and every member was urged to attend, thus keeping the Norwich attendance up near the 100 per cent mark.

The entertaining talk of the day was delivered by Lion George Fullerton who in simply yet convincing language explained, "The Why and Wherefore of the Hole in a Doughnut". A number of club members had important places in the story much to the amusement of those who were left out.

After announcing that Lion Sisk would be song leader for next week the meeting closed with the singing of The Star Spangled Banner and the salute to the flag.

TO PROTECT PORTS OF NORTH ATLANTIC CITIES

Washington, March 27.—The ports of Boston, Portland, Maine, and other North Atlantic cities touched by the North Atlantic and western steamship company of Boston will be protected, President Palmer of the Emergency Fleet Corporation declared today, despite the fact that the company has gone into receivership.

The shipping board decided some time ago to discontinue the four ships operated by the company in the intercoastal trade, but granted it several extensions pending an investigation to determine whether the board should continue in the inter-coastal business in competition with private operators, Mr. Palmer, to whom the question was referred said he was opposed to the government competing with private operators and announced the vessels would be taken off as soon as they completed their trips.

Today Mr. Palmer said he had "no idea of continuing them in operation," but that he had taken up with ship owners in the intercoastal trade the matter of supplying tonnage on the route until the present voyages are terminated. A company already having connections in the coast-to-coast service will be selected to operate the ships until they are finally withdrawn.

FILLMORE TAKES LEAD IN BOWLING TOURNEY BY BEATING MIKE MORIN

Ray Fillmore, local pin splitter, took the lead in the Eastern Connecticut bowling tourney last night when he took nine out of eleven strings from Mike Morin of Taftville who got away to a good start on Monday by beating Dugas 7 to 4. The match was rolled on the Aetna alleys and witnessed by a large crowd.

Both bowlers were weak in the first string, Morin getting the jump by winning this string by two pins. The second string found Fillmore hitting the wood with more accuracy and from this string on he did not fall below the 100 mark. In the fourth string Morin found things more to his liking and won easily by 13 pins. This was the last string that Morin won, Fillmore rolling with perfect ease and confidence, seldom missing spare breaks and getting in a good first ball Morin, on the other hand, did not get the best of breaks although his ability to pin out the strings was good.

Fillmore hung up the high single record topping the record made by Dugas last Monday evening of 130 by one pin. Fillmore also has high total for eleven strings and also high average of 113-7. Morin's average was 107-3. Morin total was 1180 and Fillmore's was 1250. The scores follow:

M'TIGUE AND STRIBLING IN POPULAR DEMAND

New York, March 27. — Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, and Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy, who meet in a 12-round match at Newark next Monday night, are two of the most sought after publicists now in the limelight.

On the heels of a $75,000 offer yesterday from Panama promoters for a return match between McTigue and Battling Siki, it was announced today that Stribling had been offered a bout with Ad Stone, Philadelphia light heavyweight, at Philadelphia on May 31. The offer was made by Herman Taylor, Quaker City promoter, who was advised by "Pa" Stribling that it would be considered after the forthcoming title battle. Stribling already has accepted a match at Toronto on May 2 with Ted Moore, English middleweight.

Stribling and McTigue today put the finishing touches to their training and will do only light work for the next few days. Both are well under the 175-pound light heavyweight limit; in fact the champion will probably enter the ring within a pound or two of the middleweight limit of 160 pounds.

"Ma" Stribling, who sits "Pa" in supervising their son's istic career, declared today that "William L." will be the champion next Monday night if McTigue fights." But, she added, "if Mr. McTigue won't fight, but just hides behind his defense so as to stay the limit, then everybody will know Billy is the better man."

NORWICH MERMEN TO SWIM AT NEW LONDON

New London, March 27.—Norwich Y. M. C. A. swimming team will meet the New London swimmers at the local natatorium on Saturday night at 8 o'clock. These teams have engaged in a dual meet about a month ago The result of this meet was not satisfactory to the Norwich mermen and another meet was arranged.

New London defeated Norwich by a large margin in points in their previous meeting but since that time the Norwich swimmers have improved greatly in their style and a much closer contest is expected. The showing Norwich made in the recent state swimming meet held at the local "Y," although Norwich had but one man entered in this meet, he captured a good share of places in the various events. This man is Kundig and much is expected of him by the Norwich fins against New London on Saturday night.

The meet is the last of the season in this locality, although several entries are expected from both Norwich and New London in the swimming meet that will be held at Cambridge, Mass., on April 4th.

PENN-CALIFORNIA GAME IS NOW ASSURED

Berkeley, Calif., March 27. — President W. W. Campbell of the University of California announced today his approval of the football game arranged between the university and the University of Pennsylvania, to be held in the California stadium here next New Year's day.

Pennsylvania had sanctioned the game and the details had been arranged, President Campbell's approval being the only formality awaited.

NEW LONDON "Y" FIVE TO PLAY AT MERIDEN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 27.—Saturday afternoon the New London Y. M. C. A. team will play the Stamford "Y" basketball team for the state championship at Meriden at 5 o'clock. The two teams were, originally scheduled to play in New Haven, but the floor could not be secured and Bridgeport was then decided on to be the place where the teams would battle for the state title. A last minute meeting of the two teams concerned resulted in the deciding of Meriden as the city where the final game for the championship would be held was made, both New London and Stamford having to travel about an equal number of miles to participate.

In the semi-finals New London qualified for the finals by sending the Norwich "Y" five down to a defeat and Stamford defeated Torrington. Judging from newspaper accounts of the Stamford-Torrington contest, the writers think Stamford has a good chance for state pro honors. Stamford had a fast team and a tough game is looked forward to by the locals.

For the past two nights, Doc Dawson, physical director of the local "Y", has been putting the locals through their paces. Several new plays have been tried out with a varying amount of success. Dr. Dawson is expected to use a strong defensive game.

TWO TEAMS WITHDRAW FROM MILITARY LEAGUE

New London, March 27.—Two teams, the New London Ship and Engine and the 26th Brigade Headquarters Battery, have dropped out of the Military Basketball league. This announcement of these teams as withdrawing from the league follows closely upon the recent announcement made by the Knights of Columbus of their withdrawal from the league.

In interviewing Jack Russell, manager of the New London Ship and Engine, to ascertain the cause that his team withdrew from the Military league, Manager Russell stated "that the umpiring has been unfavorable to every team in the league from the very first game. A referee was never decided upon until the last minute when the game was about to get under way, by appointing a man to officiate at the last minute it was impossible to pick the right man that knew the rules and who would enforce them. The league never provided for a referee to be retained for all the games played in the Military league, if it did this was never enforced."

No sooner did the New London Ship and Engine team withdraw from the league when the announcement of the intention of the 26th Brigade Headquarters five to also withdraw from the circuit was made. 26th Brigade Headquarters has forfeited two contests and if the league rules are to be enforced, this team would be dropped from the league. However, before the league officials even acted on dropping the guardsmen from the league, their manager stated Tuesday night that his team has withdrawn from the league.

Tuesday night after the regular weekly drill, the members of the 26th Brigade Headquarters held a meeting in their rooms at the state armory. The topic for discussion was whether or not should this team remain in the league. The members of the team were dissatisfied with the conditions at the armory. There were no showers to which the teams could retire after a strenuous game. The referee question also was brought up and discussed. After hearing the disadvantages of remaining in the league, Captain Robert Keefe, who presided over the meeting, gave his consent to let the 26th Brigade Headquarters withdraw from the league.

On investigating the conditions of the games held at the state armory, the teams were in the right when they withdrew from the league because of poor officiating and no shower bath facilities. In the last few games played at the armory it was noticed that one referee did not officiate at any two games. This important position was wished on a spectator regardless of whether they had any previous experience in refereeing games or not. There are showers at the armory but they had not been used of late. They are in bad condition and will have to be fixed before they can be used.

Further developments in this matter will be printed in The Bulletin in the near future.

SUB BASE TEAM CLOSES SEASON SATURDAY NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 27.—The Submarine Base basketeers will make their valedictory Saturday night when they meet the Essex town team at the state armory in the main attraction of two games. The preliminary game will bring together the Headquarters quintet of this city and the Service Battery of Danielson. This game is also expected to be fast and a record crowd is expected to attend these games.

On Friday night the Submarine Base will travel to Stonington to take on the five representing that town at Arion hall at 8 o'clock. The only thing that may keep the gobs from registering an easy victory is the unfamiliarity of the Stonington court. The court at Stonington is very small and a team cannot exhibit its best. It is reported that Stonington is out to defeat the sailors and will have a much strengthened lineup since their previous game. A good basketball dual is expected.

The Danielson Battery seems to be the only team that can defeat the Headquarters five of this city. In the last meeting of these teams, a week ago, the Danielson team had an easy time in gaining a victory. It is most likely that this team will repeat Saturday.

The Base will wind up its season on Saturday night providing that Manager O'Hare does not hear from the Dixies of Hartford. Manager O'Hare of the Base said "that he would like to play the Dixies one more before putting away his uniform." If the Base is successful in getting the Dixies to meet the Base it will be the best attraction of the season.

NEW LONDON SPORT COMMENT.

Soccer Notes of Interest to Fans.

The New London Rangers and the Falco soccer football club of Holyoke want to arrange games with the Hartford F. C., the games to be played at the Hartford fairgrounds.

The professional league championship has developed into a two-team affair, Bethlehem is one point behind Fall River but has a match in hand, they may eventually win out.

Taftville soccer team, which was reported to be out of the race for The Bulletin cup may reconsider and re-enter again. On Saturday the New London Rangers will play Taftville at that city. Sunday the Rangers will travel to Crompton, R. I., for a game at that city. Since their game with the New Bedford All-Stars, the Rangers have gained state-wide recognition.

Coach E. S. Taylor of the Chapman Tech baseball team had to postpone all intentions of holding the first practice of the season today. The snow storm that hit New London Wednesday was the cause.

The J. N. Lapointe Co. will probably not enter a baseball team into the industrial league this summer. Only Saturday and Sunday games will be on the toolmakers' schedule.

A large number of fans will accompany the New London Ship and Engine team to New Haven on April 4th. The Ship and Engine team is entered in the state industrial elimination tournament.

MISS COLLETT MEETS MISS FORDYCE IN FINALS

Pinehurst, N. C., March 27.—With Miss Louise Fordyce of Youngstown, Ohio, and women's champion of that city, as her opponent, Miss Glenna Collette former national woman's golf champion and present holder of the north and south tournament title will play here tomorrow in the finals of the north and south tournament. Miss Collett, by reason of her close to par gold record of three out of four matches this week, is expected to successfully defend her title.

Miss Collett today eliminated Mrs. F. E. Dubois of Rye, New York, three up and one to play. In the first nine the defending titleholder played three strokes over par, being three up at the turn. Coming in she weakened and her opponent took the first three holes after which Miss Collett's game steadied. She won the 13th and 14th and halved the 15th, ending the match with a par on three on the sixteenth.

Miss Fordyce eliminated Mrs. Ronald Barlow, former woman champion of Philadelphia, three up and one to play. The match between these two was hard fought as predicted. From start to finish nearly the full number of holes being required for a decision.

REPORT OF DUNCAN TRADE IS NOT CONFIRMED

Cincinnati, March 27. — President August Herrman, and other officials of the Cincinnati Reds are out of the city and no confirmation of the exchange of Outfielder Duncan and two other players for Third Baseman Dressen could be obtained at the offices of the Cincinnati club. The Red management has been negotiating with the St. Paul club for Dressen, but the name of Duncan has never appeared in connection with this deal and baseball fans were greatly surprised when the announcement was made.

"I have not heard of such a deal, and do not believe that it is true."

TAFTVILLE SOCCER TEAM PLAYS RANGERS SATURDAY

On Saturday afternoon the Taftville soccer team will play its first game of the spring season at the Providence street grounds. Taftville's opponents will be the fast New London Rangers, a team that has made quite an enviable record on the soccer field since its inception a few months ago. Foston a former Taftville soccer star will be in the Rangers' lineup, having signed with that team for the season.

The Taftville team will be chosen from the following players: A. Finlayson, Provost, Jesse Greenhalgh, Wragg, McCluggage, Seidel, Hargrave, Eden, Strong, Joubert, Bjork, Stanton, Murphy and Walton. The players will report at 2.15.

NEWARK BASEBALL SQUABBLE SETTLED OUT OF COURT

Newark, N. J., March 27.—Storm signals which have been hoisted over the Newark baseball situation for the past month were withdrawn today after John Conway Toole, president of the International league announced the entire controversy would be settled amicably out of court.

This announcement came on the heels of a series of conferences between Toole and rival factions, as a result of which Baltimore interests will remain in control of the club and the syndicate headed by Michael McTighe of Newark, will abandon its fight to keep the franchise.

THE END OF THE TRAIL

I must travel the miles till the journey is done,
Whatsoever the turn of the way.
I shall bring up at last at the set of the sun.
And shall rest at the close of the day.
Let me deal as I journey with foeman and friends
In a way that no man can assail,
When I come to the end of the trail.

We are brothers who travel a great common road,
And the journey is easy for none.
We must succor the weary and lift on the load
Of the pilgrim whose courage is done.
Let me deal with them each on my way to the West
With a mercy that never shall fail,
And lie down to my dreams with a conscience at rest
When I come to the end of the trail.

—Clarence E. Flynn, in The Christian Herald.

DEMPSEY WILL MEET HARRY WILLS IN "FIGHT TO FINISH" BOUT IN MEXICO

Omaha, Neb., March 27. — Jack Kearns, manager of Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, expects to sign papers within a few days binding Dempsey to a match with Harry Wills, negro heavyweight contender, at Tijuana, Mexico, probably on Labor day, Kearns declared today while he stopped here on his way west.

Kearns said that James Coffroth, Pacific coast sportsman, would sponsor the bout, and that it would be "a finish fight." Dispatches from San Diego, quoted Coffroth in verification of Kearns' announcement but developed that Kearns' desire that the bout be staged on Labor day is not shared by Coffroth, who wants it nearer the climax of the racing season at Tijuana.

Kearns asserted that another bout between Dempsey and Luis Firpo, the South American champion, is not being considered now, "on account of Firpo's recent showing," but said: "Wills is the man we want to meet—after we have collected some motion picture shekles, and Wills is the man the people want to see meet Dempsey. This fight will net Dempsey and myself close to one million dollars—maybe more.

Dempsey and myself have been slandered long enough. It's to prove that Wills looks no bigger to Jack than anybody else that we are willing and anxious to make this fight."

Kearns said Dempsey would not referee the proposed Gibbons-Carpentier match and that "he will never fight Gibbons again unless the latter's few fights proved he would be a good drawing card for a return match with the champion."

HARRIS PINS HOPE ON WALTER JOHNSON

By Stoney McLinn

Tampa, Fla., March 26—Washington will start the 1924 American League pennant chase with a boy manager—the twenty-seven-year-old Stanley Harris—and two other assets which may be important, Walter Johnson and a fine club spirit.

In political circles there is an old saying, "As goes Maine, so goes the country." Walter Johnson is the "Maine" of the Senators' baseball company.

When Walter is in fine fettle, gets a zip on his fast one and keeps enemy clubs uneasy, Washington invariably is a factor in the race at some stage, if not throughout its progress. The Kansas Cyclone is rearin' to go as this is written.

Johnson alone can't win a pennant, or even assure the Senators a first-division berth. But Walter, by his example, injects vigor and confidence into the other b. b. laborers on Clarke Griffith's payroll.

What Washington needed, as it was generally agreed, was a batting punch, a regular third-sacker of class and additional strength in the curving corps. Will the Senators have these essentials?

Sammy Rice and Goose Goslin are outfield fixtures. Both are competent chasers; both bat left-handed. Rice had an average of .316 last season; Goslin hit an even .300.

One would travel far to find two gardeners superior to Sammy and Goose in all-round play. But neither has the old punch; neither is a slugging threat such as Ruth, Heilmann and other A. L. terrors.

Rice will play center field this year, if present plans of the manager are not wrecked; Goslin will again be the left fielder.

Now the punch must be in the person of the right fielder, and for the position Harris is studying the training camp labors of three athletes. One is Nemo Leibold, formerly with the Red Sox and last season with the Senators; the others are Lance Fishbourg, once a big leaguer with Giants and Phils, and Carr Smith, a rather raw recruit.

Smith may remain on the Washington payroll because he is the only right-handed batsman among the six outfield candidates. He is a 23 year old kid who hit .413 for Raleigh in the Piedmont League. Among his 184 blows were 38 two-baggers, 25 triples and 24 home runs. The kid can wield the lumber, but he seems to lack the polish.

Another lad who wants to be an outfielder for Washington is George Fisher. He batted .365 for New Haven, of the Eastern League, in 1923. But he swings from the first-base side of the plate and, at this writing, is not quite on a par with Richbourg and Leibold.

With the heavy-hitting and energetic Joe Judge on first base, Manager Harris himself on second and the reliable and brainy Roger Peckinpaugh at shortstop, three-fourths of the Washington infield is all that any manager could desire.

Third base was Bush's infield problem last year. It has been the position given most attention by Bucky Harris in the Tampa camp. He appears to have settled on Protho to start the season at the hot corner.

Bluege, who started last campaign as the regular third-sacker and who was hurt and playing under severe handicaps, is an active candidate for the third-bag assignment this spring. But Protho is the better of the pair at this time.

Utility infielders with Washington probably are Shirley, a first-sacker from the University of North Carolina; Gagnon, a former college star who spent the last season with New Haven and Pittsfield, and maybe Boan, a semipro kid who essays to play shortstop. The last named is likely to go into the miners for experience part of the time.

Defensively, Washington's infield ranks with the best. With the exception of Judge, who hit .314 in 1923, the batting strength is only so-so. But Harris hopes to put the attacking punch in the outfield.

The Senators have in George Mogridge and Jesubel Zackary two capital southpaws. They were regulars on the staff last year, and while in the matter of victories neither had a toppy percentage, they were feared by opposing clubs.

Mogridge took part in 33 games, winning 13 and losing the same number. But in effectiveness he stood fifth among American League pitchers, allowing only 3.11 earned runs per game.

Zachary stepped on the hill in 35 games and was credited with ten victories and charged with 16 defeats. He permitted opposing nines 4.50 earned runs per game. But he's a toppy pitcher just the same, in the opinion of his boss and others.

Allen Russell the spitball veteran, was used principally for relief work last season and that will be his job in 1924. He was in 52 games, won ten and lost seven, and allowed only 3.03 earned runs per game.

Paul Zahniser, who toiled in Memphis for a part of the campaign, returned to Washington in the fall to show great form. He was credited with nine wins and lost ten games. But he held the enemy to 3.86 earned runs per game and will have a regular turn in the box this coming campaign.

Dangerous Dan McGraw, who stands six feet five and one-half inches in his silk sox, is having his third spring training chance to show the Senators that he deserves a regular place on the payroll. He was sent to Memphis last year, where he won 22 and lost 13. He is a 23 year-old boy and should remain in the A. L. this season.

Fred Marberry was another factor in the climb of Washington last fall. He spent the major portion of the season with Little Rock and his record was eleven wins and ten losses. But when he joined the Senators he turned in four victories and allowed only 2.80 earned runs per game.

Joe Martina cannot be called a recruit since he is 34 years old and has been pitching for a number of years. But he is a husky athlete who knows the answers—he won 21 and lost 10 for New Orleans in 1923. Harris likes Martina's style and spirit; we predict Joe will be a regular member of the staff and may win his share of games.

Muddy Ruel, a wise catcher who hit .316 last season, will be chief of the receiving corps. Bill Hargrave, brother of the famous Bubbles of the Reds, will be second backstopper. Bennett Tate, an effervescent half-pint sized boy who, of course, selected the six-foot-five McGraw as his roomie and pal, will be the third catcher.

Washington's coaches, Nick Altrock, who is not always a comedian, and Jack Chesbro, who once wild-pitched a pennant away for Griffith, are students of the game who should develop whatever talent is to be found among the pitchers.

ROBINSON INSISTS ON BRAINS ON HIS TEAM

By Stoney McLinn

Clearwater, Fla., March 27—Wilbert Robinson, familiarly known as Uncle Robbie, is generally rated the best tutor of baseball chuckers in the land. When the Brooklyn manager hands an athlete a diploma, he is a pitcher—never a mere thrower.

Uncle Robbie doesn't find room for throwers in his clubhouse. A player who lacks the brains to learn the motions which will make him effective soon has his name scratched from the Brooklyn payroll.

There are the three stars of the Robinson staff—Dazs. Vance Burleigh Grimes and Dutch Ruether. One would not go far wrong if he named them the "Big Three" of the major leagues.

Brooklyn finished sixth last campaign because their infield was like unto an ancient and torn sieve. Robbie could not seem to find athletes to labor intelligently and skillfully at the very important second base and shortstop positions.

Therefore, it is right and proper that we should discuss the infield possibilities for Brooklyn before trying to dope out how many pitchers the Brooklyn manager has developed to assist his "Big Three."

At this writing the first and third base assignments apparently are settled. Jacques Fournier, the veteran with the French name who plays American baseball, will be the first sacker. His batting and handling of thrown balls are more than satisfactory.

An athlete who owns to 30 years on this earth is not old. Maybe Fournier is slowing up a bit—can't run bases like lightning and doesn't cover so much territory in scooping up ground balls. But Jacques can hit.

Last season the Robin first baseman slapped the apple for an average of .351. He hit 30 doubles, 13 triples and 22 homers. He was charged with more defensive errors than any other first sacker, but he handled plenty chances at that. Fournier will do.

Jimmy Johnston, the third baseman, is not a youngster; in fact, he is 35 years old. He is slowing up, too. But he had a batting mark of .324 last season. He did most of his infielding around the keystone sack last year, playing both second and short.

However, Jimmy can hit, and he has the courage to go after the ride shots down the third-base line. It is Robbie's conviction at this time that Johnston will be his regular third sacker.

The two talented youngsters purchased by Squire Ebbets to form a keystone sack partnership missed a lot of the spring practice for one reason or another.

Joe Klugman, obtained from Des Moines, of the Western League, stopped a batted ball early in March and had to rest when he was coming along rapidly. Johnny Jones refused to join the team because he could not extract from some wealthy magnate a $5,000 slice of the purchase price.

Zack Wheat, 36 years old starting his sixteenth season with Brooklyn, is the outfield punch of the team and will be found grabbing drives from enemy bats that travel into left field. Zack batted .375 last campaign and seems quite able to repeat that performance, basing this statement on the form he has displayed in the training camp.

Tom Griffith and Bernie Neis, outfielders with the club last year, seem to have first call for the center and right field assignments. Neither batted .300 last season—Neis hit only .274; rather low for a regular fly chaser in the big leagues these days.

Simpson, a young man who hit 44 homers for Springfield in the Eastern League, whose batting average was .359 and who stole 34 bases, is toiling energetically in the Clearwater ball orchard. Simpson has worn the mask, we are informed, and might be a good all-round utility man if he does not win a regular job.

Then there is boy from the Eastern League, Dick Loftus, who pounds the baseball effectively. He is listed as an outfielder, but has been doing some first base work in the training camp.

Loftus was with Bridgeport in 1923 and his batting average was .329 in 134 games. He handles himself well on the defense, whether in the outfield or on first base.

Deberry, Hargreaves and Taylor were with the club last season. Gonzales was obtained this spring at a cost of approximately $10,000. It has been the opinion right along that Gonzales was for trading purposes.

Simpson also does some catching at times. He stuck to outfielding in the Eastern League, but, as has been written earlier, might don the catcher's armor if the necessity arose.

And now for the pitchers. Leo Dickerman and Arthur Decatur are youngsters who use the right arm to throw and were members of Robbie's corps last season. Neither did much to attract attention.

Dickerman, however, has been chucking the apple satisfactorily in Clearwater and the manager thinks he is about due. Decatur also is regarded highly this training season.

Frank Henry, a southpaw formerly with Cleveland, was not in tiptop shape last year—a sore arm or something of the sort. But he has been laboring industriously and is a possibility this campaign.

Yerrison, once a member of the Athletics' staff and last year a winning pitcher for Portland, is a newcomer on the staff who is expected to show something pleasing to the Brooklyn fans. He has a world of stuff and a baffling motion.

Tommy Long, a wee southpaw who won 21 games for Mobile last season, has a curve ball, despite stories to the contrary. He probably will remain with the Robins and get a real chance.

Nels Green, another left-hander who threw the sphere for Richmond in '23, looks like a comer. He may not be quite ripe yet—but Robbie had a good word for him.

There are other pitchers on the training camp roster, who may be put on the Brooklyn payroll. As a matter of fact, Uncle Robbie has no cause for alarm over his pitching, as we see it.

NEIS THREATENS TO QUIT DODGERS AFTER DISPUTE

New York, March 27.—Bernie Neis, star young outfielder of the Brooklyn Nationals, has threatened to quit the club as a result of a row with Manager Wilbert Robinson, according to dispatches today from the training camp at Clearwater, Fla. In return, it was said, Robinson offered Neis to St. Louis in a proposed trade which would bring Milton Stock, third sacker, to the Dodgers, but the Cardinals turned down the bid.

The dispute between Neis and Robson arose over the length of lay-off the player insisted upon, after suffering a bone bruise in an exhibition game with Cleveland recently.

We Have With Us—Willie O'Dowd

Willie O'Dowd of Central Village is crying again for a bout with Young Coulon of Taftville or Young Falcone of Norwich. Willie sends along an extensive list of boys he has beaten by the knockout route and confidently asserts that he can do the same to any boy in the 112 pound division. Little Willie fairly pleads with some of the boys to give him battle as he is rarin' to go.

Shugrue Beats Lewis .....

New Haven, March 27—Willie Shugrue, of Waterbury scored a technical knockout over Kid Lewis, of Hartford, in the final round of a 15-round bout here tonight.

MYSTIC

Friends here of James B. Gaffney, a former Mystic boy, who went to San Francisco, Cal., about thirty years ago, are interested in hearing of a new market which he and his partner, Raymond A. Luce, opened the first of this month in San Francisco, under the name of the Hum market, in a new six-story building which they have just had erected in Market street, near Haight St. The San Francisco Call and Post of Feb. 29th has this to say about the new market. "Residents in the vicinity of Haight and Market streets will welcome the opening of the Hub market, undoubtedly the best equipped food store in the city. The proprietors Gaffney & Luce, have spared no expense when considering the question of sanitation. No market in the world has a more complete refrigeration system. The sanitary features are unparalleled. Counters are completely covered with glass and connected with the refrigeration plant. A rest room furnished with every convenience is at the disposal of the ladies. A co-operative delivery system will make it possible for patrons to make purchases at any or all departments and have all purchases delivered without delay or confusion at one time. The five departments, meat and poultry, grocery and delicatessen, bakery, fish, fruit and vegetables, are conducted by men selected out of hundreds of applicants. Gaffney & Luce are well known whole, sale and retail butchers who have prospered by adhering to their slogan: "Meats That Satisfy; Prices That Please." The Gaffney & Luce building in which the Hub market is located has in addition to the market and restaurant on the ground floor, forty of the finest apartments in the downtown district." Mr. Gaffney, or Jimmie Gaffney as he is best known by his old school friends in the Broadway school, is the son of the late Michael Gaffney and resided in the house now occupied by Walter J. Shea on Jackson avenue, which was built by the Gaffneys when they moved from the Aunt Lavina Denison house, where they resided for many years. After leaving Mystic, Mr. Gaffney went to Norwich, where he was employed for a time, and about thirty years ago went to California for his health and located in San Francisco. He is married and has one son. His nearest relative in this section is a sister, Mrs. John R. McNamara, who lives in Norwich. Mystic is always interested in her sons and daughters who have left their home town and gone out into the world and made good and is glad to add Mr. Gaffney's name to the long list of those who have achieved conspicuous success in their chosen field.

Mrs. Frank Batty and Mrs. Newton A. Dickinson went to New Haven Thursday to attend the Thirty-first annual state conference of the Connecticut Daughers of the American Revolution as delegates from Fanny Ledyard Chapter, D. A. The schools close today (Friday) for a week.

PLAINFIELD

Preparations are well under way for moving the Mercier store. The building is to be moved back from the street, into the lot which is behind the present store. The plans of the Mercier brothers who own the store, are to build a new, up to date building, somewhat larger than the old one, where the present building now stands. The new one will be used as a combination store, just as the old one has been. The stock will be left in the present building until the new structure is completed, and ready to move into.

The high school baseball team started practice Wednesday afternoon, at the Carpet Grounds, Moosup, with practically all the regulars, and many recruits turning out. Plainfield has the material for a good team this year and some of the best teams in this state, and in Massachusetts are Rhode Island are on the schedule. Irbeault pitching, Allard behind the bat, Boyle covering the initial sack, French at short stop, DeMoranville at third and Williams and Gallup in the field, leaves second base, and one of the field positions open. Several promising men have turned out for these places, so prospects look rather rosy. A practice game will be played this (Friday) afternoon, at the Carpet Grounds, where all the home games are to take place, with the Cranska Mill team of Moosup. Following is the schedule for the season:

April 5, West Warwick, R. I., at Moosup; April 8, open; April 12, Chapman Tech, at Moosup; April 15, LaSalle Academy, at Providence; April 19, Bulkeley at New London; April 23, Bartlett High at Webster, Mass.; April 26, open; April 29, open; May 3, Stonington High at Stonington; May 7, Pomfret at Pomfret; May 10, Bartlett at Moosup; May 14, Putnam at Putnam; May 17, Norwich Free Academy at Norwich; May 20, Stonington at Moosup; May 24, open; May 30, North Attleboro, Mass., at North Attleboro; May 31, Puntam at Moosup; June 3, Chapman Tech at New London Jun e7, Warwick High at Moosup; June 10, open; June 16, Bulkeley at Moosup.

Games are also pending with Killingly, Providence College and a return game with North Attleboro.

This (Friday) evening, the Community House swimming team goes to South Manchester, where they meet the team representing South Manchester. Several of the men who played with the Recs when they met the Plainfield basketball team here, are members of the swimming team, so an interesting match is expected. The Plainfield team has been developing rapidly, practicing a great deal in the pool at the Community House, and their opponents will have to show their best to win the meet tonight. A return meet is scheduled for the community house pool for Thursday, April 10.

The grammar schools of the town of Plainfield, close at noon today (Friday) for the Easter vacation, lasting one week. The High school will not close until 2.30, thereby finishing out its full day. Monday, April 7, the schools will open for the spring term.

Archbishop Mundelein, of Chicago, is one of the prelates being mentioned as most likely to be accorded the honor of being appointed a new cardinal by Pope Pius, at the secret consistory on December 20th. No hint has come from the Vatican as to the choice, but if it should be an American, Mundelein is almost assured of the promotion.

Simple Home Treatment for Sore Throat

Here is a simple yet effective method to treat a sore throat. Gargle with warm salt water three times daily. Also swallow slowly every few hours a teaspoonful of Vicks.

At night apply Vicks over the throat and upper chest, rubbing well in. Then spread on thickly and cover with a warm flannel cloth.

The body heat releases the ingredients —Menthol, Camphor, Eucalyptus, Juniper Tar, etc.—in the form of vapors and these vapors, inhaled all night long, go directly to the affected parts.

At the same time Vicks is absorbed thru and stimulates the skin like a liniment or plaster drawing out the soreness and pain.

THE DAYS OF THE GIANTS.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin)

"There were giants in those days." That, or some kindred expression meaning about the same thing, has been trite upon the tongue of every generation since the flood.

It is a curious illustration of that persistent wrong-headedness which characterizes average humanity that its universal and enduring endeavor seems to be to make out that the past was wonderful—instead of bending its back to the better worth while task of making the future wonderful.

It isn't a modern trait. So long as the days of King Tut, the Egyptian historians were telling their sore-eyed hearers of the laity about the preternatural magnificance of the times of King Menes, nobody knows how many thousand years before even their age.

Still farther back, the kings of ancient Assyria were painfully collecting and transcribing the scattered records of ancestors thousands of years preceding them, in order that their degenerate subjects might appreciate the incredible wisdom and strength and longevity of their own forebears, as far behind them as they are behind us.

"There were giants in those days." Why, three thousands years ago, the then inhabitants of the known world were being told how much better a world it was three thousand years farther back; how much happier; how much richer; how much wiser. It was a mighty shiftless and no-account king who didn't reign a thousand years, in those former times, and lead a million warriors to battle every other day. At least, so the bleak-bearded priests taught and so their historians set it down, as some fragments still surviving of their wonder-tales testify.

Every since that time the trait has persisted. As boys we are taught that the men of a former time were giants in comparison with the commonplace people we knew. Even our own dads seem to take a sort of unholy pleasure in running themselves down, that they may, by comparison, exalt the memory of their grand-dads.

It chanced, last week, that I was looking over some old books and pamphlets, some of them printed more than a hundred years ago, by or for or about those very granddads whose wonderful virtue and wisdom we are constantly adjured to fall down and worship. And it occurred to me that perhaps some extracts might prove informative to such as haven't made the time or the opportunity for rummaging among such old stuff.

A few months after Washington had taken command of the Continental army which was besieging the British in Boston, after he had had time to "get his bearings" as the saying goes, and had found out the real character of the men he must work with, he wrote to the president of congress: "I am sorry to be necessitated to mention to you the egregious want of public spirit which prevails here." This was in an official communication and was, therefore, drawn mild. But in a private letter to his secretary, Reed, he expressed himself more freely. "Such dearth of public spirit and such want of virtue, such stock-jobbing, and fertility in all the low arts to gain advantage of one kind or another, I never saw before, and I pray God's mercy that I may never be witness to again!"

I suspect that this judgment of the greatest American of his time on the "solid men of Boston" whom we have usually been taught to regard as wholly disinterested, self-sacrificing patriots of the purest sort, will seem somewhat startling to some of you.

But how about the army itself, those "old Continentals" in their ragged buff-faced regimentals, whose bravery in the face of attack, whose constancy in the bearing of privation, whose undying love of country we have been taught bore them over unimaginable sufferings to final victory? Surely, they were worthier than those stock-jobbing hypocrites of Boston?

Well, after Washington's clever strategy had forced the British to evacuate Boston, they sailed to New York and, in turn, forced the Americans to abandon that city. How the "Old Continentals" behaved, first on Long Island and, later on Harlem Heights may be seen again through Washington's own eyes. As to the Long Island situation, he wrote, next day to the president of congress: "The militia, instead of calling forth their utmost efforts to a brave and manly opposition in order to repair our losses, are dismayed, intractable, and impatient to return. Great numbers of them have gone off; in some instances almost by whole regiments . . . With the deepest concern I am obliged to confess my want of confidence in the generality of the troops.

Less than two weeks after this was written, the British having perfected their plans, made an attack on New York near Harlem Heights. The American breastworks were manned by militia from Brooklyn, supported by two brigades of Connecticut troops. At the first fire of the enemy they all broke and fled in panic. Washington came galloping up and tried to rally the terror-stricken mob, but all to no purpose. The sound of a musket or the sight of a few redcoats sent them flying headlong. I quote the next paragraph from Irving's Life of Washington:

Losing all self-command at the sight of such dastardly conduct, he dashed his hat upon the ground in a transport of rage. "Are these the men," he exclaimed, "with whom I am to defend America?" In a paroxysm of passion and despair he snapped his pistol at some of them, threatened others with his sword, etc., etc.

That seems to suggest that there were a plenty of cowards and dastards in the ranks, as well as stock-jobbers among the civilians.

There must have been many good men and true at the same time, both in office, in the army and in private life. Undoubtedly these real patriots outnumbered the scalawags and cowards. Else the outcome would have been different. It is enough for present purposes if we are able to see that human nature was just about the same hodge-podge then that it is now; that there were no more giants in those days than there are in these; and that there were quite as many pygmies.

On all sides I hear of the complaints that politics are rotten; that all public men are corrupt; that all office-holders are grafters, and that things are worse, now, than they ever were in the past. Such talk is puerile. Worse, it is untrue. Still worse, it is a cowardly betrayal of humanity's progressive hope.

As to the rottenness of politics, can there ever be a more rotten deal than that with which Haman of Ahasuerus' time sought to overthrow Mordecai and his compatriots? As to the charge that public men are corrupt, can things be worse than they were two hundred years ago in England when Prime Minister Walpole bitterly declared that "all men have their price?" As to the charge that graft is everywhere, can you write a worse indictment for today than George Washington wrote, 'way back in 1774, of the stock-jobbers of New England?

Don't be too ready, when you catch a whiff from Teapot Dome, to assert that the whole universe stinks. Don't leap to the conclusion, when rumor assails some once fair reputation, that everybody else's good reputation must be false.

There were stock-jobbing scoundrels infesting Washington's camp before Boston; there were cowards in his army above New York; there were caballing Conways and undermining Gateses and insubordinate Lees and traitorous Arnolds among those high in his counsels; yet the revolution triumphed and independence was won.

There are probably grafters in plenty at the national capital,—there certainly is an over-sufficiency of dampheels,—as there always have been, and, doubtless, always will be till human nature reforms itself and obeys its reason rather than its delusions and prejudices and selfishnesses. There was one Judas even among the divinely chosen twelve. And there was one coward who denied his Master. Who, therefore, presumes to denounce the whole Apostolate?

Don't get the idea, either, that there were no backbiters and political scandal-mongers in the days of the nation's fathers. They were as roundly abused, as bitterly attacked and as recklessly libelled as any man today. None escaped. Not even the best of them.

Read, for illustration, this extract from The Philadelphia Aurora printed two days after the close of Washington's second administration:—"The man who is the source of all the misfortunes of our country is this day reduced to a level with his fellow-citizens, and is no longer possessed of power to multiply evils upon the United States. If ever there was a period for rejoicing this is the moment; every heart in unison with the freedom and happiness of the people ought to beat high with exultation that the name of Washington from this day ceases to give currency to political iniquity and to legalize corruption."

John Adams, the second president, got it even worse from the partisans of his time. One called him (in print, mind you,) "A person without abilities and without virtue." Another hated him as a "hoary-headed incendiary." A third called him "John Adams, that scourge, that scorn, that outcast of America:" A fourth declared: "We have been governed by one of the most execrable of all scoundrels."

Jefferson, the third president, didn't get off much better. One of his opponents, after sneering at Jefferson's "plausible appearance and specious talents," goes on to say that "in his political conduct he has been timid, inconsistent and unsteady; his political principles are sometimes whimsical and visionary, at others, subversive of all regular and stable government; his writings have betrayed a disrespect for religion and his advice a want of due regard for national faith and public credit; his administration would eventuate in the debasement of the American name, the subversion of our excellent constitution and the consequent destruction of our present prosperity."

D'ye think Denby and Daugherty are getting it any worse than that? We believe, and rightly that Washington and Adams and Jefferson were sound statesmen, honest patriots, and worthy of their high placed in the calendar of fame. But you see that even they had slanderers in their own day.

Why, if it could be permitted any of us to revisit the earth, a hundred years hence, we should undoubtedly find people at that time sorrowing over their age's degeneracy, and bemoaning the absence from it of such pure-minded statesmen as made notable this earliest quarter of the twentieth century.

No, brethren, the Age of Gold and the Days of the Giants were not in any past. They may be ahead of us, certainly they are not behind us. They are not to be dug out from ancient ruins, but to be built up on the hills of the future.

That is, they are to be if we of this and the coming generation have the root of the matter in us. If the world goes forward it will be because we've got behind it and pushed.

We can't afford, for our own sakes, to neglect our opportunities, or prove recreant to our trust.

THE FARMER.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
By DAVID CORY

Bobby Redvest

Now let me see and let me think.
Where did we last leave off?
I hope the bunny boy isn't lost.
Nor ill with the whooping cough.

Oh, won't some dear little girl or boy
Tell me now the last story ended?
I've written so many these last eight days
I must have my memory mended.

Dear me, but I'm a lucky man. Just as I was going to call up Doctor

Quack, the famous duck doctor of Mud Bank, White Lily Pond, Drakeville, to send me some Memory Pills or Recollection Powders, who should come to my window this morning. Oh, so early, while the dew was on the grass, and the Tinkle Winkle Sunbeams made a rainbow on the glass, but Bobbie Redvest. Yes sir and yes mam. That dear little bird peeped in through the window of the Turnip Hotel in Rabbitville and said:

"You left off in the last story just when the chauffeur shouted: 'Bunnybridge!'"

"So I did," I yawned, for I was half awake and nearly asleep. "Little Jack Rabbit's dreaming over there in bed. Fly over and sing to him, for the Alarm Clock has gone on a strike. Away flew the little robin, and when he had perched himself on the bed post, he began:

"Wake up, wake up, you sleepy rabbit,
You must not get a lazy habit.
When you go home, your mother will say
You never again can go away."

"I'm awake, I'm awake," sighed the little bunny. "I only had my eyes shut to keep out the light."

Then hopping up, he put on his jacket and gold watch and chain.

"Uncle Dave is going tonight," he said to the little redvested bird, "So tell mother to leave the latch off and a little candle in the window. For maybe the Moon will be in bed

And maybe the stars will be asleep
When I come hopping home.

But if I see from the Bramble Patch
A thin white thread of light,
I'll know that Mother has thought of me
Out in the Shadowy night.

"Well, it's about time I told what happened at Bunnybridge yesterday," said David Cory. "We had a splendid time at the Bunnybridge Book Shop. All the little rabbit boys and girls were there and they behaved so nicely and were so polite to me that I promised to send them each a picture of myself and Little Jack Rabbit promised to send a barrel of lollypops to all my little boys and girls."

"That's fine," chirped Bobbie Redvest. "I'll fly over at once to the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave and tell him to climb up the Lollypop tree."

And in the next story you shall hear what happened after that.

WESTMINSTER

Second Corinthians, 6:2, was the pastor's text at Sunday morning worship. The wonderful blue skies and balmy air resulted in improved attendance in spite of the bad roading and the pastor publicly commended those from some distance for their heroic courage in coming.

The fellowship of prayer topic for the week beginning March 30 is The Worlds Work—Workers Together With God.

The sudden accidental ending of the earthly life of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorrance affected Westminster very deeply. Mr. Dorrance had lived for several years of his young manhood, in the house now owned and occupied by Axel Helstrom and family and owned a large sheep pasture here at the time of his death, visiting frequently in this region, where all were his warm friends. Mrs. Dorrance being a South Canterbury girl, was also familiar here. Being intensely interested in historical research work, including a study of ancient gravestones, she did very thorough work in connection with the gravestones and history of many Revolutionary citizens who rest in Westminster church cemetery. In the afternoon exercises of Old Home Patriotic Day, last September, Mrs. Dorrance enumerated in steps by which she had established the identity of the graves whose S. A. R. markers were dedicated and put in charge of the Westminster cemetery fund of the Ecclesiastical society at that time, and gave a condensed account of the men and of Westminsters patriotic work in securing national independence. It was a fascinating, brilliantly written paper, closely holding the attention of all, later printed in full by The Bulletin, and greatly praised. A large number from this place were at the double funeral.

At the republican caucus Wednesday evening of last week, only 18 were present to represent the town; a number from the northern end, the rest from the Plains and the Green, the terrible condition of the roads prohibiting the attendance of many.

The town committee was increased to seven, Andrew Clark and Mrs. Clinton Frink being added, as chairman and vice chairman respectively. Levy Clark, Mrs. Dorothy Bennett, Mrs. James Towne, Mrs. Grace Wright and Mr. Wright being re-elected.

Andrew Clark, Mrs. Clinton Frink, Lemuel Carpenter and Herbert Williams were elected delegates to the 29th district republican caucus at Willimantic, Saturday, March 22. Lemuel Carpenter being unable to attend, Christian Kerr went as his substitute. Canterbury was especially honored at Willimantic by having Herbert Williams chairman; Mrs. Frink reelected a member of the republican state central committee for the district; also of its state committee on organization.

Edward and Raymond Green were at home Sunday from North Plain, Conn., where they are employed by T. C. Ives, lumberman.

The third evangelical service held by Rev. Mr. Gallup of Danielson, and some of his people at the M. E. church, was not as largely attended as the first two, on account of the bad roads. They held a prayer meeting at the M. E. church Thursday evening of this week.

MASTER OF THE K391 BOUND OVER FOLLOWING NEW LONDON HEARING

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 23—Johnny Gentilella, about 10 came away from Lawrence hospital this afternoon and went to his home on Town hill where he will recruit for a few days before he is able to be about and do any work that he may be called upon to do after school hours. He had been in the hospital three weeks, suffering from a fractured leg, an injury sustained when run down on lower Bank street by an automobile operated by William Jervis, an employe at the state hospital at Norwich. Jervis resides at 116 Laurel Hill avenue, Norwich. It is understood that he represents that he carried insurance against accident and that any bills necessitated at the hospital because of the accident will be borne by the insurance company. It is also claimed that the parents of Gentilella will look to Jervis for other compensation than that which is necessitated to pay the hospital and doctors' bills. There has been some correspondence as to this matter between Jervis and the parents of the injured lad, but no settlement has been reached. The boy was crossing the street at the time he Jervis automobile ran into him and the driver represented that he did not see the boy. The street is well lighted at the point where the accident occurred and the lad was using a crossing that is in general use.

Bruce LaMott of Niantic, Arthur Royster of Bradford, R. I., Mrs. Arthur LeBlanc of Rogers street and Mrs. John Halpein of Ledyard street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel ordered the operator's license of George Nugent of Bulkeley place suspended.

An electric sign in front of the Capitol Barber shop on Bank street, was discovered smashed this forenoon and the proprietor of the establishment lodged complaint with the police. Sergeant Frank Howard reported that the breaking of the sign was undoubtedly due to the wind.

Henry J. Howard has sold to Joseph Bates a tract of land on Colman street.

It was discovered today that the cottage at 33 Board Walk, Ocean Beach, had been entered by a thief, but so far as could be ascertained, nothing in the way of plunder was obtained. The cottage is owned by Matthew R. Malinowsky of New Britain and has been closed since last fall. Patrolman Ernest Opperman in making his rounds this afternoon discovered that the place had been entered, then the thief having smashed a window which permitted the window being opened. After ransacking the cottage the thief left by the front door, but did not secure it.

Commissioner Robbins B. Stoeckel has requested the New London police to enforce the automobile regulation relative to automobile markers being placed in proper position also that the markers be kept clean that they may be legible in case of accident.

The slight snowfall of yesterday provided means for the boys to amuse themselves today for they snowballed pedestrians and autoists at the corner of Willetts and Ocean avenues. Complaint was finally made to the police and the pastime was brought to an end.

A large limb of a tree in front of the premises, 168 Blinman street was in danger of falling to the sidewalk this afternoon when discovered by Constant H. C. Pittman. The police were notified and they in turn informed the highway department of the existing danger. The limb was removed late this afternoon.

William Gurney of 120 State street, sustained a painful injury and in a peculiar manner this forenoon. Gurney was walking on the south side of State street when he stepped upon the hatchway to the Garfield block, No. 89. William Carter, a teamster in the employ of the Howard Street Coal Company, had gone to the cellar of the building to open the hatchway that coal might be put in. As Gurney stepped on the hatchway, Carter suddenly caused it to be opened, the suddenness with which the metal covering was raised causing Gurney to be hurled into the gutter. Gurney landed upon his face and head and sustained lacerations.

City Manager William A. Holt this morning meted out the discipline he was expected to do in the case of Police Sergeant Charles Hammond, who was tried last Friday of the charges of drinking while on duty on the night of the 16th inst. The city manager informed Captain of Police Charles A. Finney that the officer had been demoted, the demotion to take effect April 1st. The decision of the city manager did not come with surprise for it was an almost certainty that the severest punishment possible would be handed to the sergeant. It was indicated at the start that Hammond would be dismissed from the force, if that was possible, but because of the disapproval of the board of inquiry of the recommendation of the city manager that Hammond be discharged, the next most severe penalty was assured.

The demotion of the officer will leave the place of street sergeant open, but in all probability Acting Sergeant William Babcock will receive the permanent appointment, as that officer is known to be Captain Finney's choice for the sergeancy. However Babcock's appointment is not assured, for Patrolman John Cavanaugh and George Perkins, older officers in years of service, are seeking the appointment.

Rapid progress is being made on the alterations at the Masonic club's quarters on Huntington street, and by the first Wednesday in April the immense rooms that is to cover the ground area of the building is expected to be ready for use. The club provided an evening's entertainment for their young women friends Wednesday when there was a very large attendance. There was vocal and instrumental music and then followed dancing, with a lunch served.

Mrs. Raymond Galbraith and infant son of 32 Ledyard street, were patients dismissed at Home Memorial hospital today.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin L. Armstrong of Granite street, who are spending the winter at St. Petersburg, Fla., of the engagement of their daughter, Miss Angela Armstrong, to Jason Bailey of Atlanta, Ga. The wedding will take place at St. Petersburg in May, prior to the return of the Armstrong family to New London.

Official ballots which will be used at the special city election to take place April 7th when the voters will decide whether the city shall build a junior high school, arrived at the office of the city clerk today. There is considerable opposition to the plan of the board of school visitors to erect the new school house and with the city having reached practically its limit of borrowing, taxpayers are generally opposed to the expenditure of money for such a purpose.

Another dangerous sidewalk was reported by the police this evening when a large depression was discovered in front of the premises at 159 Bank street, owned by Meyer H. Hollandersky.

Edwin G. Swanson of 322 Broad street, employed as a locomotive fireman by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, is a patient at a private hospital tonight as a result of injuries sustained late this afternoon when the motorcycle he was operating collided with a commercial truck, owned by Otto Seidner of Westerly and operated by Andrew S. Dexter of Poquonoc Bridge. It was at first believed that Swanson was terribly injured, but an examination revealed that he is suffering from shock and bruises.

Swanson was en route from his home to the central part of the city and operated his machine at a high rate of speed, according to witnesses. When the machine was passing through Broad street and was approaching the corner of Hempstead street, the truck operated by Dexter emerged from Hempstead street and turning into Broad street, headed in a southerly direction. Before the truck was straightened out on Broad street, Swanson's cycle crashed against the body of the heavier vehicle. Swanson was rendered unconscious as he was hurled from the machine. The police were notified and the speed automobile was operated to the site of the accident. Swanson was found lying in the highway unconscious. He was placed in the automobile and rushed to the hospital a short distance away, where he regained consciousness an hour later.

The 38th anniversary of Seaside Council, Knights of Columbus, was celebrated in an informal manner at the club house of the organization on Huntington street this evening. The affair was attended by a large number of members who enjoyed a repast and the addresses and music which followed.

The members of the crew of the three alleged rum-runners, which with the 379-J, were seized in the Sound, off Watch Hill, Tuesday, by the revenue cutter, Seminole, and who have been prisoners aboard the cutter since, were brought to the custom house under guard this afternoon where they were presented before United States Commissioner Earl Matthewson of Norwich. In only one instance was any of the crew held. Alphonse E. Young of Montauk Point being held on a charge of receiving and carrying a cargo without first delivering manifest and obtaining clearance papers at the local custom house. Young was held in bonds for trial before the next term of the United States district court. He was unable to provide a surety on his bond and was remanded to jail to await the arrival of a United States marshal from New Haven tomorrow. The accused will be taken to New Haven to await trial.

Young was master of the K-391 and he is alleged to have received carcoes of liquor from some of the 15 rum schooners and steamers that are now in "rum-row," off Block Island and westward, toward Montauk Point.

Word has been received here of the death today of Rev. John Paul Egan, brother of Charles Egan, this city, at St. Francis' hospital, New York city. Other survivors are three unmarried sisters in New Haven, another sister, Mrs. John Donovan of Meriden, and two brothers, Dr. Daniel Egan of Chicago and the Rev. James Egan of Waterbury. Father Egan was a member of the Dominican order. The funeral will be at New Haven, Saturday.

He Wants To Be President

Chief Justice Floyd E. Thompson, of the Illinois Supreme Court, whose ambition these days lies in the direction of the Democratic nomination for the presidency, and he has the support of Democratic leaders in Chicago. Justice Thompson is only 36 years old, and the youngest justice ever elected to the Illinois bench.

GALES FERRY

The business meeting of the Village Improvement association was held Monday evening, in the Country club house, the president, Rev. Allen S. Bush presiding. The minutes of the last meeting were read by the secretary, Mrs. Everett Noyes. Thanks were expressed from Carroll S. Hurlbutt by the president on his recent election as vice president of the association. The president then named the chairman of the different departments for the year: Law, Attorney Earl Matthewson; fire department, Stephen Norman; highway, J. Edmund Norman; landscape gardening, D. R. Povey; entertainment, Miss Grace H. Povey; educational, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham. The president proposed that the association join in national garden week, to be observed, beginning April 24, to plant shrubs and flowers to beautify the village. Miss Laura A. Perkins reported a sum of money from the juniors of the association to help purchase shrubs for the planting. Walter M. Buckingham proposed the the assistance of the association to the juniors in the planting of the same. It was so voted. Other suggestions were made on the matter of fire protection and D. R. Povey spoke on necessary work to be done on the sidewalks. The association adjourned to meet again Monday evening, March 31.

The Juniors of the Village Improvement association met with the chairman, Mrs. Walter M. Buckingham, at the Country club house, Monday afternoon. Mrs. Buckingham read them a selection from The Americanization of Edward Bok in which they were much interested and decided they would tak the motto, his grandmother gave him for their slogan, "Make you the world a bit more beautiful and better because you have been in it." Prizes were given by Mrs. Buckingham on essays written on Keeping the Village Clean. Games were played.

Another Man's Luck.

Rural Parson—"Nothing to be thankful for, Ebenezer? Why, think of old Tom Billings who's just lost his wife." Ebenezer—"That don't help me, parson—I ain't Tom Billings."—Boston Transcript.

That's Different.

Judge—"You are charged with being a deserter, having left your wife. Are the facts of the case true?" Prisoner—"No, your honor, I am not a deserter. Just a refugee."—Punch Bowl.

Was skeptical of Kellogg's Bran until it gave him back his health

Naturally Mr. Carter—whose letter follows—was skeptical. He had tried practically everything for the relief of constipation. All had failed. But Kellogg's Bran brought him permanent relief, just as it has done for thousands of others. Read his letter:

Gentlemen:
I am 63 years old, and have been for years a great sufferer from constipation. I had to resign a clerical position because of rushes of blood to my head, some of which caused me to fall to the ground. I took an outdoor laboring job and tried for the first time, skeptically I admit, your Krumbled Bran. The result has been wonderful. I began to be normal after I had been on the Bran about three days. No more swimming, no more Old Dr. Seaand-Air's Pills. Bran suits by the ton, etc., of infallism! You have the most wonderful product for constipation I have ever seen or tried. Yours very gratefully,
L. T. Carter, 294 Nineteenth St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, does not irritate the intestines like drugs and pills. It acts exactly as nature acts. Eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to relieve permanently the most chronic case of constipation, or your grocer will return your money.

You will like the exclusive, nut-like flavor of Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled. Eat two tablespoonfuls daily—in chronic cases with every meal. Eat it with milk or cream and in the recipes on every package. Sold by all grocers. Made in Battle Creek.

Corns

No Paring—End Them

Don't let the agony of corns destroy your comfort. Apply Blue-jay—and instantly the pain vanishes. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Does away with dangerous paring. Get Blue-jay at any drug store.

. . . . If he sees her grow careless, he begins to feel discontented

The Discontented Husband

A MAN can't help comparing his wife with his best girl—meaning, in this case, his wife before he married her. And if he sees her grow careless of those charms which first attracted him, he begins to feel discontented.

One of these charms is a woman's smooth and clear complexioned hands. She need not lose this feminine charm, no matter how much cleaning and washing a married woman has to do. For red, rough, and coarse looking hands result from the use of ordinary household soap which irritates the skin.

INTELLIGENT housewives everywhere insist on Kirkman's Soap—for every household purpose—because it is as harmless to the hands as is the most exquisite toilet soap.

They know that Kirkman's Soap, being free from irritating lye, will not harm the skin or injure the most delicate fabrics. It is made of the purest materials. It contains absolutely no adulterants such as starch, talc, or water-glass, which have no cleansing value.

For the sake of your hands, always insist upon Kirkman's Soap.

YOUR HANDS WILL BE GRATEFUL

Victor Records are at their best on Victrola Instruments—because

no more perfect performance is required on any mechanism than in the duplication of the air vibrations from human vocal cords, a flute, a violin or an orchestra. Trueness and sureness of operation are essential. The slightest variation or wavering in action is fatal and produces distortion.

Play Victor Records on Victrola Instruments, for which they are made, and thus get what you want—perfect rendition of your own selections from the world's greatest catalog of music.

Red Seal Records

| | | DOUBLE-FACED Number | List Price |
|---|---|---|---|
| Invictus (Huntley-Hahn) / Requiem (Stevenson-Hume) | Emilio de Gogorza / Emilio de Gogorza | 992 | $1.50 |

Two notable examples of this great baritone's art. Sung in a style which gives meaning to every word. Worthy additions to the list of this artist's records.

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|
| Mi tierra (My Native Land) (Manen-Martin-Vila) / Adiós trigueña! (Good-bye, My Darling) (Vidal-Rubino) | Miguel Fleta / Miguel Fleta | 993 | 1.50 |

Fiery and impassioned songs in Spanish, by this famous young tenor. He made his American début this year and immediately sprung into fame. These records will make him still more famous.

Melodious Instrumental

| | | | |

Though Thomas' opera "Raymond" is hardly remembered, the overture is one of the most frequently-demanded of overtures. Yours to hear on this record as often as you demand it.

Vocal Selections

| | | | |
| You're in Kentucky Sure as You're Born / Where the Lazy Daisies Grow | Frank Crumit / Frank Crumit | 19278 | .75 |

Two songs Crumit has been featuring in vaudeville. If you heard him while on tour, you'll want to hear these numbers again. If you didn't hear him, you shouldn't miss this record.

| | | | |
| The One I Love (Belongs to Somebody Else) / A Smile Will Go a Long, Long Way | Shannon Quartet / Peerless Quartet | 19281 | .75 |

Two famous quartets in two well-known numbers—a popular song of hopeless love, and a catchy song in fox-trot manner if not in strict dance tempo. Everybody who enjoys quartet numbers will delight in this record.

| | | | |
| Micky Donahue / Me No Speaka Good English | American Quartet / Billy Murray | 19280 | .75 |

A lilting waltz song; and an Italian dialect number, spiritually sung. Splendid popular songs, and such recording will make them popular records.

| | | | |
| America, The Beautiful / Stars of the Summer Night | Shannon Quartet / Shannon Quartet | 19242 | .75 |

A patriotic song and Longfellow's lovely serenade by a male quartet and a choir of trumpets—an unusual combination that makes an unusually beautiful record.

Dance Records

| | | | |
|---|---|---|---|

Two Whiteman fox trots of almost unexampled richness and sonority. You'll get full measure of enjoyment from these records whether you dance or just sit and listen.

| | | | |
| Counting the Days—Fox Trot / Just One More Kiss—Fox Trot | International Novelty Orch. / Benson Orch. of Chicago | 19277 | .75 |

Two strongly contrasted fox trots. With the fox trot being danced in so many different styles, it is a good thing to have some records like these.

| | | | |

Medley waltzes. Both in the modern song tempo, both played with expression, both full of orchestral color. And what else interests you—both on one record!

MAKE REPORT ON CONDITIONS AT CITY GAS AND ELECTRIC PLANT

Mayor Milo R. Waters has received from the gas and electrical commissioners the report on conditions at the municipal plant, which the January meeting of the common council voted should be inquired into by a committee to be appointed by the mayor and including himself.

The report is presented in a voluminous pamphlet of 75 typewritten pages and 7 blueprints prepared by General Manager C. W. Taggart of the gas and electric plant, which discusses with painstaking detail five subjects upon which reports were requested as follows:

First—Comparative Rate Data.

Second—Consumer Charge.

Third—Statistical Data on the Plant.

Fourth—Wires at Keppler's Tailor Shop.

Fifth—Arc Lamp on Lafayette St.

The committee appointed to serve with Mayor Waters comprised Corporation Counsel William H. Shields, Jr., Alderman E. LaRue Blivea, and Councilmen William H. Aldrich and John E. Fitzgerald.

This special committee has say with the gas and electrical commissioners at several meetings where the questions concerning the plant were discussed.

The board of gas and electrical commissioners have made their report in great detail and are appreciative of any public interest that will be expressed in constructive suggestions regarding the business of the plant.

The report to the Mayor was accompanied by the following letter:

Norwich, Conn., March 26, 1924.

Hon. Milo R. Waters,
Mayor of the City of Norwich.
Norwich, Connecticut.

Dear Mr. Mayor:

I am enclosing herewith a copy of General Manager Taggart's report to the commissioners, and containing detailed information, and answers to particular questions regarding the conduct of the department's affairs, which were requested by a committee appointed by you, and representing the council.

I trust the same will be found in complete form, and to your full satisfaction.

If additional information is needed, the department will be pleased to furnish it to you.

Very respectfully,
JAMES L. CASE,
President of the board.

General Manager's Report

In making his report General Manager Taggart answers first the inquiry on comparative rate data by giving a detailed statement of gas and electricity rates charged in a number of cities, which include Beverly, Mass., Blackstone Valley Gas and Electric Company (Pawcatuck division); Bristol, Conn., Gardner, Mass., Greenfield, Mass., South Manchester, Conn., Marlboro, Mass., Meriden Conn., Middletown, Conn., New Britain, Conn., New London division of Connecticut Power Co., Rockville-Willimantic Lighting Co., Salem (Mass.) Electric Lighting Co., Taunton, Mass., Waterbury, Webster, Mass., Southbridge, Mass.

Norwich Plant

The report gives the rates for gas and electricity charged in the Norwich plant and goes on to answer the other inquiries as follows:

Consumer Charge—Gas

The revenue to which the department is entitled is a fixed sum to be paid by consumers, in one form of rate or another, and the question involved is but one of distributing the fixed burden among the consumers, equitable and without discrimination.

The commission before placing in effect the present rate schedule gave the matter of rates most careful consideration and from the fact that most favorable comment has been made on the schedule by prominent gas men in the state we have felt that we "builded well" when we established the present schedule, effective January 1st, 1923

In fixing a rate there are two distinct kinds of charges to be considered. The one is the manufacturing cost of gas in the holder, ready for distribution to the consumer, and consists of the following items of cost, labor, coal or coke, oil, material used at the works and expense for its maintenance. This cost is easily calculated.

Among the expenses of the business after the gas leaves the holders are the following. The figures given are for the months of May, June, July, 1923.

Distribution Expense—Gas

| | |
|---|---|
| Distribution: | |
| Supt. | $56.50 |
| Supplies and expenses | 186.50 |
| Maintenance Installations | 210.55 |
| Work on consumers' premises | 313.36 |
| Setting and removing meters | 851.79 |
| | $2,020.12 |

Maintenance Expense—Gas

| | |
|---|---|
| Maintenance | |
| of Mains | $1,162.09 |
| of services | 527.34 |
| of meters | 802.40 |
| of accessories | 8.96 |
| | $2,501.79 |

Commercial Expense—Gas

| | |
|---|---|
| Commercial: | |
| General labor | $502.00 |
| Bookkeeping | 513.00 |
| Meter reading | 459.47 |
| | $1,479.47 |

General and Miscellaneous Expense

| | |
|---|---|
| Salaries | $937.50 |
| General office salaries | 393.33 |
| Office supplies and expenses | 394.56 |
| Stationery and printing | 391.58 |
| Insurance | 1,429.63 |
| Other miscellaneous general expense | $259.00 |
| Transportation expense | 340.08 |
| | $4,155.63 |
| Interest | $2,599.72 |
| Depreciation | 2,751.80 |
| Total readiness to serve expense | $15,508.08 |

During this period (May, June, July) 1923, there were 12,625 consumer months. Since the above costs are as much for one consumer as another dividing the total expense of $15,508.08 by the number of consumer months gives an average expense of $1.23 per consumer. This expense exists, whether or not any gas is supplied. The readiness to supply gas when it is wanted is a necessity; without it, no gas could be delivered. Although the expense is not a part of the cost of making gas it must be met, just as lodge or club dues must be paid whether you attend or stay away.

Our present consumer charge is 90c per month, from the previous statement you will note that the cost to the department was $1.23. The consumer charge is a just and reasonable one and should be maintained.

Rate Structure

First—"Produce the desired revenue."

Second—"Distribute the burden equally among the various customers and do so without unnecessary complication in the schedule or its application."

Third—"Recognize local conditions, retain and develop existing business and attract desirable new business."

In the block rate schedule for gas service (plus service charge) such as we find in very general use today, we have a rate which fulfills very closely these requirements. Some form of this schedule is said to be in effect in 38 states in the Union.

It is generally recognized and generally agreed to that an analysis of the cost of gas service will disclose three distinct and definite elements of cost, viz:

"A" Consumer Cost.
"B" Demand or Capacity Cost.
"C" Commodity or Output Costs.

Consumer Costs "A"

This group includes costs that are particularly proportional to the number of consumers and that are not affected by variation in the consumption or in the demand, such as the cost of reading meter, billing, collecting, etc., maintenance of meter, maintenance of services and the fixed charges thereon, as well as some portion of the miscellaneous office expense.

Demand Costs "B"

This group includes costs that vary with the demands made upon the plant and system by the consumer and that are not affected directly by the quantity consumed, and that do not vary directly with the number of consumers. In a large measure, these costs are made up of certain portions of the costs of operation and of interest and depreciation charges on a large portion of the property.

Output Cost "C"

Included in this group are costs that are practically proportional for the cubic feet of gas delivered and that do not vary with the demand of the consumer or with the number of consumers of the company, such as all or a large portion of the costs of production, some of the costs of distribution and the fixed charges, or a portion, depending upon the circumstances of the plant and distribution.

The three part schedule outlined above is considered to be the ideal schedule, it is in very general use by electric companies but has not been adopted by many gas companies due to the lack of the necessary instruments for determining the demand.

I believe that many laymen look on rate schedules as a hit or miss proposition, this is not the case, for the past twenty years intensive studies have been made by representatives of various state regulatory bodies until now we have a large store of rate making material available. By analyzing this material carefully we are able to determine the fundamental principles upon which rates should be based.

Before any utility makes a radical change in rates it is customary for them to carefully study the effect such a change will make on their business, such studies sometimes disclose rather startling facts. Some years ago a state commission found a large gas company was serving 70 per cent of all its customers at a rate yielding less than the cost for service rendered, and that this 70 per cent were consuming less than one-third of the gas distributed; that 5 per cent of the consumers were using 30 per cent of the gas and were as a matter of fact, largely contributing to whatever return the company made. Another case investigated recently in Massachusetts disclosed that 85 per cent of the consumers were using but 55 per cent of the output and were not bearing their fair share of the costs. The loss in return was made up by the other 15 per cent who were overcharged.

It has been held that the service charge unjustly falls on the poor man who is unable to pay it. Assuming that the poor man uses no gas in any month, his bill of 50 cents or 75 cents covers merely actual costs that have occurred in maintaining gas service at his disposal. If he uses gas he pays only the cost of that commodity in addition. Justice—as such—demands that he pay a fair price for what he gets. He gets the "readiness to serve," with gas at all times. The service charge is therefore just. The "ability to pay" theory is in a measure "charging what the traffic will bear," which theory finds little place in the utility questions of today.

It is often said that the gas industry is a monopoly, but do not overlook the fact that it is a gas monopoly, and is not a fuel and lighting monopoly. It is important to keep this fact clearly in mind. If a customer will not pay his just share of the costs which he has caused he must be able to obtain a like and similar service for fuel or lighting from some other source at a lower cost. This applies to the large as well as it does to the small consumer. Coal, coke, oil and wood are in active competition in all phases of the gas industry. It is, therefore, highly important that gas rates should be founded on an equitable basis for all classes of consumers if the business is to maintain itself and grow as is demanded of it by the economic position in the welfare of society.

"Rates should be: Just, Reasonable, Sufficient, Non-Discriminatory, Non-Preferential."

"A reasonable and just rate is one that is just to both the utility and to the customer."

"It must be sufficient in that the income will at least equal the outgo."

It must be reasonable in that the items of outgo are fair and warranted for the circumstances and condition under which the utilities operate."

"It must be sufficient to encourage additional investment in the service of the public.

"A rate must be not preferential or unjustly discriminatory by being greater or less than that charged for a like and contemporaneous service. A rate must not be unjustly discriminatory by requiring a certain class of customers to pay for the costs caused by another class or classes."

Arc Lamp on Lafayette Street.

Complaint was made that this lamp was hung on a rope. This was found to be a fact. We have, at the present time, something like 20 lamps that are suspended in this manner. They are, however, no more dangerous than the lamps which are suspended from standard mast arms, as these lamps are also hung on rope.

You should bear in mind that this department is limited in its maintenance of street lighting equipment to an appropriation made by the city council for such work. We could use during the next year $5,000 in addition to the regular appropriation to bring the street lighting up to standard.

We trust that when the budget is being made up for this year such an allowance will be included.

I trust that this fulfills your requests.

Respectfully submitted,
CITY OF NORWICH GAS & ELECTRICAL DEPARTMENT.

MALAGA

"Reports of a mutiny in Malaga present a name familiar to American ears because of a luscious grape but a place which is off the route of the majority of seasoned European travelers," says a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"This ancient and famous seaport of Southern Spain is not remote it won prestige in earlier times by the frequent sailings from its harbor to England, France and Italy. It still does a considerable export business to those and far more distant places. But it renounces tourists to retain its traditions.

"Its white houses glisten in a seldom falling sunshine on the blue Mediterranean, and a rampart of hills helps keep its temperature equable and dry. These qualities have made it a rendezvous for a few sufferers from heart and lung troubles; but its aridity is hard on nervous patients. Indeed, at certain seasons, it is averred, courts of justice recognize the barometer as an extenuating circumstance in crime.

"Malaga grows her famous grapes for raisins and wine, and gardens in the west of the city yield an amazing volume of melons, also pomegranates and olives. The first spring vegetables served in fashionable French hotels are likely to have come from Malaga. There, too, the flowers the Englishman cultivates grow wild. Roses bloom in January and the profusion of the carnation, periwinkle, oxalis and sweet alyssum is a revelation to the northern visitor.

"Malaga has been called the noisiest city in Spain, yet this noise does not arise from hurry. Until recently there was only one mail a day which, arriving at 7 o'clock in the evening, was not delivered until the next morning. Vegetables and fruits yield their choicest specimens, the climate is salubrious and the sun seldom is scorching, the peace of the hills and the calm of the sea cut off the Malaguean from most world disturbances. Hence the vigorous Englishman and the brisk American are a source of surprise, and commiseration to him.

"Moorish Malaga of the Middle Ages was a much more cosmopolitan city. It had prospered under Roman rule, Carthage had built warehouses there, the Phoenicians had recognized its strategic location, but it was the Spanish Arabs who brought it to a climax of wealth and bedecked its harbor with the flags of the entire trade world of the Middle Ages.

"In those times the Genoese merchants who settled there outdid all the numerous nationalities in elegance and opulence. Their great palaces, amid groves of sweet-smelling trees, and gardens of beautiful flowers, were decorated with the intricate grandeur of the Arab style. One historian writes, 'Retinues of swarthy, turbaned slaves obsequiously waited to do the bidding of their masters. Mysterious eunuchs glided silently through their splendid halls. In the homes of many were lovely concubines, some the spoil of marauding expeditions on the Andalusian border, others purchased by their fastidious masters in the distant markets of Africa and the East.'

"Today's Malaga is a direct contrast to its Moorish magnificence. It is quaint, interesting, but simplicity prevails. There is little formal entertainment, theatres are rather indifferent, the bull-ring, on a Sunday afternoon, offers the week's gala event.

"Romance lives in the evening courtship scenes, where swains thrum their guitars to win a smile and a chat with fair maids guarded by iron bars.

"The bars seem medieval to the mind of an American girl yet, in one respect, the Malaga woman has long exercised a modern privilege. When she marries she retains her full maiden name, simply affixing that of her husband, which procedure makes her complete 'married name' so long that she continues to be known and referred to informally by her maiden name.

"Theoretically a Malaga marriage, as in other regions of Southern Spain, is a mother-in-law arrangement. The mother of the suitor asks the mother of his sweetheart for the hand of her daughter. Malaga's women folk are notably pretty and high-spirited. After the age of 16, if a suitor's attentions are distasteful to a girl's parents she may, and frequently does, appeal to a court for a 'deposit'—a sort of injunction proceeding against parental interference in affairs of the heart.

"The court places the young woman in custody of a disinterested person, or in a convent, for a few months, during which time she is forbidden to see either parents or suitor. It she returns from this enforced period of meditation determined to marry she is free to do so.

"The derivation of Malaga's name points to an important industry. 'Malaga' is derived from 'malac' a Phenician verb, 'to salt,' because the village of early times was known for its salt fish, as the city is today.

"Two principal indulgences of the Malaga men are cigarettes and sweetmeats. There are no rules against smoking on Malaga street cars, even if the doors and windows are closed, and there is no prejudice against a man walking through the streets or sitting at the bull fight arena, nibbling at some dainty confection. Sweetmeat shops abound. And also donkeys. The affection which the American bestows upon horse or dog, the Andalusian lavishes upon his donkey. Donkeys and sweetmeats are not wholly unrelated. On a stroll through Malaga's outskirts one may see scores of donkey ears and donkey noses, which is about all of the animals which project beyond the loads of brushwood they convey to the bakeries."

In June, 1771, Swift was rendered exceedingly peevish by the heat. In July, 1757, Walpole writes, "I have made a tour of my garden but once these days before eight at night, and then I thought I should have died of it. For how many years we shall have to talk of the summers of '57!" In 1880 July was so hot that Wordsworth could not sit indoors, and, as Dorothy tells us, "went into the wood and altered his poems."

Cost of Beauty

My Cost, $100,000—yours, 50c a week
By Edna Wallace Hopper

My quest of beauty cost mother and me at least $100,000. We searched the world to get the best that science had to offer.

But those helps made me famous as a beauty. And they have kept me a youthful beauty to my grand old age.

Now I want others to enjoy those same helps. I have arranged so all may get them. Any girl or woman may use all my helps at a cost not over 50c per week.

White Youth Clay

My skin is like a baby's yet mine is a grandmother's age. I owe that largely to a superclay which France created for me.

Not like the crude and muddy clays so many still employ. This clay is white, refined and dainty. It is based on 20 years of scientific study. No old-time clay brings comparable results.

I call this my White Youth Clay. It purges the skin of all that clogs it—the causes of blackheads and blemishes. It brings that rosy afterglow which so amazes and delights. It combats all lines and wrinkles, reduces enlarged pores.

How it multiplies beauty, how it keeps youthful bloom, is shown by my complexion. No girl or woman can afford to go without it. The cost is 50c and $1.

Two master creams

My Facial Youth is a liquid cleanser which I also found in France. Great beauty experts the world over now employ it, but they charge too much. It contains no animal, no vegetable fat. The skin cannot absorb it. It simply cleans to the depths, then departs. All the dirt, oil, grime and dead skin comes out with it. One never knows what a clean skin means until she cleans it this way. My Facial Youth costs 75c.

My Youth Cream is my cold cream—another French creation. It contains products of both lemon and strawberry. Also all the best that science knows to foster the skin texture. I use it as a night cream, also daytimes as a powder base. Every hour I keep my skin protected by it. This matchless cream—my Youth Cream—costs you 60c per jar.

My Hair Youth

My hair is my greatest glory. It is silky, lustrous, luxuriant, and grows finer every year. Dandruff, fading hair and gray hair are unknown to me.

This hair which millions envy is due to my Hair Youth. I apply it with an eye dropper, directly to the scalp. There it combats hardened oil and dandruff, which stifle the hair roots. It stimulates and fertilizes. Then hair thrives just as flowers thrive in a well-kept garden. One minute a day does all this. My Hair Youth with eye dropper costs 50c and $1.

All druggists and toilet counters now supply Edna Wallace Hopper's products. With each comes a guarantee. Experts tell me that these are the best helps in existence. I hope that what they did for me and mine will induce you to try them. Edna Wallace Hopper, 536 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Sticks as R ...ps.

In one of the corridors of the British houses of parliament there is a curious exhibit which looks like a bundle of kindling wood. It represents all that is left of the account "books" used by the exchequer during the Middle ages. The bundle consists of "tallies," notched sticks on which accounts were kept. When an account was paid a stick was split. One-half was kept and the other half was given as a "receipt." When the crude system was abandoned, and proper books were kept, there was a vast accumulation of these tallies, and early in the last century an official had the happy thought of saving on fuel by using this vast hoard of tally-sticks as kindling wood. It was actually by the overheating of a stove by using too many of these tally-sticks that the old houses of parliament caught fire in 1834 and were burned down.

Sponge Rocks.

The sponge rocks in Montana have attracted the attention of tourists and scientists by reason of the remarkable tracery and porosity of their formation. They appear like vast pieces of pumice stone intricately carved by nature into innumerable cells, webs, and cavelets. Some of the pieces are almost threadlike. The rocks are stated by geologists to be carboniferous sandstone. The sponge-like formation is of course due to both water and wind erosion, the softer particles of the rock having been washed down or blown away, leaving the harder portions standing.

STRAWBERRIES FOR FIVE MONTHS PERIOD

Ripe strawberries for five months from your own home garden, strange as it may sound, is now easily possible says one horticultural agent.

The strawberry is the most popular of our small fruits. Everybody likes them and as proof of this we may note the Florida strawberries have been selling readily at 50 to 75 cents a quart in the Springfield markets all winter.

By planting the best up-to-date varieties of strawberries in your garden this spring you may keep up your acquaintance with strawberries, and enjoy them fresh every morning with cream or strawberry short cake once or twice a week, from June to October.

Through June and July probably the best berry to give you a large fine crop is the howard 17. This variety is now making money for many growers in the large field culture, and it is just about the best variety too for the home gardener. Other good varieties for local culture ripening their fruit over a large part of this period are dunlap, early persey giant big joe, marshall and sample.

Later, covering the period of the last two weeks in July and early August just when we are picking the last of marshall and howard you may pick gandy, the old standard variety late strawberry, or the newer lupton, said by many to be the best late summer variety ever introduced. When these varieties get through fruiting you can start picking the late summer and fall crop on the everbearers, progressive and superb. These will furnish ripe fruit through late August, September and October, up until freezing weather, light frosts do not seem to do them much damage. If plants of the ever-bearers are set in the spring and given good culture they will furnish a nice crop in the fall.

A light sandy soil warms up quickest and promotes early ripening, so we find where extra earliness is desired growers choose, if possible, a light open sandy soil, preferably on a southern slope or at least in a location sheltered from north and west winds. Moisture is usually the chief limiting factor in success with late summer and fall-bearing strawberries, and so here we find that the deep heavy clay loams which are more retentive of moisture usually give the best results. If artificial irrigation or watering can be given the lighter soils will give as good results as the heavier soils. In any case the soil should be fertile or should be made fertile by the use of stable manure and fertilizers. Lime is not necessary for success with strawberries, in fact, they seem to prefer a somewhat acid soil condition. It is important to use ground which was fall plowed or which grew a cultivated crop last season, since freshly spring plowed sod land is likely to be infested with insects which feed on the strawberry plant roots and in addition it is difficult to plant and keep free of weeds. Set the plants 12 inches apart in the rows with the rows about 3 feet apart, and take care to see that each plant is set with the crown level with the soil surface, and with the soil well firmed about the roots.

Give the children and grown folks too a chance to have all the fresh strawberries they want from the home garden. Fifty good plants set out in April or early May and well taken care of this season will easily produce 50 quarts or more of ripe berries in 1925. There is not a great deal of work and there is much satisfaction and pleasures in the backyard patch.

HELP THE HORSES IN SPRING WORK

Spring will soon be here. When it arrives this year, it will be as by magic the same as every year. The east piece on the farm will need to be plowed at the same time that the south piece will need to be harrowed and the west piece to be manured. Therefore, the horses and men will work many more hours during the day than for the past few months. This will be especially true of the horse. Also, it will be a much harder strain on the horses than on the men during these very busy days. This is true on most dairy farms, because during the winter months the horses have it very "soft" compared to the men.

Their muscles are, therefore, very "soft." Now, there is no use of saying, use the horses less during these first few weeks, because you have got to get the work done and they cannot be worked immediately to save a little later, because soil conditions have to be just so before certain things can be done, but there are a number of things that can be done to prevent the horses from becoming sore shouldered, short winded, heavy and acquiring black water, kidney trouble and many other disorders that develop at this time of year.

First, that plow point can be scoured so that dirt will not drag on a rusty point. A rusty point increases the draft over three times. The disc coulter and the sulky plow wheels can be greased so that no greater load than is absolutely necessary will be put on the horses. The disc harrow should be taken apart and sharpened, greased and put in readiness for the season. The manure spreader should be thoroughly cleaned, washed and greased. In fact, all tools that are to be used during this period should be overhauled and greased up to make them pull as lightly as possible. If this is done, the horses will not be so tired during this trying time.

START SEEDS NOW IN GLASS FRAMES

One of the largest and most successful market gardeners in the country was recently asked how he came to start the use of greenhouses in growing vegetables. "Well, I just got tired of sitting around and waiting for the weather to warm up and for things to grow in the spring" was the unique answer.

Home gardeners, too, with their little plots of land also get tired of waiting for our New England weather to warm up, but they, too, can have a little glass to start their plants along. It is not necessary to build a large expensive heated green house like the one owned by the market gardener referred to above, but a frame in a sheltered location in the garden, covered with glass sash will afford protection enough to start the seeds of hardy things such as radishes, cabbages, lettuce, right now.

Put a foot of horse stable manure into the bottom of this frame and cover this with three or four inches of soil, and you have a garden which will generate heat, in addition to what it gets from the sun, and here you can start seeds of tender plants such as tomatoes, peppers, asters, etc., at this time. A little later, in two or three weeks you can start in this miniature hothouse of yours the more tender plants such as sweet corn, cucumbers, cantaloupes and egg plants. As these seeds come up you can hasten your garden still further by using small earthenware pots, paper bands or shallow boxes filled with soil, into which you would transfer the little seedlings. Later when the weather warms up sufficiently these plants may be taken from the pots or bands and transferred to the open garden, with a solid ball of earth about the roots, so that they never notice the change or suffer a moment's setback in transplanting. Last year we saw head lettuce plants grown in these small pots and set out in the open garden about April 10, they were later covered with snow, but this caused them no harm. They came along nicely and were the earliest and best head lettuce in the neighborhood.

Sweet corn is sometimes handled in this way, starting the seeds in small earthenware pots or paper bands, and within two or three weeks transplanted, without disturbing the roots to the open garden.

INVESTIGATION SHOWS HOW EGGS ARE BROKEN

Just prior to the annual meeting of the Eastern Connecticut Poultry Producers, Inc., Mr. Dallas, loss and damage inspector of the American Railway Express, company, spent several days inspecting the egg shipments coming to the Providence Farmers' exchange from members of the association.

In an examination of the 27 cases that came in by express and by auto truck he found 305 eggs that were crushed on the ends, 13 eggs damaged because of being crushed on the sides, and five broken eggs. This amounts to an average of 7.6 eggs per case of end crushed eggs, one-half of an egg damaged by side crush, and one-fifth of an egg broken, or a total of 8.3 eggs per case that were damaged.

The damage was due primarily to three causes. First, many producers put large, long eggs in the cases without building up the height of the cases by nailing one-inch strips on the end before putting on the cover. Second, the "side-crush" was due to some men using poor second-hand fillers that had lost their stiffness and had become flabby, thereby permitting the eggs to sway sideways in the case. Third, a large share of the shippers had rather thin shelled eggs, indicating that the hens did not get enough oyster shells. Ninety-two fillers in the 27 cases examined were in such a condition that they ought never to have been used when sending the eggs to Providence.

1. Building up the ends of the cases with one-inch strips before nailing on the ends.
2. Use only new flats and fillers and in case your eggs are extra large, use the over-size filler.
3. Use six excelsior pads per case, placing one in the bottom of the case, one on the top, and one under the first layer of eggs.
4. See that the hens get plenty of oyster shells. Do not expect them to eat all of the fine or granulated powdered shell before adding additional supplies.

The damage in terms of money costs amounts to a considerable sum each year, therefore, every poultryman ought to do his part to reduce the loss by packing eggs properly and by keeping thin shelled eggs down to the minimum amount.—Paul Mehl, marketing specialist, Extension Service, Storrs, Conn.

TEN GOOD POINTS ABOUT PLANT FOOD

Ten articles of food are daily consumed by a growing plant and are necessary for its life. Some of these the plants take out of the air, but the others must come from the earth through the roots. The gardener must make up any deficncy for the best success of his crops. The ten are chemical elements, as follows: hydrogen, oxygen, nitrogen, carbon, phosphorus, potassium, usually known as potash, calcium, iron, sulphur, and magnesium. Some of these are used only in very small quantities but they are essential to the health of the plant. Three others are usually found in plants, sodium, silicon and chlorine, but they are not so essential and need not be considered in feeding growing crops.

The hydrogen and oxygen in the form of water make up the greatest part of a plant, a cabbage, for instance, being 91 per cent water. A few plants can take their nitrogen, a very important part of their food, from the air, these are the members of the bean family. All others must get it from the soil in the form of various nitrates. All plant food must be soluble in water to be available for the use of the plant.

So the importance of a plentiful supply of water for the plants is apparent, both as a direct supply and as a carrier for other essential foods. Carbon alone is secured wholly from the air while a part of the oxygen used by the plant also comes from the air. Fertilizers are made up after a study of the lack of any of these plant foods in the soil. If they are not present or present in too small quantity the deficit must be made up in the form of fertilizers or manures.

The amount of water taken from the soil by a plant in comparison to the amount of solid or dry material it produces is amazing. Corn, according to experiments conducted by the government investigators, takes 369 pounds of water to one of solids. Alfalfa tops the list with 1,068 pounds of water to one of solids. Oats take 614 pounds. It will be seen very readily that oats require more moist conditions than other vegetables. Alfalfa, because of the great depth to which its roots penetrate, stands drought conditions better than many other crops because surface drought does not affect it so much.

Preservation of water in the soil is the prime importance and the most effective means is by cultivation of growing crops, keeping the soil about them stirred so that evaporation carrying the moisture from the soil into the air, is retarded.

It also shows why such crops as cabbages, which are principally water, will not flourish under drought conditions or in soil which is naturally dry, such as sandy soils. When such conditions prevail, they must be changed by the gardener in order to furnish the plants proper growing conditions. Fortunately this change is not difficult and is easily accomplished by spading or plowing in stable manure or by the use of commerical fertilizers.

THE INVESTMENT VALUE OF GARDENS

Two surburban dwellers a few years ago, before property prices began soaring, bought modest homes on adjoining 50-foot lots. There was little to choose between the two houses they being very similar in style and quality with the same number of rooms. One owner expended a few hundred dollars on trees, shrubs, vines, bulbs and plants for the decoration of his home, converting the back yard into a very attractive and artistic flower garden.

Last year each had an offer to sell. One was offered $6,000 and the other $5,500. The larger offer was made the man who had provided decorative planting. Both houses had been kept in excellent repair. Here was a concrete example of the value in cash of decorative planting. In the $5,500 garden, the main dependence had been placed on annuals after the early bulbs and shrubs and the June perennials had bloomed. Marigolds, both French and African were used in both groups. Scarlet zinnias gave the needed color emphasis. Blue annual larkspurs and white flowering tobacco relieved the brilliancy of the yellow and scarlet of the marigolds and zinnias.

Asters made a fine September display. Spiderwort was planted in nooks among the shrubbery to enliven the greenery of the foliage after the blooming period. In fact, this little garden became the show place of the neighborhood. After the initial expenditure for the trees and shrubs, the yearly upkeep seldom ran over $5 for seeds and a few plants.

Aside from the satisfaction of having a liberal supply of flowers for cutting right at the door and the beauty and comfort they lend to the home atmosphere, they add real value to property. Many real estate men, realising the attractiveness of decorative planting, are now seeing to it that their property is made attractive and hire landscape gardeners to keep it in trim until it is sold.

Any home owner may have beautiful home grounds even on a small lot the very first year of his occupancy by the use of annuals judiciously planted and arranged about his premises. The cost of seeds enough to make a beautiful and artistic garden is slight and the care required will not be more than a few hours a week after the initial preparation of digging and fertilizing.

APPLE SCALD AND ITS CONTROL

Heavy losses to the apple industry from apple scald can be reduced very materially, according to the United States Department of Agriculture, if certain practices in preparing the fruit for storage and market are followed. Apple scald is one of the most serious storage and market diseases of the apple and has an important bearing on all market operations during the latter half of the storage season. Susceptibility to scald varies with the season and with orchard conditions and management. Early picked and poorly colored fruit is extremely susceptible to scald, while well-colored, well-matured apples are more resistant to the disease.

A summary of the practical results obtained on scald control in a series of experiments conducted by the department is given in a new bulletin just issued as Farmers' Bulletin No. 1380." It includes brief descriptions of the effect of maturity of the fruit, soil moisture, temperature, delayed storage, aeriation, oiled wrappers, and the direct application of oils and waxes to the apple, and states the relative merits of these different treatments in the control of scald.

Oiled wrappers are the most complete preventive of scald that has been found. They have eliminated the disease as a market factor in all but two of the 30 commercial tests that have been made. Low temperature and prompt cooling of the fruit are of first importance in delaying the development of scald.

SILAGE SHOWN TO BE SUPERIOR LIVESTOCK FEED

The value of silage feeding is shown forcefully by recent data furnished by the Bureau of Animal Industry, United States Department of Agriculture. In the wintering of mature beef cows in West Virginia it has been shown that corn fed as silage is worth 60 per cent more than stock corn. In growing beef calves in Illinois an acre of corn silage was found to be worth 30 per cent more than an acre of stock corn.

This increased utility is attributed to the many advantages of silage. Practically no waste occurs in the feeding of silage and it creates an appetite for cheaper roughages. Then too, the same crops fed dry are not nearly so palatable and succulent as they are in the form of silage.

TIME TO START THE BREEDING PENS

"If the poultry breeding pens are not already established now is the time to do it," says one county agent. "The advice is often given to mate your pen two weeks before the eggs are to be used," he says. "This will generally give good results, but I believe that it is much better to mate the pens much earlier. This is especially true of the big poultry breeders. It is also advisable to set a small incubator, rather early, with a few eggs from each pen to see how the fertility is running. In pens that show poor fertility substitution of roosters should take place. If the chickens are not desired at that early period one can incubate the eggs from only a week to 10 days or just long enough to check up on the fertility.

"In selecting the hens for breeders be sure to choose only those that have good vigor and vitality. Hens that have been overfed or have been subjected to lights for any considerable time should not be selected if possible because their eggs may not be of as good hatching ability.

"Select the males that are vigorous; that will weigh approximately the breed standard weight and that will conform to the breed's characteristics.

"When placing the birds in these pens great care should be taken to see that the house is clean. The birds should have a thorough treatment of sodium flouride a day or two before placing them in the pens, so that they will be free of lice.

"One should remember, however, that the fertility of eggs can be destroyed very easily by improper care of eggs after they are laid.

"Too hot or too cold or too dry places will quickly change the character of the egg."

Waves of Ether.

Many persons have wondered about the so-called waves of ether which, we are told, transmit sound by the wireless telephone. Mountains do not obstruct them, but how is it when the distance is such that a straight line between two stations would pass below the surface of the earth? An authority in such matters declares that the path of the ether waves is not a straight line, but follows the earth's curvature. Ordinary obstructions do not interfere with wireless waves.

Sets New World's Altitude Record For Seaplane

Jean Laporte, the French aviator, who has just established a new altitude record for the hydro-airplane, ascending to a height of 5,595 meters, or 1,890 meters higher than the previous world's record set by Lt. C. T. Harper, U. S. N., at Argenteuil, France. During the flight Laporte suffered extremely from the cold and his face was badly frostbitten. The flight was made under supervision of an Aero Club officer, and the record is verified and official.

Reward.

"All my life," said the traveler, "I've given up my lower berth to ladies who had uppers, and last week was the first time I've ever been rewarded. I discovered—of course—that an aged lady had the berth above mine. I told the porter that I'd take the upper, and not a nod of thanks did I get from the old girl. I suppose the porter took $5 extra and all the credit from her, himself. Any way, I climbed up into the berth and settled myself for a night's sleep. In the morning I discovered that all the men in the car who had lowers had been robbed by a thief who had gone through that night, and safe in my upper berth was over a hundred dollars in bills tucked in my trousers pocket!"

Swift Winds.

The swiftest winds are encountered in temperate latitudes at an altitude of from five to seven miles, while above that the speed of the wind decreases.

MARKET WAS UNSETTLED.

New York, March 27.—Sharp breaks in high priced industrial issues unsettled today's dull stock market after an early period of irregularity which the buying influence predominated. At the close the average of 20 leading industrials had established a new low record for the year.

Rallying tendencies were in evidence at the opening, more than a score active issues rising a point or more in the first half hour of trading on what appeared to be active short covering.

When this buying ceased and operators on the long side showed no disposition to boost their favorites, short selling was renewed particularly against such issues as Baldwin, Chandler and a number of the chemical, copper and silk company shares.

Fairly good resistance was offered to selling pressure until the late trading when 2 point breaks in General Electric and corn products and a 3 1-2 point drop in Fisher Body caused rather extensive liquidation in other quarters, giving the market a decidedly reactionary appearance in the final dealings.

Oil and railroad shares, with few exceptions, developed independent strength. With consumption rapidly overtaking production and price tendencies pointing upward, oil shares, particularly those of companies with large inventories, are beginning to discount what is expected to be a profitable summer's business. Steadiness of the rails is due largely to the unusually favorable character of most of the February earnings statements now making their appearance, the first 30 roads to report showing combined net operating income of $25,042,000, compared with $21,231,000 in the same month last year, an increase of 64 per cent.

Despite predictions in the steel trade that net earnings of the U. S. Steel corporation for the first quarter, which will be made public late next month, will reach the gigantic total of $55,000,000, U. S. Steel common fluctuated within a radius of one point, closing slightly higher at 93 5-8. Fluctuations in American Can were less violent after its 12 point drop in the previous two days, the stock closing 5-8 lower at 103 1-8. Wall street heard reports that yesterday's heavy selling was largely for the account of a prominent Wall street operator, wintering in Florida, who had loaded up with the stock on expectation that the $1 extra dividend would be continued.

Except for the widespread belief that corn products had sufficiently discounted the possibility of corn products old stock being placed on a $10 basis at Friday's meeting of the directors, there were no explanations for the sudden break in that issue. Liquidation of General Electric also appeared to be of a more pressing nature than usually seen in issues of that character.

Another flock of new lows was established during the day including the American Agricultural Chemical issues, Mallinson and Julius Kayser stks, Ray, Miami and Cerro De Pasco Coppers, Sears Roebuck and several others. Among the rails heaviness was noted in Norfolks and Western and Chesapeake and Ohio.

Call money opened at 4 1-2, advanced to 5 and 5 1-2 and then dropped back to where it closed. The time money market was rather dull with the bulk of the business being transacted at 4 1-2 per cent. Prime commercial paper was unchanged at 4 3-4.

Moderate advances in French francs which advanced about five points to around 5.47 cents and in demand sterling, which was up 5-8 of a cent at $4.30, featured the quiet foreign exchange market. Spanish pesetas were in good demand, climbing 11 points to 15.17 cents.

BOND MARKET.

New York, March 27.—Unsettled by the break in stock prices, bond values wavered uncertainly today, although early strength in a number of speculative rail and oil series was well maintained. Profit taking cancelled recent gains made by a variety of bonds in other sections of the list.

A buying wave which broke out in the last hour of trading swept most of the St. Paul obligations into new high ground. Previously some of the convertible issues had weakened on the decline in stock prices. Analysis of the February earnings figures showed that net income of the road increased more than gross revenues, and that it represented a gain of nearly 139 per cent. over February 1923.

Peoria and Eastern income is also attracted a brisk demand as a result of favorable earnings, and advanced five points. Seaboard and Missouri Pacific issues worked sicker but their strength was counteracted by issues in Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, Union Pacific 4s and Denver & Rio Grande refunding 5s. Heavyness developed in most of the industrial bonds.

The unfortune of the market was improved by the quick sale of the $15,000,000 Western Electric debenture 5s, which were four of five time oversubscribed. Books were closed within a half hour after the opening by J. P. Morgan & company. This firm will offer tomorrow $10,000,000 Cleveland Union Terminal 5s at 97 to yield about 5.25 per cent.

The first disbursement of interest on bonds deposited under the Mexican debt readjustment plan will be made immediately by the international committee of bankers on Mexico, it was announced today. More than 90 per cent. of the bonds affected by the agreement have been deposited.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET.

Chicago, March 27.—Hushes to sell corn overwhelmed the demand for that cereal today, and hurried the May delivery price down to the lowest figures since the beginning of 1924. Largely as a consequence, oats and wheat touched new low price records for the crop. Corn closed unsettled, 1 3-8 to 1 7-8c down, May 75 5-8 to 75 3-4, with oats 3-8c to 1 1-8c off, and wheat ranging from 1-8 @ 1-4c decline to 2-8c gain, May $1.01 3-8 to 1.01 1-8 and July 1.03 3-4 to 1.03 3-8. In provisions, the outcome varied from 20 set-back to a like advance.

Liquidation by holders of corn and oats was in progress on a big scale, and was to some extent associated with prevailing fine weather likely to facilitate the movement of corn as well as to promote the seeding of oats. Besides, reports were circulated that corn was being offered in Philadelphia at less than could be done from here and that Canada was underselling Chicago with oats in New England. Resulting weakness, especially in corn market became so pronounced that it was nearly impossible to sell out and stop losses at pre-arranged limits. Rallies which ensued failed to develop much force and appeared to be due wholly to profit taking on the part of speculative sellers who had anticipated the break in prices.

Aside from the depressing effect of the downward slide of corn and oats the chief influence on wheat was the auspicious outlook for the growing crop in the hard winter wheat belt. News was also at hand that much seeding of spring wheat had taken place, notably in the Red River valley. Buying of wheat against sales of corn, however, tended to steady wheat at the last.

Provisions were upheld by firmness of hog values.

CURB MARKET.

New York, March 27.—Reports of a further reduction in crude oil production brought fresh buying into the oil shares, strength of which permeated the rest of the list in today's market.

Gains of 1 to 2 -1-8 points were registered by Standard Oils of Indiana, Kansas and Nebraska, Vacuum, Prairie Oil & Gas, and Prairie Pipe. Creole Syndicate and Lago Petroleum led the activity in the South American group, each closing fractionally higher.

A four point jump in American Light and Traction common to 136 1-4 following the announcement that the company has sold its entire holdings of capital stock of the Consolidated Gas company of New Jersey to the Jersey Central Power and Light corporation, was one of the features of the industrial list. A run-in of the short interest in Dubilier Radio sent that stock up more than two points to 30 but it dropped back later to 29. Haseltine corporation yielded two points on short selling but later recovered most of its loss. Park & Tilford advanced on an increased turnover.

Promoted To New Federal Post

Dr. S. Josephine Baker, for 20 years Director of the Bureau of Child Hygiene of the New York City Department of Health, has just been appointed Consulting Director of Maternity and Infancy and Child Hygiene of the Children's Bureau of the U. S. Department of Labor. Her new work for the mothers and babies of the nation will lie chiefly in the advice and determination of policies, planning the work, and writing reports. Dr. Baker organized the Child Hygiene Division, first bureau of its kind in the country, in New York in 1908, and during the following years New York's infant mortality rate was reduced from 144 per thousand to 75. She resigned last spring.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Lenten Talk at Y. M. C. A.

At the Y. M. C. A. Friday noon, Dr. J. R. Danforth, of New London will give his second Lenten talk on the topic, Christ and Man. Luncheon is to be served promptly at 12 o'clock followed by the talk. The meeting closes promptly at 10 o'clock.

At the Palace

Norwich has seen practically every sport, indoor or outdoor, from tiddledee-winks to the great national pastime of baseball but on Thursday at the Palace theatre, a new one was sprung on the public. It was "Bicycle Basketball" a game that was a combination of trick bicycle riding, polo and basketball. There is much interest in the game and the audience is kept in a state of suspense during the game. The game is staged by Harvard, Holt and Kendricks, and is the only act of its kind on the vaudeville stage.

The Variety Dance Revue is a neat dancing act featuring a very clever acrobatic dancer. He performs some very difficult dancing feats and assisting him are two dainty dancing misses.

Other acts on the bill are: Morgan and West in a comedy skit; Edouard, noted shadowgraph artist; and Ungara and Romano in a unique musical and comedy act.

The feature picture is "The Printers' Devil" featuring Wesley Barry in the title role. It is a light and pleasant comedy in which Barry makes the most of his talents as a juvenile actor.

An educational film and a comedy complete the bill.

Pruning Demonstrations

The farm bureau will hold several pruning demonstrations about the county next week. W. H. Darrow, fruit specialist from the Connecticut Agricultural college, will be present to conduct the demonstrations. Two demonstrations have already been held in the county this spring with very good attendance.

Monday, March 31, 10 a. m., William S. Lee, Hanover; 2 p. m., M. H. Bartlett, Griswold; Tuesday, April 1, 10 a. m. J. D. Avery, North Stonington; 2 p. m., W. I. Allyn, Ledyard; Wednesday, April 2, 10 a. m., C. E. Chipman, Waterford; 2 p. m., Scott Bros., Flanders.

Those interested in fruit growing will have an opportunity to get instruction in pruning apple trees if one of these demonstrations is attended.

STAFFORDVILLE

Miss Mildred Chandler and Clifford Belcher were visiting relatives in New Britain last week.

The Kingly Eagle.

Eagles have been known to attack full-grown sheep and even stags; but the stories of their carrying off children should be taken with a grain of salt, for, like nearly all the creatures of the wild, the eagle will attack man only in self-defense. He is the unquestioned king of birds. There are many larger and more powerful than he, but none of them has the courage, the swiftness or the majest carriage of the eagle. Ever since man was man the eagle has appealed to him as a creature of romance. Legends and fables about him abound in all languages. All the world over you will find the eagle as the symbol of nobility. The Indian chief wears a headdress of eagle's feathers as a mark of his high position.

At Altar and Later On.

At the marriage altar a man imagines he is getting what he wants, but later he is apt to discover that he didn't know what he wanted.

Why thank heaven for your dinner and then scold the cook?

He Would Like to Know.

An official of the village improvement society in New Jersey tells of a note received from a Japanese of an inquiring turn of mind. The subject of the inquiry is one that is familiar to most parts of the world, but no doubt the community of which it was made felt flattered by this evidence of its popularity. The note read: "The honorable society are asked in what way do they rid themselves of him the much troublesome mosquito? How do they approach him in his house among the reeds and marshes, so as to remove him effectually from the dangers that he does to people of good minds whose skins he must puncture? All this I would like so much to know."

Pocket Gophers.

Pocket gophers living near Los Angeles, show no appreciable differences from the fossil gophers which lived in California 200,000 years ago.

Pursuant to a Judgment of the Superior Court for Windham County dated February 18, 1924, in the case of Flina Abersstad vs August Abersstad, to me directed as a committee to sell the following real estate as a whole at public auction on the premises to the highest bidder on April 15, 1924, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon, I will sell at said time and place by public auction to the highest bidder the following described real estate situated in the Town of Canterbury, County of Windham, State of Connecticut.
One certain farm or two tracts of land with all the buildings thereon standing, situated on the North Society road so-called, in said Canterbury, containing about 113 acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:
First tract bounded: east by land of Anne E. Dawson and land of Horace G. Crawford, south by land of Edward Baker, Abel Larmon, west by land of Anne E. Dawson, north by land of Horace G. Crawford, land of William Hill, land of Anne E. Dawson. This tract is divided by the above mentioned highway. Second tract: the woodlot containing about 12 acres located south from the North Society road, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by land of Horace G. Crawford and land of the Town of Canterbury, easterly by land of Edison and Carpenter, land of said Town of Canterbury and said Crawford, westerly by land of Hart W. Goff, land of Abie Safford, northerly by stone wall abutting on land of said Crawford and said Edison and said Carpenter, said premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated March 24, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records Bk. 33, Page 384. Also another tract of land in said Canterbury, bounded and described as follows: On the south side of the highway leading from the dwelling house of Frank E. Miller to North Society and known as the Pollard lot. Beginning at the Northeast corner of land formerly owned by heirs of Reatus Hyde, and following said highway westerly about 28 rods to the northwest corner of said lot, thence southerly by fence or wall about 27 rods to the southwest corner, thence east by north Cobb land formerly owned by Isaac Kinne to land of said Reatus Hyde heirs, about 28 rods, thence north by east by said Hyde's land to place of beginning, containing three acres more or less, being the same premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated July 10, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records Bk. 33, Page 385.
Excepting from said three described tracts, a tract of land containing about 1 3-4 acres deeded by the Plaintiff and Defendant to Horace G. Crawford October 30, 1919, recorded Canterbury Land Records, Bk 33, Page 520, said tract described as follows: One certain piece or parcel of land situated in Canterbury on the highway leading from Frank Miller's dwelling House to North Society School House; bounded and described as follows: North by land of Horace G. Crawford about 140 feet from northwest corner to stake and stones; war gap in wall about 250 feet eastward, on the west by land of said Abersstads, thence east to stake and stones at said highway about 250 feet, bounded south by land of said Abersstads, thence north on the west side of said highway to land of said Crawford about 250 feet bounded easterly by said highway, containing about 1 3-4 acres more or less.

TAFTVILLE

Dr. Robert A. Speer of New York, who is speaking each evening this week at the United Congregational church at Norwich, preached at a special service held Wednesday evening at the Taftville Congregational church. The service was opened by Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, pastor of the church, who later introduced Dr. Speer.

Dr. Speer told of his travels across the dreary wastes of Persia in a native wagon, drawn by five horses abreast, which were changed every twelve miles. During these days and nights, when it was impossible to sleep because of the jolting of the wagon over the rough trails and camel paths, there was nothing to do but think. He began to think of the sayings of Christ, which were being lived today in the peoples of Asia, and there were many, he said that he could hear spoken just as clearly as they were spoken by the Master Himself 1900 years ago. One Saturday afternoon, he tramped through countless villages, where there were very few Christian families. He tried to determine which were the Christians among the people that he met, and during that whole afternoon, he did not make one mistake. They could be told by the cleanliness of thier homes, their courtesy and by the brightness in their faces.

In America, he said, the light of Christ is so diffused and common, that sometimes we fail to identify it as the Christ-light. Probably it would be a good thing for us if it were withdrawn for a while we would then know what had been taken out of our lives, and would plead for its return. He asked that the people of our country be genesous with that Light, and share it with those who today, are just beginning to emerge from darkness, and were finding their way to that Light.

Dr. Speer gave the benediction that closed the service.

The O. J. S. met Tuesday evening with the Misses Lydia and Irene Mayer at their homes on Terrace Avenue. There was a rehearsal of the play that the society is to give in the near future.

$30,000 FORECLOSURE SUIT AGAINST PEQUOT CASINO ASSOCIATION

In new suits for the superior court, returnable in April which were filed here Thursday at the office of Judge George E. Parsons, clerk of the court, are the following:

The National Bank of Commerce of New London, as it is trustee for holders of certificate of equitable interest sues the Pequot Casino Association of New London for foreclosure of a $30,000 mortgage. The writ in the suit says that on Dec. 19, 1908, the defendant owned Alfred H. Chappell of New London, trustee for certain persons as holders of certain certificates of equitable interest the sum of $30,000 on a note dated Dec. 19, 1908 and payable to Chappell as trustee fifteen years from Jan. 1, 1904 with interest from Jan. 1, 1913 at 4 per cent., payable annually with all taxes on August 4, 1912. Mr. Chappell died and in December of that year the superior court appointed the bank as trustee to succeed Chappell.

Ambrose Cassara sues Mary W. Farley both of New London, on a claim for $1,500—brought on the common counts.

$5,000 for Auto Accident

Sarah Menghi of New London seeks $5,000 damages from the Flanders Garage, Inc., of East Lyme, because of injuries she received on March 4, 1924, when she was a passenger in an automobile driven by Enthore Ceccarelli at Traill's Corner on the road between Mystic and Groton. At that time, it is alleged, a motor truck belonging to the defendant and driven by an employe, Arthur G. Winslow, ran into the Ceccarelli car, throwing the plaintiff out, breaking her wrist and giving her other severe injuries on the limbs, body and chest.

The Mariners' Savings Bank of New London sues Ellen A. Burke for foreclosure of a $10,000 mortgage, dated July 8, 1919, on two tracts of land on Blackhall street.

Grace F. Howard, of New London, executrix of the will of Estella Gresham of that city, is sued by Addie Dove Gilfillan of Glastonbury, on a claim for a bill of $900 for services and caring for Estella Gresham who died April 2, 1923. The services covered the time from Jan. 14, 1918 to April, 1923, but the bill has been disallowed by the executrix.

MEETING TO ORGANIZE FLEET RESERVE ASSOCIATION

On Friday evening, March 28, there will be held in the state armory at New London at 7.30 o'clock a meeting which promises to be of great interest to the men of the navy and its reserve force and to citizens generally throughout this state and country. It is figured that over 160 men from all over Connecticut will attend this conference in New London. There will be representative speakers from Washington and other cities at this meeting. It is announced that R. W. White and J. J. Kelly of Washington will be present and will address the gathering.

Within the past week there was an informal meeting of representative men from the submarine base here and men of the Fleet Reserve to make preliminary arrangements for this general conference.

MADE ANNUAL REPORT OF NORWICH DISTRICT

Rev. W. H. Bath of this city, superintendent of the Norwich district, made his annual report as follows on Thursday morning at Providence at the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church:

My first word is one of gratitude—gratitude for health throughout the year, for freedom from accident and hardship in 17,000 miles of travel, for unstinted measures of courtesy and hospitality, sometimes shown in unexpected places and in unexpected ways. But I feel a special sense of gratitude for the spirit that has prevailed in the churches of the district, a spirit of unity and harmony surpassing any other year of my administration, a spirit that has made for steady, if quiet, constructive effort.

Causes for joy among the preachers have been varied. Several report that this has been the most joyous year of their ministry in the work achieved. Rev. and Mrs N. B. Burton rejoice in the coming of a son, Richard Warren, last September; Rev. and Mrs. Philip A. Ahern in the coming of a daughter only last week. At least three young preachers have been carrying transfigured faces, as is meet and right, since the announcement of their engagements.

No man in active work has died, but Rev. C. E. Bromley, who supplied Methodist chirches for more than thirty years, and who retired last sprin, entered into rest suddenly in November. Rev. Charles Smith and Rev. C. W. Ruoff suffered several weeks of illness. In general, however, the parsonage families have been blessed with unusual health.

The following pastoral changes were made during the year: Rev. Franklin P. Frye, a Wesleyan student, was appointed to East Hartford; Rev. E. M. Pickop, a retired member of the New York East Conference, to South Coventry and Gurleyville; Rev. W. A. Crawford to Moodus; Rev. Rowe C. Stimson, a student in Hartford Theological seminary, to Vernon; Rev. H. D. Barlow, of Boston University, to East Blackstone and Millville; and Rev. H. H. Conklin was transferred from the West Ohio Conference to succeed Rev. C. C. Tibbetts at Danielson. The work at Windsorville, left to be supplied at the last conference, was placed under the pastoral care of Rev. J. E. Duxbury, of Manchester, and the Federated church at Staffordville is in charge of Rev. Robert Humphrey, a Congregational minister. The continuance of these pastoral relations is desired.

Anniversaries

In June, the Federated church in Tolland held a double anniversary, the 200th of the Congregational and the 150th of the Methodist Episcopal. The occasion was celebrated in pageantry, historical addresses and special sermons.

The Willimantic church observed its 95th anniversary in October. Dr. Bartholomew, Dean Beebe, Bishop Burns and others brought cheering and stimulating messages. Under the aggressive leadership of Rev. A. S. Muirhead, this church has caught a new spirit of optimism and courage that promises well for the future. Especially significant is the doubling of the Sunday school attendance during the year.

Property.

The new church at South Manchester, long hoped for, is now under way. The parsonage has been moved to another street to give additional room for the new stone edifice. The cellar walls are completed and the work, suspended during the winter months, will soon be resumed. The financial campaign last June was doubtless the most successful ever conducted in this district, $170,000 being subscribed and nearly $80,000 being already paid in.

A fine piece of work has been done at Hazardville, resulting in a church that would do credit to any community. An addition has been built for boiler room, kitchen, ladies' parlor, club room. The interior has been completely reconstructed. Class rooms for the Sunday school have been built in the balcony. The total effect of the auditorium will be an aid to worship. Mrs. George B. Gordon and Mrs. David Gordon have made gifts in memory of their husbands—the former, a pipe organ; the latter, subject windows portraying scenes in the life of Christ. The church will be rededicated by Bishop Hughes early in the coming conference year.

The vestibule in the Mystic church has been enlarged into a chapel with excellent facilities for Sunday school and social work. The unused gallery has been fitted with class rooms, while the lower floor of the tower has been converted into a kitchen and the upper floor into a ladies' parlor; the auditorium re-decorated and re-carpeted, and both church and parsonage painted and otherwise improved. The total expense of $7,500 is nearly covered by payments and pledges. Services of re-dedication were held December 9. The success of the enterprise is largely due to the initiative and energy of the pastor, Rev. J. G. Sallis, who has brought to this church an infusion of new life.

The parsonage has been remodeled at Westerly at a cost of $4,500. Plans are now under consideration for a new parish house to cost about $30,000. Eleven thousand dollars has been subscribed. To meet the opportunity in Westerly, modern equipment is necessary.

Our church at East Thompson has been renovated at an expense of $1,050. Great credit is due the pastor, Rev. John R. Miller, who, assisted by Silas R. Joslin, in addition to raising the funds, did the work with his own hands. The Sterling church has also done well, making improvements valued at $1,100.

Other repairs and improvements that cannot be tabulated here amount to $8,736. The aggregate spent on property during the year amounts to $85,816.

The church at South Glastonbury has been consolidated with Hockanum. The property was advantageously disposed of for $4,500, the proceeds being held by the newly-organized trustees at Hockanum.

Attention should be called to the unusual opportunity at Burnside a rapidly growing suburb of Hartford. Ours is the only Protestant church in the field, with 400 families on the pastor's calling list. Ours is the opportunity to capture and minister to a great community. To do so we must have a modern plant strategically located. Rev. W. H. Dunnack, who has displayed real leadership in this field, has a vision of the opportunity here and is trying to bring his people to see it.

Gifts and Bequests.

Hockanum receives $300 by the will of Mrs. Sophronia Holcomb; Mystic, $100 from Miss Allen Avery; Niantic, $1,000 from Miss Flora Smith; Stafford Springs, $3,000 from Mrs. Kate L. Lord; and Jewett City, an annuity of $200 from the estate of Rev. E. M. Anthony.

The church at East Glastonbury has received a lectern, the gift of the Queen Esther circle.

Ministerial Support.

Increases in salary, effective this year or voted for next year, amount to $8,700. South Manchester has voted $3,000 for an assistant to supervise religious education and recreation. If the man is secured, this will make an increase of $6,700 in pastoral support. The pastors of the following charges benefit by these increases: East Blackstone, Putnam, Moosup, Glendale, Westerly, New London, Niantic, South Coventry and Gurleyville, Uncasville, Willimantic, Warehouse Point, East Hartford, South Manchester, Hockanum, Mystic, Wapping. Many of the salaries are still below the level of a comfortable support. Some of the churches have a perfectly honorable attitude on this matter and are doing all they can; some others are horribly indifferent. It is noticeable that where approved financial methods are carefully tried conditions steadily improve.

Willimantic camp meeting and institute show steady increase of interest. However, the work cannot expand much more unless a dormitory is built to house those who come to this hill-top for instruction and inspiration.

The Centenary and World Service.

As a district we have not met our apportionment, but our giving for the five-year period will reach nearly, or quite, $135,000. Among the fifteen districts of the area we are outranked in per capita giving only by the Boston and Worcester districts. As we graduate from the Centenary period into the World Service era there must be no lessening of interest. Several group meetings have been held. The pastors generally report that the outlook is good, but definite figures are not yet available. About 900 World Service volumes have been distributed. In some churches they have had careful study.

Bible Study and Church Night.

Study classes for Bible study have been formed at Willimantic, Thompsonville and Norwich. Six more churches have adopted church training night this year. None of these has been more successful than that at Manchester where a defunct prayer meeting has been replaced by a weekly gathering averaging more than fifty people earnestly engaged in good fellowship, devout worship, serious study, wholesome recreation.

Membership.

Figures received from the pastors indicate that 286 have been received into preparatory membership, 677 into full membership, with a net gain of 452 full members. Dr. A. Earl Kernahan ably assisted five or six pastors in visitation evangelism. The best part of this plan is the training of workers. Norwich Trinity and Thompsonville have reaped an increase in vitality from this form of evangelism greater than appears in the statistics. The following churches made substantial gains in full members: Burnside 34, East Blackstone and Millville 28, Gales Ferry 30, Hazardville 56, Mystic 36, New London 70, South Manchester 80, Thompsonville 38, Trinity 40.

It may be of interest to report that five young men have been licensed as local preachers and two as exhorters. One pastor has found in his parish several young men of ministerial character, some of whom he hopes to lead into the work of the ministry.

The year has come and gone. Not all the goals have been reached, not all the hopes realised. But advances have been made. Encouraged by the victories of the year, let us go forward to new achievements for Him we love and serve.

BISHOP HUGHES LECTURES ON THREE FAMOUS PREACHERS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Providence, March 27.—The exercises of Tuesday afternoon passed very interestingly in the New England Southern conference. The conference sermon at 2 o'clock was delivered by Rev. R. A. Colpitts of the Union church, Fall River. His subject was "The New Coronation of the Christian Prophet." It was a masterly and eloquent message which showed the great place which the Christian church has had and must continue to have in the world's future development and progress. Mrs. Cashman, a soloist from Fall River rendered two soprano solos before and following the sermon.

At 4 o'clock Dean Beebe of Boston university School of Theology delivered a scholarly address on the mastery of one's self, showing how a man needs to get control of his own intellect sensibility and will to show himself the complete man which God intended him to be.

The exercises of Wednesday evening were in connection with the famous lecture of Bishop Hughes, Three New England Preachers from the Same Town. After the singing of a hymn, Rev. Joseph Cooper offered prayer. A duet by male voices entitled, Watchman, What of the Night, with pipe organ accompaniment, was impressively rendered. The hymn, Faith of our Fathers, was sung by the congregation. Rev. R. D. Hollington introduced the bishop to the audience.

The three ministers referred to were Michael Michael Wigglesworth of Colonial days; Adoniram Judson of missionary fame, and Gilbert Haven of New England Methodist fame. All these men were associated with Malden, Mass., at different periods of history. Wigglesworth was born on foreign soil but was forty years a pastor in Malden. Adoniram Judson was born in Malden, the son of the pastor of Congregational church, who later was the founder of the mission board of the Congregational church and later when on the mission field he changed his mind and became a Baptist. It was his influence that doubtless created the Baptist mission board. Gilbert Haven was born in Malden, the son of a Methodist layman who had up to within a short time of Gilbert's birth, been a members of the Congregational church. He had left the Congregational church because he could not endorse the views of the Congregational pastor on the subject of slavry. Gilbert grew to be a Methodist minister and finally to be elected a Methodist bishop.

Bishop Hughes held the audience spell bound for over an hour, portraying the associated historical attitudes of the times in which of these men lived illustrating his points with many a brilliant dash of wit. Referring to the Calvinistic doctrine of election as taught by Wigglesworth, he told of a white man who asked a Negro—"What do you think about election?" The negro replied, "Well, Massa the first thing to decide is 'Is you a candidate?'" The white man was a politician but forgot that election to eternal life demanded a candidate as much as election to the official positions of earth.

Another negro answered this way: "Well Massa, you see God he vote for you, and Satan he vote agin you. That makes it a tie and you has the deciding vote."

Bishop Hughes spoke concerning the slavery question which figured in Gilbert Haven's career so largely and said that he couldn't see what else could have settled that question besides the Civil war. He then went on to declare that he himself was in favor of peace and that he would be willing even to join a movement which would refuse to endorse the republican party in the next election except the party endorse the league of nations and the World Court. I am a life long republican, said he, and the son of an abolitionist, but I formed my opinion on that matter before it entered partisan politics and I refuse to be dominated by Henry Cabot Lodge. However said the bishop, I will not endorse any movement which would interfere with or mortgage my judgment as to my action in a future emergency when force might prove a necessity to protect sacred rights.

A brief business session was held after the lecture in which for special reasons the case of Howard P. Davis as candidate for full membership in the conference was presented and after favorable reports and the candidates answering the disciplinary questions, he was admitted to full membership in conference.

Personals

Rev. Charles Smith, who for the past two years, has been pastor of the church in Uncasville, Conn., is attending the conference. So greatly have the people of that church appreciated his services that they have voluntarily raised the salary $150 for next year and it is probable that he will be reappointed to that place.

Rev. S. F. Maine, a former Norwich pastor, is closing his first year as pastor of the church at Phenix, R. I., where his work has been much appreciated. The recent canvass for next year's budget has been most encouraging there being a gain in the amount subscribed of $600 over the amount raised in recent years.

Rev. J. S. Rook, another former Norwich pastor, has had a good year at Quarry Street church, Fall River, where he followed Rev. W. F. Davis a year ago. This church has an enthusiastic company of young people and a flourishing Epworth league organization which intends to entertain the next annual convention of the the New Bedford district league. Mr. Rook received a unanimous standing vote requesting his return for another year at the recent quarterly conference.

Rev. and Mrs. F. C. Baker of Bridgeton, R. I., are attending the conference session. Mr. Baker his had a good year at Bridgeton and expects to be reappointed there for another year. He was a pastor in Norwich in 1881 and '82 at the former North Main St. church and in 1884 and '85 at Norwich Town.

CARPENTERS SECURE RAISE TO $1 MINIMUM RATE

It has been agreed by the Norwich Master Builders and the Carpenters union, that commencing April 1, 1924, the minimum pay for carpenters shall be $1 per hour.

This agreement is to be for one year. The dollar rate is almost universal throughout the state, a few cities larger than Norwich have higher rates.

The minimum rate in Norwich has been 90c an hour.

The Wayside Inn's neighborhood has been marked by the census bureau as the center of population for Massachusetts. The exact point is eighteenths of a mile southwest of the Sudbury postoffice.

HARRY M. DAUGHERTY RESENTFUL AS HE RETIRES FROM CABINET UNDER PRESSURE

Tendered His Resignation as Attorney General "Solely Out of Deference" to President Coolidge's Request—Later, as a Private Citizen, Mr. Daugherty in a letter to the President, Denounced Those Who Had Advocated His Retirement—Declared President Coolidge's Stated Reasons For Asking His Resignation Were "Hardly Warranted by the Facts."

Washington, March 28.—Harry M. Daugherty passed out of public life today in a tempest that terminated belligerently his three stormy years as attorney general.

His appointment to the cabinet by President Harding was the subject of criticism, and his resignation came as the virtual demand of President Coolidge in the midst of a sensation producing senate investigation of his official acts.

President Coolidge asked for the resignation because he felt he could not depend on Mr. Daugherty for disinterested advice and because he believed the attorney general could not perform satisfactorily the duties of his office under the conditions resulting from the senate inquiry.

Mr. Daugherty tendered his resignation "solely out of deference" to the president's request and asked that it be effective at once.

Then as a private citizen he addressed an open letter to the president scathingly denouncing those who had advocated his retirement and declaring Mr. Coolidge's stated reasons for asking his resignation were "hardly warranted by the facts." The letter bristled with declarations that the president's "suggestion that an attack upon a cabinet officer disqualifies him for further service is a dangerous doctrine," and that "cowardice and surrender of principle are never expedient."

Before this letter was received at the White House, Mr. Daugherty cleared his desk, left the department of justice and soon was aboard a train enroute to Atlantic City. He plans to return to Washington next week, for the purpose only of closing up his private affairs.

By reason of Mr. Daugherty's retirement, President Coolidge for the second time within six weeks is faced with selection of a new cabinet officer. Immediately Mr. Daugherty's resignation became known there arose a discussion of many names. Some were eliminated as soon as mentioned for one reason or another, and others were dropped during the day with the result that the list of those being mentioned tonight included Chief Justice Arthur E. Rugg, of the Massachusetts supreme judicial court, Harlan F. Stone, dean of the Columbia University School of Law, Governor Alexander J. Groesbeck of Michigan, William S. Kenyon, former senator from Iowa, and now judge of the federal circuit court of appeals, Eighth district, and Secretary of State Hughes.

The president has given no consideration as yet to any particular persons but has decided that the man he selects as attorney general must have a knowledge of law and must possess administrative capacity.

James M. Beck, solitor general, automatically became acting attorney general with the retirement of Mr. Daugherty and will continue as head of the department of justice until the cabinet portfolio is filled. Belief was expressed in some quarters that a reorganization of the department personnel would be the result of the relinquishment of Mr. Daugherty of his duties. Friends of Augustus T. Seymour, and assistant to the attorney general, of the various assistant attorneys general, and of William J. Burns, friend of Mr. Daugherty and director of the bureau of investigation said they all would remain unless the president or the new attorney general desired otherwise.

A FORMAL STATEMENT ISSUED BY DAUGHERTY

Atlantic City, N. J., March 29.—Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty tonight issued a formal statement in connectionwith the resignation this morning. As he handed a sheet of hotel stationary upon which he had scrawled a few lines to a group of insistant reporters he said, "Well, boys, I hope I'll be let alone for a while now."

The statement folows:

"I know nothing further to say at this time or while here, as far as I know, except to take advantage of this, my first opportunity to advise the country that I hope the lies told by irresponsible so-called witnesses as to immoral conduct, disgraceful doings and improper associations on my part will not be believed.

"They are just plain lies procured to be told to create prejudice, considering that the committee is without legal authority to make inquiry into any such subjects, prosecution for perjury would fail. My friends know full well the kind of life I always lived."

COALITION SENATE ATTACK IS NOW AIMED AT MELLON

Washington, March 28.—Having disposed of Attorney General Daugherty as well as Secretary Denby, the coalition senate attack on the administration today turned on Secretary Mellon, with indications that more cabinet officers might come under the bombardment.

No sooner had the attorney general's resignation been submitted, than Senator McKellar, Democrat, Tennessee, introduced a resolution directing the judiciary committee to investigate whether Secretary Mellon is holding office in violation of the law which forbids the treasury head to be engaged in trade or commerce.

Although Senator McKellar asked immediate consideration for his resolution it was objected to by Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, and under the rule went over until Monday when it will be called up for debate and action.

Republicans who have been predicting that President Coolidge "would soon have no cabinet at all," if he yielded to the pressure for the attorney general's resignation, immediately characterized the McKellar resolution as another of the concrete developments in a plan which has been discussed in the undercurrent for weeks and which, the regular republicans say, contemplates going down the line in the cabinet in an attempt to pick up the secretaries one by one.

DAUGHERTY IN ATLANTIC CITY POSES FOR PHOTOGRAPHERS

Atlantic City, N. J., March 28—Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty arrived here at 5.40 o'clock this evening. He was met at the station by a group of photographers and newspapermen but refused to issue any formal statement. He consented to pose for the photographers, however, and when one of them requested the reporters to crowd about the former attorney general, Mr. Daugherty, with an ironical laugh said: "Don't come too close to me, boys, or you'll be contaminated."

Questioned as to what his plans for the future were, Mr. Daugherty said, "I have not had time to make any. I am going to be at the Hotel Traymore here for a few days. I would rather be in Atlantic City now than in office."

When asked if he expected to be called before the Daugherty senatorial investigation committee, the former attorney general made the following brusque reply: "It makes no difference what I expect or think, does it? I am no longer in office and there will be someone else to do the thinking."

Mr. Daugherty was met at the station by his son-in-law, R. F. Ratey, who drove him to the Traymore. He is the only member of the family here. Mrs. Daugherty, who is an invalid, is in Florida.

CONTEST ON THE FORM OF TAXING CORPORATIONS

Washington, March 28—Proposals to change the form of taxing corporations temporarily blocked progress in the senate finance committee today in its consideration of the revenue bill. Neither the bill passed by the house nor the Mellon tax revision plan proposed any change in the corporation tax.

The section was finally passed over by the committee and some of the technical provisions of the corporation tax system agreed to. The estate and gift taxes and the miscellaneous and excise schedules will be taken up in rapid order now after which, Chairman Smoot said today, the bill would be reported immediately. Such action could be obtained by next week, he thought.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, suggested today that the corporation tax of 13 1-2 per cent be increased to 14 per cent and the special tax on the capital stock of $1 for each $1,000 worth of stock of a corporation be eliminated. Senator Jones, democrat, New Mexico, told the committee he would offer some forms of graduated tax in place of the flat corporation levy. He did not mention the rates he would propose.

SIX OF CREW OF WHITE STAR LINER ARRESTED

New York, March 28.—Six members of the crew of the White Star liner Megantic were arrested today when customs men discovered 186 bottles of champagne being lowered into a motorboat from the vessel, which they intended to raid.

F. W. Ames, assistant storekeeper, who was questioned when the champagne was discovered, named the five others of the crew, who were produced in the custody of steamship officials after several hours of futile search by special agents.

The Megantic will sail tomorrow from Liverpool to begin regular passenger service between that place and Quebec without the six of its crew, who were detained for further hearing next week.

After a second search today of the Hamburg-American liner Albert Ballin, coast guard men found 613 bottles of beer and 45 bottles of whisky hidden deep in the ship Officers of the vessel were unable to account for the contraband, but no arrests were made.

ELECTION OF OFFICERS CONNECTICUT D. A. R.

New Haven, March 28.—Mrs. Charles Humphrey Bissell, of Southington, was re-elected state regent of the Connecticut Daughters of the American Revolution in the closing session of the 31st annual conference here today. All other officers with the exceptoon of the registrar, were re-elected. Miss Alice Lee Coe, of Winsted, was elected to the office of consulting registrar.

A telegram from President Calvin Coolidge, in response to the resolution adopted and sent the president at yesterday's session which the D. A. R. expressed confidence in the chief executive in the present governmental investigations, was read by Mrs. Bissell. The message read:

"Heartfelt thanks to the Connecticut D. A. R. for the resolution of confidence and assurance which I have received from them.

INDICTED FOR SALES AND MANIPULATION OF STOCKS

New York, March 28.—Charged with having made wash sales of stocks, and with manipulating prices in 1919, John Farson, head of John Farson, Son & Co., stock brokers, was indicted by the grand jury today and was held in $2,000 bail.

Farson was expelled from the New York stock exchange early this year for alleged participation in wash sales and for alleged violation of the exchange constitution. His dismissal after trial before the board of governors was based on charges connected with the flotation of stocks of oil companies which later went into bankruptcy.

CABLED PARAGRAPHS

End of London Traffic Strike.

London, March 28.—(By The A. P.)—London's transport strike was settled late tonight after daylong negotiations between the tramway and bus workers and the employers on a basis conceding to the workers an immediate advance of six shillings, with the remaining two shillings demanded by the men fluctuating, according to the cost of living index, thus the men get nearly all they originally demanded.

ACQUITTED ON CHARGE OF MURDERING HIS DAUGHTER

Bridgeton, N. J., March 28—Thompson Dickson, 43, tonight was acquitted on a charge of murdering his fifteen year old daughter Emma, last September in the rear of their Bricksboro home. The jury brought in the verdict for acquittal after a two hour session. Only one ballot was necessary.

When he heard the jury foreman mumble the words "not guilty," he immediately walked to the bar of the court and shook hands with Supreme Court Justice Campbell, who heard the case, members of the jury and his counsel.

At his own request, Dickson, tonight will sleep in the same cell he has occupied since the time of his arrest, several months ago.

Benjamin Dickson, the defendant's aged father, who was the principal witness in the state's prosecution of the case, and who charged his son with the girl's murder, did not appear at the court house today. It is thought he returned to Clinton, near Bridgeton, last night after testifying.

The accused man was on the witness stand for nearly two hours. He categorically denied all the charges and stories related by his father yesterday. He also denied he had ever seen the girl after she left the house on the night of September 13, presumably to purchase milk.

STRANGER ARRESTED AT FUNERAL OF MRS. SAUER

New York, March 28.—During funeral services held late today for Mrs. Maude Sauer, who was murdered last Tuesday on a desolate Staten Island road, a stranger answering the description of her slayer was taken away by the police when he insisted upon seeing the body, but investigation developed that this insistence was due to curiosity and he was released.

The man was a Brooklyn oil salesman who arrived near the Bauer residence, where the services were held, in a sedan similar to that used by the murderer. He answered the value description furnished the police of the murderer. Detectives noticed him standing near the curb and after he made several attempts to break through the police lines he was taken into custody.

The salesman asked the detectives to let him see the body. They took him to police headquarters and while the district attorney questioned him detectives hurried to his residence where his wife explained that he was in court when the murder was committed, that when he left the courtroom he drove away with the presiding magistrate. This the police verified.

The wife said her husband often went to Staten Island on business but that he had not been there in the first part of the week.

SUMMARY OF YESTERDAY'S EVENTS IN WASHINGTON

Attorney General Daugherty resigned by request of the president.

Alfred J. Pearson of Iowa, was nominated to be minister to Poland.

John Walsh, brother of Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, was questioned by the oil committee and denied interests in oil in Wyoming or any other northwestern states.

The senate debated the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty and Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, introduced a resolution to investigate Secretary Mellon's business connections.

Representative Langley, republican, Kentucky, indicted by a grand jury in connection with liquor cases, made bond and appeared before the house investigating committee at an executive session.

The railroad labor board was defended before the senate interstate commerce committee by Hale Holden, chairman of the executive committee of the association of railway executives, and Daniel Willard, president of the Baltimore and Ohio.

The Daugherty investigating committee delved into life in the Daugherty and Jess Smith apartments, questioning the former attorney general's former negro valet. A subpoena was issued for W. J. Burns to testify about files relating to Mexican revolutionary enterprises.

WOMAN HOLDS CONSTABLES AT BAY WITH REVOLVER

Greenwich, Conn., March 28—Mrs. J. J. Fry made up her mind that no one was going to make her give up her home, constable or no constable and today emphasized her intentions by holding Constable Donald Wright and four furniture movers at bay with a loaded revolver, when they sought to elect her from her home.

Through a change of ownership Mrs. Fry was notified to find a new rent recently and, after several papers had been served on the woman and the matter brought into the civil courts, Constable Wright was given ejection papers today with orders to execute them. Going to the Fry home Wright found the place locked and with the assistance of the movers lifted the rear door from the hinges and went inside where they were met by Mrs. Fry who, according to the men, pointed the gun at them and told them to get out.

"They did." Mrs. Fry then prepared herself against further invasion and protect her belongings. No attempt was made tonight to arrest her.

Constable Wright said that Mrs. Fry declared that she was not going to move and that no one was going to make her. Aside from that Wright said Mrs. Fry threatened to sue him for battering down three doors in the house.

Deaths and Damage Caused by Tornado

At Least Six Persons Were Killed and 250 Residences Destroyed at Shawnee, Okla.

Shawnee, Okla., March 29—Six persons are known to have been killed, a score or more seriously injured, and approximately one hundred others slightly injured, when a tornado hit the northwest part of this city late today.

All students of a wrecked school were dismissed about twenty minutes before the building crashed to the ground. The only person known to have been inside was the janitor, who was unhurt.

Two persons were killed at Noble, Okla., about 25 miles south of here, by a tornado that struck that little town late today, according to information received by the telephone company here.

Four Persons Injured in Texas

Wichita Falls, Texas, March 28—Four persons were injured and heavy property loss was sustained at Vernon, county seat of Wilbarger county, 50 miles northwest of here, when a tornado struck the city this afternoon.

Meagre reports reaching here were that 35 or more residences had been blown over or unroofed. A tall chimney over the Vernon Electric company toppled over, demolishing the power plant and leaving the city without lights or electric power.

Tornadoes in Kansas

Many buildings in Chrisfield, 40 miles southwest of here were reported wrecked by a twister. A school boy was injured.

In the vicinity of Attica much livestock is reported killed and a number of farm buildings were damaged. Slight damage was wrought near Elk Falls, southeast of here.

ROBERTSON-BIDDLE MARRIAGE LICENSE HAS BEEN ISSUED

New York, March 28.—Thomas Mackoe Robertson, New York architect, and Mrs. Cordelia Biddle, divorced wife of the late Angier B. Duke, son of the "tobacco king," today obtained a marriage license here. The wedding, it was said, would take place April 24 at St. Bartholomew's church, this city.

Mrs. Biddle, who is the daughter of A. J. Drexel Biddle and Cornelia Bradley of Philadelphia, married Duke at the age of 17. In 1921 she obtained a divorce on grounds of cruelty and inhuman treatment, in an uncontested action. Duke was drowned at Greenwich, Conn., last September. The divorce decree, issued at Philadelphia, became final last Monday.

In applying for the marriage permit, Mrs. Robertson gave his age as 48 and Mrs. Biddle 35. Uncorroborated reports of their engagement emanated several weeks ago from Palm Beach, where they were spending the winter.

LEFT FORTUNE BY GREAT UNCLE IN ENGLAND

Orange, N. J., March 28. — Three daughters and their widowed mother have been left a fortune of several million dollars by a great uncle in England, it was learned today from Miss Gladys Hulton, one of the daughters, who is an under-graduate nurse in St. Mary's hospital. Miss Hulton confirmed the reports which had been circulated among other nurses at the hospital, but she declined to say how many millions the family had received.

The home at 171 Garfield avenue, Jersey City, of Mrs. Robert Hulton and her three daughters, Gladys, Marie and Helen, was locked to visitors today, there being no respones to repeated ringing of the door bell. The fortune was left to the family by the proprietor of the Hulton Paper company in England, according to reports coming from Miss Gladys. The eldest daughter, Marie, is employed in a Fifth avenue millinery shop, New York.

HAPPENINGS BEFORE SENATE OIL COMMITTEE

Washington, March 28—Presentation of the senate's contempt charge against Harry F. Sinclair to the District of Columbia grand jury and another spirited row between Senator Walsh, the oil committee prosecutor, and Senator Spencer, republican, Missouri, were the major happenings today in the oil matter.

Another development was the testimony of F. W. Sardeson, a geologist of Minneapolis, that on the face of the reports of the oil committee's experts the oil supply in Teapot Dome leased to Sinclair, would exceed 190,000,000 barrels, as against the 26,000,000 barrels those experts had estimated.

NO MORE FOOLING

Nowhere did Abraham Lincoln show his shrewdness of judgment to better effect than in that famous utterance which ended, "You can't fool all the people all the time."

In the past there were a few misguided advertisers who thought they could sell their wares better by misrepresentation. But those advertisers have long since gone out of business or mended their ways. Hard experience taught that Lincoln was right. Untruthful advertising doesn't pay.

Other advertisers proved that the only way to advertise successfully, make regular customers and build up public good-will was to tell the absolute truth about their goods.

The concern that tells you frankly what it is doing is a good concern with which to do business. That is why it pays to read the advertisements, to patronize advertisers, and to buy advertised merchandise.

Read The Bulletin's advertisements. It's mighty good business.

TO PROTECT DEBILITATED FORMER SERVICE MEN

Washington, March 28.—Two orders for the protection of former service men whose compensation has been determined for disability of service origin will be put in effect shortly by Director Hines of the Veterans' bureau.

Under a ruling, effective April 11, once an award has been made to a veteran the disablement in service, such disability shall not be re-rated and compensation stopped, after the four months' time allowed for appeal, without the final approval of the director.

The order, in effect, Director Hines said, will eliminate many hardships experienced by former service men who have been denied compensation or hospitalization through errors in original ratings. If, after review of an adjudication, it appears the finding as to service connection was erroneous, the district board of appeals concerned will forward the case to the central board, which will make recommendations to the director. Pending the latter's approval of the re-rating, the veteran will continue to receive benefits.

Four control areas have been mapped out by the bureau, with an officer in charge of each, to cover all functions in connection with inspections and investigations. They will keep in touch with all activities and serve as "the eyes and ears of the bureau in the field."

FILES $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT AGAINST HER FATHER

Winsted, Conn., March 28.—Mrs. Eda S. Genson has filed suit against her father, Dr. Joseph Spoth, asking damages of $10,000 for the death of her mother who died last week from lacerations of the brain alleged to have been inflicted with a heavy iron pipe in the hands of Dr. Spoth. Dr. Spoth is now in the Litchfield county jail awaiting trial. Mrs. Genson was yesterday appointed administratrix of her mother's estate. Time Villa Park, the Spoth summer residence, is attached in the suit.

AMENDMENTS PASSED TO BURSUM PENSION BILL

Washington, March 28.—A total of three votes were cast by the senate today upon each of several committee amendments to the Bursum pension bill, and in each case the amendments were adopted by a two to one vote.

Senator Bursum, republican, New Mexico, and Senator Walsh, democrat, Massachusetts, constituted the triumphant majority, and Senator Dial, democrat, South Carolina, the constantly defeated minority.

PREDICTS RADIO PHONES FOR BUSINESS AND PLEASURE

New York, March 28.—Within five years, motor cars, railroad cars, yachts, airplanes and all other vehicles for pleasure and business will be equipped with radio telephones, Hiram Percy Maxim, president of the International declared today on his arrival on the Radio union, recently formed at Paris, Belgeniand. He announced that the first international radio congress would be held in the French capital, April, 1925.

26 Miners Killed By an Explosion

In the Mines of the Yukon-Pocahontas Coal Company in West Virginia — 15 Bodies Recovered.

Bluefield, W. Va., March 28.—Twenty-six miners lost their lives in an explosion in Number 2 mine of the Yukon-Pochahontas Coal company at Yukon, in McDowell county early today according to J. A. Demchock, ventilation engineer of the coal company who arrived here tonight from the scene of the disaster. Eight other miners, who were in Number 2 mine at the time of the explosion, were rescued. Fifteen bodies have been recovered.

The men were killed as they were reaching their places in the mine to begin their day's work. The miners had entered the mine in two groups, being hauled by a mine motor car. On the first trip of the motor car, 24 men, including the crew of the motor entered the mine and as the crew and eight more miners were making the second trip and had reached a point about 4,000 feet from the mine entrance the motor car became derailed. While five of the men were putting the car on the rails the explosion.

The other three men who entered the mine on this trip, according to Demchock, started to walk to their places in the mine, taking a short cut through some old workings. Officials and mine inspectors believe the trio encountered a pocket of gas and that their head lamps caused the explosion. The bodies of the three men were found several hundred feet back in the old workings.

HOUSE COMMITTEE TAKES UP CHARGES AGAINST MEMBERS

Representatives Langley and Zilzman Both Protested Their Innocence and Demanded Immediate Congressional Investigation—They Have Been Mentioned in Connection With Alleged Veterans' Bureau Frauds—Langley Also Has Been Indicted on Charge of Conspiracy to Illegally Withdraw Liquor.

Washington, March 28.—Representatives Langley, of Kentucky, and Zihlman, of Maryland, both republicans, were definitely identified today as the "two members of congress" referred to in the report of the Chicago grand jury, which investigated alleged veterans' bureau frauds.

As an aftermath of the Chicago disclosures, Langley was indicted here yesterday on charges of conspiracy to illegally withdraw liquor, the grand jury, however, made no mention of Zihlman in its report.

For two hours today, both of them, with their attorneys, were before the house committee which is investigating charges against them.

In their presence, John H. Crim, the special government counsel who heralded the presentation of evidence to the Chicago grand jury, was examined under oath by the committee.

After Crim's examination, and Langley, Zihlman and Langley, Zihlman and he, had left the room, the committee for another hour behind closed doors, continued its deliberations. Then Representative Burton republican Ohio, chairman of the committee, issued this statement.

"For the purpose of ascertaining formally, in compliance with the resolution, who were the members of the house against whom charges were made in the Chicago grand jury proceedings, special assistance to the attorney general, Mr. John W. Crim, was examined by the committee this afternoon and stated that Representatives Langley and Zihlman were the members of the house who were then mentioned.

"Messrs Langley and Zihlman were present at the hearing with their counsel. The matter was then held over until next Wednesday."

Mr. Burton explained that it would be necessary for him to be away from Washington Monday and Tuesday on business unrelated to the inquiry, and that it was for this reason that further committee sessions were put over until mid-week. No decision, he said has been reached as to whether witnesses will be examined in the open or behind closed doors.

Committee members, who said their function is to determine whether there is evidence of wrong-doing on the part of any representative to warrant his expulsion from the house, said they were determined to make an exhaustive examination of the evidence against both Langley and Zihlman. Charges understood to have been preferred against the Maryland member, which the grand jury here deemed insufficient to warrant indictment, probably will be taken up first.

Until today, no official information has been obtainable as to the identity of the house members referred to in the Chicago grand jury's report. A few days after it was submitted Langley and Zihlman announced on the floor of the house that they had unofficial information that they were involved. Both protested their innocence and demanded immediate action against Mr. Crim and other department of justice officials who have appeared with him before the grand jury here have steadfastly declined to disclose the two names to the public. Committee members attached importance to his statement to them today that no other members of congress were referred to in the Chicago grand jury report.

District Attorney Gordon of the District of Columbia attended today's committee session. Afterward Mr. Burton said that he was there "on another matter which has not yet developed."

After the committee meeting, neither Crim, Langley and Zihlman would make any statement as to developments. Committee members also were reluctant to go beyond the statement issued by the chairman.

Before Mr. Langley appeared at the capitol, bond in the amount of $5,000, was furnished by Representative Heaspeth, democrat, of Texas, for the Kentucky representative's appearance at trial. Both Langley and his attorney's reiterated that they would seek an early trial.

POINCARE HAS FORMED NEW FRENCH MINISTRY

Paris, March 28—(By the A. P.)—The French ministerial crisis came to an end this evening by the forming of a new cabinet to take the place of that which resigned last Wednesday following a vote of lack of confidence in the chamber of deputies.

Raymond Poincare who headed the old cabinet and who at the request of President Millerand accepted the task of forming a new one called on the president at nine o'clock this evening and submitted to him the names of the men who will take charge of the ship of state. The personnell of the new ministry follows:

Premier and minister of foreign affairs, Poincare.

Minister of finance, M. Francois Marsal.

Minister of war, M. Maginot.

Minister of public works, M. Le Trocquer.

Ministry of commerce, M. Leucneur.

Minister of hygiene and labor, Daniel Vincent.

Minister of education, Henry de Jouvenal.

Minister of colonies, Jean Fabry.

Minister of the navy, M. Bokanowski.

Minister of agriculture, M. Capus.

Minister of devastated regions, Louis Martin.

M. Poincare and his official family tomorrow at noon will pay an official visit to the Elysee Palace to be formally welcomed by M. Millerand. Premier Poincare has retained only two of his former colleagues in the cabinet, having called in ten new men to assist him in his policy of firmness in foreign affairs, law, order and internal economy."

NEW JERSEY LIQUOR CASE WILL REACH JURY TODAY

New York, March 28.—The case of J. Harry Foley, one-time secretary to former Governor Edwards of New Jersey, now state superintendent of weights and measures, Major Herbert I. Kats, and the Paterson Brewing and Malting company, charged with bribery and conspiracy to bribe federal agents, will go to a jury before Federal Judge Mack tomorrow. The court will charge the jury in the forenoon.

The defense rested late today after witnesses sought to upset the prosecution's charges that bribes were paid to allow brewing of beer and conversion into liquor of industrial alcohol in New Jersey and to insure the agents' cooperation in stemming the tide of Pennsylvania-brewed beer.

Exposition of the defense revealed a discrepancy between Kats's and Foley's explanations of their relations with federal agents who previously had testified they received $80.60 in bribes in two months last summer.

$75,000 LOSS IN FACTORY FIRE IN ANSONIA

Ansonia, Conn., March 28.—A $75,000 fire starting in the paper box factory of A. G. Redshaw company on Main street, at 3 o'clock tonight slowly ate its way through the two-story frame structure in spite of the efforts of the local and neighboring fire companies. When the alarm was sounded it was found that the flames had made too much headway for the local companies to handle, so the Baugassett company from Derby was called into action. But, the best the four companies could do was to keep the flames from spreading to the nearby lumber sheds of the Ansonia Lumber company. The local companies were the Charter, Eagle, Webster and Fountain Hose companies. The origin of the fire is unknown and the factory is a complete loss.

CITY'S ICE MUST BE SOLD AT 60 CENTS PER HUNDRED

Willimantic, March 28.—A resolution by which the city ice must be sold by the dealer or dealers to the consuming public at 60c per hundred weight, will be inserted in the ice contract, according to the action taken by the awarding committee, following the special meeting of the board of aldermen here Friday evening. The purpose of the special aldermanic session, was to obtain the sentiment of the council in relation to the disposition of the ice house stock. Mayor Dion called the session to order at 8.07 o'clock.

A motion was unanimously adopted authorizing the water committee and the mayor to advertise for bids. The prospective bidders will have an opportunity to make two proposals one to designate a price for the purchase of the entire harvest and the other to set a scale weight price. The former plan would eliminate a great deal of trouble. A rather lengthy discussion took place in which all the aldermen participated. The price last year was 45c a hundred at which it was sold, but this was considered seriously out of the question. It was stated that there was about 5,000 tons of ice at the municipal plant. D. W. Ives said it was brought out, refused to consider a bid unless the product could be sold at least 60c per hundred. He had the contract last year. It was brought out that Mr. Ives lost about $1,000 last year on the contract.

JOHNSON LOSES THE SUPPORT OF W. WRIGLEY

Los Angeles, Calif., March 28—Persistent rumors that he had withdrawn his support from the presidential campaign of Hiram Johnson were confirmed by William Wrigley, Jr., in a statement issued today.

"Yes, it's true," the chewing gum magnate declared when asked if he had left the Johnson ranks.

"You see," he added, "Hiram Johnson and I are personal friends. Right now I do not agree with some of his policies. Some of the things his supporters are saying I would not care to back up. I am not satisfied with Hiram's present ideas. But, you know men can be friends and still disagree politically."

He predicted the nomination of Calvin Coolidge and his subsequent election.

"Are you going to work for Coolidge?" he was asked.

"I'll not take any active part unless it is after the nomination," he replied.

125 MEN ARRESTED IN RAID IN EW YORK

New York, March 28—One hundred and seventy five men, arrested, charged with disorderly conduct in a raid early today on an uptown dance hall where they said they had been attending a testimonial dinner to one of their number were discharged tonight. First and second degrees were conferred on a class of fifteen candidates at the regular meeting of Conseil Fraternel, No. 74, L'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique, held this week in the Al-Pierre Taberin, with an unusually fine attendance. The third degree will be exemplified at the Tabarin Sunday afternoon at three o'clock when a large delegation of out-of town members will attend.

High school principals assembled for a busy session at Willimantic Normal school, Friday to complete the task of arranging the material for a state administrative manual for secondary school. The work was gotten under way last year when the conference was inaugurated.

Fifty principals and their delegates were present. Friday. Principal Egbert A. Case represented Windham High school.

The conference opened Thursday evening with a dinner at 6.30 o'clock in the residence hall and an entertainment program was in charge of Walter B. Spencer. A social hour was enjoyed following which Dr. Jesse E. Davis, state supervisor of secondary education announced the program of events for the coming day.

An address of welcome was delivered by George H. Shafer, principal of the local normal school, who talked humorously on The Rules and Regulations of the Dormitory. Brief addresses were made by visiting principals, Paul Miller of Meriden, Clarence Quimby, South Manchester, Bernard Eaton, East Hartford, William C. Holden, Hartford, E. S. Mapes, Terryville, Philip A. Jakop, Norwalk and Mark E. Stimson of Putnam. As a conclusion to the speechmaking, Michael C. Donovan of Waterbury, the eldest principal in the state, was called on for remarks. The principals then adjourned to the dining room.

A general session was opened at nine o'clock, in the Normal school assembly hall Friday morning, at 9 o'clock. Dr. Davis was in charge. The Administrative Organization—School Committee, Superintendent, Principals and Teachers, was the main subject of discussion.

Group conferences were then held and important topics for the state manual were taken up. The groups were as follows: Making of the high schedule, Principal James M. Hulse, of Bridgeport; The Marking system, Records, etc., Principal Paul Hanft of Meriden; The School and the Community, Principal Henry L. Cottle, Bristol; The Use of the Longer Class Period, Principal Louis P. Slade, West Britain.

At 12.30 lunch was served.

The guidance bulletin was the subject for discussion when the session reconvened at two o'clock, in the form of a general convention with Lyman S. R. Butler, of Litchfield, leader. Group meetings were carried out in the following order: Teachers' meetings, large high school group, Robert P. Early of Wallingford, leader; What Can the Small High school do to Render Greater Service to the Pupils Who are Not Going to College, medium high school group, Harold P. Crosby, of Guilford, leader; Problems of the Junior High School, Principal Donald Sweet of West Hartford, leader; The Six-Year Secondary School for Small Towns, Dr. Jesse H. Davis, state supervisor of secondary schools, leader.

A dinner was served in the refectory hall at six o'clock in the evening. After the repast the gathering was addressed by State Commissioner of Education Dr. A. R. Meredith, the talk being most instructive and interesting.

In his annual report at Providence, at the New England Southern Conference of the Methodist Episcopal church, Rev. W. M. Bath of Norwich, superintendent of the Norwich district said, of the local church: The Willimantic church observed its 98th anniversary in October, Dr. Bartholomew, Dean Boots, Bishop Burns and others brought cheering and stimulating messages. Under the aggressive leadership of Rev. A. Stanley Muirhead, this church has caught a new spirit of optimism and courage that promises well for the future. Especially significant is the doubling of the Sunday school attendance during the year.

There was a "blanket bee" for Mrs. Aldage Beaulieu of Windham road Thursday evening given by several of her friends, including: Mrs. T. J. Connelly, Mrs. William P. Dineen, Mrs. William Champlain, Mrs. Samuel Dilworth, Mrs. Walter Jones, Mrs. John McKenna and Mrs. W. Powell.

Miss Sabra S. Stoughton of 56 Pleasant street, Willimantic recently won the third prize in an essay contest open to the high school seniors in the city of Hartford. She took for her subject, What I Like Best About Hartford. There were 53 essays entered in the contest. Miss Stoughton is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John D. Stoughton and is well known here and in Norwich where she was graduated from the Norwich Commercial school last August.

John MacDonald, hailing from East Weymouth, Mass., came to this city Thursday evening with nothing more than a pocket full of onions which he had purchased in Boston. He saw a prospective looking sportsman strolling down the street and he up to offer a dime which he said he would apply toward the purchasing of the Onions, he said were quite too strong to be eaten alone, and besides that they failed to satisfy his appetite The promising gentleman, however, proved to be Patrolman Roderick Lariviere who was wearing civilian clothes.

MacDonald was booked on a charge of vagrancy. In the police court Friday morning, he was quizzed by Deputy Judge Dean and Prosecuting Attorney Harry Harvey. The accused admitted that he was a cotton weaver but that work was dull and he was on his way to the Golden West. He said that he did not drink, but was so broke he had to beg some of the time. His features brightened up a bit when he was informed that lodgment in the case would be suspended while he got out of town.

In the arrangements for the annual Easter Monday ball of San Jose Council, No. 14, Knights of Columbus, thirty-two decorated boxes will be arranged about the ball floor. The committee comprises: Edmund H. Portelance, chairman; Eugene Marty, Arthur P. Bergeron, Francis Moriarty and Leslie Herrin.

The members and guests who attended from this city were Mrs. Herbert H. Chappell, Mrs. Herbert W. Hubbe, Mrs. Ralph W. E. Carpenter, Mrs. Albert E. Welch, Mrs. Henry H. Lincoln and Mrs. Arthur W. Gates.

Miss Dorothy Edith Sweeney, 12, daughter of William J. and Honora McDonough Sweeney, who died at the home of her parents, 332 Jackson street, Thursday evening after an illness of several weeks, was a pupil in the fifth grade of St. Joseph's school and was popular among her classmates. Besides her parents she leaves four sisters, Misses May L., Helen L., Mildred R., and Alice G. Sweeney and two brothers, William D. and Lawrence Vincent Sweeney.

Al Miller succeeds in making proper negotiations, "Bob" Stone of Waterbury and Louis Police of Bridgeport will meet in this city in a pocket billiard match of one hundred and fifty points about the middle of next month. These two contestants rank as two of the best cue wielders in the state. The Waterbury sheriff replied Friday that he would be glad to come to this city to show his wares and that he would bring Police with him. "Count" Benoit, former local man, now Hartford's pool champion, has not yet replied to a request to come here in an engagement.

The conference held at the Y. M. C. A. building, Friday evening, to discuss local association problems was marked by excellent results. Representatives from Meriden, Middletown, and New Haven participated in the discussions. A good number of local men attended. Relation of the Association to Other Agencies, Work for Young Women and Girls, Basis for Membership and Personnel and Leadership were some of the subjects taken up.

Work has been started on the new building of the E. G. Remington company on Bridge street. The structure will be three stories high and constructed of brick so as to be fireproof. It is planned to have it ready for occupancy in about five weeks.

A whist given by the Foresters of America at St. Mary's hall this week was a decided success, some three hundred and fifty being present. Cyril Jubin was given the door award. John MacDonald, hailing from parts unknown, paraded to the worn party Thursday evening when he ast of Patrolman Roderick Lariviere, for money with which to buy food. MacDonald, quite an elderly man, did not realize that he was committing himself as the officer was off duty and in plain clothes. He said that he had a pocket full of onions but wished to have something else to eat with them. MacDonald claimed he purchased the onions in Boston. He will be presented in court this (Friday) morning on a charge of vagrancy.

Miss Dorothy Sweeney, 12, died early Thursday evening at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Sweeney, of 332 Jackson street after a long period of suffering. Besides her parents she is survived by four sisters Misses May, Helen, Mildred and Alice Sweeney and two brothers, William B. and L. Vincent Sweeney of Willimantic. The little girl was a pupil at St. Joseph's Parochial school where she was very popular with her teachers and classmates.

Alfred Johnson of Eagleville attended the Strand Theatre Thursday evening and came out at 9.30 o'clock to find that his automobile, which he had parked in front of the theatre, was missing. He notified Captain Thomas Leahy of the police department and a search is being made for the car. Johnson apparently had left the registration in the machine and could not remember the number. The car is a Star touring, sport model with nickel-plated radiator, disc-wheels, green body and brown top.

MYSTIC

Notwithstanding the discouraging conditions that have prevailed, in the way of bad road conditions around the church, the several bad storms that have occurred and now the restriction that has been placed on the attendance of the young people of the village in public gatherings on account of cases of scarlet fever since evangelistic meetings have been in progress at the Union Baptist church, the attendance has been good and definite results are being achieved. Rev. H. J. Chase of the Montauk Avenue Baptist church, New London and some of his congregation were present Thursday evening, the visitors including an orchestra of eleven pieces, violins, trombone, banjo, 'cello and cornet, which provided fine selections and was much appreciated. The singing was hearty and inspiring and the sermon convincing and their was a good response to the appeal of the evening.

Miss Collins, assistant to Allyn G. Ireland, M. D., director of physical education and health for the state of Connecticut, visited Stonington schools Friday morning and addressed a general meeting of all the teachers in the town of Stonington Friday afternoon, the Broadway school closing early in the afternoon so that the teachers from here could attend the gathering.

The Delta class of the Methodist Sunday school entertained the Reliable Ladies' class Thursday evening in the chapel. There were recitations by Mrs. Decker, Mrs. Seeley and Mrs. Ellery Burdick, a solo by Miss Constance Fort and a duet by Mrs. Clinton LaFarrier and Mrs. Joseph MacDougall. Following the programme games were enjoyed and refreshments were served. Twenty-seven were present.

Mrs. Robert Mattison is the guest of Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Hawthorne of Spicer avenue, Groton. Mrs. Mattison is ninety-two and a remarkable woman for her years. Except for failing sight she is in full possession of all her faculties, with mind and wit keen, and her interest in the affairs of the day remains active.

Mrs. C. P. Tousgdon has returned from a visit in Colchester.

Mr. and Mrs. William L. Main and daughter, Hazel, have returned from spending the winter in St. Petersburg, Florida. On their return they brought a baby alligator to Charles Stribl, who attends the Broadway kindergarten, and the children in all the grades had the opportunity of seeing this interesting specimen from the sunny south. The alligator is housed in a little tank filled with water, sand, shells, etc., and proved a fascinating sight as taken through the various rooms of the school.

Miss Edith M. Rathbun has returned from a visit with New York friends.

At a meeting of the Orientals, Order of Humility and Perfection, to be held this (Saturday) evening reports are to be read of the progress being made toward getting ready for the institution of this organization in June.

Miss Helen Palmer of Brooklyn, Conn., is a visitor in the village.

Mystic friends of Mrs. John R. MacNamara, of Norwich, a former resident here and daughter of the late Michael Gaffney, regret to hear that she is seriously ill with pneumonia. Her brother, James B. Gaffney, of San Francisco, California, is on his way east to be with her.

A sprig of Broadway school sent him flowers this week as an expression of sympathy.

Mrs. Frances M. Aiken was in Stonington Friday.

Pupils who have been neither tardy nor absent the past month at the Broadway school are:

R. G.—Seneca Allyn, Clarence Hughes, Virgilio Soussel, Grace Lelena, Madeline Moll, Edith Gaskell.

A short docket and a still shorter trial session of the Third District court was held in the court room on Union street Friday morning. Clerk M. Walter Flynn read the following docket: New writ—Alfred E. Lockwood vs. Elizabeth Quinn. An action in book acount entered and continued two weeks.

Civil dockets—Westerly Light and Power Co. vs. Mystic Woolen Co. Continued one week.

C. H. Conway vs. Thomas Buell Continued one week.

Edna M. Gregory vs. Joseph Steadman. Due to the absence of attorney for the defendant, John J. Dunn, who was in attendance at a session of the superior court, Providence, the case was continued one week.

Judge Michael J. Turano called the case of Ledyard S. Anthony vs. Leroy B. Talbot, which was continued from the previous Friday when evidence was taken and Attorney A. T. L. Ledwidge was directed to file his argument in writing with the court. The case was an action in assumsit, suit being brought to collect $88.50 alleged due for a cow sold. Attorney Ledwidge said that the papers in the case were in the mail, there being doubt in his mind whether they should be addressed to the judge in Providence or in Westerly. As they were placed in the mail on Thursday it was his best judgment to direct them Westerly. Judge Turano said that he had not received them and if there was no objection he would continue the case until next Friday.

Attorney John F. Gallagher gave notice of an application for citation for Wilbert A. Clark to appear in court on next Friday.

There were no criminal cases to come before the court and there were no spectators in the court room. Early adjournment followed.

Rev. Marvin S. Stocking, pastor of Grace Methodist Episcopal church, is at Providence in attendance at the New England Conference of Methodist churches.

STAFFORD SPRINGS

Joel H. Reed of Williston academy is spending the spring vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Willis H. Reed.

The public school closed Friday for the spring vacation. Sessions will be resumed April 7th.

Leo Quinn has gone to Worcester, Mass., where he is employed in a worsted mill.

Mail delivery in the borough seems to be assured but the date when it will begin has not yet been determined. The houses are being numbered and other preliminary steps taken toward inaugurating the system. The receipts at the Stafford Springs post office are sufficient to warrant city delivery, it is said, however, that there is no appropriation for it and unless congress makes such an appropriation Stafford Springs will have to be content with village delivery which means probably only one delivery each day. The present post office quarters are too small and Post Master Charles will soon be obliged to secure more room in the present building or look for a new location.

The Congregational society has elected the following officers and committees: Members of society committee, for three years, G. Raymond Towne, Angus Park and Charles P. Beckwith, Mr. Park and Mr. Beckwith holding over; clerk, Lewis McLaughlin; treasurer, H. E. Burwell, trustee of funds for three years, W. H. Heald; trustees holding over, F. H. ## ANNOUNCEMENTS

Park Congregational church

Tuesday, April 1. The Camp Fire Girls will have a box-lunch picnic in the dining room of the Parish House, at 6.30 o'clock on Tuesday evening, April 1. Thursday, April 3, Mid-week service in the chapel at 7.45 p. m. Friday, April 4, Troop 12, Boy Scouts will hold its regular meeting in the Parish House at 7.15 o'clock.

"Marcheta" At Broadway Theatre

Director Wilkinson is very much grained at the progress the cast are making for the production of "Marcheta", the Nemrod Grotto pay, at the Broadway theatre on April 4 and 5. "Marcheta" is expected to be better even than "The Glorious Girl" of last year. A feature of this year's production is the part the children have and they are appearing faithfully. The advance sale of tickets is very large so far and a full house will be on hand for the opening night. The famous Glorious Girl chorus here last year will be seen in a Russian dance worth while to a big hit with the audience. The few who have been fortunate enough to see the rehearsals have nothing but praise for "Marcheta."

Don't fail to keep your temper. Other people don't appreciate temper as a gift.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Booth Tarkington Has Given Us a Wonderful Story, Says Tom Meighan

If Booth Tarkington were a candidate for political office he probably would not shake hands with more people than he did recently at the Paramount Long Island studio, where he made his latest picture, Pied Piper Malone, an original story by Booth Tarkington.

The hand shakers were not voters, far from it. They were fifty youngsters ranging from one year to ten years of age and every morning there was a regular procession of kiddies bringing greetings of the day to their favorite. Some shook hands but some were more fortunate and received a kiss on the cheek and a big hug—especially the blue-eyed girls—from Mr. Meighan.

The children were just as big favorites with Mr. Meighan as he was with them. They followed him around the studio in complete adoration, which he returned with equal enthusiasm. The popular star is literally their "Pied Piper" in the picture.

"I am never so happy as when working with children," said Mr. Meighan as he tugged away from a group of his admirers. "They are so unassuming and so natural. They are a wonderful influence on everybody connected with the picture. We all work just like one big family and even if it is a little harder work we like it. Booth Tarkington has given us a wonderfully human story to make. It is packed with heart throbs, human interest and romance. There is certainly a joy in working in such a story."

"Pied Piper Malone opens a 5 days' run at the Broadway theatre Sunday. Lois Wilson, leading woman, heads the strong supporting cast, which includes George Fawcett, Cyril Ring, Charles Stevenson, Joe Burke and a host of others. Alfred Green directed the production. Tom Geraghty wrote the scenario.

At the Palace.

That a harmless prank may turn out disastrously is vividly portrayed in "Tipped Off", the great crook melodrama, which will be shown Sunday night at the Palace theatre. Hailed as one of the most sensationally exciting photoplays of the year, "Tipped Off" tells the story of a girl, who, in a moment of thoughtlessness, stole a string of pearls from her sweetheart. Subsequently, the girl is kidnapped by a band of robbers who are also after the pearls and compelled to match her wits against them in order to protect herself and return her fiancee's property. She succeeds in escaping from the gang and finds refuge in the shadowy seclusion of a Chinatown den, where her troubles begin anew.

Equally entertaining with the action and excitement of the picture is its romantic interest. It reaches a climax far different from the ordinary run of such productions.

The second feature is William Desmond, popular Universal star, has the role of a placer miner in his latest production, "Shadows of the North."

The play was adapted to the screen by Paul Schofield from the popular novel, "The Skyline of Spruce," by Edison Marshall. The theme of the play is written around the adventures of a young Canadian who had struck it rich and whose claim was "jumped" while he was in the army during the war.

It offers rich entertainment in the way of thrilling situations, dramatic suspense, and the love with human interest.

Robert Hill, director of many popular Universal chapter plays, including "Around the World in Eighteen Days," and "The Phantom Fortune," both of which starred Desmond, directed "Shadows of the North."

Virginia Browne Faire, one of the most skillful of the younger emotional actresses of the screen, has the leading feminine role.

Other short subjects will also be shown.

WILLYS ANNOUNCES REDUCTIONS IN PRICE

No better indication of the increased demand for Willys-Knight and Overland closed cars during the current winter can be given than the announcement from Willys-Overland headquarters that prices on two of its most popular enclosed types have been slashed as a result of a factory output in excess of all original anticipations.

According to the announcement the price reduction affects the Overland Champion model, which has been reduced to $655 from $695, a cut of $40, while the Willys-Knight standard sedan has been reduced $100 to $1695. All these are Toledo factory prices.

Accompanying the announcement is a brief statement from John N. Willys, president of Willys-Overland, setting forth the reasons for this remarkable action:

"January and February production has exceeded all expectations. During the first month of the new year we manufactured 32,048 cars, more than double the output of a year ago. In February we maintained an average shipping record of more than a thousand cars daily, closing the month with total shipments of 22,136.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

H. H. Woodward, the jeweler, who explains in an announcement in another column why he is to remain at his store, 134 Main street, had before engaging M. B. Beckwith as manager, fully decided to give up the store, and even had his stationary and calanders printed with his home address and bought a safe for his house to haul the goods he would carry on the road. But circumstances beyond his control have forced him to continue the store another year.

BREED THEATRE

The publication of a new book by William J. Locke is a real event in the literary history of England and America. His novels are a by-word in English-speaking families, and readers of fiction look forward to them with keen anticipation. Among his works are the very popular The Beloved Vagabond, The Tale of Ariona, Jaffery, The Morals of Marcus Ordeyne, Where Love Is, The Rough Road, The Fortunate Youth, The Red Planet, Septia Maria and The Mountebank.

A few of his stories have been put on the screen with the greatest success, and now one of his most romantic and fascinating novels has been picturized. This is The Tailor of Trione, which the Metro Pictures Corporation has produced under the name of The Fool's Awakening. This picture will come to the Breed theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The Fool's Awakening boasts a splendid cast, including such favorites as Harrison Ford, Enid Bennett, Mary Alden, Alec Francis, Lionel Belmore, Arline Pretty, Harry Northrup, D. R. O. Hatswell, and others, who are said to approximate very closely the characters as drawn by the English writer.

The picture has been directed by Harold Shaw, which assures authenticity in the matter of the scenes of its locale—England and Russia. Mr. Shaw is familiar with every foot of ground mentioned in Mr. Locke's story, having lived abroad for many years, and also having recently made a picture in that part of Russia in which some of the action takes place.

Tom J. Hopkins did the adaptation and continuity, J. J. Hughes was art director, and Allen Siegler photographer.

Today's bill consists of John Gilbert in Cameo Kirby, The Way of a Man, the Pathe news and a Sunshine comedy.

AT THE PALACE

The Charles K. Champlin Stock Co. comes to the Palace theatre next week. Charlie states that he has found in his long years of experience touring about the country that his attraction having established itself as a standard amusement in many cities is almost a true barometer of business conditions. Localities where he has a bad week are generally in the midst of an industrial depression and vice versa. Since opening in August he has not found one bad spot, and this would seem to indicate that the west, at least, is generally enjoying prosperity.

"Charlie" is devoting the entire time to the production department and keeping his eye "peeled" for stage plays as soon as they are released for stock presentation. His list of plays for this season would evidence the fact that he has not been "asleep at the switch," and the selection of actors, scenary, wardrobe electrical effects etc., will fully substantiate his statement that his offerings are far superior to any of his previous endeavors. The first play to be presented Monday is without a doubt one of the greatest comedies the stage has ever known, East is West, which will be given an elaborate scenic and costume production. For Tuesday matinee and night, The Love Child will be the offering.

Wishing personally to greet his many friends and patrons in Norwich and vicinity Mr. Champlin will appear in the difficult role of Charlie Yang, in East is West. The management assures all attending Monday a performance long to be remembered.

THE GINGHAM GIRL

The local theatrical season will boast of a charmer when The Gingham Girl will be at the Broadway theatre one night only April 11.

To those who keep in touch with things theatrical this announcement is unusually interesting as The Gingham Girl is recognized as the biggest musical comedy success in many years, holding the record run for New York last season.

According to reports from Broadway, The Gingham Girl is a gem among musical comedies. It is different from the rest, it has charm, brightness and melody, and it contains more fun and humor than the average production. The cast is composed of Broadway favorites, and the [illegible] was the sensation of the season in New York. This success was duplicated during six months in Chicago.

This show opens in Boston Monday.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

(Special to the Bulletin)

Danielson, March 28.—

According to testimony given by Harold S. Greene, a trainman who was on duty, as a flagman, Henry Dorrance, who, with Mrs. Dorrance, was killed in the grade crossing accident two weeks ago Friday evening at Plainfield, paid absolutely no attention to signals not to drive over the crossing.

Testifying at the inquest being conducted here by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, Flagman Greene, whose home is in Bristol, R. I. said that he stood on the crossing waving his lantern in an effort to stop two machines that were about to cross the tracks. It has since been ascertained that the first of these machines is owned by Jacob Weschler, who has a store in Plainfield, but who is said to live in Jewett City. Weschler's car kept coming in spite of the waving lantern and so did the Dorrance car, which Green said was about 50 feet in the rear of the Weschler machine. The Weschler car cleared the crossing and escaped injury. Greene said he tried desperately to get Mr. Dorrance to stop and stood so long in the path of the oncoming automobile that he was finally brushed by a fender of the machine as he leaped away to avoid being run down by it. Flagman Greene told the coroner that he waved and waved his lantern in his effort to have Mr. Dorrance stop the onward course across the tracks into the paths of the cars that were about to be backed over the crossing, but no attention whatever was paid to the signals.

Flagman Greene has been the important witness so far at the inquest, at which the engine crew and conductor also have testified. Two other brakeman of the train crew, Weschler and some Plainfield people who are said to have been witnesses of the accident that cost Mr. and Mrs. Dorrance their lives have been ordered to appear before the coroner to tell what they know about the case. Their testimony will be taken Monday.

Charles LaMaire, a man in his 30's, is being held under bonds of $1500 for his appearance in the town court next Tuesday morning to answer to an allegation charging assault on a female child of the age of two years and 10 months. LaMaire denies that he is guilty of the charge.

Prosecuting Attorney and other officials have been investigating this case for some time, following a complaint that came to the attention of the prosecutor's office. LaMaire, in default of bonds, was committed to jail, following his arrest and adjournment of the case until Tuesday, but it was stated Friday afternoon that his release under bonds was being arranged.

As forecasted in this column early in the week, a special town meeting has been petitioned for, to give the electors an opportunity to pass upon the matter of making an appropriation to meet the cost of auditing the books of officials of the town of Killingly over a period of five years past.

A resolution to that end was turned down, as not in order at the adjourned annual town meeting. It is forecasted that it will meet with sharp opposition at a special town meeting, primarily on account of the cost, which might mount, it is held, to several thousands of dollars. Those who support the plan say that the audit might prove worth all it would cost and more.

It is held that an audit by a public accountant would mean nothing at all—no more than an audit by the town's accountants. If the audit is to be a certified accountant, that would mean something entirely different, it is held. The services of certified accountants are very expensive, and that likely will be the main basis of opposition to any resolution providing for an audit, no matter how desirable an audit would be.

Money deposited on or before the 5th day of April will draw interest from the first day of April, if placed in the Savings Department of the Windham County National bank.—Adv

Marint Rzinkiejisc, he who made such a successful horseback ride after Hyman Marks and another man who were at his place in the Horse Hill district of the town and drove off with 81 grain sacks Thursday, appeared to have experienced a change of heart overnight and Friday was sorry he entered into an agreement with Marks to settle the matter by accepting the return of his sacks and a bonus of $5 for his trouble.

He came to Chief McFarland Friday morning to discuss reopening the case but that officer told him the hour for that was past.

His attention was called to the fact that the men had been arrested upon his complaint, placed under bonds of $100 each for a hearing Friday morning and the stage all set for the prosecution of the case when he entered into an agreement for a settlement and had gone to the prosecuting attorney to seek a withdrawal of his complaint.

Rzinkiejisc admitted all this, but said he had not had an opportunity to talk the happening over with his wife, at the time. He was assured that this was unfortunate, but a circumstance that could not be overcome at this time.

As careful a patrol of trout brooks as is possible will be made today and Sunday in the hope of detecting anyone who goes trout fishing in advance of the opening of the season Tuesday morning. Reports of advance fishing have also been assured game wardens from observers who are willing to assist in seeing that all fishermen get away to an even start. Fishing ahead of the season will be dangerous this year, more so than generally has been the rule in the past.

The weekly vaudeville entertainment at the Orpheum theatre proved the usual attraction at Friday's shows.

Tomorrow being conference Sunday, there will be no services at the Methodist Episcopal church.

Add to the season's wreckage list, one silent officer, or traffic guide, smashed at its position near the railroad station.

PUTNAM

Arrested Friday afternoon and presented before Judge M. H. Geissler on a charge of indecent assault upon a girl 12 years of age resident here, Augustus Warren, 61, was held under bonds of $6,000, probable cause being found, for trial at the next term of the county superior court having criminal jurisdiction.

Warren's case, which should those who heard about it, had hardly been disposed of in so far as the city court is concerned, when the father of the little girl into whose case, beside himself with rage, seized an opportunity to strike Warren a vicious blow in the head, which was prevented from further contact with the accused by interference of officers about.

The information on the face charges that Warren had been enticing the little girl into a place of business in the center of the city when stores are closed Thursday afternoons.

Warren is married and has adult children. He has been a resident here practically all his life and is employed as a barber.

In a decision filed with the clerk of the superior court here, Judge George E. Hinman has denied the petition of Mrs. Mary J. Smith of Ellinville for a divorce from John Q. Smith, now an inmate of the Killingly farm.

The case was heard over two weeks ago. Mrs. Smith [illegible] on the ground of intolerable cruelty, saying, for one [illegible] had struck her and had threatened to [illegible] time when she refused to [illegible] relative to his not going to work and helping support the household. Mrs. Smith testified that she had been supporting herself by doing housework and keeping a boarder, prior to entering in business in Providence. Evidence introduced at the trial showed that Mrs. Smith is 15 years the junior of her husband.

In the memorandum of his decision in the case Judge Hinman says:

"The evidence as a whole and the allowable inferences to be drawn therefrom leave in the strongest impression that the distinguishing fact of the defendant to work, or his disability for labor by reason of advanced age, or the disparity of age—nearly twenty years—between them (husband and wife) one or all, rather than such of his conduct that was violent in its nature, which led the plaintiff to the conclusion that she as she expressed it, couldn't keep him any longer. Neither this nor the other considerations which the circumstances suggest justified a divorce on the grounds relied upon."

Four new divorce actions have been filed in the office of the clerk of the superior court for Windham county in this city.

Emily J. Burlingame, of Killingly, asks for a decree from Daniel Burlingame of Brooklyn, this county, almarried Nov. 14, 1895. The alleged legins intolerable cruelty. They were cruel treatment that Mrs. Burlingame charges is said to have begun in 1920. The couple are of advanced years.

Edith J. Tetreault of Killingly wants a divorce from Dennis Tetreault of this city. She also charges her husband with intolerable cruelty. This couple married August 14, 1918. Mrs. Tetreault before her marriage being Miss Edith J. Carr. Mrs. Tetreault says that the cruelty which she complains about in her suit dates back over a period of several years.

Grace E. Brown, in a suit just filed, wants a divorce from Clayton A. Brown of Los Angeles. Mrs. Brown, resident in this city, charges intolerable cruelty and says in the papers in the suit that this cruelty began in 1912 and that the husband deserted her in 1914. The couple married June 3, 1911. Mrs. Brown asks for custody of a minor child, born in 1911.

Jesse H. Ide of Brooklyn has brought suit for divorce against George E. Ide, of that town. Like the other women plaintiffs in the other new divorce actions, she charges intolerable cruelty, and says it has continued during a married life of 35 years. The Ides were married August 7, 1889. Mr. Ide's property at Brooklyn has been attached for $5,000 in connection with the divorce suit.

Mrs. S. Whitney Wilbur of this city has been awarded a prize of $75 by a woman's magazine for having submitted what judges declared to be the best letter entered in competition in a contest conducted by the publication.

Taunton property holdings of the Manhasset Manufacturing company, when offered for sale at auction this week brought bids aggregating $183,000. This with the bid of $675,000 for the property here makes a total of $858,000 offered for all the holdings of the company, against which claims in excess of $5,000,000 are on file.

This would indicate that the stockholders will sustain a complete loss of their investment in the securities of the concern.

Nothing new has been given out relative to the plans of the interests that expect to acquire the Putnam property of the company if the superior court approves their bid of $675,000. It is understood, however, that these interests are prepared to start in once on the work of making the plant ready to resume operations, along a special line, when the formalities of having the court approve the bid and taking the necessary deeds are complied with.

There is a probability, it was stated here Friday, that the matter of approving the bid of the Muir interests may be presented to the court during the coming week.

Another case, in which the ownership of an automobile is in dispute has found its way into the superior court. This car, an attractive sport model, has been replevined from Arthur Pepin and taken back to Providence, in which city Mr. Pepin purchased it recently. Mr. Pepin contended release of the car until he was protected by an ample bond. Charles A. Wells of Providence, claims to be the owner of the car, which Mr. Pepin secured through a dealer in that city. The merits of all the conflicting claims in the case will be gone into when the matter comes up in the superior court for this county at the May term.

Conspicuously posted at the entrances of the fire stations of the city are notices that the stations are for the use of members of the fire department and others authorized by fire officials only. These notices are expected to stop the use of the firehouses as clubs or gathering places for men not identified with the department.

Showing of picture films depicting wild animals in their native African haunts interested many of the children of the city Friday, when there was a special run of the pictures for them. The pictures were also shown at the Congregational church in the evening.

Mrs. Julia Ann Murphy, 82, many years resident in Pomfret, died on that town at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Light.

Members of the members of Putnam lodge of Elks will be in Willimantic Monday evening to attend a session of Willimantic lodge at which a special program of entertainment will be presented.

A second well baby conference is to be held here next Wednesday afternoon in the auditorium of the high school. Expert representatives of the state department of health will attend this conference.

Acting on the recommendation of an agent of the Connecticut Humane society, Captain Wilbur Jarvis went to the Nelson Clair place, Park street, and shot a horse that was in very poor condition. Three cows at the place were also disposed of by sale. Mr. Clair, a former dog warden, is in very poor health and had been unable to adequately care for the live stock on his place.

Breaking of heavy limbs of a big tree in the top of which a shack built by local boys has been perched for two years, has caused the shack to tumble to the ground. This aerie resort was located in a woodland area near the New London-Worcester tracks and just south of the city.

A special meeting of the members of the Putnam town school committee was held Friday evening.

Volleyball continues to hold the attention of a number of citizens who have adopted this pastime through a large part of the winter.

Two cases of scarlet fever at East Putnam has been the cause of the school there being closed this week, as it also will be during the coming week.

Albert Farrows will leave Putnam the coming week for Kansas City, where he will enter an electrical school. Mr. Farrows has been employed with the railroad company at Midway the past year.

The school committee of Woonsocket has presented a beautiful portrait of Principal C. C. pratt, who died suddenly last November to the Woonsocket High school. Mr. Spratt for a number of years was principal of Putnam High school.

Trout fishermen who have not done so will be hurrying today and Monday to get fishing licenses from the town the fishing season next Tuesday morning in advance of the opening of the.

JEWETT CITY

The Porteous and Mitchell Fashion Show given in Finn Opera House on Thursday night was attended by large and appreciative audience, who thoroughly enjoyed seeing the styles exhibited by the models. Some of the children who occupied the front rows and so annoyed the models by their comments that it was necessary for the stage manager to quiet them, were no criterion for the greater part of the audience. P. A. Brown of Schenectady, N. Y., conducted the show. He is the man who broadcasts Fashion Talks, from WGY. The gracefully executed solo dances were very attractive; the children being members of Mrs. William Ballantine Penfield's dancing class, they were accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Stebbins the class pianist of Greeneville. Deborah Parker's number was a gypsy dance, Fire Light. Grant Denlegar was a debonair little Beau Brummel. Helena F. Crandall's interpretative dance was At Dawning. Spellman's orchestra furnished the music. The very attractive models were from Norwich. Most of them employed in Porteous and Mitchell and were Misses Brennan, Brasell, Dobear, Harmon, Butead, Spellman, Brayman and Civelo.

OUR MUNICIPAL LIGHTING PLANT

In the communication which has been submitted to Mayor Waters and the court of common council by General Manager Larrabee of the Eastern Connecticut Power company two business propositions have been placed before the city.

The first has to do with the purchase of electricity, and according to the statement made it is possible for the gas and electrical department to purchase current at a lower price than it can produce it. The figures submitted show that we are at the present time burdening ourselves with a greater expense than is necessary because we continue to shoulder the expense of production. A difference of approximately $70,000 in the cost of our electric current deserves attention.

The second proposition has to do with the sale of the municipal plant to the Eastern Connecticut Power company, in which an offer of $1,016,576.59 in cash is made for the plant, the company to assume the underlying mortgage of $400,000, and it is argued that it would not a yearly revenue to the city of about $28,000. In addition to which the company would cause a reduction in rates to the amount of $76,000 meaning a total saving of over $100,000 a year to the citizens of the city, using electricity. Attention is also directed to the fact that the plant under private ownership would go into the tax list.

These propositions are matters which must receive careful consideration. They are matters which must be passed upon by the citizens in city meeting before there could be any acceptance.

The sale of consummated would mean the city would get out of the business. It it should be favorable to the idea of purchasing energy there would be no change except that it would cease to produce. It would buy at an economic advantage and continue to distribute.

The idea of purchasing current is not a new one. Some is already contained in that manner under a limited contract. The questions now are:

Does Norwich favor abandoning its electric plant and buying current under a guarantee that it will be furnished when and as wanted?

If we can purchase current cheaper than we can produce it, is it advisable to continue to produce?

Are there advantages to be gained by purchasing current and distributing it as a municipal proposition?

Does Norwich favor the sale of the municipal lighting plant?

The Eastern Connecticut Power company has made straightforward business propositions. It behooves the city to give them a businesslike consideration. Snap judgment should not be thought of. They must be dealt with on the basis of cold business.

It has taken some time to get the proposals of the power company before the proper municipal authorities, but now that they have been made they should be a careful study of their merits and the right action taken.

FOR BETTER COAL

The New England association of coal dealers has adopted resolution for submission to the producers of anthracite in which they set forth that they have stood the brunt of complaints concerning the impurities of coal long enough, that they have become convinced that there is an abnormal percentage of non-combustible material in anthracite delivered, that this condition has resulted in turning much of the trade to the use of substitutes and that the situation has gotten to the point where it is necessary to request the producers to establish a more satisfactory standard.

New England is a section of the country that has been having unpleasant experiences with its coal supply. It has suffered from an inadequate supply, high prices and poor quality of coal and it is by no means surprising that the coal dealers have recognized the need of making some effort to improve the situation. Anthracite has been so filled with rock and other impurities that not only has there been trouble in making use of it, but it has added to the cost of each fuel.

By their own statements the dealers feel that the consumers have been taking it out on them long enough. Not being responsible for the conditions complained of they have undertaken to impress the situation upon the producers in the hopes of getting relief. Better coal and better conditions surrounding the fuel situation are highly desirable. States have been obliged to legislate against the non-burnable material that was being sold for anthracite at high prices.

Purchasing Pennsylvania real estate in such a manner and at such figures is not giving the users a square deal. Neither is it giving them a square deal. This they have repeatedly sent home to the retailers time and again, and the hope now is that the organization of retailers for this part of the country will be able to have some influence upon those who should be responsible for the bad coal. The turning to substitutes is certain to go on unless relief is provided. For many disgusted users of coal even the effort now underway is too late.

RESTRICTING CHILD LABOR

In view of the attitude that has been displayed toward the matter, it was to be expected that the judiciary committee of the house would favorably act upon the resolution in regard of a child labor amendment to the constitution, as it has. It is thing favorably started and in view of the manner in which congress has displayed its feeling relative to child labor legislation there are reason to believe that both houses will ultimately take the same action. How soon that will be there is no telling in view of the manner in which legislation is lagging and the certain opposition that can be expected from certain sections to any such amendment.

A federal child labor law was enacted in response to a long but determined effort to establish such protection and regulation. Not because of the form it took but because such legislation was unconstitutional it had to be discarded. Some evidence exists to the effect that good results were obtained while it was in operation, and those benefits may still continue, but the need of correcting long standing evils, and doing it in a quicker way than would otherwise be possible, has caused support to be centered upon a constitutional amendment, which will give congress the authority that it now lacks.

The favorable report by the committee is thus only the beginning of a long fight. For after it has run the gauntlet of the southern opposition in congress it must get the approval of three quarters of the states. On such a matter as child welfare this ought to cause no misapprehension and it would not but for the conditions which actually exist in various states relative to child labor. By the amendment the right of congress to act would be provided and under the terms of the amendment as proposed the age limit would be fixed at 18. That is a limit that may be regarded as too high, and one of the points on which much discussion will center, but the fixing of that or another limit doesn't mean that congress would exercise its right to the full limit just because it has the authority to do so. Interest now is directed to giving congress the right to act in restricting child labor.

DAUGHERTY'S RESIGNATION

With the resignation of Attorney General Daugherty from the president's cabinet there will be a feeling of general satisfaction. Even before the oil investigation was started it was considered that he added no strength to the administration, and after it had opened it was believed that it would be a decidedly relief to the embarrassment should he see the wisdom of separating himself from the cabinet.

The attorney general has maintained that he was entitled to a hearing, that he should not be railroaded and that there should be a decision based upon the facts. These have been cases in his conduct of the important office at the head of the department of justice that have not stood out to his credit even though there may not be ground for impeachment. He has been made the target for a lot of political mudslinging and the investigation of the attorney general has brought out testimony that would never have been listened to in a court of justice.

Nevertheless the administration agreed that he should have a hearing but with the embarrassment from his retention in the cabinet constantly increasing and the hearing making it impossible for him to give to the department the attention it requires, the decision that the time had come to cease carrying the load cannot be regarded as precipitous. The burden was sufficiently great to justify the request for relief. And even though the accusations may be untrue they have created a suspicion that would be constantly cropping out.

In the search for a successor President Coolidge can be relied upon to get a man of high qualifications from the standpoint of law, that this important department may have the most capable administration. It is a case where legal rather than political requirements must get consideration and none realize this more than does President Coolidge. That he will make as creditable a selection for the second cabinet vacancy as for the first is confidently believed.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Recently the writer has had the opportunity of going through a large glass factory and watching the glass going through the process from the molten liquid to the finished product. The most spectacular part was the lifting of the heated mass up into hollow cylinders about fifteen inches in diameter to the height of twenty feet and then gently changing them from a perpendicular to a horizontal position, which is a delicate matter. Once in a while a cylinder is broken in the process. A workman was asked if there was much breakage in the works, and he gave this significant answer: "Once in a while one of them goes to pieces but the majority stands the racket." It seems to the writer that this answer would apply to human life. That while one man goes to pieces in the process of life building, most men stand the racket. It is easy to drift into the belief that a larger percentage of men crumble up under pressure than the facts warrant.

It is the organic law of most nations, and all civilized nations, that a man accused of crooked actions shall have a fair trial. This is true even when all outward appearances are decidedly against him. The allusion here is to the accusations made against the present attorney general of the United States. Has not this man a right to be tried by a court of justice? Notwithstanding the face that there has been crookedness on the part of some officials there is a growing suspicion throughout the country that this congressional inquiry is moving heaven and earth to make capital out of this probing business for political purposes. No doubt there has been rascality in these oil leases, and partisans have found out how handy this oil is in lubricating the squeaking joints of their political machinery. While the attorney general would find it rather hard to pose as a saint of the first magnitude, still the witnesses against him would find it vastly harder.

Kingly boys! How much the world needs them! How many of them there are when we bone right down in earnest to find them! Hasn't the fact been impressed upon us of late in the study of recent Sunday School lessons? We have recently learned that Saul, the first king of Israel, was an experiment, and the experiment failed. The people wanted him because he was a big chap, standing head and shoulders above any other man in the army. They soon learned to their sorrow that a real king must be able to do something more than to tip the scales at 250 pounds. After Saul had tumbled down, the Lord took a hand in finding a king, and where did he find him? Down in Bethlehem. Whom did He pick out? Was it an old and experienced politician? Was it some general who had won laurels on the field of battle? Nothing of the sort. The selection made was the astonishment of all concerned, but it proved to be the right choice.

The choice really fell upon a kingly spirit, not of an old man but upon a seventeen year old boy. It happened in this way. Samuel the prophet went on a hunt for a king. He came to Bethlehem where Jesse and his seven sons resided. One by one they passed before him. He started with Eliab, the eldest. He was a good looker, and in ecstacy, Samuel exclaimed, "This is he." But a voice from heaven warned him to go easy because of his complexion and a splendid physique never alone make a king. "Look not on his countenance or on the height of his stature," said the warning because, "I have refused him." Then came Abinadab, a boy made up mostly of beef below his shoulders, and mutton above, and he, too, was rejected. Then came Shammar who was another sham. Probably a proud, silly, vain nobody. He was just the man that the nation didn't want. Then more boys passed by and were turned down. At last a shepherd boy young, fresh, and pure came and was instantly accepted simply and solely from the fact that nature had made him a king, and such boys cannot hide their light under a bushel.

This paragraph is written on the morning following the sacrifice of human life on the Hallville road as a result of an automobile accident and indirectly due to intoxication. The accident brings vividly to mind a sign that was posted at a dangerous street crossing in a southern city: "A tank of gas, a jug of gin and say it with flowers." That is what may be called "multum in parvo." Nothing is surer of murder and suicide than when a jug of gin manages a tank of gas. Not a day passes but what this thing is repeated somewhere. Not only are the people who are guilty of driving a car inviting death, but innocent people who are on the road, either as pedestrians or operating a car are equally liable to accident. The time is coming when a very severe penalty must be imposed upon all intoxicated drivers.

The charge has recently been made that Secretary Mellon of the treasury financed a propaganda against the soldier's bonus, which he, of course, indignantly denies. Now that their appetites are whetted up for the unclean, we cannot expect that this senate inquiry business is going to end until every member of President Harding's cabinet is hauled over the coals. It has been so extremely popular that it runs seemingly good politics to drag the name of every member of the late president's cabinet in the mire. Whether there was any ground for it or not was a minor matter. It has not been customary with reputable tribunals to pay much attention to irresponsible street gossip as that in relation to the selling of the Marion Star. Just how much more of this muck-raking even a congressional probe can get away with without meeting a violent reaction in the country is yet to be seen.

The writer cannot recall just where he ran across the following item, but it is worth jotting down. "Still, it is better to be called an old fogy than to snatch at every idiotic idea that has its little hour. As a matter of fact isn't there a danger in both directions? Is it any worse to plunge after a half-baked idea than it is to cling to a notion that is worn to a frazzle? It seems that in this matter honors are about equal. In religion, dyed-in-the-wool fundamentalists are just as unreasonable as extreme radicals. Here as elsewhere extremes may be said to meet. It is however true that there is a growing tendency in these days to call one an old fogy if he doesn't swallow without gulping every fool idea that comes floating along. If the human mind doesn't progress it either hardens or it rots. But it is not progress to take everything for granted.

Much as we hate war, and much as we deplore that sort of diplomacy that is too nerveless to prevent war, are we justified in saying that no conditions are conceivable for resorting to it? There is no question but that nine-tenths of the wars that have disgraced the name of humanity might have easily been avoided if a little more gray matter had been exercised. Generally speaking there is no more justifying cause for two nations to be flashing each other than there is for two men to be banging each other with clenched fists. And yet as one reads history he finds that there are some things that men hold dearer than life. If a man found a brute trying to slay his wife or child he would kill him if he could, and and every law of God and man would justify him. If national honor can be saved only by fighting for it, then fight in God's great name!

CUTTING THE DEATHS FROM MINE EXPLOSIONS

Explosions of coal dust such as have caused a toll of hundreds of lives in American mines within the past few months can be greatly minimized by proper rock dusting methods, states the department of the interior, which recently commissioned George S. Rice, chief mining engineer of the bureau of mines, to make a study of the use of these methods to prevent the propagation of coal dust explosions in European mines. The rock dust is spread upon the floor, roof and sides of passageways or placed upon specially constructed barriers, and when stirred up by the concussion of a local explosion, forms a screen which prevents the flame of the explosion from propagating beyond the immediate area of origin.

Stone dusting as a means of limiting coal dust explosions is made compulsory, by governmental regulation, in Great Britain, except in anthracite mines and in bituminous mines that are naturally wet throughout. A few many British mines of large capacity have used rock dust for more than ten years. The majority of British mines for the past four years and practically all mines for the last two years have been using stone dust. No coal-dust explosions have occurred or have been propagated in any part of a mine that has been thoroughly stone dusted, whereas there have been a number of explosion disasters in recent years in British mines where the coal-dust watering method was practiced or in certain parts of mines which were supposed to be so wet naturally that they did not need stone dusting. In France, the scene in 1906 of the greatest of all coal mine explosions, the Courrieres disaster, which killed 1100 men, the practice of rock dusting prevails in certain districts, and French officials are urging a wider use of rock dusting in the more dangerous mines.

Although the bureau of mines has urgently recommended rock dusting, only a few operators in the United States have adopted the practice. Operators of mines in southern Illinois that have installed rock dust barriers state that these have prevented many coal dust explosions from extending beyond the location of the barrier. Other operators of mines where disastrous coal dust explosions have occurred, in spite of precautions taken to keep coal dust thoroughly dampened, are now considering the adoption of rock dusting.

Great Britain in 1908, and France in 1907, after the terrible Courrieres explosion, began to make coal-dust explosion tests. Investigators in these countries concluded that enough incombustible dust spread through a passageway charged with coal dust prevented the propagation of an explosion by the coal dust. Rock dusting was early tested with success by the bureau of mines in a steel testing gallery at Pittsburgh and, beginning in 1911, at the bureau's experimental coal mine at Bruceton, Pa. Several of the first publications of the bureau suggested that rock dust be used in gaseous or dusty bituminous mines. Since that time additional tests in the experimental mine have fully confirmed the first judgment.

Greatly Reduced Losses

For three years—1918, 1919, and 1920—the United States was comparatively free from disastrous explosions in bituminous coal and lignite mines. In these three years, 41, 33 and 47 men, respectively, died in explosions that killed five or more men, as contrasted with the years 1901-1910, in which an average of 330 men were killed annually. This good record tended to prevent mining men from seriously questioning the effectiveness of coal-dust watering methods as generally practiced under careful management in naturally dry bituminous and lignite mines. Between January 1, 1918, and December 31, 1923, however, there occurred 7 explosions, in 16 of which coal dust was considered to be the propagating or contributing agent, and in these explosions 580 lives were lost. Already in 1924, at Johnson City, Illinois; Shankton, Pa.; and Carnegie, Utah, mine explosions have cost more than 200 lives. The fact that the watering method was either used or supposed to have been used in these mines has conceived engineers of the bureau of mines that the watering method is not reliable, and that the comparative immunity from disasters during the three years just mentioned was partly due to good luck, since a combination of circumstances is necessary to produce a dust explosion, and partly to better methods of preventing the ignition of gas and coal dust through the adoption of permissible explosives, permissible miners' lights, and other approved appliances.

Watering for Prevention

American mines have heretofore relied on watering and the prevention of ignition to avoid coal-dust explosions. Although it is agreed that watering is successful if done with absolute thoroughness, engineers of the bureau of mines have rarely, if ever, found watering so perfectly done that it a source of ignition was present in imperfectly watered parts of the mine a coal dust explosion would not follow. This conclusion does not apply to Pennsylvania anthracite mines, the dust of which has not been found to be explosive, but does apply to all bituminous, semi-bituminous, and subbituminous coal mines. Especially in the cold dry months, watering is effective for only a short time after it has been done, because the air current rapidly dries the coal dust. Tests in the experimental mine of the bureau of mines have shown that, even 25 per cent of water, a pure fine coal dust will propagate an explosion. Moreover, it is difficult to wet fresh coal dust. When undisturbed coal dust will float so thickly on water for long periods that the top layer may be fanned into the air. The bureau's investigators constantly find evidence after an explosion that the explosion traversed not only wet places but those where the water was deep in the roadway. Not only is the dust overhead, on timbers or adhering to the walls, dislodged and ignited, but if there is excess dust at some place it is carried along by "pioneering" air waves and feeds the flame of the explosion.

The difficulty of finding employees who will water a mine thoroughly and conscientiously may nullify the best intentions of the management. One of the greatest American coal-dust explosion disasters was attributed by the state inspector to failure to water the mine on a holiday that preceded the explosion.

Rock Dusting

One of the greatest advantages of rock dusting is that failure or delay to apply the dust for a day or a few days is not so vital as the omission of watering. Many roadways do not have to be redusted more often than one or two times per month under adverse dust conditions. Other parts of the mine may not need redusting for months. The condition of the roadways can be largely determined by inspection, if limestone dust is used, and checked positively by the gathering of samples. This applies not only to inspection from day to day by the management, but also to the more occasional state inspection. For example, a state inspector may find the condition of a watered mine admirable as far as coal dust is concerned on the day of inspection, but he can not tell whether the mine will be safe the next day. Usually a month or more will elapse before he makes another inspection of that particular mine. Meantime the effectiveness of the watering can not be positively checked in the same way that samples of dust gathered and tested by the management can be if made a matter of daily record.

The cost of rock dusting in American mines per ton of coal produced is believed to be much less than that of efficient watering. This small cost is a low price for protecting human lives and for insurance against disasters that involve heavy financial losses from the payment of death and injury benefits and through damage to property.

British Methods

Most of the British collieries use shale dust, made by grinding rough shale from the mine or from some neighboring mine. Limestone dust is used to some extent and a few collieries buy gypsum dust. Most mines in the north of France use chalk dust, others use clay.

The British regulations prohibit the use of any character of stone dust that would be injurious to the health of persons working in the mine. No reports of serious effects on health from stone dusting have been received from collieries that have used it eight or ten years. In many American coal mines the immediate roof material is not generally so suitable for stone dusting purposes as that in the mines of Great Britain. When there is a question as to the effect of a specified dust on health, samples should be submitted to a petrographer or to the bureau of mines. When a shale suitable for dusting cannot be found, it will usually be possible in most American coal fields to purchase dust from limestone, doomite, anhydrite or gypsum quarries at a reasonable figure. Such materials are usually free from silica.

JANE ADDAMS WON DESPITE PAIN

Undersized, sickly and delicate, Jane Addams, the child was raised in obscure Cedarville, Ill. Afflicted with a slight curvvature of the spine she thought her father would be disgraced if visitors knew that he was the parent of "such an ugly, gawky girl," and would hide when they came.

When she attended Rockford College, where those who remained outside the church might be thought blind or stubborn, and where many graduates became foreign missionaries, she had to accept the isolation of those who did not agree with the majority. Chosen to represent the college in Illinois' intercollegiate contest, she won only fifth place.

Plans fo be a doctor among the poor were crushed when, at the end of a year in Philadelphia Medical College, her spinal weakness forced her to bed, and physicians ordered her to Europe.

Her settlement work was started in a deserted building in one of Chicago's worst districts. Neighbors were composed of 36 nationalities. They could not, even feared to, speak to each other and were especially suspicious of educated American women. Politicians did not like her ideas, and a manufacturers' organization tried to thwart her campaign for better working conditions. Her efforts to be garbage collector, that she might improve health conditions, were blocked by technicalities, so she secured the post of inspector of streets and alleys, and greatly decreased the death rate. Her fight against the drug traffic was often disheartening, but she won.

Today Hull House is world-famed. Every city has a settlement modeled after it; large municipalities have many.

Miss Addams has been honored by the universe. Yale gave her its first honor to a woman. She has served on educational directorates for years, was arbitrator in a Pullman strike, has been a leader in woman suffrage efforts, has headed many world movements for the betterment of humanity, and has been given tributes in every part of the globe. And her personal touch has aided thousands to better themselves.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Henry White, who today enters upon his seventy-fifth year, was long a prominent figure in the American diplomatic service, his last important mission having been as a delegate to the Versailles Peace Conference. Mr. White is a native of Baltimore. His education was secured from tutors and in private schools in America and France. In 1883 he went to Vienna as secretary of legation, remaining two years, when he was transferred to London as second secretary, becoming secretary in 1886. In 1893 he was recalled by President Cleveland, but he returned to London as secretary of the American embassy in 1897. In 1905 he became Ambassador to Italy and from Rome was transferred a few years later to the important post of Ambassador at Paris. During his active career it was said of Mr. White that he knew personally a greater number of Americans than any other man in the diplomatic service. He is a man of large wealth and during his long resident in London was noted for his lavish entertainment.

SUNDAY MORNING TALK

THE ONE WAY

If any man will do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God, or whether I speak of myself. John 7:17.

Occasionally we meet a person who claims that there are so many conflicting opinions among Christians that he does not know what to believe.

There is only one way of salvation from sin, and that is by repentance toward God and faith in the Lord Jesus Christ. God's will concerning the way of salvation is revealed so clearly that even a child can understand it.

We have no right to hold this matter of repentance in suspense simply because there are some things in the Bible which we do not understand. There always will be things in the Bible which we do not understand, and if we wait until all things are understood by us we shall never be saved. If we will obey that part of God's word which we do understand, we will soon get light on some of the obscure things.

Daniel Webster states his position very clearly in a letter written to a friend: "I believe that God exists in three persons; this I learned from revelation alone. Nor is it any objection to this belief that I cannot comprehend how one can be three, or three one. I hold it my duty to believe, but what my maker teaches me, I believe; religion to be a matter not of demonstration, but of faith. God requires us to give credit to the truths which He reveals, not because we can prove them, but because He reveals them.

At one time there was a great revival in Yale College. Horace Bushnell was the most popular tutor in college, but he was not a Christian. He knew that his position was a stumbling block to some of the students, and it troubled him greatly. He said to himself: I don't believe in the Bible, and I do not believe that Jesus Carist is the son of God, I cannot play the part of a hypocrite just to help others. What can I do? A voice seemed to say to him: "Horace Bushnell, what do you believe, anyhow?"

"Well, one thing I believe is that there is an absolute difference between right and wrong."

"Well, have you ever taken a stand on what you do believe? Have you ever taken your stand on the right to follow it whenever it carries you even if it carries you over Niagara Falls?"

"No, I never have, but I will."

He prayed, O God, if there is any God, show me it Jesus Christ is Thy Son, and if you will show me that, I promise to accept Him as my Saviour and confess Him before the world."

In a short time the light burst upon his soul, and Horace Bushnell came out on the side of Christ, and almost every young man in Yale College was converted.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

Off With the Lollypops

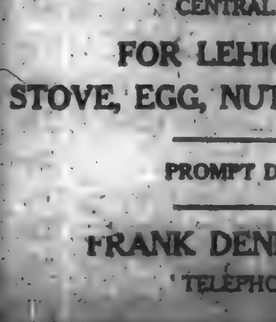
Well, Bobbie Rezvet didn't fly right over to the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave, as I mentioned in the last story. Grandmother Magpie met him on the way and asked him to hop up to the Barnyard on an errand. Of course, he couldn't refuse,—Nobody ever refused Grandmother Magpie if he knew what was good for him.

The next morning as the little bunny boy rabbit hopped out of his little white bed in the dear Old Bramble



(Hello, Little Town Rabbit.)

Patch, he remembered the lollypops, so off he started, right after breakfast, for the Big Brown Bear's Cosy Cave.

"Hello, little bunny!" he cried, taking the pipe out of his mouth and smoothing his furry trouser leg with his paw. "Has Uncle Dave gone home?"

"Y-e-s," replied the bunny boy, almost breathless, from his climb up the rocky hillside. "Have you any lollypops today? I promised to send some to Uncle Dave's boys and girls."

"Well, I'll see," answered the big brown furry animal knocking the ashes out of his pipe, as into the cosy cave he ambled.

"Here you are," chuckled the kind-hearted animal, dropping into the little bunny's outstretched paws the fresh, fat, juicy lollypops. How lovely they looked, just like a rainbow, red, white, pink and green. There were small fat yellow ones and large juicy purple ones.

Safely tucking them in his knapsack, the bunny boy thanked his kind friend, and off he went, slippetty slip, ippetty lip up the Old Path, over the bubbling Brook and across the sunny Meadow.

By and by, after a while he reached the Rabbitville Post Office.

"Hello, little Jack Rabbit," said the Lady Grasshopper Post Mistress.

"How's Lady Love today?"

"Lady Love is feeling fine.
And so is Uncle Lucky.
He's full of horrid rheumatiz,
But still he's very plucky."

"Send a lollypop to each one of Uncle Dave's little boys and girls," he explained, and, shouting "Goodbye" over his shoulder, off he hopped to the dear Old Bramble Patch to tell his dear little bunny mother all about it. Back to the dear Old Bramble Patch

BARN AND HOUSE IN VERSAILLES ON FIRE

A call for help for a fire in Versailles this (Saturday) morning about 2.15 o'clock sent a piece of apparatus from the Norwich department there.

A barn and a house were reported on fire.

Chief Stanton and Engine No. 1 of the Norwich department responded to the call and the Taftville company also went.

FUNERALS

Charles Lutts

The funeral of Charles Lutts was held Friday morning at 8.15 o'clock from his home, 312 North Main street and at 9 o'clock there was a solemn high requiem mass in St. Mary's Memorial church. Rev. W. A. Keefe, rector of the church, celebrant, Rev. Henri Chagnon of Taftville, deacon and Rev. Frederick M. Coholan of St. Mary's church, sub-deacon. Henry La Fontaine presided at the organ and as a waiting hymn, Miss Sadie Driscoll sang Beautiful Land of High. As the body was borne from the church Mr. LaFontaine and Miss Driscoll sang Lead Kindly Light.

The bearers were David O'Brien, Michael Campion, Joseph Campion, Herbert Ring and George Ring and burial took place in the family put in St. Mary's cemetery. A committal service was read at the grave by Rev. Father Keefe assisted by Rev. Father Chagnon. There was a large attendance at the funeral and there were many beautiful floral remembrances.

OFFERS TO SELL CITY ELECTRICITY AT SAVING OF $29,657.94 PER YEAR

Eastern Connecticut Power Co. Would Sell Current For $122,289.29 Which it Costs Municipal Plant $190,947.23 to Make—Figures Based on Last Available Report of City Gas and Electric Commission—Other Big Savings Outlined in Power Company's Proposition.

The proposition of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., to sell electricity to the city or to buy the municipal plant on North Main street was handed to Mayor Milo R. Waters Monday afternoon by General Manager H. D. Larrabee of the Power Co., being the same that has already been before the gas and electrical commissioners who have decided that they have no authority to consummate either proposition with the power Co.

The communication from the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., will be presented by Mayor Waters to the common council at its April meeting.

Making a comparison from the 1922 figures of the Norwich gas and electric commission, as reported to the public utilities commission of the state, the offer of the power company shows that it would sell to the city for approximately 2 cents per kilowattt the electricity that it costs the municipal plant 3 cents per kilowatt to make, producing a saving for the year of $69,657.94.

From this sum there are certain deductions to be made, which would result in a net annual saving of $29,657.94.

Upon the proposition to buy the entire gas and electrical plant the net proposal is figured down to assuming the $400,000 mortgage on the plant, paying the city $1,016,575.59 in cash, the city realizing $162,128.62 by liquidation and this bringing into the city treasury $1,178,704.22 in cash

Of this amount $558,000 would be needed to retire three issues of gas and electric bonds by the city, leaving $620,704.22 in cash available for any city use.

In addition the sale proposition contains an agreement to put into effect such rates as will save the users of electricity $75,000 annually, based upon the amounts of electricity used in 1922.

Letter to Mayor and Commen Council

The following is the letter to the mayor and common council, setting forth the terms of the proposition:

March 28th, 1924

To the Honorable Mayor and Court of Common Council, City of Norwich, Norwich, Conn.

Gentlemen:

We have had several discussions with the Gas & Electrical Department of the City of Norwich relative to a purchase by the Department of electric power from The Eastern Connecticut Power Company, and also in regard to the sale of the City's gas and electric property to The Eastern Connecticut Power company.

As a result of these discussions, we have been advised that the Board of Gas & Electrical Commissioners feel that they have not the authority to sell the gas and electric property, or to conclude the matter of purchasing power.

We, therefore, beg leave to submit to your Honorable body two propositions relative to the gas and electric property of the City of Norwich: one covering the purchase of electric power for the needs of the Gas & Electrical Department, and the other, covering the sale of the city's gas and electric property to The Eastern Connecticut Power Company.

Purchase of Power

The Eastern Connecticut Power Company is prepared to furnish power under the terms of a contract already submitted to your Gas & Electrical Department. The only figures available to us are those for the year 1922, as shown by the report of the Gas & Electrical Department to the Public Utilities Commission. They are, therefore, used in showing the comparison between the cost of power as generated by the Gas & Electrical Department and if purchased from The Eastern Connecticut Power Company.

These figures show that the Gas & Electrical Department generated in 1922 by steam 6,120,073 KWH at a cost of ..... $190,947.23

Under the proposed contract this power would have been purchased for ..... $121,389.29

Making a saving for the year of ..... $ 69,657.94

Discussions with Mr. James L. Case, President, and Mr. Charles W. Taggart, General Manager, developed the fact that the Gas & Electrical Department feels that there should be deducted from this saving certain items covering switchboard expense, cost of steam required for gas making, and sufficient retirement reserve to entirely amortise the investment in the steam power plant during the contract period. These items, as agreed to by the President and General Manager of the Gas & Electrical Department aggregate $40,000, reducing the saving to $29,657.94 for the year 1922.

Sale of Property

Recognizing the fact that the difference between the cost of generating the 6,120,073 KWH by the Gas & Electrical Department and the selling price of The Eastern Connecticut Power Company for the same amount of power is an economic loss, this $70,000 per year can and should be saved for the users of electric service. This saving can be made available by the sale of the property.

Therefore, subject to proper authorization, the Eastern Connecticut Power Company is prepared to purchase the entire gas and electric property, including the distribution system now owned by the City of Norwich, at the book figures, as they appear in the Department's report to the Public Utilities Commission, as of December 31st, 1922, which figure is ..... $1,378,169.49

To this we add the betterments for the year 1923, on the assumption that they are the same as in 1922 ..... 37,341.86

This makes a total for plant and equipment ..... $1,365,511.05

To this we add the inventory of material and supplies, assuming that the valuations are correct ..... 51,064.64

Making a total of ..... $1,416,575.69

And as the property is subject to an underlying mortgage of ..... 400,000.00

Which we, as purchasers, would have to assume, this would mean that we pay to the City in cash ..... $1,016,575.59

The City, or the Department, would then, naturally, liquidate its remaining current assets and pay its current liabilities. An analysis of the Balance Sheet of December 31st, 1922, would indicate that this would result in a net return to the city of ..... $ 162,128.63

Which would make available to the treasury of the City, in cash ..... $1,178,704.22

The liabilities of the city, on account of ownership of the Gas & Electrical Department, in addition to the $400,000.00 which would be assumed by us, are as follows:

Three issues of bonds, a direct obligation of the city:

4's due April 2, 1931 (original purchase) ..... $327,000.00
4's due April 2, 1931 (plant improvements) ..... 60,000.00
5's due May 16, 1951 (funding) ..... 271,000.00
$558,000.00

This much of the sale price would have to be used for the purchase of these outstanding bonds, or, if they are not purchaseable, placed in a sinking fund to protect them at maturity. This would leave available to the city for the retirement of their debt, or for any other cash requirements of the city ..... $620,704.22

The effect of this sale, when consummated, would result in an actual revenue to the city of, say, 4 1-2 per cent. on $620,704.22 or $27,941.00 per year. This item alone very nearly equals the net saving shown above as resulting from the purchase of power. In addition to this the property would, if owned by the Eastern Connecticut Power company, be subjected to local taxation, and produce further revenue for the city.

It appears that for the year 1923 our standard light and power rates would make a saving over the rates of the gas and electrical department of about $75,000 to the users of electricity. We, therefore, agree to put into effect rates that will secure to the users of electricity a saving of $75,000 per year, based upon the amounts of electricity sold in 1922.

The effect of this sale upon the city's finances would be to retire $620,704.22 of debt over and above the debt created, on account of the gas and electrical department representing an accrued saving in interest of $27,941.60. Further, subjecting this property to local taxation, would make a material increase in the grand list, which, coupled with the interest saving, would make possible a reduction in the tax rate.

In order to make this transfer of ownership possible, it will be necessary to secure, in the next session of the general assembly, certain legislation, but to avoid further delay in giving the people the benefit of this saving, provided the sale is approved by the citizens, we propose to enter into an agreement with the city, under which we bind ourselves to pay for the property when the necessary authority is secured and, in the meantime, to operate the gas and electrical department of the city under a contract, the terms of which would provide that the city would receive during the operating period an amount equal to interest at 5 per cent. per annum upon the purchase price of $1,016,576.59 or ..... $50,828.78

Plus interest at 5 per cent. on the $400,000.00 underlying mortgage ..... 20,000.00

A total per year of ..... $70,828.78

As the city would be obliged to protect the interest on the total outstanding mortgage debt of $958,000.00 which equals ..... $45,030.00

This would leave a net per year ..... $25,798.78

And as we would agree immediately upon taking over the operation of the property, to put light and power rates into effect, resulting in a saving, as previously stated of approximately $75,000 pending the transfer of title, the saving to the citizens would represent over $100,000.00 per year.

During the operating period, and before the property changed title and was subject to tax, we would agree to furnish energy to the city, for street lighting, at the same price that it is now being furnished by the gas and electrical department.

It is we think, quite clear, that the saving to the users of electricity, as reported above, would result from the fact that the generating cost in a great system like ours is much less than in a smaller plant; and, also, that the Eastern Connecticut Power company must capitalize its betterments and extensions instead of absorbing them in the rates charged.

We would call special attention to the fact that in making this proposal for purchase, we have been obliged to use the figures of December 31st, 1922, with an estimate for 1923; and, in the meantime, we are prepared to say that we will agree to adjust this proposal to the latest complete detailed figures of the gas and electrical department, provided the changes made since December 31st, 1922, are only such as result from the ordinary operation of the property. If you can, and will, furnish us the operating report and balance sheet as of December 31st, 1923, or later, we will be glad to submit a proposal upon these figures.

Yours very truly,
H. D. LARRABEE,
General Manager.

OBITUARY

Mrs. Charles H. J. Douglas

(Contributed)

On Monday, March 17, 1924, at the Willshire Rest Home in Los Angeles, California, entered into rest Annie Sholes Douglas, beloved wife of Charles H. J. Douglas in her 70th year.

Annie Ardelia, only surviving child of Sanford Horace and Eliza (Stanton) Sholes, was born in Norwich, Connecticut, 28 November 1854. All the influences of her childhood and young womanhood were wholesome and refining. She graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in the class of 1872. Like her father and mother, she was a member of Christ Episcopal church, in the Sunday-school of which she was long a valued teacher. She was active in church work in Norwich until her marriage 27 July 1887, to Charles H. J. Douglas, a native of Westerly, Rhode Island, and a graduate of Brown University in the class of 1879, whom she had known from childhood and who was then a teacher in the Milwaukee (Wisconsin) high school. Recalled from that city by the death of her father in the fall of the same year, she settled his estate; and in August 1888 the family removed to Brooklyn, New York, whither Mr. Douglas had been called to organise an important department in the boys high school.

For thirty-five years New York was the home of this competent and faithful woman, who, as she had earlier postponed her marriage for two years to devote herself to her father in his failing health, now, seconded by her husband, gave herself unsparingly to the work of making a home for her aged mother and for an adopted son and daughter,—motherless children of a cousin on the Stanton side. The family identified itself with St. George church at Gates and Marcy avenues, of which the Rev. Winfield Scott Baer was then the beloved rector. Mrs. Douglas was an active member of the Ladies' Aid society. Her reports as secretary of which, printed in the Church Bells, are models of concise statement. She took great interest in the work of her husband as a vestryman of the church; and she had the comfort of seeing both her children confirmed at its altar, and her aged mother laid to rest with its rites.

The old brownstone house at 215 Marcy avenue, at first leased for three years and then purchased, gradually became filled with objects of art, spoils of various happy raids of the pair upon New York antique shops, and of numerous visits to the Willoughby street auction rooms in the days when Arthur Winnington delighted to assemble at that celebrated rendezvous of politicians and collectors, and to knock down to the highest bidder, the choicest pieces of "houseu stuff" to be picked up in cultured homes in Brooklyn and Flatbush, in Manhattan and Westchester.

In the Marcy Avenue house, at an assembly that filled the spacious rooms of high school people connected with the Interscholastic Bulletin, of which Mr. Douglas was managing editor, were introduced the two little people from Lisbon, Connecticut, who were thenceforth to call Mrs. Douglas mother; here Grandma Sholes serenely passed her declining years and died at the age of 91; here George gave up home and kin to enlist in the navy at the call of his country; and here Isabella, then a graduate of Barnard college and a popular teacher in Mrs. Randall-Mdier's finishing school for young ladies, was married to Paul Huffer Allen, lately an instructor in the Columbia summer school and soon to become one of David Warne Griffith's most successful camera men. For years a group of college men, a cousin of her husband and three or four teachers from the Boys high school, found shelter beneath Mrs Douglas's hospitable roof.

After a while the Brooklyn house was closed in June each year, and the family migrated, servants and all, by motor, to Westerly, where, in 1901, the Capt. Oliver Perry Saunders homestead on the crest of Greenman avenue, overlooking the river, was bought and named Bluff Crest. In this charming old house of more than eighteen rooms, erected in 1852 by one of the last of that sturdy race of sea-rovers for which the New England seaboard was once famous, and now gradually remodeled as the years went by, were spent twenty-one delightful summers in the companionship of members of the family and of friends old and new and when, in 1922, the Brooklyn house was sold and its contents scattered, here were brought the household goods in five vanloads to their final resting place.

The last fifteen years of Mrs. Douglas's life were marked by increasing lameness and pain, the result of an automobile accident in which her right hip had been incurably injured. The courage with which she endured this infliction—never once in all the time uttering a word of complaint or blame,—furnished a touching example of Christian fortitude to all who knew her during these closing years,—years in which her spirit grew constantly more gentle, sweet and trusting. The last three winters had been spent by Mr. and Mrs. Douglas in Southern California, where their children and grandchildren had joined them. In the genial climate of that enchanted land they visited together many places of natural and historical interest from San Diego to San Francisco and Sacramento, including the most impressive of the ancient Franciscan missions and the old mining towns in the High Sierras where Mr. Douglas's father, having traversed two oceans and crossed the Isthmus of Panama, had digged for gold in the early fifties.

As her growing infirmities compelled her to relinquish more and more to others the cares of life, Mrs. Douglas seemed to lay hold more firmly upon things eternal. She derived great benefit, physical as well as spiritual, from the ministrations of Aimee Semple Mc Pherson, the gifted evangelist of the Angelus Temple in Los Angeles. She seemed to be preparing herself for an approaching change, spending many hours in reading her Bible and in silent devotions. On Monday March as she was stepping from the hotel elevator on her way to her room, she was overcome by a stroke of paralysis, which rendered her lame side completely helpless and deprived her of the power of speech. With the best of care and under the best conditions that money could secure, she lingered, for the most part unconscious, for fourteen days, and then, on a perfect spring morning, from her quiet room beneath the palms and acadia which she could not see but which she loved so well, her radiant and emancipated spirit took its flight. The beautiful funeral service of the Episcopal church was conducted for her by Dean McCormack of St. Paul's cathedral, in the presence of a large number of friends, and her remains were temporarily placed in the receiving vault at Hollywood, to be removed later to Connecticut and interred in the place prepared for them in the family plot in the Yantic cemetery in Norwich.

Faithful unto death, she shall receive a crown of life.

Mrs. George Warren Heal

Word has been received in town of the death of Mary E., widow of George Warren Heal, which occurred at the home of her son-in-law Eugene E. Main 482 Birr street, Rochester, N. Y. Wednesday. The funeral was held Friday afternoon with burial in Riverside cemetery, Rochester. She was 87 years of age.

Mrs. Heal was a native of Maine but spent many years of her life in this city, having been for many years a resident of Elizabeth street. Mr. Heal died in this city about 1901 and for many years she had made her home in Rochester. She was a woman of delightful traits of character, devoted to her home and one whose friendships were many and lasting.

She is survived by her daughter Mrs. Eugene E Main, a grandaughter Miss Eveline Main of Richester and a nephew D. Edward E. Sawyer of Boston.

William L. Apley

Mr. Apley was born in Woodstock, June 7, 1838, the son of William and Emily Manning Apley. For years he was engaged in farming and was well known to people in Norwich and New London, where he had been in the business of selling hulled corn for many years. He was a member of the Seventh Day Adventist church.

During his long illness he was tenderly cared for by his step-daughter, Mrs. May Joslyn. His wife, Dorcas H. Apley, died in this city on January 18, 1923. Surviving him are three grandchildren, Mrs. John Olsen of Norwich Town, William L. Apley of New London and George Nelson Apley of Flint, Mich.

Mr. Apley was a man of fine qualities and had many friends in this city and in neighboring towns who will learn of his death with profound sorrow.

Mrs. William H. Morgan

The long and peaceful life of Ann Maria Johnson, widow of William H. Morgan, formerly of Colchester, came to a close Friday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of her nephew, Henry D. Johnson of 21 Lincoln avenue. Mrs. Morgan had been failing in health for some time past and was confined to her bed during the last few weeks.

She was born in Lebanon, February 14, 1841, the daughter of Ebenezer and Ruby Clark Johnson and resided in that town until 1862 when she was united in marriage with William H. Morgan. The couple then made their home in Colchester for many years until Mr. Morgan's death.

About 1916 Mrs. Morgan went to New Haven where she made her home with her brother, Samuel Johnson, but in July of last year she removed to Norwich to make her home with her nephew.

Mrs. Morgan was a member of the Colchester Congregational church and retained her membership in that church although she had not resided there for many years. To those who were privileged to know her, she was of pleasant and kindly disposition, possessing the happy faculty of remembering the old days and keeping in touch with present day happenings.

Mrs. Morgan is survived by one step-daughter, Mrs. Sherwood W. Fuller of San Francisco, Cal., two brothers, Chauncey W. Johnson of Nyack, N. Y., and Samuel Johnson, now of Norwich; also several nephews and nieces.

NAMED CUSTODIAN IN SAFE DEPOSIT DEPARTMENT

and has already entered upon his duties there. He succeeds the late Daniel F. McNeil in this position.

Mr. Semple is well known in this city where for many years he was in the grocery business in Greeneville retiring from this several yeras ago, and since then he has been an inspector in the city water department.

ACADEMY BOYS SPEAK FOR PERKINS PRIZES

There was a large attendance at Slater Hall Friday evening when the the annual Newton Perkins Prize Speaking contest took place. There were eight speakers entered in the contest selected out of a group of students attending the Norwich Free Academy for proficiency in speaking and all handled their subjects with credit.

Previous to the speaking the Academy orchestra under the leadership of Frederick H. Cranston rendered a most pleasing group of selections receiving applause from the delighted audience. The musical programme was as follows:

Triumph ..... Roberts
Menuet ..... Handel
Entry of the Trojan Maidens, Gounod
Loin du Bal ..... Gillet

As in past years Professor Henry A. Tirrell, principal of the Norwich Free Academy acted as master of ceremonies announcing that the contest for the evening was for one of the ten Newton Perkins medals awarded to students of the Academy. He also announced that on Friday evening April 11th the annual Girls' Reading contests would take place for the Williams Medal.

The speakers and their subjects were:

The Chariot Race ..... Lew Wallace
Henry Isadore Cohen '25
Lasca ..... Frank Desprez
Ellsworth Cramer '24

The judges, Walter F. Lester, Fred Verguson and Leslie L. Brewer, will announce their awards to Prof. Tirrell within a few days and announcement of the winners will be made at the Academy previous to being made public.

EXPENSIVE CITY SIGN PICKED UP ON THE DUMP

When, several years ago, six expensive signs were erected, designed to notify motor tourists and others when they entered or left the town or city of Norwich, it was considered a very clever move on the part of the chamber of commerce and the town. The signs — each bearing the symbolic "Rose of New England"—made a big hit, until storms and rules demonstrated that they were most insecurely hung from open catch-hooks.

There were signs at Taftville, two on Laurel Hill, one at the city line in Thamesville, in Preston and on Washington street. Four of the six signs are down and have not been replaced.

As a climax to this careless management, Friday afternoon, a young man driving a side-car motorcycle was held up by Secretary John J. O'Rourke, of the chamber of commerce, whose attention was attracted by one of the signs, in the side-car. The young man explained that he had picked the sign up on the city dump. One of the signs is now reposing at the police station.

EAT AND GET THIN

This is turning an old phrase face about, but modern methods of reducing fat have made this revision possible.

If you are overfat and also averse to physical exertion; if you are likewise fond of the table and still want to reduce your excess flesh several pounds, do this: Go to your druggist (or write the Marmola Company, 4612 Woodward Avenue, Detroit, Mich.), and give him (or send them) one dollar. For this modest amount of money the druggist will put you in the way of satisfying your ambition for a nice, trim, slim figure. He will hand you a case of Marmola Prescription Tablets (compounded in accordance with the famous Marmola Prescription), one of which you must take after each meal and at bedtime until you begin to lose your fat steadily and easily. Then continue the treatment until your weight is what you desire. Marmola Prescription Tablets are not only harmless but really beneficial to the general health. You don't need starvation diet or weakening exercises. Just go on eating what you like, leave exercising to the athletes, but take your little tablet faithfully; and without doubt that flabby flesh will quickly take unto itself wings, leaving behind it your natural self, neatly clothed in firm flesh and trim muscles.

A THREE DAYS' COUGH IS YOUR DANGER SIGNAL

Chronic coughs and persistent colds lead to serious lung trouble. You can stop them now with Creomulsion, an emulsified creosote that is pleasant to take. Creomulsion is a new medical discovery with twofold action; it soothes and heals the inflamed membranes and kills the germ.

Of all known drugs, creosote is recognized by the medical fraternity as the greatest healing agency for the treatment of chronic coughs and colds and other forms of throat and lung troubles. Creomulsion contains, in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the inflamed membranes and stop the irritation while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and destroys the germs that lead to consumption.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of chronic coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, catarrhal bronchitis and other forms of throat and lung diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or the flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold, no matter of how long standing, is not relieved after taking, according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Co., Atlanta, Ga. —(Adv.)

BALTIMORE SPORT WRITER PREDICTS WEST WILL MAKE GRADE WITH ORIOLES

Rodger Pippen, in an article describing the game between the Baltimore Orioles and the Philadelphia Athletics predicts that Tony West, former hurler for the Norwich State hospital team, will become a regular member of the Baltimore pitching staff this season. Mr. Pippen speaks very highly of "Specks" Wesol, as Manager Jack Dunn calls him, and the impressive pitching exhibition that West gave for three innings against the Athletics. His comment follows:

When Babe Ruth was winning fame as a pitcher he had what is known in baseball parlance as a sinker. By this is meant a ball which suddenly shoots sails or drops just as it reaches the batsman. Dave Danforth, Russel Ford and other well known hurlers acquired a sailing sinker by means of wax, sandpaper, etc. Ruth, with his big hands and his unusual speed, threw his sinker without any artificial help.

The Orioles have a youngster who throws a sinker and throws it naturally. Tony West, the bespectacled Pole, surprised Joe Cobb, Oriole catcher, and stunned the Athletics when he cut loose with this ball in the three innings he hurled in the game in Montgomery, Ala., on Sunday.

"Tony's fast ball jumps," declared Cobb after the game. "And when he learns to aim it correctly he will be a hard bird to beat. He gave several bases on balls because he was aiming his last ball for the center of the plate and it was hopping in too close to the right-handed hitters."

The debut on the mound of the giant boy with the glasses was a classic. He entered the game at a critical time it being the seventh inning and the score standing 3 to 2 in favor of Baltimore. He had never before in his life pitched against a professional club. He was making his first appearance on the rubber before the manager he hopes to impress sufficiently to keep him on the payroll. He was facing Strand, Simmons, Bishop, Hale and other big leaguers, who have been pounding the ball all over the lot.

Out on the peak came the pitcher, whose real name is Wesoloski, who wants to be known as West and who is being called Wesol by Manager Jack Dunn.

Galloway, shortstop of the Mackmen, was the first to bat. With a nonchalance which would have done credit to Christy Mathewson in his prime, Tony wound up with a flourish and cut a strike right across the dish. His next ball was over and the batter fouled it. His third offering hopped in toward Galloway and the Philadelphia infielder doubled down the third-base foul line.

Apparently not a bit disturbed, West put over another strike as Perkins batted. Here was a raw recruit just breaking in and fanning a major league outfit and getting the first four balls right over the plate and with plenty on them. Perkins grounded out Porter to Sheedy, and Galloway moved up to third.

The first offering to the next hitter was a short passed ball, and West showed he was on his toes by quickly covering the plate to keep the man on third from scoring. The batter then grounded in front of the plate and Tony fielded the ball, and with a quick and accurate toss got it home in time to cut off the tying run.

Max Bishop, ex-Oriole, took his stand at the plate. He got two balls and two strikes, and then one of West's fast sinkers swept the button off his cap. It was a narrow escape for the little second sacker. Even this didn't disturb the pitching Pole. He got the ball over to Hale, and a grounder, Porter to Sheedy, ended Tony's first inning in professional baseball.

West's fast sweeper almost got him in trouble in the eighth, for he walked the first two men, Strand and Hauser. Six of the eight balls required to walk these men were close to the plate and were caused more by his desire to put something on the sphere than by a real wild streak. Simmons lined out to Jacobson, Miller fanned, missing a sinker by a foot, and Galloway forced Hauser at second.

Perkins led off in the ninth by popping a twisting fly between the pitcher's box and first base. Many veteran fingers shirk such balls, preferring to let the first or second baseman try them.

"I've got it!" yelled Tony, but Sheedy waved him back and made the out.

Harris up next, had three balls and two strikes, and West surprised him by serving two over the plate. The next offering was also ever, and Harris died to Jacobsen. Bishop walked after getting three and two, and the game ended when Hale punched another long fly to the busy Jacobsen.

Whether he never beats another major league club as long as he stays in baseball, Tony West can point with pride to his professional debut on the rubber in the natural bowl in Montgomery, Ala., in the spring of 1924.

Babe Ruth's glittering start with the Orioles in Fayettville, N. C. some years ago was not a bit more impressive. You will see Tony West in action at Oriole Park next month.

EVIDENCE IS LACKING AGAINST ISSELSTYN, YALE WATER STAR

New York, Mar. 29—Lack of information on the eligibility of Caldwell Hakemann Esselstyn, Yale water polo star, caused the postponement today of an executive session of the intercollegiate swimming association called to decide on the protest by Columbia against the Eli player. The league officials will reconvene tomorrow to formally act on the protest.

It was reported, however, that the committee on rules to which the protest was referred, has disagreed.

Yale and Columbia water polo teams are scheduled to meet at Columbia tomorrow afternoon in the layoff of the game protested by Yale, due to the presence of an ineligible man on the Columbia team. Columbia's protest was not lodged until after the league had acted on Yale's charges.

DANIELSON BATTERY AT NEW LONDON TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Mar. 29—The Danielson Service Battery will travel to this city Saturday night to take on the headquarters five at the State Armory. This game is the first of the two that are scheduled for the Washington street basketball court. The Submarine Base and the Essex five is the main attraction and will be played one hour later than the first game, which begins at 7.30.

Danielson is likely to repeat its victory of a week ago, over the Headquarters quintet. It will be the deciding game for the service championship of this section of the state. A treat for the New London team will give Danielson the decision. On the other hand a victory for the local guardsmen will mean that another game will have to be played to decide the championship. The Headquarters have already won two games this week and would like to make it the third.

A hard contest faces the Attilla quintet. It will be the second game for the gobs in successive nights. The last meeting of the Essex-Sub Base teams resulted in a Base victory by a score of 38 to 24 score. Unless the team play of the sailors is slowed up on account of it being the second game in two days the Essex team will be again defeated.

TABS WIN EASY GAME FROM BATTERY A FIVE

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, Mar. 28—The Tabs quintet took the Battery A five into camp tonight at the State Armory in a regular military league game, by a score of 24 to 14. The Tabs took the lead from the very start only to be tied up by the guardsmen in the opening minutes of play. With the score deadlocked at 6-all, the Tabs began to draw away from the Artillery men and were never in danger of being headed.

The game was hotly contested and it took the Tabs a short time to get their winning style under way. But once the Temperance men began to hit their strides it was an easy matter to keep well in the lead. Play in the second half was more closer and exciting than in the first period of playing time. Both teams began to show their best form and for a time it looked as though the Battery five would regain the points it needed to tie up the contest. The Tabs defense stiffened when the guardsmen threatened to score. Taylor for the Tabs again played an important part in this team's victory. He was as slippery as an eel on the floor in getting away from his guard. He accounted for four field baskets.

Maryeski for the Battery A outfit was that teams best player. He scored four field goals.

The lineup and summary:

| TABS | G | F | Pts |
|---|---|---|---|
| Taylor, r. f. .... | 4 | 0 | 8 |
| Curtin, l. f. .... | 1 | 0 | 2 |
| Pine, c. ..... | 5 | 0 | 10 |

NORWICH SWIMMERS GO TO NEW LONDON TONIGHT

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 28.—Everything is in readiness for the dual swimming meet to be held at the local Y. M. C. A. Saturday evening, between the New London and Norwich "Y" mermen. From present indications an even larger crowd is expected to attend than was present in the State meet held two weeks ago.

The two teams are pretty well lined up and the outcome of the various events can be almost predicted in advance. The showing of the teams in the State swimming meet will determine some of the winners, but this meet can not be referred to cometely in picking winners for Saturday night's meet, for Norwich was not represented as strongly in this meet as she should have been and but two men from Norwich comprised that teams entry.

In the 160 yard relay, New London has the shade, coming in second in the State meet. In the 40 yard dash, it will be a toss up between New London and Norwich swimmers. Norwich has the 60 yard breast stroke and the 220 yard swims clinched, that is if Kundig shows the same form he exhibited in the recent State meet. New London, in Peskett has a good plunger for distance and he is expected to gain first place. The back stroke will be hotly contested. Both New London and Norwich have good men for this entry and a close race is expected. The last two events, the 100 yard swim and the Fancy Diving finds both cities entering strong men. A close race for honors will be in line when these teams meet.

New London will be handicapped greatly by the absence of Pete Woods, who was New London's best bet in the fancy diving.

Taftville Soccer Game Today

The Taftville Soccer team will be up against a stiff proposition this afternoon when it tackles the New London Rangers at 2.45 o'clock at the Providence street grounds. The Rangers have beaten some very fast teams during the past season and will bring up their strongest combination of players.

192ND REGIMENT RIFLE TEAM WILL SHOOT AT HARTFORD THIS AFTERNOON

The rifle team of the 192nd Field Artillery will compete this afternoon at the State Armory in Hartford in the inter-regimental annual shoot. The team which includes a number of officers and enlisted men from Battery B and the Combat train of this city This team won the shoot in 1923 when the riflemen from the 192nd regiment hung up a score of 1449 points against 1421 for the 169th infantry their nearest competitors. Five teams are entered in the shoot this afternoon representing the 192nd field artillery, the 169th infantry, Coast Artillery Corps, Cavalry and 170th infantry.

The shoot consists of 10 shots in four positions, standing prone, sitting and kneeling. The prizes for the shoot is a bronze shield emblematic of the title and to each team member of the winning team a bronze medal is given. The team representing the 192nd infantry which Norwich is interested in as follows. Capt. W. R. Denison team captain, Mess Sergeant, G. J. Malcolm, Corp. C. T. Robinson and Pvt. A. C. Berberich, all of Battery B; Capt. H. F. Burdick and Supply Sergeant, G. L. Ranger, of First Batallion Headquarters and Combat Train of this city; Sgt. W. D. Royle, Corp. G. Moriarty and Pvt. J. L. Latham of Headquarters Battery of New London; Sgt. J. Pollock of Third Batallion Headquarters and Combat Train of Stamford; Sgt. F. S. Fowler of Battery E of Stamford; and Capt. G. J. Schoen of Battery D of Danbury.

Practically every member of the team is an expert marksman and some of the men are old service who having been on rifle teams in the state for the past decade. It is expected that the 192nd will repeat its victory of a year ago although stiff competition can be expected from the men from the 169th.

MANCHESTER SOCCER TEAM FAVORED FOR STATE TITLE

The Manchester Soccer team of which Reid McIntyre, formerly of Norwich is president is favored to win the soccer cup emblematic of the state title in the finals against Waterbury on Sunday. The game will be played at the Brassco park in Waterbury. The Manchester team has not lost a state league game this year and has only been beaten once, Ansonia winning in the National Cup tie game.

Great interest throughout the state among soccer fans assures the officials of a record breaking crowd at the game in Waterbury. The Manchester boys have been installed favorites to repeat their smashing triumph of 1923 and come out of the game with the long end of the score.

MULLINS SAYS HE IS UNAWARE OF BOUT

New York, Mar. 28—If the proposed heavyweight title match at Tia Juana, Mexico, between Jack Dempsey and Harry Wills has practically been arranged as reported, Paddy Mullins, the big negro's manager is not aware of it.

Mullins said today he was skeptical of statements credited to Jack Kearns the champion's manager, and promoter James J. Coffroth that negotiations were nearly completed, but hastened to admit that he was ready to match his charge with the champion under any reasonable conditions. He has received no word from Coffroth, however, he declared.

EGAN WILL BE ASSISTANT TO HARRIS

Oneida, N. Y., Mar. 28—Arthur F. "Bee" Egan, veteran catcher, today was requested by Stanley Harris to act as assistant manager of the Washington American baseball league.

"If you are free and would care for the position, would like to have you as my assistant," read the telegram from Harris.

Egan wired the terms at once and is expecting an order to depart for the south.

For the last 13 years Egan has been one of the most prominent catchers in the minor leagues.

MERIT BADGES AWARDED TO NORWICH BOY SCOUTS

The awarding of merit badges, announcement of scouts advanced to the second class and an interesting talk by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott, pastor of the United Congregational church, featured the meeting of the Boy Scout Court of Honor held Friday evening in the city court room. There was a good sized attendance at the meeting with assembly by the bugle, followed by the scouts salute to the court, invocation and the repeating of the scout oath. Rev. Mr. Abbott then spoke to the scouts on the four classes in which people are grouped. He said that all people come under one of these four classes. First there is the pioneer, second the verifier, one who tests out what the pioneer has told. The third class includes those people who intelligently accept the results achieved by the pioneer and verifier. And the fourth grade or class includes those persons who take things for granted. The remainder of the programme was as follows

Announcement of scouts advanced to second class by Scout Exexcutive F. A. Benton; presentation of first class badges; examination of merit badge candidates and presentation of badges; announcements by scout executive; pledge of allegiance; benediction; taps.

The merit badges were awarded as follows:

Troop No. 1, Albert G. Rogers, bird study; Edward Gulomb, carpentry, printing; Frederick Fox, swimming, life saving, firemanship, public health and cycling; Arnaud LaPierre, swimming, firemanship, craftsmanship, public health, personal health and cycling.

Troop No. 6—Harold B. Frink, firemanship and handicraft.

Troop No. 6—Tarold B. Frink, firemanship, public health and interpreting.

Troop No. 9—Lawrence F. Browning, forestry, music, conservation and marksmanship.

Herbert Armstrong, A. S. M., automobiling, cycling and machinery.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

In John Flavin, third baseman, late of Georgetown, Jack Dunn of the Baltimore Orioles believes he has picked up a coming star. Flavin is a good hitter.

Bloomington of the Three-I League has taken on John Schaefer, an outfielder, who was with London, Ont., last year. He is not a spring chicken, but can still sock the ball.

Joe Brown, placed on the suspended list when he failed to report to the Hamilton, Ont., Club three years ago, has signed with the Reading Club of the International League.

Frank Metz, veteran first baseman and former manager of the Sioux City Club of the Western League, has signed with the Lincoln team which recently obtained the Sioux City franchise.

A. H. "Red" Wingo, can hit them as far as anybody in the business with the exception of Babe Ruth, according to Dan Howley, manager of the Toronto Club, who sent the outfielder to Detroit.

Edward "Tubby" Spencer, veteran catcher, has been signed by President Jack Holland of the Oklahoma City Indians. Holland believes the rotund one still has some good baseball in his system.

"Ziggy" Miller of Gary, Ind.; Floyd Warren of Sandoval, Ill., and Eddie Starr, an Indian, who played in the Fox Valley and Soo Line Leagues last season, have been signed by the Moline Mississippi Valley League club.

Connie Mack says he intends to use Frank Brussy, his heavyweight catcher oftener this year. Brussy has knocked about 40 pounds off his frame.

Another semi-pro has been added to the ranks of the Moline Club of the Mississippi Valley League. He is Eddie Newhouse, a first baseman of Chicago.

Clark Griffith is said to be trying to get George McBride back as a coach for the Nationals. McBride has been in retirement in Milwaukee.

Johnny Herving, the young catcher from Battle Creek, it is reported stands a good chance of doing much of the catching for the Boston Red Sox this year.

Frank Brisch broke into baseball as a catcher. A foul tip, however, shattered one of his fingers and he then decided infielding was a less perilous occupation. This all happened when he was playing with an amateur club in Brunswick, N. J.

Larry Gilbert, manager of the New Orleans Club of the Southern League, believes he has found a real shortstop in the person of Fred Jackson. They speak of the player as the best looking piece of material since Joe Sewell's days with the Pels.

It will not behoove the Cleveland Indians to pick on Max Turk, the Pittsburg boy, who is understudying Joe Sewell, for that young man is a former boxer. He had his fling at the professional boxing business, but decided baseball the more gentlemanly pastime.

Eusebio Gonzales, second baseman of the Toronto International League club, was shot in the left hand in Havana last week by a sporting writer. The player attacked the newspaperman because of something he had written and the shooting followed at the ball park.

Arthur Devlin, who a decade ago, was digging them out of the dirt for the New York Giants, like many other old-timers, is dreaming the dream of a comeback, down at St. Petersburg, Fla. with the Boston Braves.

Devlin now weighs 240 pounds and can still go and get them as well as bat, but his legs are "shot."

It doesn't happen often! Frank Gibson, Boston Braves' catcher, refused to join Dave Bancroft's club because he didn't have enough to do last year. He says he's satisfied with his contract, but must have some assurance that he will not wear (himself) shiny on the bench.

Garland Braxton, young southpaw pitcher, who had a tryout with the Boston Braves, has been turned over to the Springfield Club of the Eastern League by Worcester of the same league. Worcester has sold Dick Wacha, a youthful infielder to the Pittsburg Pirates.

For the first time since the days of Chief Bender Connie Mack is preparing to pin some of his hopes on an Indian twirler. Roy Meeker, a descendant of the Cherokee race, is being primed to form a bulwark in Mack's staff of pitchers. Meeker is cool under fire, cunning, and a crafty pitcher.

OLD LYME READING CLUB HAS NO USE FOR BUILDING

John Morley of Old Lyme, sole trustee of the Old Lyme Musical and Literary Association, is the plaintiff in the superior court for an order for sale of the association's real estate and the investment of the proceeds as trust funds may by law be legally invested for the benefit of the Reading Room club now known as the Ladies Library association, or the payment of the proceeds of such sale and of the accumulated rentals now in the hands of the trustees to the Ladies Library association in such manner as the court may deem the most proper, to secure the object for which the trust was originally created.

The defendant's named are Alice A. Chadwick, Old Lyme, as executrix of the will of Charles N. Chadwick, and Alice A. Chadwick, individually.

It is represented that the Old Lyme Musical and Literary association was organized Dec. 25, 1885, as an unincorporated voluntary association to procure land in Old Lyme and to erect a building or public hall for the use of the Old Lyme cornet band, the Old Lyme Public Library, so-called, and of the Reading Room, then lately established, and for such other occasional uses as might be authorized by the association. Title was to be held in five trustees who should have power to fill vacancies in the board. The original board was Charles H. Ludington, Benjamin W. Bacon, James Griswold, Henry Noyes and Edward D. Griffith, all of Old Lyme.

On March 17, 1886, Charles R. Noyes of Old Lyme conveyed a plot of land 60 by 75, to the trustees for the uses of the association and a building was erected upon it which was used for some time by the cornet band and the Reading Room club.

For a long time now the place has not been used by the Cornet Band, which has ceased to exist for more than 25 years as an active musical organization.

Since the formation about 1894 of the Old Lyme Library association, the Reading Room club has not used the building, but has used the new building of the Old Lyme Library association.

None of the original trustees are now living, except John R. Morley, who has rented the property and now has in his hands a balance of $200 from rentals over and above expenses, but it has now become impossible, since the erection of the public library building for the trustee to carry out the objects of the Old Lyme Musical and Literary association. By vote of this association on Jan. 24 1924, the surviving trustee was directed to take such action as to accomplish the sale of the building and turn over the net proceeds to the Ladies Library association.

The defendant, Alice A. Chadwick, is the sole devisee under the will of Charles N. Chadwick, who by the will of Charles R. Noyes, grantor of the land to the Musical and Literary association was devised all the interest that Noyes had in the real estate, and the defendant, Alice A. Chadwick, is the only party interested in this real estate as a possible reverationer.

163 NORTH MAIN STREET

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Usual incidents occupied the minds of Norwich people a half century ago, a number of them as contained in the Bulletin of that year being reported as follows:

Monday, March 23, 1874—A very fine parlor organ is being manufactured by Vogel & Co., Franklin street. It is the mellow fullness and richness of tone unrivaled, and for the beauty of its finish and ornament to the parlors and drawing room. Mr. Vogel has been at work for some time to secure a perfect pipe note and in this organ he has been rewarded by complete success.

The bones of five Indians in a sitting position, with a succotash kettle in front of them were recently found in Niantic, while a cellar was digging for Henry Whittlesey.

In place of Henry Ruggles of this city who has resigned his position as consul at Barcelona, Spain, F. H. Schenck has been nominated.

One of the sure signs of spring was seen yesterday, when a large flock of geese flew over the city headed in a north eastern direction.

Tuesday, March 24, 1874—The Rev. John Davies of this city will preach the sermon at the dedication of the new Baptist church in Danielsonville tomorrow afternoon. A number of Norwich people will accompany him on his trip to that village.

A fine portrait of the late Lewis Hyde of Norwich Town is on exhibition in Ripley's window. It is from the easel of A. H. Emmons and is spoken of by those well acquainted with Mr. Hyde as a correct and skillful painting.

"A feine breeze," remarked a local well known Irishman yesterday as a gentle zephyr dropped his superfluous clothing over the majestic bridge railing on the West Side.

The work on the new iron bridge at Greeneville is progressing rapidly. The second section is nearly completed and the old bridge has been almost entirely removed.

The seining of smelts gives rivermen plenty of pleasure these days along the banks of the Shetucket river. Several large hauls have been made of late.

A horse and wagon were blown through Trolan's window on Washington Square yesterday.

Wednesday, March 25, 1874—McClellan & Lotter's new sensation played last evening to a large house at Breed hall. The entertainment consisted of a number of comic features in minstrelsy and very good athletic exhibitions. The trapeze performance by J. A. Lotter and the grand tumbling by McClellan, Lotter and Burns and the barrel exhibition were all well rendered.

A housekeeper in Salem tried a novel means of ridding his house of rats and mice. He filled the house with gas and the mice left in disgust. And now his neighbors cats are dying to a distance of a half mile from the house.

Thursday, March 26, 1874—A Hartford paper speaks of Dr. Stephen Sweet of Franklin who recently died as the father of the famous family of bone setters. That was the name of the father, but he died many years ago in Lebanon, and the late Dr. Sweet was his son. Another son, Dr. Charles Sweet still lives in Lebanon and possessed the remarkable quality that distinguishes his family. Two sons of the late Dr. Sweet are practicing in this state, one at Middletown, the other at Milford.

Mr. Gale has again taken the lease of the horse railroad and Norwich people are pleased to know that the road will be under the same excellent management that has been provided in past years.

The workmen on the bridge in Greeneville thinking the time proper, struck yesterday for higher wages. They were allowed to go in peace and new men took their places as fast as they left.

A deaf man was run over yesterday on Washington square by a farmer's wagon. The man was not injured to any extent and continued on his way.

George A. Brooks of Yankton, D. T., has returned home after a lengthy absence and has again taken up his duties as chief in the Merchants hotel. Mr. Brooks who is well known here made a 2,000 mile journey to reach the side of his lady-love, married her and returned home to live happily ever afterwards.

Friday, March 27, 1874—John W. Gale yesterday sold the dummy to a company in Vernon, New Jersey. She is to be run in that city wehre horses are supposed to be careless of phantoms and spooks of the imagination.

William Bloemberg, brother of C. Bloemberg of the "Bee Hive", met with a very serious accident yesterday afternoon. He was arranging some goods in the store window and in pulling a cord fastened to the frame the screw holding it became loosened and flew out striking him in the eye, the point penetrating the eye-ball. He was rushed to a physician but the sight of the eye cannot be saved.

Rumors are flying about New London that boats making their dockings at Allyn's Point are to dock at New London beginning this summer. Arrangements to this effect are underway between the steamboat company and the Central Vermont railroad. A small boat, it is said, will continue to run to Allyn's Point to bring passengers to New London.

The colored brethren of the city have purchased land on Franklin street where they intend to erect their new church, and they are asking their friends support to aid them in their work.

Saturday, March 28, 1874—Cars stopped at South Windham yesterday for the first time and passengers noted the first time and passengers noted the first time and passengers noted the first time and passengers noted two of the late afflicted who had come safely through tribulation, their faces pitted and garnet colored bearing witness to what they had suffered. As they approached the car windows came down with a bang and the car speedily left town.

Seventy five friends of D. J. Park, the superintendent of the Campbell Ball & Co., paper mill in Greeneville enjoyed a social evening at his home Friday.

The Mills is undergoing repairs preparatory to starting her summer work.

Leo C. Gentle, of Atlanta, Ga., has enough children to make two football elevens and have some left for substitutes. He is the father of twenty-eight children, eleven of them too young to fly from the home nest. Mr. Gentle was married twice. His first wife presented him with ten and the present Mrs. Gentle is the mother of eighteen. There were never any twins or triplets in the family.

LEBANON

A. C. Hoxie motored to Woburn, Mass., Saturday after his wife and daughter who have been visiting relatives. They returned home Sunday.

POETRY

Life Winds

Do you hear—dear child—how the South winds blow,
Blow under the star light—whispering low!
Do you hear the songs that the south winds sing,
Sing to the star-lit night of Spring!

Years will pass—dear child and life winds will blow,
Blow under the starlight—whispering low!
Will your heart be touched by the winds that sing,
Sing to the star-lit nights of Spring!

Sorrow will come with the winds that blow,
Blow under the starlight—whispering low!
Grief will come with the winds that sing,

But all through the years when the Life winds blow,
Blow under the starlight—whispering low!
Let your heart be glad—for the God of all things
Sends you the magic of love by the winds of the Spring.
—Sue M. Hankins in April Nautilus.

A South Wind in March

Open the house doors and let in the spring!
Here in our northern valley we are tired
Of winter's white face pressed against the panes;
Too long have bitter wind and snow conspired.

But there's a wind today that sings of change,
Where sagging snows are lying thin and cold,
A wrinkled shawl along the sloping fields;
Their shadows once blue-white are pale-set gold.

Now light lies golden too upon the ridge
And we can wait content through fleet-blown days
Until our faded hills grow green again,
Till in the budded trees a young rain plays.

What through the road's a-gleam, the branches black?
Though frost still crows, and blown white snowflakes sting!
Bird songs are blown along the impatient wind.
Open the heart doors wide—let in the spring!
—Helen Iges Gilchrist in Boston Transcript.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

"What's the matter?"

"I wrote an article on fresh milk, and the editor condensed it"—Pelican.

"What makes you think they're engaged?"

"She has a ring and he's broke."—Mount Union Dynamo.

"What have you gleaned now?"

"A trainer of fleas tells me that fleas which came off dogs won't act with fleas that came off cats."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

She (with newspaper)—"You didn't like Prof. Dryleigh's lecture last night, yet the critic says His eloquence swept over his hearers like a tide."

He—"Yes, an ebb-tide, and most of his audience drifted out on it—Exchange.

"We're you at the wedding?"

"Yes."

"What was it like?"

"O, a regular wedding with the bride's mother crying and the bride's father wondering who the deuce most of the groom's relatives were."—Detroit Free Press.

"Why did you dismiss your French maid?"

"I couldn't understand her when she talked fast," answered Miss Cayenne. "I was afraid she was saying impertinent things to my face that I couldn't understand."—Washington Star.

Warren—I see that a woman has been arrested for smuggling in liquor. Would you call her a bootlegger?

Butler—No. Woman don't wear boots. I'd call her a slipper.—Brooklyn Standard-Union.

"We'll engrave the name on this umbrella handle free of charge," said the clerk.

"All right," said the customer. "Just engrave 'John Smith' on it."

"Your name isn't John Smith. I thought you wanted it for yourself."

"So I do. No man would steal it with that name on it, for he could never hope to dodge all the John Smiths there are in the world."—Boston Transcript.

KALEIDOSCOPE

An inventor has mounted a small barmagnet on a shingled support to pick up phonograph needles.

A new gasoline blowtorch is converted into a soldering iron by fastening a detachable bit to its nozzle.

A new church that requires little effort to operate, is suspended between springs that repeat many times motions imparted to it.

Experimenters in a Hudson river tunnel, ninety feet below the surface of the river and 1,600 feet from an exit, tuned in with a radio set and heard concerts as far away as Pittsburgh. This experiment may lead to something of value to entombed miners.

For eighteen years several hundred acres of cut-over hardwood land in northern Michigan has been carefully guarded by fire wardens supported solely by Herman Lunden. Today there are many twelve and eighteen-inch saw logs and much chemical wood on the protected tract.

Polaris, or the North star, is to navigators north of the equator the most important of all stars. It cannot be seen south of the equator. It is the second magnitude star at the end of the handle of the "little dipper." It is readily found by aid of the pointers of the "big dipper," which are the two stars in the bowl of the dipper located farthest from the handle. A line drawn through these stars and extended a distance equal to about five times the distance between them brings us to Polaris.

During Thrift Week we hear a great deal of Benjamin Franklin as the great exponent of thrift. Historians recall, however, that the great scientist-statesman was not always thrifty enough. In his refusal to patent his famous stove, he was wasteful of his own and the public's profit. He wished his ideas to be free to the world, and so did not protect his invention. An Englishman made some changes for the worse in the Franklin fireplace, secured a patent on it, and reaped a handsome fortune from the sales.

An instance of a case where a little is bad but an excess of the same bade uality makes it a good one, is reported by the United States bureau of standards as a result of recent researches in the reasons for malleable cast iron becoming brittle after being heated. When galvanized, such metal is heated to a critical range of 500 to 900 degrees Fahrenheit and then quite quickly cooled. This makes it brittle. It has now been found that if the metal is heated to a temperature 200 degrees above the critical range and then cooled, it is not only much more resistant to subsequent shocks, but also made immune to embrittlement as a result of subsequent reheating to within the dangerous range.

A Raw, Sore Throat

Eases Quickly When You Apply a Little Musterole

And Musterole won't blister like the old-fashioned mustard plaster. Just spread it on with your fingers. It penetrates to the sore spot with a gentle tingle, loosens the congestion and draws out the soreness and pain.

Musterole is a clean, white ointment made with oil of mustard. It is fine for quick relief from sore throat, bronchitis, tonsilitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds on the chest. Keep it handy for instant use.

To Mothers: Musterole is now made in milder form for babies and small children. Ask for Children's Musterole.

If You Would Be Mannishly Trim and Boyishly Charming
A Tailored Suit Is Indispensable

Here you will find the tailored suit in its most approved versions. The smart, trim lines—suggestive of the carefully tailored effect which a man demands, is appealing. So, too, is the short box coat, the sportier designs with mandarin sleeves, made of the strikingly striped suitings which are now vogue, or the fancy tweeds for general knockabout wear.

Your Easter Suit Is Comfortably Priced From—
$29.75 to $59.75

COATS WHICH ARE DECIDEDLY SPRING-LIKE MAKE STRONG APPEAL

Cleverly cut on the straight lines of the season, many with the side fastening to give the close-fitting, slender effect, they make an impression on one which is hard to ignore. Pile weaves are still in greatest demand, Polaire, Teddy Bear and Bolivia being the most favored. By all means buy the Spring coat now.

The Prices Are Most Reasonable From—
$19.75 to $49.50

A SPECIAL GROUP OF SILK FROCKS
$22.75
It is no trick to attain the air and appearance of being well-dressed, even if the pocketbook is not deep. This group of pretty frocks, developed in flat crepe, canton and fancy figured Roshanara, in all the new Spring shades gives this opportunity.

COLORFUL BLOUSES IN PROFUSION
$5.95 to $12.50
Colorful is the word. Like the first bright blossoms in your garden they come to brighten up the darker and more sombre suits and skirts. All of the novelty colors, powder blue, Lucille and Brick-dust, and all the other will be found.

THE LITTLE CROCUSES

The little brown bulbs went to sleep
In the ground,
In their little brown nighties they slept very sound,
And winter he raged, and he roared overhead,
But never a bulb turned over in bed.

But when spring came tiptoeing over the lea,
With finger on lip as still as could be,
As the very first sound of her soft little tread
They all split their nighties, and jumped out of bed.

WELCOME TO THE BLUEBIRDS

The winter winds are very cold and chill;
And the fields are white with snow,
But we are longing for the spring-time,
When soft spring zephers gently blow.
Yes, we are waiting for the wireless,
To assure us the birds will come again,
Will the balmy spring greet us soon,
When bluebirds sing their glad refrain?

Then haste, Oh haste, ye fickle March,
And bring the balmy breath of spring,
When bluebirds flit from tree to tree,
And their happy songs so sweetly ring.
Welcome dear little blue-coated songsters,
We love your mellow tuneful voice,
Carolling your sweet "Tra-lally trually," Surely it makes our hearts rejoice

I BELIEVE

I believe in friendship, and I believe in trees,
And I believe in bollyhocks a-swaying in the breeze,
And I believe in robins and roses white and red,
And rippling brooks and rivers, and blue skies overhead.
And I believe in laughter, and I believe in love,
And I believe the daffodils believe in God above.

I am no unbeliever, I know that men are true,
I know there's a joy in summer time when skies above are blue,
I know there is no earthly power can shape a budding rose
Or bring a daisy into bloom; with all that wisdom knows,
It could not fashion, if it would, the humblest blade of grass
Or stretch a living carpet where the weary travelers pass.

I believe in friendship, for I have found it good,
And I believe in kindly words, for I have understood;
My faith is founded on the years and all that I have seen,
Something of God I've looked upon no matter where I've been—
Within a swamp but yesterday a lily smiled at me
And only God could set it here to bloom for me to see.

GINGER COOKIES AND TASTY SANDWICHES

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Three cheers to the Social Corner flag! I want to write and thank all the sisters who so kindly sent me birthday cards. How nice it is to be remembered with cards and gifts. The Corner is full and running over now with good helpful letters. I welcome the recipes back.

Jennie: Certainly I would deem it an honor to be your partner at the next grand march. Will it be held in the same place and month? I, too, was on the boat around the lake. Oh, that was a gala day! I remember the sister who cheered and made merry all the way up on the trolley. My what a noisy crowd it was! But the conductor only smiled.

Mary France: Only wished you lived over this way so you could run in and have a chat with me. Did you go to the anniversary meeting?

Spry Bird: Have not seen a line from your way. Hope the package may be found. Did you receive the roll of Bulletins? A kind friend sent them to me. Do you not get some? Tired putting up so many lunches every day? Try this for a change for delicious sandwiches. Take equal parts of shredded pineapple and cream cheese. Cream them together until they form a smooth paste. Spread between thin slices of either brown or white bread. I think the children will be delighted with these at school. Custard in individual cups with an ice cream spoon is a change.

Tested Ginger Cokies: 1 cup of molasses, 1-2 cup of sugar and 2-3 cup of lard. Boil all together three minutes, add 1-2 teaspoon of cinnamon, one of ginger, salt and a teaspoon of soda in a little water; flour to roll.

Did you ever try making a common loaf cake, put into a large dripping pan and when done cut into squares? It is nice for a change. There are many ways a thrifty housewife can make dishes a little different to be appetising for a dinner box does get so stale if no change is made.

Let us do and give our very best in every possible way and place.

"For giving is living," the angel said,
"Go feed in the hungry sweet charity's bread."
And must I keep giving again and again?
My selfish and unworthy answer asked.
"Oh, no," said the angel piercing me through,
"Just give till your master stops giving to you."
Freely ye have received, freely give.
L. H. K. (March 31.)

SEEK TO PERPETUATE CORNER'S PURPOSE AND IDEAL

Dear Social Corner Pals: It is very interesting to read all your fine letters, so seated at radio listening to station WCAP will add my bit. Having just passed another anniversary of the Corner and with an ever increasing family, may we earnestly seek to perpetuate its purpose and ideals.

Several members of this family, also having had a birthday anniversary in March, I for one wish to thank you collectively and individually, pals for the many cards and expressions of good good wishes and good will for the future. The next hundred (?) years ought to be easy, as they say the first hundred has gone. So be of good cheer, all you March chicks.

Are all you good people drinking your six glasses of water every day for your health's sake? Our bodies are composed largely of that element and a great deal is thrown off through the skin, lungs and kidneys so tole waste needs to be replaced.

Chocolate Cake: 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter or dripping, creamed, 2 squares melted chocolate, 1 egg vol. 1 teaspoon soda in 1 tablespoon hot water, 1-2 cup sweet milk, 1 cup flour, 1-2 cup milk, 1-2 cup flour with 1-8 teaspoon salt, 1-2 teaspoon vanilla. Bake in a moderate oven and frost with boiled icing using whits of egg. Boost and the world boosts with you Knock and you're on the shelf, For the booster gets sick of the man who kicks And wishes he'd kick himself. Boost when the sun is shining, Boost when it starts to rain, If you happen to fall, don't lie there and bawl, But get up and boost again. Long live the Corner.

HOPE COBWEB.

WONDERS OF FLORIDA

To the Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Seeing our Corner page has been so well filled since New Year's I thought I would give the others my space. I do hope that you are are not all frozen up in Connecticut. From reports you are making up for last good weather. At the Methodist church last Sunday evening, which was Connecticut night there, there was a splendid program of music and singing. A Connecticut man, Mr. Jennings gave a talk on Christ before Police down to the present time. When the call for Connecticut people to stand came 116 responded. More than any other state numbers so far. Every Sunday evening there's a different state called and speakers from said state there on that night. Next Sunday, March 23, will be New York night.

After giving you sisters a description of Blue Springs, I will write next about De Leon Springs. The motel and casino have been built since Sept. 1923. And as I visited there from time to time and saw the wilderness changing into modern cement walks and the springs widening, I thought, as some did, that it would be ruined; but no, it is beautiful. As you Mr. Editor do not print photos in our page I will try to send some in when there is another meeting at Buckingham Memorial so everyone who attends can see the beauty which is described in the address. No pen can give the coloring of the trees, birds, flowers and the beautiful wilderness that is in the surrounding country. As some of the other sisters have been further south in Florida than I have I cannot tell of its beauty as they. But I did go to a city 20 miles from here, through the celery fields in the Seminole county. As far as you could see was celery. Some green, some small some just being planted and more so some being shipped to New York markets by full refrigerator cars. Strawberries with plants all around with ripe berries, carrots and beets were also being shipped. Just beginning to look real good about six to eight inches high were Irish potatoes, beans, onions, lettuce, etc. It was an interesting trip. Having had quite a lot of rain lately the water was high in these gardens and it's no wonder it seems to shoot out. But most queer of all is to see the difference in the country around even only 20 miles away from our home here. It's almost impossible right up to the road, almost and as for snakes I've only seen three in almost eight months here now. No doubt there are some in the swamps. But, I've seen more than that many a month right in Connecticut.

So now I will close so others can find space also. Hoping that one and all of the sisters will weather your winter in good health and spirits.

E. M. R. C. P. (May 7th.)

WAYS TO CURE WARTS

Dear Corner Sisters: As this is our anniversary month I will drop in my little bit. Was so sorry and disappointed in not being with you at the gathering at the hall. But the weather man said too bad weather for those so far to go in the snow so I with many others had to stay at home and think of the good time those who could get there were having. But we can't go to them all. This was the first anniversary gathering that I have missed since Club No. 1 started having gatherings. To the Lebanon Sisters I will say I should loved to have been down there at your gathering last week. Hope I may be able to get there sometime! We are always pleased to see you all up to Club No. 1 and hope we may have the chance to come to your gatherings as I know we always have nice times when the Corner sisters meet as we are all one band. I live so far away that it is hard for me to get to the different clubs, which I would like to do if I could.

It will now soon be time to have our outdoor picnics in the good old summer time. Then it will be better traveling and may we have many pleasant times together. Hope there will be better weather in April and may there be a good crowd out at our next gathering at the hall as so many of us got disappointed at our last meeting. Let us try and be there Now comes house cleaning at which some of you are busy now. I have not begun yet but have got plenty to do. Just now I am making braided rugs. I have got two in the works.

Kingston Brown: You ask for a cure for warts. Here is a way which a doctor told me and I found it a sure cure. Take a needle and scratch or pick them and get them to bleeding well. Then take baking soda and press it on all over the wart, right in the blood. You won't have to put it on but a few times and the wart will be gone. Then there is a Minard's liniment that will also kill them. But the common baking soda is always on hand and will do the work.

Huldy and Trottie: We enjoy reading your letters telling us of trips in Florida. Glad you are having such pleasant times. I am not in Florida but my lemon tree has about 75 buds on it now. So you see soon I can have the pleasure of having the fragrant lemon blossoms to smell and perhaps during the summer shall have some lemons. Now I can hear our editor say enough for now so best wishes to all the sisters, also welcome to our new writers. We all like to see our Corner still growing.

C. E. S.

KEEPING IN TOUCH WITH CORNER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Just a few lines to let you know I am on this side of the happy hunting ground. I never know just where the setting of the sun may find me. I still believe a stitch in time saves nine, or every little help. A smile will let you in where the knock is never known. And the sun may be shining tomorrow, although it is raining today. I said once in a company of friends, scanty fare for one will often make a royal feast for two. One of the party doubted it. I had a very pleasant chat with Calla Lily recently. Am always glad to meet her. To see all the sick are improving.

FIRST ANSWER IN ROLL CALL

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Here goes for the roll call. I will say present in answer to my name. It was in Feb. 1917, that I joined the Corner, so I am seven years old (in the Corner.)

I wonder just how many members there are to date? Must be quite a large family by this time.

It does seem good to see signs of spring again and to hear the birds singing in the morning. How refreshing everything seems when one wakes with the birds song in the air and the feel of spring. Everything taking on new life after the quiet of winter. I don't think the past winter has been very bad, not much snow up this way. I was surprised to see so much down in Connecticut while it is all bare ground up here in Massachusetts. It is generally the other way. It is nice to walk or ride through the woods in the summer time, where it is quiet and listen to the noises, birds, rustle of leaves, the winds gentle lullaby in the tree tops or the babble of a brook. The sounds of cow bells or a dog in the distance and get the fresh smell of pine, the woodsy fragrance and step on the soft moss and look for flowers hidden in among the leaves and by the brook. I don't get a chance to go out now a days very often unless I take my sewing along with me or some of my work.

I was reading one day how small things start unkind feelings and a dispute sometimes in families. One lady did not cook some dish the way she liked for a long time and a young married girl said to her why be so foolish, and it isn't right to give in like that. She told her, she found much more pleasure in giving up her desire than in causing trouble and how few think it awful if homes are broken up by unkind words. Experience is a good teacher and I have learned as well as she that it pays to give in many times, and the golden silence is golden when used at the right time. It is not hard to do those little things if practiced, and how much it pays in saving unnecessary words and hurt feelings! If many in the family like things cooked differently play a game and let each take turns in having it the way each likes it. As our pastor said one day in his sermon, one likes to be free, but a boy sliding down a bank found before he got to the bottom although he was free to slide he wasn't free to stop just when he wanted to, so he landed where he didn't want to, in mud and water. One is free to use words but he cannot take them back after once said, no matter how much he would like to. So our freedom has to be used so as we would always do if we wish to do what is best for others as well as ourselves. This is the reason for all law. On man wanted to do just as he pleased but when some one took his things he thought differently about freedom.

All the letters are helpful and interesting and hope, as some one said, to hear from all the members.

Best wishes to each one, hope all the sick are better and those who are in sorrow may be comforted.

SPRY BIRD.

WORK WE DO NOT DO

Dear Social Corner Sisters: No short-cut ever devised for a hard job can ever equal the case of not doing it at all! We housewives are constantly seeking short cuts and easier ways of doing tasks that we need not do at all if we but think. So many of the untarched substitutes for the old time starched white or gingham apron became soiled readily that they diminish the ironing but the rubberized apron requires only wiping with a clean damp cloth. In getting away from the tedious laundering of white table cloths many country housewives have resorted to colored cloths. These do shorten the process but the stained and varnished table top doilies made from oilcloth or Japanese crepe do away entirely with ironing and almost entirely with any difficult washing. Crepe under garments need no ironing and are dainty and serviceable. Do not use trimming that requires ironing. We need never struggle with a dusty, spotty rug or carpet in our dining room when painted or stained floor borders and a concoleum rug can be wiped perfectly clean and dustless with ease and expediency. Bedroom work will be reduced wonderfully when we eliminate every thing not necessary to comfort. Varnished or linoleum covered floors that require no moving of heavy furniture to clean. Like small rugs that the wind switches free from dust on the clothesline, light crepe spreads that wash like a sheet, crepe or cheesecloth curtains that require only a little dry pressing to get them into shape all says work. We need not make over the little worn dress if we make for ourselves and the children only what we really need each season. This will save us many unnecessary hours of sewing. We need never wash a great many cooking and serving dishes if we will invest in some fire-proof glass and crockery. Not only can we then cook and serve but may even occasionally "warm over" in the same dish.

These tasks that we get out of doing entirely are what save us time and strength. Watch out for them.

PAULA.

A VISIT TO HILLCREST

Dear Editor and Social Corner Folks: Did you ever visit Hillcrest? Last Friday, my birthday, Joan and I went. I drove the family horse, Sarah. Oh, she was fine. Mr. met us at the bus line and passed over the reins and we arrived at 10 a. m. My first look took in the maples, large and splendid shaped on the front lawn. My second was centered on the side door and a full blown Crimson Rambler filled the door frame, and my third was directed to a fancy cup of delicious hot coffee cream. Then I saw everything, beautiful plants, rugs, delco lights, very large handsome stone front of fire place, built in china closets, window drapery, something new and pretty, an outlined picture in the west parlor, two spoon handles crossed and penned worked, the immense dining room with five windows, more rare plants, snow white drapery, fine dishes and silver—nothing lacking. I did not know where to begin or leave off. Wish you could have seen the cellar and all the goods things.

I brought home four sample potatoes to show. There was such pretty bedspreads that Crimson Rambler made I cannot do them justice. Go and see, and the view for miles on the horizon. There is a delightful old fashioned well, and such water! Mr. C. R. gave us a generous sample of sauerkraut and as Hillcrest furnishes nuts Joan had her fill. If the Corner should be invited this summer don't fail to go.

J. E. T.

RECALL OTHER DAYS

Dear Sisters of the Corner: Well here I come again, and I am glad to know that Grandma Gray still lives. Yes, she is the one I thought she was, and I have no idea how I came to get her mixed up with the person that did pass on. I think it was a relative of hers, and if her letter had not been reposing in her desk all these months, I should have known of my mistake sooner. Grandma does not know me, but I used to have the best times as a child when I visited in the house on the corner, where she lived a good many years. I used to go down with the children to the lower barn and slide off the hay mow. I thought the outside stairs and that mow were something wonderful. I called on her the last time I was on the hill. It was a beautiful day and we sat out in the front yard. I know a lady who had a birthday party for an elderly person that was in her family when she was 78. Some how the paper had her death in it instead of the party and soon came a memorial card all trimmed with black. I think she must have been the only person that ever saw their memorial card. She lived more than 20 years after that.

The cup custards sweetened with saccharin are bitter the next day not better, as the paper stated.

Grandma Gray: Can you think who I am? It was before you lived on the corner that I used to go there. I would like to see your plants. By what pattern do you make your bed quilts?

Best wishes for the Social Corner.

ELIZABETH HENRY.

WHAT KIND DEEDS OR WORDS WILL DO

Dear Social Corner: Where one is ailing and shut in with no one to talk to, if their friends would call to see them, and have a chat and tell them what's going on outside, it would do them lots of good. It would give them something to think of besides themselves and all their bad feelings. Many times one is thoughtless about such things. As long as they can get around and have a good time, it doesn't matter about others. But those will be a change some time.

I was sorry to see such a bad day for the anniversary. A great many were disappointed, but there was a rumber that went to the hall just the same.

Neighbor Eveready: I regret I was not well enough to attend your wedding, as I judge it was quite a swell affair. I presume your modest little mother will miss you very much. Then perhaps it is the same with her as another lady who had an only daughter. She grew up and after a while got married and went out west. The neighbors thought the mother would miss her so much that they called to see her and sympathized with her in the loss of her daughter. "Oh, she said, "I am glad she is married as I shall have somewhere to go visiting now." Seems the neighbors felt worse over it than the mother did.

There was a sister who asked for a corn cure a short time ago. I don't just remember her name, but will say I've used Sterisol salve and powder and received great benefit from both. Then another lady that has used the salve told me she thought she was going to cure her corn with it, as it had felt so much better after using it. One can find this at the druggists in Willimantic. I think they all keep it as it is for everything. People used to say if something was advertised for anything it wasn't good for anything but it is not so always, as this is the greatest thing I ever saw and I hope the lady will try it and report.

Today the bird is a real spring day and people are improving it by the way the autos fly around. I've been out for my daily walk as my auto don't seem to stop for me. I think I will draw the line and give some other sister room to write her bit. Hope for a speedy recovery for all that are ailing. Will sign myself,

ANNA MELL. (April 14.)

GLAD TO SEE SO MANY LETTERS

My Dear Sisters of the Corner: I greet you all and want to say a few words concerning writing. I had almost become discouraged. I had urged the members to write so much and yet it seemed almost impossible for them to make attempts yet now they have come forward with such interesting letters that it makes our corner a happy consumation.

I heard a lady say "the Corner" has become very interesting now. She didn't write for it this week, I said. "Oh yes I did, I write every week. She said. "I always pick up the paper and look for Kitty Lou and Ethelyn." I didn't see either, so you see I am not the whole Corner after all. So many say. "Well if you stop writing for the Corner we will certainly miss you," but you see they didn't see my little letter, they didn't think my letter was admirable in small doses. I promised the sisters if they would write I would write shorter letters. I remember that was in order, "short letters" and right to the point. But some how I didn't take it very seriously as I wrote long letters to help fill up this page.

A New Jersey pastor who strongly advocated the gospel of selfhelp and selfhealing. Said you could have anything you wanted by just believing you would get it, that is if I would keep on writing and believing. The Social Corner sisters would pick up the stitch that was dropped they would. "and they did" compensation. Is really the one impelling law of human life.

ETHELYN.

LONGING FOR REAL SPRING WEATHER

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Although I am a stranger so you all, I suppose the best way to get acquainted is to write and exchange ideas and confidences, and get acquainted in that way. As I am a shutin I have made many pleasant and lasting friendships in that way. I cannot look forward to attending your delightful meetings which I enjoy reading about, but I am sure it must be very pleasant to meet and enjoy a social hour or two, with so many chattering ladies, who are all interested in contributing to the pleasure and happiness of those around them.

It has been a rather lonely winter for me, and I am long ing for the real spring weather, when the bright little crocuses show their pretty little sky bonnets, nodding in the spring breezes, and the bluebirds, robins, and the other song birds are singing their happy songs, giving a gratuitous matinee for all who will lend a listening ear. I wonder if you have heard the cute little poem about the crocus. I will send it in, and hope you will all enjoy it.

PALMLEAF, Oct. 7.

A CORRECTION

Dear Social Corner Sisters: I want to make a correction in the mince pie recipe which I sent in last Saturday. The first part of it should be: 2 cups chopped apples (heaping full) and 1 cup chopped raisins. I am very sorry the mistake occurred. I hope no one tried to make it according to the recipe as it was printed last week. I am afraid 2 cups of raisins and no apples would make a rather queer mince pie.

OWAISSA.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Members: May I come in? Have been a reader of the Corner ever since it was published and knew some of the writers. I enjoy the recipes very much and missed them when there were none in the paper. Am sending directions for a quick dessert which we like. Cut a Berwick sponge cake through the middle crosswise, place sliced and sweetened oranges between and on top and cover with whipped cream.

MAVIS. (Aug. 21.)

THE LATEST FASHION

Dear Social Corner Friends: It has been said that the last century has been noted as the age of mechanical development and that the next one hundred years should show as much advancement in human development.

The reason we have not made more advancement in human development is because the principles have never been publicly presented.

Children are drained by untrained parents.

Formerly a child was just one of the family and expected to share in all of the work in the home, be seen much thought was given to by mental and moral needs. He was just naturally expected to follow in the ways of the family. For food he freely shared the coarse hearty meals of the family. So received some benefit which the child later has lost under different living conditions in the home making it necessary now to put much more thought and special teaching to replace that loss in both physical and mental needs.

With the adulterations and rendering and high prices of food and the using of less body-building food in the family, adults may have benefited perhaps, but in many homes the children have suffered by the change.

The best reason against equal suffrage was that woman had not done well the work that was especially hers the care of the child. And had not made improvement in her own work equal to that which men had made in mechanical development.

The first few years of a person's life are the most important both physically and mentally. Women have the care of nearly every child for the first five years and every child comes under a women's influence enough so that he might and should have good physical, moral and mental training.

Near one of our cities the children became so destructive that they appointed a woman probation officer for the juvenile court. The first year many were arrested and brought before her for breaking windows, damaging sidewalks, etc. and were sentenced to earn the money to replace the damage done.

She makes them feel that she is their friend, and then teaches them her rules of conduct. "Tell the truth." "Keep your hands off other people's property." "The other fellow has the same right to live in the world that you have." "Love so you will be able to meet people without feeling ashamed."

Boys who were considered hopelessly bad have given no further trouble after she had taught them the priceless joy of self-respect.

What a child learns to do in the beginning, becomes the natural, instinctive way for thinking and living.

The father and mother may have had only physical—animal training. Special school and teachers are very necessary for the mental retarded children, but what we need to do is to stop the making of such a condition which in most cases is caused by wrong training and lack of the right care before school age.

This Good Anniversary month so as to begin the work of another year, to specialize on woman's work—the care of the child.

The best and finest fashions are of no use if individuals neglect or refuse to use them, so the most exact and careful instruction for child welfare are no good unless the people adopt and use them for each child. The juvenile commission of one city will send to parents of every child born there this year a card saying, "What he will become depends upon the first five years of his life."

Make a fashion of right ideals for child needs, study them, use them, talk about them and write about them, until every one will be ashamed not to know the right way and do so that we have the expected improvement in human culture.

HOW TO RECOVER UMBRELLAS

Dear Editor and Friends: April will soon be here and we will have to get ready for the showers. Most every house contains an old umbrella or parasol with a broken rib or brace, and while it seems a hard task to recover one, it really is simple. Get the umbrella man to mend it, now enamel the frame any color you wish or go over it with black. This makes it better than new, as it won't rust now. Open it, and measure the distance between the ribs around the circumference and multiply the distance between the ribs by the number of ribs (adding one half inch for each rib to allow for seaming) to find the amount of material required for the cover. Of single width material you will have two pieces across one point on one edge and one point on the other edge. Of double width material you should get four sections. You are to use no waste only at the ends. Before cutting, or making, turn a narrow hem on each edge of material and stitch. Now measure off on one side as many inches and one half inch more, as is the distance between the ribs. Then on the other side and so on using chalk and yard stick and draw across the cloth, cut the pieces and stitch together making A nice double stitched seam. Put the cover over the frame and drawn each seam down to a fine point and sew with strong waxed thread through eyelet in rib end securely, and wind neatly to cover joining. The intersecting joints may be covered with bits of cloth and the cover fastened to them, make a tiny ruffle and sew over top of handle and tack into place. Another one also on the inside looks better. Now re-enamel the top of ribs and windings and you have a fine parasol or umbrella.

"An onion a day keeps the doctor away" they say. Then why not eat more than one.

If I haven't made this clear will try again.

With best wishes.

ANOTHER CORNER MEMBER

Dear Editor and Social Corner Sisters: Have been a reader of the Social Corner for several years and would like to join. So if I may, will take for my pen name

REMOVING PAINT FROM FURNITURE

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: I started to say ladies, but did not know as that would take you all in so thought best to say members.

I saw in last week's letters that Kingston Brown wanted a cure for warts on hands. I cured one by moistening a few drops of lemon juice on it every night for about a week. The wart dried up, turned black and came off. Another I cured by putting on "Zonol" which you can buy at the druggists.

Will say to A. Cord that I have tried many of the so called corn cures on the market without success, but am now trying this same Zonol and if it takes out the soreness but whether it cures or not I have yet to learn. It is also a cure for most pimples.

As it is the season for cleaning and renovating I am sending you a way to remove paint from furniture which you wish to redecorate, which I copied from my paper. Dissolve equal parts of soda and lime in warm water. Apply with a brush as hot as you can stand. After 10 minutes wash off with hot water and go over the wood with a cloth wet in vinegar to remove any remaining paint. Paint as soon as thoroughly dry. Caution: Be careful in using that the lime does not get up into the face and eyes.

If you should get any paint on your clothing, equal parts of ammonia and turpentine will take it out no matter how hard and dry it may be. Saturate the spot two or three times, then wash in soap suds.

I am not a beauty doctor, nor am I trying to take Kitty Lou's place, but they tell me that the woman that smiles will have a better skin with less wrinkles than the woman who frowns and knits her brows. Well I guess that is enough for now. If you like me I will come again.

SECRET OF RAISED DOUGHNUTS

Dear Social Corner Sisters: Trottie has inspired me to add my mite to the Social Corner page. Said inspiration seized me last Saturday after reading her letter, but the opportunity at that time did not offer, so I tucked inspiration away, faced stern duty, via preparing food for the inner man. This evening I have dragged inspiration out of its hiding place and though it seems to have shrunk considerably will try to make it serve me to some extent.

First, will say to Trottie that Al's suggestion is a good one. We will be glad to see you all. Just let me know about the time you expect to arrive so that I can have a raised doughnut for Al.

I made a batch yesterday. They were O. K.

I used to think making raised doughnuts was a hardship. Used to set sponge at night and many times would not have them fried until afternoon as the dough used to get chilled, but not any more. I mix them up in the morning and in about six hours they are cooling ready to put into the crock. I mix them in a large earthern bowl which has been warmed. I also warm flour and sugar. Into the warm bowl I put 1 1-2 cups of scalded milk that has been cooled. Two table spoons of sugar and two compressed yeast cakes dissolved in a little warm water, and flour to make thin batter. Beat for a few minutes, then set on stove shelf to raise, about half hour or until it is bubbly on top. Then I stir into the raised batter, 1 cup sugar, 4 tablespoons melted butter, 1 beaten egg, teaspoon salt, nutmeg, and flour to knead. I do not remove the dough from the bowl but knead it in the bowl. By doing that way it does not cool, the temperature remains the same. Cover, set on stove shelf to raise.

When dough has risen to top of bowl I turn it onto the moulding board which has been previously warmed through; knead, roll and cut out, leaving them on the board to raise, (also have rolling pin warm.) Let raise until very light, drop into hot fat top side down and fry rich brown.

The secret is to have everything warm and you'll have good luck.

I fancy some of the sisters will say, I wonder if she thinks we don't know how to make raised doughnuts.

No, don't think any such thing, but you know we have had some Corner brides lately and maybe the tip may make them happier and their hubbies too. I know one Corner bride who can make hearts but I have not sampled her doughnuts yet.

Polly: Had fine luck with grape nuts bread.

Yours for the Corner.

MAINE LOVER.

THE KIND THAT COUNT

To the Editor and Friends of the Social Corner: It is with pleasure that I am writing a little message to the sisters and friends of the Social Corner. Have put it off all winter for lack of time to put my mind to anything.

Now that the days are longer and weather better it does seem easier to find a little extra time. I enjoy reading the different letters. One from Jennie March 1st (make the best of the inevitable) was of special interest. Everything I read it a new thought comes to me. Those are the ones that count.

Also those of Rural Delivery have been among the best, and I do think he improves with every one. Where is Potatch? It is a long time since we have seen her name here. Hope she will wake up as the good days come and talk with her friends through the Social Corner.

I was so glad to get the words to the song, Chick-a-dee-dee again as it was a very popular one when I was a child. My mother sang it to her children also to the grandchildren, but I had forgotten some of the words and now I have them. Thanks to the writer who sent them in. Two robins were seen in my yard this morning. It seems good to know the winter is gone and the birds are coming back. I am going to try the gold and silver cake sent in by Rosalind soon. It reads like a good one. I hope when Club No. 4 meets next time it will reserve a place for a new member.

THERMOMETER AT 82 IN MAINE

Dear Social Corner Friends: It is a pleasure, I assure you to see the page full of such interesting letters. The recipes are good for I have tried many of them. I thought of the anniversary meeting for we had a hard storm of rain and snow but it melted almost as soon as it fell. The wind was quite strong that was all.

Our country is going fast and with another day of warm sunshine the yard will be bare. Already the grass shows green in places. Yesterday the bird, the thermometer stood at 82 in the shade and eggs are only 30 cents a dozen at the village store. I have two hens setting. A gentleman from Portland who has just built a $3,100 bungalow is patiently waiting for the roads to get better so he can move his family out here. There is some snow between here and Crystal Lake the roads. Some quite deep drifts.

Harry and Kate: Did you receive a parcel post package a week or 10 days ago? Last week two big black crows were in a tree in the yard where we have corn for blue jays.

Trust the good warm days will make every sick one well. Must close for it is 9 p. m. All good wishes to the invalids.

WORRIES

Dear Editor and Sisters of the Corner: Someone has said that advice might prove an excellent and acceptable gift were everyone but willing to bestow it. Unfortunately we all have so much of it to give away that it has little whatever value it may have at once. This is distinctly a thing to be regretted; for on the general principle that "two heads are better than one," I may, if you are but willing to lend, be able to help you to see how beautiful our little span of life may be, if we but banish the imps of mischief that make it a burden.

Worries for instance—woman has not quite monopolized the worry business but it is not for lack of effort and I'm about time she gave some one else a chance particularly as there's so little profit in it. Worries are a good deal like barnyard fowls, pesky but unprofitable. You can't sell them, yet they're not worth keeping, and instead of your neighbors sympathizing with you, as you think they ought, they simply dislike you for maintaining a nuisance.

KITTY LOU.

ONE GIRL WHO ENVIED ANOTHER

Dear Social Corner Editor and Sisters: Did you ever hear of one girl who envied another? I will tell you about it.

We had been delighted at the idea of moving into a large house near a dear neighbor. We had not been in the new house a fortnight before I began to realize the advantages of the other neighborhood. Our neighbors in the other neighborhood were of course not the same class as we were, but the girls worked for their living the same as others.

But my brother was growing up now. He had taken his last degree with honors, and left college and was to have a social service appointment a little later and mother was counting on being quite a help to her son.

When we moved into the larger house, however, somehow, things struck me a little differently and the "girl next door" was proving a veritable thorn in my side. It was Roger who drew my attention to her. "He had never seen such a beautiful girl," he said, such eyes, such hair one could stake one's life for a face like that; and she had, the grace and bearing of a duchess, too. She must have exquisite taste, be something of an artist in fact; she was always so perfectly dressed."

So he thought it only required exquisite taste to be perfectly dressed; Poor Roger! ah! well, it was like a man.

I thought she must be very attractive. I looked out for her after that and one day I saw her getting into her carriage. I caught my breath as I tried to take in her bewildering beauty, the richness of her golden hair, the wild rose tint of her complexion, the softness of her brown eyes, the rare grace of the tall light figure, girl like, I did not miss a detail of the lovely toilette. The perfectly cut white cloth coat and skirt, the black hat trimmed in roses, the dainty shoes the expensive gloves. Yes, my brother was right, she was beautiful.

I turned away. This world is unevenly divided, and no mistake! I murmured bitterly. Here are two houses, side by side, in one there is a perfectly beautiful girl, who would look charming no matter how poorly she was dressed; and beauty is not enough for her. She has a carriage to ride and lovely clothes to wear and servants at her bidding. In the other there is a very ordinary looking girl who would require to be beautifully dressed in order to look anything at all; but, oh dear! she can scarcely get what makes her look presentable and she has to dress and cook with just one maid from morning until night.

After that she interested me, immensely. She never went out by herself, she never walked in the street she always drove in the carriage. "Disgustingly lazy," that's what I call her, surely it would do her no harm to walk occasionally! I remarked fiercely as I tramped wearily home, one afternoon and she passed me in her carriage.

One evening Roger and I started out to an entertainment in the next house they had forgotten to draw the shades. They were at dinner, the table was beautifully laid, her dinner gown of black velvet and her pretty hair shining in her neck. Roger said, "Doesn't she look stunning?"

"I hope she will call on us," Roger exclaimed. "I would like to know her. She is a girl in a thousand, isn't she?"

"She will never call on us," I answered hotly.

"She practices a good deal. I see her at the piano," Roger protested. "And she plays and sings beautifully."

We were sitting in Roger's study one evening when she returned from one of these shopping expeditions. She was not in the house very long before she commenced playing and singing.

Mother was sitting by the fire, dozing when she looked up, and said, "Why she is going to sing. Tired. What a strange song for a girl to sing!"

The lovely contralto voice rang out full and clear.

Tired, oh, so tired of drifting
Adown the dark stream of life.

I shivered a little. How distinctly one could hear the words, and oh the despair in the sweet young voice.

We listened with bated breath to the next verse waiting and longing so sadly.

For love that is sweetest and best
Willing to die, ah! so gladly.

If that would bring quietness and rest.

She broke off abruptly with a kind of a sob.

No one spoke for a minute or two. Then Roger said, "Something is making her wretchedly unhappy or she could not sing that song like that."

"Oh, trifles upset young women of her stamp. The water in her bath was not properly scented this morning, perhaps, or her maid has not dressed her hair properly or in the number of coils she likes. People who hunt for trouble will always find it." and I couldn't keep the bitterness out of my voice strive as I might.

My brother looked pained. He always looks pained if anyone made a derogatory remark about the girl next door.

I was exceedingly worried and out of temper as I washed up the breakfast things in the pantry next morning. It was a warm day and somehow everything went wrong. The chimney in the kitchen smoked and mother had been remarking about the length of the butcher's bill and telling me I would have to plan more economical dinners in the future.

I can go up and sing Tired, I said, as I dried the cups and saucers savagely. Tired indeed! Well, I would like to know what she has to tire or worry or annoy her?"

Our slatterly maid-of-all-work was thrusting her tousled head in at the door now. "The gentleman from next door wishes to see you," she answered. "He's in the parlor."

I thought what an awful pickle he will think me. I was in the room then.

"My daughter is particularly anxious to make your acquaintance," he began, after preliminary greetings. And she would be so glad if you would come and dine with us this evening. You see she's blind. It is only these last few years she has lost her sight, and it makes it all the harder for her. She underwent an operation. She never complains though it must make her unhappy.

A few minutes later, I was showing him out. I did not speak as I gave him my hand. I was trying to gulp down the tears that would rush into my eyes.

Words I had read somewhere continued to rise up before me and standing out in letters of fire; we see how much a man has, and therefore we envy him. Did we see how little he enjoys, we would rather pity him.

AT A COURT OF PROBATE HELD at Norwich, within and for the District of Norwich, on the 25th day of March A. D. 1924.

Present—NELSON J. ATLING, Judge.

Estate of Daniel F. McNeil, late of Norwich, in said District, deceased.

Ordered, That the Administratrix give the creditors of said deceased to bring in their claims against said estate within six months from this date, by posting a notice to that effect, together with a copy of this order, on the signpost nearest to the place where said deceased last dwelt, and in the same Town, and by publishing the same once in The Norwich Bulletin, a newspaper having a circulation in said District, and make return to this Court.

NELSON J. ATLING, Judge.

Attest: HELEN M. DRESCHER, Clerk.

NOTICE.—All creditors of said deceased are hereby notified to present their claims against said estate to the undersigned at 24 Lincoln Ave., Norwich, Conn., within the time limited in the above and foregoing order.

CAROLINE A. McN. THOMAS, mar29d Administratrix.

Pursuant to a judgment of the Superior Court for Windham County dated February 15, 1924, in the cause of Flint, Alberstad vs August Alberstad, to me directed as a committee to sell the following real estate as a whole at public auction on the premises to the highest bidder on April 16, 1924, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. I will sell at said time and place by public auction to the highest bidder the following described real estate situated in the Town of Canterbury, County of Windham, State of Connecticut.

One certain farm or two tracts of land with all the buildings thereon standing situated on the North Society road so-called, in said Canterbury, containing about 112 acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:

First tract, bounded east by land of Anne E. Dawson and land of Horace G. Crawford, south by land of Edward Baker, dec'd Larsson, west by land of Anne E. Dawson, north by land of Horace G. Crawford, land of William Hill, land of Anne E. Dawson. This tract is divided by the above mentioned highway.

Second Tract, the woodlot containing about 18 acres located south from the North Society road, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by land of Horace G. Crawford and land of the Town of Canterbury, easterly by land of Edison and Carpenter, land of said Town of Canterbury and said Crawford, westerly by land of Hart W. Goff, land of Abbie Safford, northerly by stone wall abutting on land of said Crawford and said Edison and said Carpenter, said premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated March 24, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records BK. 36, Page 383. Also another tract of land in said Canterbury bounded and described as follows: On the south side of the highway leading from the dwelling house of Frank E. Miller to North Society and known as the Pellet lot. Beginning at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by heirs of Hestus Hyde, and following said highway westerly about 26 rods to the northwest corner of said lot, thence southerly by fence or wall about 27 rods to the southwest corner, thence east by north by land formerly owned by Isaac Knight to land of said Hestus Hyde heirs, about 28 rods, thence north by east by said Hyde's land to place of beginning, containing three acres more or less, being the same premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated July 10, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records BK. 36, Page 21.

Excepting from said three described tracts a tract of land containing about 1 1-4 acres deeded by the Plaintiff and Defendant to Horace G. Crawford October 30, 1913, recorded Canterbury Land Records, BK 34, Page 30, said tract described as follows: One certain piece or parcel of land situated in Canterbury on the highway leading from Frank Miller's dwelling house to North Society School House, bounded and described as follows: North by land of Horace G. Crawford about 140 feet from northwest corner to stake and stones near gap in wall about 250 feet abutting on the west by land of said Albertads, thence east to stake and stones at said highway about 250 feet, bounded south by land of said Albertads, thence north on the west side of said highway to land of said Crawford about 280 feet bounded easterly by said highway, containing about 1 3-4 acres more or less.

Terms to be stated at time of sale.

PROJECT TO HAVE THREE TRUSTEES OF NEW LONDON'S NEW SINKING FUND

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 29.—City Manager William A. Holt stated this afternoon that he had not made any appointment of street sergeant on the police force to succeed Sergeant Charles P. Hammond, who was demoted yesterday following a hearing held a week ago on charges of Lieut. Benjamin Beebe that the sergeant was guilty of drinking while on duty. Hammond's suspension will expire next Tuesday and he will then be assigned to a regular beat. In the meantime, the city manager will make known the appointment, for full power to make the appointment rests with the city manager. It is rumored that City Manager Holt has decided who the appointee will be, but will not make it public until the day before the appointment takes effect. It is known that Captain Pinney favors the appointment of Patrolman William Babcock who was appointed acting sergeant by Captain Pinney the day following Hammond's suspension. Babcock appears to be the logical candidate for the appointment, but two other patrolmen, George Perkins and John Cavanaugh are also seeking the job.

Samuel Jaffe and Simon Shiffrein, proprietors of the Troy Laundry, who recently acquired the property at 509 Bank street, owned by Anson B. Collins, today transferred the real estate to Wardie K. Gorra and Mary Shasha. The purchasers will cause the building that fronts on Bank street to be raised and will have two stores constructed. The property has a considerable depth, with a building located on the rear.

Alphebee E. Young of Montauk Point, owner of the fishing boat K-391, one of the four craft seized by the crew of the cutter Semole Tuesday off Watch Hill as rum-runners, and who was held for trial at the next term of the United States district court at New Haven when presented before United States Commissioner Earl Mathewson yesterday afternoon on a charge of receiving and carrying a cargo without delivery manifest or obtaining clearance papers at the local custom house, was taken to New Haven this evening by a United States marshal. Young's craft, it is claimed, has been a transporter of liquor from the rum fleet off "Rum Row" for some time, although no liquor was found aboard the fishing boat when she was seized. Young was unable to provide a surety on his bond of $1,000 last night, so was held at the police station for the federal authorities.

The city council has now established a sinking fund to take care of bond issues as they become due. The sum of $10,000 was appropriated for that purpose at the last meeting and that sum will put into the city budget and the tax to raise it was included. Now it has been recommended by Auditor William F. White that three trustees be appointed, these to be bank officials and the city manager or mayor, who alone shall have the right to draw from the sinking fund, the object being to prevent the fund from being used for any other than the taking up of bonds of the city. The suggestion is an entirely new one for the city as no such officials heretofore have been selected. The sinking fund has been used for the payment of any debts the city council has decided to use it for. The care of bonds can be met in this way with as little hardship to the city taxpayers as possible.

A nuisance that has been complained of several times has at last been abated by stopping the overflow of water at the fountain located in the street at the junction of Bank and Truman streets. That spot has been one of the most unsightly in the city because the fountain has continuously overflower and the street has been wet and filthy day and night. There has been a great waste of water there, too, but when water is as abundant as it is now, in the city's reservoir the waste does not trouble anybody. Now the fountain has been regulated and residents in the vicinity of it are disposed to give thanks for the abatement of the nuisance.

Councilor William C. Fox has stood almost alone in that body in protesting against the rate of taxation in this city, and has repeatedly declared that the tax rate now is almost the highest the city has ever had, and except in times of extraordinary expense to meet obligations that were most unusual, the rate is the highest. The rate the ensuing year will be 26 1-2 mills on the dollar, and when the increased valuation that has been put on property is considered, the rate is the highest the city has known, he declares. He has gone into the matter with care and has expressed his opinion publicly. Mr. Fox objects to the use of back taxes, that is taxes that were overdue and which were not paid during the year for which they were levied, have been used in the payment of current bills. Former City Manager Barlow contradicted some statements of the councilor a few days ago and now the council has made a reply to him. The discussion of taxes is always an interesting one and generally it leads to a more economical administration of the affairs of the city. If the discussion of the matter in and out of the council have that effect now, the taxpayers will be the beneficiaries.

There is a growing opinion that New London citizens should strive to secure the retention of the Groton Iron Works property that is shortly closing or repairing might be continued there in the years to come. The plant is regarded as one of the most modern along the Atlantic coast. It was built and equipped for the construction of ships for the government at the time the country was in war with Germany, therefore is supplied with modern machinery for the construction of vessels. It was sold at auction a week ago for $203,000, notwithstanding the fact that the plant cost Uncle Sam upwards $4,000,000, at the price it brought at auction the understood purpose of the buyer is to demolish the building and dispose of the equipment for the most money he can get for it. In the event that the rate is recognized by the United States district court, it will be effected and New London will lose forever the best ship construction plant it ever had. Whether there is a chance to save the plant for Groton and New London is not known, but it would seem that if an effort were made interest could be aroused to keep the plant away from the junk heap.

Work is being done on Howard street where preparation is being made for the paving of the street and where water and gas connections are being overhauled with a view to avoiding tearing up the street in the future, or after it has been paved. A new bridge is to be put in just north of Hamilton street, displacing the structure that has existed there for many years. That is no small task, as will be realized by any one who views the work.

One of the buses of the Niantic route, owned by Michael Baldelli and operated by Kenneth Clark of 21 Brewer street, collided head on with a trolley car of the Connecticut company on Bank street this evening, although the bus and the trolley car came together with considerable force and both were damaged, the passengers of both escaped injury. Motorman Walter Finney, in charge of the trolley car just escaped a shower of flying glass. The trolley car left the State street terminal at 7.30 o'clock for Ocean Beach and was a few minutes late. In passing through Bank street and at a point near Howard street, the bus was observed approaching from the opposite direction. Just before the bus and trolley car were about to pass Clark changed the course of the bus to the trolley tracks and before Finney could reduce the speed of the car, the bus and trolley car bumped with great force. Three windows of the front vestibule of the trolley car were shattered and the flying glass was sent to the interior of the car. Clark was arrested by Patrolman John Mogan, charged with reckless driving. At the police station Clark explained that he looked around, when a pedestrian called to him from the sidewalk and unconsciously operated the bus to the trolley tracks. Clark will be given a hearing in the police court tomorrow morning.

Movie Beauties

Use these powders—you will revel in them

By Edna Wallace Hopper

I have for years paid $5 per box for my powders—to get the finest in existence. So do most movie beauties. They must have the best.

I started to offer other women my aide to beauty and to youth. But I never thought of powders. I did not dream that such powders as I use could be supplied at modest prices.

But the makers have helped me out. They now supply me these powders under my name at a price which all can pay. I told them that women who use my beauty helps may now get my powders, too.

None so exquisite

These powders are supreme productions, made for those who demand the best without regard to price. They are as fine as vapor, as harmless as dew, and fragrant with my favorite perfume. Most of you have never seen such exquisite powders.

There are two kinds, light and heavy. I use a heavy cold cream powder, with a base like my Youth Cream. It clings and stays. But some like a powder light and fluffy, without the cold cream base. So I had both kinds prepared.

Edna Wallace Hopper's Youth Cream Powder — the heavy, clinging powder—sells for $1. Edna Wallace Hopper's Face Powder—the light and fluffy powder—sells for 50 cents. Both come in three shades—white, flesh, and brunette.

Supplied by all druggists and toilet counters. They also supply my Youth Cream, based on fruits, My Facial Youth—my famous liquid cleanser. My Hair Youth, which brought my luxuriant hair. And my White Youth Clay—the utmost in a facial clay. These are the creations which made me a beauty, and which keep me a beauty at my grand old age. My Beauty Book comes with each.

If you want a matchless powder, so ask for a box of mine. If you want more beauty or perennial youth, the very ways which brought them to me are at your command. Edna Wallace Hopper, 636 Lake Shore Drive, Chicago.

Jimson Weed an Anesthetic.

In prehistoric times, Hunk and other tribes of North American Indians used a substance obtained from the Jimson weed as an anesthetic during surgical operations.

Begin Wrong.

The chief trouble with the husbands who try to put something over on their wives is that they usually begin where the writers of fairy tales leave off.

Women Bankers.

It is interesting to note that women are recognized more frequently in the banking business throughout the West than in the East.

HERE'S WHAT PEOPLE SAY ABOUT TANLAC

"If it had not been for Tanlac I would still be a sick, discouraged woman, for nothing else seemed to do me any good," says Mrs. Edward Gibbs.

All the advertising in the world and all the sales efforts combined could not have made the great success for TANLAC that has been attained, unless this reconstructive tonic possessed merit of the greatest degree. Over 40 Million Bottles of Tanlac have been sold and the demand today is greater than ever before.

That TANLAC possesses merit and has brought relief to hundreds of thousands of persons is attested by the great number of testimonials that have been received by the company from people in every state of the Union and every province of Canada. There are over 100,000 such statements on file with the company, all ringing with sincere praise for TANLAC and what it has accomplished.

Mrs. Edward Gibbs, Lancaster, Pa.—"For 2 years indigestion deprived me of nearly all the pleasure of living. If it had not been for TANLAC I would still be a sick and discouraged woman, for nothing else seemed to do me [illegible]

Mr. [illegible] A. Benson, Seattle, Wash.—"Following an operation my stomach and nerves seemed to give way and I became almost helpless. As a last resort I tried TANLAC. I began to improve from the very first, gained 23 lbs. and today am feeling fine."

O. E. Moore, Kansas City, Mo.: "My stomach seemed to palm me constantly, food seemed to do me no good, I would bloat up with gas, lost my strength, and could not sleep or rest. I was on the down-grade all the time. Tanlac corrected my troubles and put me in excellent shape."

Thomas Lucas, Petersboro, Ontario: "Well, sir, buying TANLAC was the best investment I ever made, for it built up my health and strength to where I have no complaint in the world."

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph E. Kaaks, Detroit, Mich.: "For more than a year our three children, age 2, 4, and 6, had been so peaked and lifeless that we were worried about them. Their stomachs were upset, appetites poor, the color had left their cheeks, their nights were restless and during the day they would just mope around, taking no interest in play or anything else. They began to improve with the first dose of TANLAC, and today there are no more healthy children in Detroit."

Tanlac is for sale by all good druggists. Over 40 million bottles sold. Accept no substitute.

Take Tanlac Vegetable Pills.

MARKET WAS RETROACTIVE

New York, Mar. 28—Prices of industrial stocks continued to yield ground today under the persistent hammering of bear traders. A rally based on short covering which was inspired by the announcement that corn products old stock had been placed on a $10 annual basis, set in towards the close, but not until after the average or 20 leading industrials stocks had established a new low record for the year.

Rails moved up 1 to 3 points in the early trading on buying obviously influenced by the publication of additional favorable February earning statements, particularly by the Northwestern carriers. These gains were materially reduced or cancelled laert when heavy selling developed in Norfolk and Western which sent that stock from 127 to 123. It closed at 124 for a net loss of nearly 3 points.

New low records for the year were established by U. S. Steel common at 97, American Can at 103, Baldwin at 115, and Studebaker at 91 1-4, but all made good recovery from their low prices of the day. Some bad breaks took place in issues for which there is a "thin" market, Buffalo and Susquehanna dropping 30 points to 95, Fisher Body 8 1-4 to 206 1-2, Kelsey Wheel 7 1-4 to 80 3-4 and General Cigar pfd. 8 3-4 to 101 1-4.

Corn Products dropped from 170 1-2 to 161 1-4 and then rallied to 1683-4 on the announcement of the dividend.

Oil shares moved up with rails in the early dealings in further reflection of another decrease in crude oil production, but they fell back with the rest of the list in the selling which engulfed the market soon after the noon hour.

One of the few stocks not affected by the late selling was International Harester which closed at 83 for a net gain of 2 points on the day. South Porto Rican sugar was one of the few other stocks to close at a net gain of a point or more.

The early advance in the rail group was led by Chicago and Northwestern which touched 53 and fell back to 51-1-4, or 1 1-2 above yesterday's close. Call money opened at 4 3-4 per cent and then advanced to 5 where it closed. Time money rates were unchanged, the shorter maturities commanding 4 1-2 per cent and the longer dates 5. Prime Commercial Paper was unchanged at 4 3-4 per cent.

Another sharp gain in Spanish Pesetas to 14.80 cents, a new high record for the year, was the feature of the foreign exchange market. Strength of Spanish exchange is believed to be due to the restrictions imposed by the Spanish government on trading in that currency. Other European rates held firm. Demand sterling ruling around 4.67 cents.

BOND MARKET

New York, Mar. 28—Bond prices held relatively firm in dull trading today, with profit taking interrupting the advance in St. Paul railroad issues. Despite realising sales of the road's 4½ of 1925 and the refunding 4 1-2s, there were "switching" operations into the convertible 4 1-2s which carried these items up to a new peak price for the year at 65.

In the absence of any definite price trend, the principal constructive factor in the investment market was the ready absorption of new bond issues. With subscriptions for the $50,000,000 Western Electric debenture 5s running above $150,000,000, allotments were made on a basis of about 35 per cent. Books were closed almost immediately on the $15,000,000 Cleveland Union Terminal 5s. Offering of these bonds at 97 brought a realignment in the price of a previous issue listed on the stock exchange which had been selling about a point higher.

Inauguration of interest payments on several issues of the $500,000,000 of bonds involved in the Mexican debt agreement had been discounted largely by Mexican obligations, but the government's 4s responded with a fractional gain.

Although price movements for the most part were narrow, a break of 3 points occurred in Norfolk & Western convertible 6s, following a decline in the stock and a sale of Cerro De Pasco 6s was made at a loss of 6 1-2 points.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

Chicago, Mar. 28—Wheat values broke to within a quarter cent of $1.00 a bushel today, with all deliveries reaching a new low record for the season. Reappearance of liquidation on the part of holders of wheat, corn and oats preceded the fresh downturn of prices. Wheat closed unsettled at 3-4c to 1 1-4c net decline, May $100 1-2 to 1.00 5-8 and July $1.03 1-4, with corn 1-2 to 1 13c off, oats 1-2 to 7-8 a 1c lower, and provision svarying from 10 to 12c setback to a gain of 2c.

In contrast with the weakness which later developed, the grain markets early showed a tendency to advance. Predictions of colder weather with rain, had led to a temporary recovery

CURB MARKET

New York, Mar. 28—Reactionary tendencies again prevaled in today's curb market but there was a marked absence of concerted selling pressure. Losses of 1 1-2 to 6 points in Borne & Scrymser, Magnolia Petroleum, Sohr Refining, Standard Oil of Nebraska and Ewan & Finch, reflected a "thin" market for those shares rather than any inherent weakness. Declines in the actie issues such as Mutual, Standard Oil of Indina; Creole Syndicate and Vacuum Oil were held to a point or less, some good gains being recorded by these issues in the early trading.

The outstanding developments in the industrial list was six point gain in Grand Stores, which touched a new high record at 51. Westinghouse Electric new stock dropped back two points and Durant Motors yielded 1-1-4. The radio issues showed only fractional changes.

of position on the part of a number of traders who previously were active sellers but who inferred that adverse weather would bring renewed delay to oats seeding, as well as hinder the movement of corn and wheat. Absence of selling pressure, however, was subsequently less noticeable than apparent deficiency of buying power. Then the lack of any aggressive support for the wheat market was given decided emphasis after midday when word came that Canadian oats were continuing to find a ready outlet in New England. Besides, weakness of the New York stock market and in cotton had a bearish effect on grain.

Only as wheat approached the dollar mark was there much letup in the selling after liquidation here had once got under way. The dollar mark pause in the selling of wheat was also coincident with depression of corn to 75c for May delivery. A price regarded as about even with hogs at $7.50. The first time in a long while that such an equal ratio had been established. Corn fell to the lowest prices touched of late. Oats went under 40 cents for September, a new bottom figure for the crop. Provisions sympathized to some extent with the weakness of grain.

PENDLETON HILL

School closed Friday for the spring vacation.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Johnson were in Norwich Tuesday.

A special meeting of the Ladies' Aid society was held at the home of Mrs. Charles Cottrell Wednesday afternoon. Plans were laid for a birthday social to be held some time next month, the proceeds will be added to the fund for the new world movement. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting. The regular meeting of the society is to be held next Wednesday.

Birdsey Palmer was a business caller in Voluntown Wednesday.

Several flocks of geese have flown north, but there is still considerable snow in this section making it more like winter than spring.

MGR. PALACE, NORWICH, CONN.—The Champlin Stock Co. played my theatre several weeks ago to over 12,000 paid admissions on the week, breaking all records in the history of the theatre. Company and plays are wonderful. Better than most of the $2 and $2.50 attractions on the road. My patrons fairly went wild over their production of "East is West." It's certainly great. You cannot boost this attraction too strong, especially to have your patrons to see "EAST IS WEST."

PINS PRESENTED TO DEACONESSES AT ANNUAL METHODSIT CONFERENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Providence, March 28. The service at 1.30 p. m. Thursday at the N. E. Southern Conference of the Methodist church, was the anniversary of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society. The speaker was the Rev. Fred B. Fisher, D. D., resident bishop of Calcutta, India. Bishop Fisher's address was full of interesting facts, portraying in several word pictures the earnestness often seen in the simple Christian fellowship of the native Indians who have found Christ.

The service at 1.30 p. m. Thursday was the anniversary of the Woman's Home Missionary society. The speaker was Mrs. William B. Oliver, chairman of the migrant work.

The Rural Ministers' association of the conference was to have held its anniversary at 4 p. m., Thursday, Owing however to the inability of the speaker to attend the only part of the program given was the rendering of solos by Donato Colafemina of Woonsocket, R. I., who sang in the Italian language with excellent voice and expression.

The Rural Ministers' Association held a banquet at the supper hour Thursday in the dining hall. There were smoe toast with the following speakers: Rev. W. D. Woodward, Rev. J. Harlow Graham and Rev. C. W. Holmes. The general topic was House to House Evangelism.

The service on Thursday evening was presided over by Rev. Ira W. Le Baron. Rev. R. L. Roberts, Ph. D., offered prayer. The general deaconess board and the board of hospitals and homes were given due recognition. Miss Ethel Y. Glandon, superintendent of the Providence deaconess home, spoke of the work being done in Providence and in Fall River. Dr. D. W. Howells of the general deaconess board was the second speaker.

A special ritualistic service as follows prepared for the occasion, was used while the authorized deaconess pin was distributed to each of the deaconesses of the conference; the hymn, O Master Let Me Walk With Thee; responsive service; consecration hymn, O Teach Me Lord; presentation of the pins; the deaconess hymn of service, We Thank Thee God, Our Father; benediction.

The form used in the presentation was as follows:

This pin is presented to you in the name of the Methodist Episcopal church. It symbolizes your call and commission as a servant of the Lord, Christ. It is a visible expression of the confidence, the church has in you. May you wear it worthily."

The deaconess work was authorized by the general conference in 1888. Beginning with a few women then there are now 2086 deaconesses working under the supervision of the church. Deaconess property has increased until now $16,549,134 is the value of deaconess institutions. In the last ten years the annual increase has averaged $823,900.

Rev. Dr. N. B. Davis of the board of hospitals and homes, Chicago, was the final speaker. He spoke of the close relation of these humanitarian institutions to Christian effort and of the progress which has been made in conquering disease.

In 1888 there were very few humanitarian institutions in Methodism. In 1923 there were 74 hospitals, 36 homes for the aged; 43 homes for children and many other institutions for the care and comfort of those who need them.

Dr. and Mrs. E. V. Hinchcliffe operated a moving picture machine and gave a series of pictures, showing the work being carried on by the deaconess hospital and the Palmer Memorial hospital in Boston.

TEMPERANCE RESOLUTION WAS DEBATED BY METHODISTS

(Special to the Bulletin)

Providence, March 27—The conference was opened this morning with devotional exercises conducted by Bishop Hughes.

Resuming the business session J. W. Claypool was elected Assistant Secretary in place of T. H. Woodward who declined to serve.

A temperance resolution, protesting against the action of the Rhode Island house of representatives on Wednesday in favoring a repeal of the prohibition enforcement act and asking the Rhode Island senate to reverse that action and also asking the legislatures of Connecticut and Massachusetts to support enforcement of law, was presented by J. P. Bartholomew and, after some debate, adopted.

Rev. W. H. Bath was passed in character and, read his report as superintendent of Norwich district.

Rev. R. L. Roberts, Ph.D. was passed in character and read his report as superintendent of the New Bedford district. The report presented by Dr. Roberts was characteristic of him, containing an occasional sparkle of wit but full of facts of fine accomplishment. Perhaps the outstanding accomplishment mentioned was the attainment of self support by the Italian Methodist Episcopal church of Fall River.

The effective elders of the New Bedford and Norwich Districts were passed in character as those of the Providence district had been passed on Wednesday. The bishop also called the roll of those who are appointed to positions other than the pastorate and these were all passed in character.

Charles B. Magee, manager of the Boston branch of the Methodist book concern, was introduced to the conference. In his brief address he said the great concern he represented he declared a dividend this year of $80,000, which, according to the rule of the church, is dedicated to the support of the honored retired ministers of the church. He presented a check for $2,235, as the part belonging to this conference together with a check for $30 from the chartered fund.

At 11 a. m., the order of the day was called for and the work of the committed on conservation and advance was taken up. Bishop Pres B. Fisher of India was introduced by Bishop Hughes and asked by him to preside.

After a brief address by Dr. J. M. Gage, D. D., of Boston, Bishop Fisher presented Rev. Dr. R. E. Diffendorfer as the speaker of the occasion. In his earnest address he presented among other things the following facts. The Methodist Episcopal church recently raised in a single day $750,000 to build up Methodist losses incurred by the earthquake in Japan. The Methodist Episcopal church is the only internationally organized Protestant church in the world. 400,000 copies of the World Service book have been sold. Bishop Fisher on assumed the chair and introduced Rev. Dr. W. B. Davis, corresponding secretary of the board of hospitals and homes who delivered an earnest address portraying some of the ways in which the church has raised $42,000,000 to relieve suffering and to restore those afflicted with disease to health and strength again.

Conference Notes

Rev. F. C. Baker, who has been in charge of the Sunday morning love feast at the Willimantic Camp meeting for the past eight years, will have charge of the conference love feast on Sunday morning.

Rev. William F. Davis, who retired from the effective relationship one year ago, has been residing in Danielson the past year. He supplied the pulpit several Sundays when a change of pastors left the church for a time without a pastor and acquitted himself as usual with great credit. It was under Mr. Davis' pastorate in Danielson, 1899 to 1903, that the present church edifice was erected.

The genial face of Rev. E. J. Ayers of Norwich, an honored and highly respected retired member of the conference, was seen in the audience Thursday morning.

Rev. W. O. Woodward has had a prosperous year in his work at Gales Ferry the past year, during which he has had thirty (30) accessions to church membership. Mr. Woodward will probably be returned to Gales Ferry for another year.

Rev. Augustus W. Kingsley, a former Norwich pastor, is now the third oldest in point of years in the ministry among the members of the conference having been received on trial in 1868. He has been in the retired relation since 1903 and resides in Fall River, Mass. Although he has not been able to breach for some time back he is able to be around and is able to receive his friends, but he is not able to be present at the conference.

ADMIRAL LANMAN'S PAPERS— LETTERS FROM HIS FATHER

Following are two more of the interesting letters received by Admiral Joseph Lanman from his father, Peter Lanman:

Apparently a copy of a letter sent by Peter Lanman to his son, Joseph Lanman's Commanding Officer.

Dear Sir: I have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of your esteemed favor of August 5th and you may be assured, my Dear Sir, that the kind attention to my Son in the hour of affliction I feel duly sensible—he had communicated in his latter to me received some since the friendly interest you have taken in his behalf and for which his Mother-Brothers & Sisters were all duly grateful.

It affords me great pleasure to hear that his conduct on board the Ship meets the approbation of Commodore Biddle & the officers of the Ship and I cannot but hope that his application to the duties which of course devolve upon him in his incipient step in the Navy, may qualify him for promotion in the service. Much depends upon his securing the good will of his superior officers & this cannot be attained without a prompt attention to orders & a knowledge of what belongs to his proper department of duty, (the well known discipline of the U. S. Navy (not second to any in the world) will hardly justify a request from his Mother who prompts me to solicit a friendly admonition to her Son from you. My Dear Sir, should you notice any disposition on his part to a devious course.

If at a future day you should visit Connecticut, it will afford me great pleasure to see you & to thank you personally for your kind attentions

(Unsigned)

(Written by Peter Lanman to his son, Joseph Lanman.)

Norwich, October 15, 1854.

My Dear Son: Your letter of the 12th came to hand yesterday P. M. I thank you for it for it is very pleasant to be remembered by those we love. You mention the short visit to New York of Dear "Be," the truth is, however, that a visit from home by your Sister is a very source of pain to your Father & should not be asked by her friends until there is a change in the character of his complaints of bodily infirmity?

We were all of us rejoiced to hear from Dear David's Babe, that they had some hope of its being restored to them. The child, it seems was suffering from want of good milk and no wonder is, considering the very great knowledge of what an infant requires by the Mother & Q. Mother that that they should let it pass on from stage to stage to a State of almost starvation! We were all very glad to greet the return home of Dear Lady "Be" she was undoubtedly very glad to get home as all quiet and reasonable people should be.

Considering the heart rending account alluded to in your letter Poor Collins must be very much upheld by his confidence in his Captain & the noble Steamer. We were glad to hear of the safety of the Captain and the eleven others who were reported as lost in the wreck.

I notice your fears relating the expected news from the seat of War in the East—to fall in the field of Glory at Sebastropol—is quite another affair for there the wounds are all healed by the high honour of the fall for our Country & there is Glory enough to cover all.

I am pleased to read what you have written concerning the call for Coz. Charles—it is an honour to have the confidence of Mr. Stanton—when you see him again be pleased to say him that I did not make any long mark against him.

With love to all your friends

I am affectionately yours

P. Lanman.

Mrs. L. Dear Be and all the house reciprocate kindest love to all the dear ones of your house.

Thirteenth Birthday Party

A party was given Thursday afternoon from 3 until 6 o'clock, to celebrate the 13th birthday of Emeline Ames Chapman of 62 Cedar street. During the afternoon music was enjoyed with games and refreshments. It was also the birthday of Arthur Peck of 50 Thames street, who was present. The hostess received many fine presents. Those present were Emily D. Hill, Elizabeth Noyes, Dorothy Packer, Francis Chapman from her Sunday school class; Frances Shelly, Mary and Patty Carpelli, Maryett Leone, Lucy and Louise Leone, Alice Barrie, Lucile Hayden, Agnes Kilroy, Ruth Harris, Helen Conboy, Elnor Freeman, Angigene Bellque, Annie Leone, Elizabeth Egliune, Suzie and Marion Leonard.

During the civil war the Capitol basement in Washington did service as a military bakery.

ECHOES FROM THE LODGE ROOMS

FOREIGN WARS VETERANS

That representations, made by a committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars and American War Mothers, which resulted in a nation-wide appeal to President Coolidge to act on the cases of military men confined in federal prisons for crimes committed during the war, are not without foundation, is borne out by the preliminary report of a clemency board appointed by Secretary of War Weeks.

The board stated: "From the appearance, mental attitude, conduct and employment while in confinement, we are impressed in numerous cases, especially those of the first offenders, with the fact that the men had learned their lessons and that further confinement would not improve their condition. They are ready to be placed on parole. In most cases, the prisoners responded in such a manner as to enable us to reach a definite conclusion relative etc cemency. We were also impressed with the advantage of personal interviews with the prisoners, their general appearance and mental attitude, while holding our investigations."

Another point stressed by the veteran's organizations in their plea to the president was concurred in by the army board. Further along in its report to Weeks, was included: "There were also considered at the conference cases in which sentences appeared to be in excess of those adjudged by civil court for like offenses."

Week's previous statement to the press that there were only 10 military prisoners confined in Federal prisons seems hardly substantiated by the report of this board which states that they had investigated in all 535 cases of military prisoners in penitentiaries at Atlanta, Leavenworth, Kansas, alone holds 220 of these men. 240 similiar cases at the federal prison McNeil's Island, Wash., will be reviewed at an early date.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY

Prior to the meeting of Norwich grange, No. 172, in Steiner hall on Wednesday a very pleasing supper was served under the direction of the ways and means committee in charge of Mrs. Beggie Murray and Mrs. Milo R. Waters, with an attendance of about 180.

The business meeting was opened at the usual hour with Worthy Master Arthur W. Avery in the chair. The first and second degrees of the grange were conferred on a class of 18 candidates, the degree team assisting in the work with the drill team and tableaux, the whole making a very impressive ceremony for the candidates.

Guests were present from Plainfield, Seekonk, Stonington and Preston. Before the close of the meeting Worthy Master Hall of Plainfield Grange extended an invitation to the Norwich Grange to attend the meeting of the Plainfield Grange on April 3rd. It is expected that a number of Norwich members will attend the meeting on that date, arrangements to be made later.

DEGREE OF POCAHONTAS

Sebequanash Council, No. 11, met Wednesday evening at 58 Broadway with a full attendance. There was a small amount of business to transact which was quickly disposed of. After the salute to the flag, meeting closed, and all were invited to the dining room, where the table was spread with a very appetizing and enticing lunch. As three of the members birthdays come in March, it was made a triple celebration, each received a number of very handsome as well as useful presents. It was a complete surprise to each as they did not have an idea of what was to take place. The birthday cake with its green icing, green roses and green flags was certainly very pretty. The cake contained various articles as favors and all received one. Although it was an exceedingly disagreeable night, outside, all present enjoyed the evening, to the fullest extent. There are many more good times planned for the future.

EASTERN STAR

There was a good attendance at the fancy work and apron sale conducted by Sachem Chapter, No. 67, Wednesday afternoon in the Odd Fellows building on Main street, also at the supper which was served at 6.30 o'clock. The fancy work sale was in charge of Mrs. Lois Drury and the supper in charge of Mrs. Bush, both being assisted by members of the chapter.

The regular meeting of the chapter was held following the supper in Odd Fellows hall with Worthy Matron D. Louisa Atterbury in the chair. Routine business was transacted and various committee reports were made.

The meeting was the last the chapter will hold in Odd Fellows hall having been granted permission to use the Masonic Temple for future meetings, commencing with the meeting on April 16th.

CATHOLIC LADIES OF COLUMBUS

The postponed business meeting of Mercier Assembly, C. L. of C., was held on Tuesday evening last, with a great number of members present. Several new candidates were balloted upon and routine business was carried on. The meeting was then turned over to the Social Committee for the evening, the chairman of which was Miss Rose Dennis. A splendid musical program was offered, which showed up to advantage some of the talent in the assembly. Rev. William H. Keefe, chaplain of the assembly, addressed the members, reminding them of their duty as members and as good citizens, urging cooperation in all lines. Father Keefe also congratulated the members on all that has been accomplished and expressed his best wishes for the future.

The committee then served refreshments of sandwiches, cake and coffee.

Various members and friends of the assembly have been most kind in donating splendid gifts to the assembly, all of which have been put into place in the rooms in the T. A. B. building.

Such interest is being taken in affairs that it is very likely there will be a large attendance again on next Tuesday when the regular meeting will be held.

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS.

Sedgwick W. R. C. No. 116, met for its regular session Friday afternoon at the Buckingham memorial with the president, Cara P. Burke, in the chair, and the reports of secretary and treasurer were read and accepted. Department general orders No. 8, the last under the present administration, were read. Two applications for membership were presented and there were several visitors. The members were reminded of the sewing society meeting next Thursday, and of the old folks' concert on Friday evening. The meeting closed in the usual form with salute to the flag and singing America.

ODD FELOWS

There was an attendance of over 200 at the meeting and entertainment which followed the meeting of Bushtucket lodge, No. 37, Tuesday evening at Odd Fellows Hall on Main street. The business session was short for the evening and was conducted by Noble Grand Walter Kelly.

Following the meeting, The Dentist's Clerk, or Pulling Teeth by Steam a farce comedy, was presented by a number of celebrated artists in the membership of the lodge. The comedy was greatly enjoyed and was a credit to the members of the cast and A. H. Perry and Harry M. Howard, members of the entertaining committee, under whose direction the play was staged.

The members of the cast in order of their appearance were: Dr. Puff, the Dentist, Edward Kinney, late of Lillian Russell's Theatre N. Y.; Julius, the dentist's clerk in want of a position; Mr. Lamol, loaned through the courtesy of Robert O. Harvin company N. Y.; Bobbie Paul Collins Jr., Katie the Lady Clare Ver de Ver, Clarence D. Chapman, loaned by the Zeigfield Follies by courtesy of Florence Zeigfield; Henry Pumpkin of Damaskota, Me., John J. Parsons; Mike O'Galligan of Humpyourself County, Ireland, Myron Ladd; Hans Donnerwetter of Sausaginyer County, Germany, A. H. Perry.

Following the entertainment members and guests adjourned to the banquet hall where Swahn's Orchestra rendered a pleasing program. The grand march was led by Henry Pumpkin and Lady Ver de Ver in costume and from 9.30 until 11 o'clock dancing was enjoyed.

The evening was voted a success and more programs of similar nature are being planned for later months.

EAGLES

Winners in the pinochle play at the Eagles home Thursday evening were as follows: John Hawkins, first; William R. Hastedt, second; Henry Clement, third; John Ledrich, fourth.

The players of the club are getting ready for the final go with the Moose next Friday evening and it is expected that the club players will come out of the series with the long end of the score.

LADIES AUXILIARY, A. O. H

The millinery class of Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H. Division 1 met on Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. James Fox of Prospect street. Considerable work was done after which a social time was enjoyed and refreshments served by the hostess.

The next meeting of the class will be held Thursday evening April 3rd at the home of Mrs. Chester Ryan on Central avenue.

FORESTERS OF AMERICA

The attendance was very large at the quarterly meeting of Court City of Norwich, No. 62, last Tuesday evening, when Chief Ranger Maurice D. Looby presided. Several communications were read from both the supreme and grand courts relative to the condition of the order and a request that all courts observe the days that are set aside for observance. The headquarters committee reported progress in their work and promised a full and complete report very soon. Four candidates were put through the mysteries of Forestry by the degree team and seven applications were read and referred to the investigation committee. The class for the latter part of April promises to be the largest of this season. The business that occupied the attention of the members was the election of delegates to the state convention May 13 and 14 in Norwalk. The local court is privileged to send seven delegates and that number is the largest representation of any court in the state. The following brothers were selected to attend the convention: Maurice D. Looby, F. J. Murtha, Adelard LaFleur, Henry Clement, Edward McVerry, J. R. Portelance and Joseph Callahan. A delegation from Norwich will attend a celebration by Court City of Putnam in Putnam on next Tuesday evening and a number are to go to the "open night" in New London on Wednesday evening, given by the Companions of the Forest.

ODD FELLOWS

There was a large attendance at the meeting of Uncas Lodge, No. 11, held Monday night at Odd Fellows' hall with Noble Grand Herbert Spencer in the chair. The third degree was worked in full form on a class of candidates and after the regular session a social time was enjoyed.

On Monday evening of next week the lodge will celebrate the 81st anniversary of its institution. There is to be a banquet at 6.30 preceding the meeting and it is expected that all members will attend to make the evening one of the best held in many months.

MACCABEES

Norwich members of the W. B. A. of the Maccabees met in joint session Thursday evening at Willimantic with members of Windham Review. Twenty eight members took the trip to Willimantic with Local Commander Clementine Eckstein and there was a large class initiation, 12 from Norwich and 16 from Willimantic being worked by the Windham Review degree team which had charge of the work for the evening.

Commander Florence Brooks of Willimantic had charge of the meeting and District Deputy Emma Hale of Hartford spoke briefly. Following the business session a social hour was enjoyed and refreshments served.

Lenten Services

Lenten services will be held next week at Grace church, Yantic, as follows:

Wednesday, holy communion at 5.30 a. m. Evening prayer at 7.30 p. m.

At St. Andrews church, Greeneville, Wednesday service omitted.

Friday morning prayer omitted. Evening prayer at 7.30.

MOCK WEDDING FEATURE AT MISCELLANEOUS SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower was held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. David Nowick of 25 Slater Ave., in honor of the approaching marriage of her daughter, Lena, to Morris Karp of Hartford. The house was prettily decorated, the color scheme being blue and white. The feature of the evening was a mock marriage. Those participating were Miss Dora Safon as the bride, Miss Leah Addlestone as groom and Miss Marcia Goldblatt as minister, causing much merriment among the guests. During the evening various selections were rendered on the piano and dancing was enjoyed. Refreshments were served by Mrs. Nowick assisted by Mrs. L. Nelkin and Miss Rae Nowick. Many out of town guests were present. The popularity of the future couple was shown by the many beautiful gifts that were received.

ANNOUNCEMENT

After due consideration and owing to circumstances beyond my control, I have decided to still run my store at 134 Main Street, until my lease expires April 1, 1925, and travel on the road evenings as I have in the past 46 years. My idea in selling out my business was to discontinue working 12 hours a day as I have for so many years. Mr. H. B. Beckwith, who was with me for 31 years, is to come back here and manage the store, doing all of the repairing on watches, clocks, jewelry, eye glasses and spectacles. He is a graduate optician and understands the business thoroughly. He has fitted glasses for many years.

I wish to thank the public for their generous patronage during my sale. Goods that were sold at the auction I will stand back of. I shall continue to carry an up-to-date line of new goods such as Diamonds, Watches, Clocks, Cut Glass, Jewelry, Silverware and Optical Goods. All repairing will be done both promptly and thoroughly. I will continue to be in the store as in the past.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY RIVERS OVERFLOWING THEIR BANKS

Allegheny and Monongahela Rivers Left Their Banks in Pittsburgh, Resulting in the Greatest Flood in Ten Years—Scene of Desolation Created in Maryland by Flood Caused by Overflow of Potomac River—Five Persons, Members of an Entire Family, were Drowned.

Pittsburgh, Pa., March 30.—A score of city blocks in the lower sections were inundated and sections for several miles up stream laid waste when both the Allegheny and Monongahela rivers, meeting here to form the Ohio, left their banks today in Pittsburgh's greatest flood in ten years. No loss of life was reported.

Much damage was caused to steel mills located along the river banks. Tracks of both the Baltimore and Ohio and Pittsburgh and Lake Erie railroad were flooded in sections. Many families were forced to leave their homes.

The crest of the flood was reached at 1 o'clock today at 29.2 feet, seven feet above the flood stage. A slow recession began at dusk.

Railroads following the courses of the various rivers were greatly affected. Baltimore and Ohio lines between Pittsburgh and Baltimore were under water at various points and trains were rerouted over the Pennsylvania to Baltimore where they proceeded on their own lines. Traffic was delayed for twenty-four hours over the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie lines through the Monongahela valley and the flooding of the Pittsburgh terminal tracks caused trains to be rerouted at McKeesport to the Baltimore and Ohio tracks and run into Pittsburgh terminal of that road. A landslide occurred on the Monongahela division of the Pennsylvania but was cleared away within a few hours. Thousands of basements in the affected area were flooded and many industrial plants along both Monongahela and Allegheny rivers will be forced to suspend operations until damage wrought by the flood can be repaired. Rowboats and canoes were pressed into service to establish communication between flooded districts and to remove marooned residents.

At McKeesport, where the Youghiogheny river joins the Monongahela, several streets were under six feet of water. At Dravosburg, near McKeesport, six hundred families fled from their homes when the water reached the second floor.

$1,000,000 DAMAGE BY HIGH WINDS IN LOUISIANA

Shreveport, La., March 30.—Approximately $1,000,000 is an estimate of the damage done by high winds which swept the oil fields of Union and Ouachita counties in Arkansas and Haynesville, Claiborne parish, in Louisiana Friday night.

The estimate was made tonight following reports received by local headquarters of oil companies and the figure, it is believed, probably will be increased when advices from other parishes and counties in the north Louisiana-South Arkansas oil and gas district are received.

DAMAGE CAUSED BY POTOMAC RIVER FLOODS

Cumberland, Md., March 30.—The flood waters of Wills creek and the Potomac river were returning to their channels today leaving scenes of desolation in their wake. Only one small section was under water in the city proper and the water was receding rapidly. Ridgely and Dixie, however, two towns on the West Virginia side of the Potomac, remained inundated as was a wide area in the lower Potomac valley.

Great havoc was wrought by the flood but so far as could be learned no casualties resulted. Many miles of railroad tracks were washed away, two big steel bridges and a number of smaller structures were destroyed, while hundreds of buildings and houses were damaged and in some instances washed away.

Preparations were under way for relief work but it was believed that local organizations would be able to handle the situation. Until the plans for relief work are perfected those in need were being cared for by the people of their respective communities.

Railroad traffic in and out of Cumberland was at a standstill. Five Baltimore and Ohio passenger trains, including the Capital Limited, were flood-bound at various points while one Western Maryland train was stranded three miles west of Keyser, West Va. The passengers from that train spent the day at Keyser.

The railroads were the heaviest hit by the flood. The four-span steel bridge of the Western Maryland across the Potomac here was swept away as were other structures at Maple Run and Oakmont and its shops were under three feet of water. In addition to roadbeds and tracks of both Western Maryland and Baltimore and Ohio being destroyed many freight cars were washed away.

The largest damage in Cumberland was the destruction of four miles of newly paved streets. Foundations of many buildings were weakened, plate glass windows broken and much damage to merchandise was caused by flooded basements.

In the territory adjacent to Cumberland the greatest loss was the destruction of the interstate bridge connecting Western Port, Md., and Piedmon, W. Va. That bridge, a structure more than half a mile long, was swept away when the Potomac flooded an area of a mile from each bank.

The only section of Cumberland underwater tonight was the tenement district where the river broke through the Chesapeake and Ohio canal and flooded Wineow street. The water there reached a depth of fifteen feet but had receded to five feet and was falling rapidly.

Three men, who were reported lost when the Western Maryland bridge was washed away, jumped to safety a moment before it went. Three policemen were injured when their automobile overturned while answering an emergency call.

Cumberland was without light or power again tonight, owing to the failure of the power plant during the flood.

Tonight a few of the principal streets were lighted by a local tire manufacturing company but the remainder of the city was in darkness.

Members of Company G of the national guard were assisting the police in patrolling the streets. Every member of the police force has been on duty since Saturday with short rest periods. Food was being served to them by the local Red Cross chapter.

Mayor Thomas W. Koon placed an estimate of $1,000,000 upon the individual property damage in Cumberland and $200,000 upon the damage to the city streets. The damage to railroad property was estimated at another million dollars.

Relief to families flooded out was given by Red Cross and Salvation army. Fifteen families in Cumberland have been provided for and twenty-five other families in Piedmont, W. Va.

FIVE PERSONS DROWNED WHEN TREE WAS UPROOTED

Kitzmiller, Md., March 30. — Five persons, members of an entire family, were drowned yesterday, when a three to which they were clinging was uprooted and swept away by the flood waters of the Potomac river. Two of the bodies were recovered today.

RED CROSS IS READY FOR INSTANT ACTION

Washington, March 30.—A relief organization, similar to the one used effectively during the Dayton flood, has been set up by the Red Cross ready for instant action at any one of the several flood danger points which have developed within the last 24 hours.

B. A. Harlan, of the Washington division of the Red Cross, left this morning for Cumberland, where great damage has been done by the overflow of the Potomac river.

"Red Cross relief and supplies and personnel are already available for use there," officials declared. "Red Cross chapters at Indianapolis, Toledo, Dayton, Columbus, Piedmont and Clarksburg, W. Va., and many points along the flooded Potomac river are in constant touch with national headquarters in Washington and state that they are prepared to afford immediate disasters relief.

"Telegrams received today report the situation in Ohio to be reassuring. Wheeling, Clarksburg and Toledo report "no immediate danger."

On the eve of the storm season, the Red Cross today announced formation of a new mobile disaster relief unit, with more than 100 experienced men and women as aides, directed from national headquarters. Use of airplane facilities of the army, navy and post-office departments has been arranged.

DAUGHERTY TO RUN FOR DELEGATE-AT-LARGE

Atlantic City, N. J., March 30.—Former Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty, stopping here for a few days following his retirement from the cabinet, today intimated that he shall intends to run for delegate-at-large o he republican convention from Ohio, his home state.

A definite statement of his future plans is expected tonight.

Mr. Daugherty spent a quiet day, confining his activities principally to a stroll on the boardwalk and social chats. United States Senators Walter Edge, of New Jersey, and Oscar Underwood, of Alabama, were among the callers but neither saw the former cabinet member. Senator Underwood is stopping at the same hotel.

X-RAY AS SHORT ROAD TO PEACH BLOOM BEATUY

New York, March 30.—The discovery of a short road to peach bloom beauty via the x-ray was announced today by authorities at Beth Israel hospital in the heart of the Lower East Side Ghetta, after a series of experiments with a method recently disclosed before the Eastern Medical Society by Dr. Oscar Levin of this city.

The hospital surgeons claimed the x-ray process was more rapid and less painful than the lately discovered glandular operations for rejuvenation. They warned, however, against its promiscuous adoption by beauty parlors and barber shops because of the danger of burning or cancer infection.

CHURCH IN DANBURY WAS DAMAGED BY LIGHTNING

Danbury, Conn., March 30.—During a severe shower here today lightning struck the spire of St. Peter's R. C. church, stripping off a large number of slate shingles and hurling them several hundred feet. The roof and interior of the church sustained considerable damage.

OBITUARY

Dr. P. A. Baker

Westerville, Ohio, March 30.—Dr. P. A. Baker, 63, for 20 years general superintendent of the National Anti-Saloon league, died at his home here late today. Mr. Baker has been in ill health for almost a year. He recently announced he would present his resignation as general superintendent of the league due to ill health.

His resignation as head of the national organization was to have been handed to the trustees of the organization at a meeting in Indianapolis, April 9, when it was expected a successor would be named.

Death was due to a complication of diseases.

Dr. Purley Albert Baker, general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of America since 1903, began his life's fight against strong drink as soon as he entered the ministry in the eighties. It was in 1896, however, that he became associated with the Anti-Saloon league.

His first pastorate was a Jasper, Ohio, and one of his first converts was a saloonkeeper, whom he persuaded to pour his stock of liquor into the gutter and join the church.

In 1903 he was elected general superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of American, and was elected biennially ever since. In 1919, upon formation of the World League Against Alcoholism, Dr. Baker was made one of its vice presidents.

Lloyds Doing Brisk Rain Insurance

Money Placed Against Rain on More Than 20 Per Cent. of Days of Spring and Summer.

London, March 30.—Lloyd's, the well known brokers, are laying insurance at odds of 3 to 1 that the coming spring will be one of those beautiful seasons of nature which the poets tell about but which the foreigner in England waits in vain to see. Lloyd's is doing a good business among shopkeepers and amusement park operators, insuring against a certain number of days of rain this spring. In some cases they are said to have placed money against rain on more than 20 per cent. of the days of the spring and summer months, something rarely experienced on this moist island.

FUND FOR PUBLICATION OF JEWISH HISTORY

Philadelphia, March 30.—Announcement of the receipt by the Jewish Publication Society of America of a "large sum" for the publication of a history of the Jews was made tonight at the annual meeting of the society. The money was received through the will of Miss Rosetta M. Ulman, of Williamsport, Pa., and it was stated the history would be prepared by Professor Max Margolis, of Dropsie college, and Professor Alexander Marx, of the Jewish Theological Seminary of America.

Simon Miller, of Philadelphia, was elected president of the society and Adolph Ochs, New York, first vice president. Other officers chosen included Henry Fernberger, treasurer, and I. George Dobsevage, secretary.

DECLINES TO PARTICIPATE IN RELIGIOUS DEBATES

New York, March 30—The Rev. Charles Francis Potter, pastor of the West Side Unitarian church, has refused a request from Dr. John Roach Straton, pastor of Calvary Baptist church, his opponent in the series of religious debates, for a new debate on the question of virgin birth, it was announced tonight. Dr. Straton lost a judges' decision about a week ago when he upheld the affirmative of the question that belief in the virgin birth was an essential Christian doctrine.

In making his request Dr. Straton declared two of the judges who voted 2 to 1 against him had been chosen by Mr. Potter and were Universalists and likely to accept the modernist viewpoint. Mr. Potter replied that selection of the judges was agreeable to Dr. Straton before the debate.

MATINEE TIME IN NEW YORK TO BE ADVANCED AN HOUR

New York, March 30.—New York's subways are so jammed at 5 o'clock every week day, when office workers rush for home-bound trains, that matinee performances are to be advanced to help relieve the congestion.

Beginning tomorrow, fifteen theatres of the Times Square section will arrange that afternoon performances end at 4.40 o'clock that matinee-goers may get trains before the office workers jam the subways.

ACQUITTED MAN PREFERS TO SEEP IN JAIL

Bridgeton, N. J., March 30.—Thompson Dickson, aged Bricksboro farmer, acquitted Friday night on a charge of having murdered his fifteen year old daughter, Emma, continues to make his home at the county jail here. Rather than return to his home he chooses to sleep in the cell where for more than two months he calmly awaited trial.

MOB ATTACKED KU KLUX KLANSMEN IN DENVER

Denver, Col., March 30.—Police riot squads were called out early this morning to quell a riot at Ninth and Downing street, in the Capitol Hill district. Approximately 200 men and boys were engaged in the fighting in which several shots were fired. It was reported to police that men distributing hand bills favorable to the Ku Klux Klan were attacked by citizens who are opposed to the organization.

The California raisin crop for this year will amount to 275,000 tons.

To Wed Open Golf Champion

Miss Mary Rice Malone, of Atlanta, Ga., whose engagement to "Bobby" Jones, youthful national open golf champion, was recently announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Norton Malone. The betrothal is a result of a school days romance. Bobby, who was graduated from Harvard—where he won his "H" last month, has become a business man of Atlanta.

Policemen Surprised Bandits in NewYork

Hold Up was Staged in a Harlem Social Organization, Where 26 Members Were Lined Up.

New York, March 30.—Three policemen surprised four bandits in the act of relieving twenty-six members of the White Doves club, a Harlem social organization, of money, watches and jewelry worth $5,000 early today, and arrested the quartet. Then they had to draw their night sticks to fight off the robbers' victims, who made a rush at the disarmed prisoners. The officers got their captives to the street only after a lively scrimmage.

HIRAM JOHNSON AGAIN ATTACKS ADMINISTRATION

Chicago, March 30.—Senator Hiram Johnson, fresh from the scene of his primary victory over President Coolidge in South Dakota, tonight unleashed another verbal blast against the administration, attacking the reasons given by the presidents friends for the dismissal of Attorney General Daugherty and renewing his charge of Lavish expenditures by the Coolidge campaign managers in South Dakota.

"The manner of the dismissal of Daugherty demonstrated that the administration is actuated in the present crisis not by a desire to clean up the nasty mess disclosed at Washington, but wholly by political expediency," he said before leaving for a four-day tour of Michigan. He will return to Illinois Friday, for four meetings in Chicago.

Presidential preferences will be expressed by more than two million voters next week—in Michigan April 7, and Illinois and Nezraska, April 8. Senator Johnson and the president are entered in all.

Contributing to the decision in the Daugherty affair, Senator Johnson suggested, was the result in South Dakota.

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE PRAISES AIR MAIL PILOT

Washington, March 30.—President Coolidge has written a letter of congratulations to Carl B. Eielson, air mail pilot, who, after being lost at night over the wilds of Alaska with no guiding lighs succeeded in completing the first experimental air mail trip between Fairbanks and McGrath.

Eielson made the trip with mail in three hours as compared with 16 to 18 days by dog team, but on his return voyage he lost his way and wandered around in the dark for hours following faintly-traced streams.

A small light brought him down from high altitude once but deciding it was a trapper's cabin, he did not attempt to land fearing to wreck his plane. Further scouting finally disclosed a flare in the distance which turned out to be his home field at Fairbanks, where the town's entire population was awaiting for him.

Eielson's report so thrilled Postmaster-General New that he read it to President Coolidge and his fellow cabinet members.

COMEDIAN FRED STONE MAKES RELIGIOUS SPEECH

New York, Feb. 30—Fred Stone, comedian, today made his first planned public speech for religion since he announced more than a year ago that he had decided to work actively for the church instead of being a passive Christian. He spoke in behalf of a campaign for funds to build the $4,000,000 Broadway temple. Elsie Janis, actress, also spoke briefly and a prayer she wrote in war times was read.

Declaring that religion had enabled him to sing and dance with "an added inspiration," Mr. Stone said he did not consider a career on the stage to be incompatiable with a religious life, and urged that New York city build as many first grade churches as it now has theatres.

The Broadway temple will be housed in a twenty one story building, which will contain a church, an auditorium, a day nursery, playgrounds, gymnasium and swimming pool.

ENGLISH ACTORS ARE TO JOIN AMERICAN EQUITY

New York, March 30.—The Actors' Association of England has joined forces with the Actors' Equity Association of America in its move to establish the "equity shop" in all companies controlled by members of the Producing Managers' Association, it was announced today by Frank Gillmore, executive secretary of the equity association.

"British actors entirely agree and approve of the equity shop policy and will take all steps to safeguard against any blacklegging by British artists," Alfred Lugg, general secretary of the English organization, assured Mr. Gillmore by cable.

Mr. Gillmore said the British cooperation would "effectively kill the move contemplated by certain recalcitrant members of the Producing Managers' Association to fill the theatres left vacant by their proposed lockout of American actors by importing entire foreign companies."

EIGHT MEN INVOLVED IN A LIQUOR RAID

Newport, R. I., March 30.—Philip Harris, of Springfield, Mass., charged with assault on the caretaker of Black Point farm near here with attempt to kill, in the course of a liquor seizure on the farm last week, was released in bail of $8,000 here tonight. George Egan, now at liberty under a like amount of bail, James Burke and Arthur Kirby, all of Springfield, were arrested at the same time on similar charges after the police were notified that eight men had broken into the house, held up the caretaker at gun point, and had loaded two automobile loads of liquor, stored at the farm without the knowledge of the owner.

$100,000 FIRE IN COTTON MILL IN NEW BEDFORD

New Bedford, Mass., March 30.—Damage estimated at $100,000 was caused by a fire of undetermined origin at the plant of the Wamsutta cotton mills here tonight. Seven firemen and two employes of the company were overcome while fighting the blaze. The upper part of the mill was destroyed and a large quantity of finished products ready for shipment on the lower floor was ruined by water.

BRITISH VESSEL RAMMED FIRE ISLAND LIGHTSHIP

Hole Extending to Her Water Line Was Torn in the Port Side of the Lightship—The Damaged Vessel Was Able to Stay Above Water—Coast Guard Cutter Gresham and the Steamer Dorothy Luckenback Went to Her Assistance.

New York, March 30.—A gaping hole that extended to her water line was torn in the port side of the Fire Island lightship today when she was rammed by the British freighter Castilean in a fog. At first it was feared the lightship would sink, and S. O. S. calls sent the steamer Dorothy Luckenbach, the coast guard cutter Gresham and the lighthouse tender Spruce to her assistance, ready to take off the crew of 15 men.

The lightship was able to stay above water, however, and her crew remained on board while the steamer and cutter stood by. Another vessel probably will relieve her while she is repaired. The Castilean apparently was not damaged as she proceeded under her own power to an anchorage in the bay. She probably will dock tomorrow.

NEW FRENCH CABINET TO MAKE DECLARATION

Paris, March 30—(By the A. P.)—The ministerial declaration of the new Poincare government was completed in cabinet council at 4 o'clock this afternoon and was approved and ratified by the council of ministers presided over by President Millerand at Elysee Palace a little later. It will be read in the chamber by the premier at ten o'clock tomorrow morning and in the senate by the vice president of the cabinet, Edmond Lefebvre du Prey, at the same hour.

Premier Poincare will demand that the discussion of the declaration shall be postponed until Tuesday; thus the chamber's approval or disapproval of the new government's policy will not be known until late Tuesday night or perhaps Wednesday.

All groups of the political parties are agreed that M. Poincare's new combination will be received favorably by the house, the only speculation being on the size of his majority. Even his bitterest political opponent, Marcel Cachin, communist, admits that the new cabinet will receive upward of four hundred votes.

The greatest secrecy is being maintained regarding the text of the declaration, but those close to M. Poincare say that the premier's announcement, especially where it refers to foreign policy, is strictly in accordance with the general lines followed by the late cabinet during the past fifteen months.

FINAL WEEK OF ELECTION CAMPAIGN IN ITALY

Rome, March 30—(By the A. P.)—The election campaign is entering upon its final week. Balloting will begin on April 6, and the leaders of fascism are making the best of the short time at their disposal. Four of them spoke in various cities today.

Premier Mussolini was present at Milan where Professor Alberto de Stefani, minister of finance, reviewed, with descriptive figures, the work which the government had accomplished in sixteen months.

The vigor of the campaign is increasing in the towns and cities where the trolley cars carry huge placards and cartoons designed to tell how the fascisti strengthened Italy's financial and international position and restired order.

Up to the present there has been no announcement of any opposition candidates. There have been speeches by those opposed to the government, but no official candidates have appeared.

INCREASE IN CHILD LABOR IN WATERBURY

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, March 20.—The department of labor states that the increase of child labor as performed by persons under 16 years of age greatly increased during the year 1923 as compared to the preceding year.

In Connecticut the cities named show the following increase, New Haven, 44.3 per cent.; Bridgeport 38.0 per per cent.; Waterbury 183 per cent. The latter city is rated as having shown the largest increase of any of the 34 cities in the list.

PUPILS IN NEW YORK MUST STUDY THE CONSTITUTION

New York, March 30.—More than 8,000,000 school children in 28 states are now required by law to study the Constitution under the supervision of 102,500 teachers, the committee on constitutional instruction of the National Security League announced today.

New York, the last state to enter the list, did so last week when Governor Smith signed the Webb-Moore bill requiring the teaching of definite courses on the Constitution in all public schools of the state.

THE INDEPENDENT TO BE PUBLISHED IN BOSTON

New York, March 30.—The Independent, a fortnightly magazine, has been purchased by Rechard L. Danielson, of Groton, Mass., and Christian A. Herter, who until recently was assistant to Secretary Hoover, of the department of commerce and will be published in Boston instead of New York, the owners, announced today. It had been published here for 75 years.

UNSTINTED PRAISE FOR NEGO BARITONE SOLOIST

New York, March 30.—Harry C. Burleigh, negro baritone soloist at St. George's Episcopal church, was described today as "the leading creative genius of his race, as a composer and as an interpreter," by Dr. Karl Reiland, rector who presided at musical services in honor of Burleigh's 30 years of service in the church. The programme was devoted entirely to the soloist's compositions.

IMPROVEMENT IN CONDITION OF SENATOR LA FOLLETTE

Washington, March 30.—Improvement continued today in the condition of Senator La Follette, of Wisconsin, who is ill at his home here with pneumonia.

"He has had a good day and although he has some temperature, his condition shows betterment," his son, Robert M. La Follette, Jr., said.

NEW JERSEY MEN ACQUITTED IN RUM CASE

New York, March 30—Other prosecutions may grow out of the trial which ended late last night with the acquittal of J. Harry Foley, New Jersey superintendent of weights and measures and Herbert I. Katz, a Paterson, N. J., brewer, who were arrested last October on charges of having bribed prohibition enforcement agents in a conspiracy to permit New Jersey breweries to manufacture and sell illegal beer.

Federal Attorney Walter R. Winne, an assistant in the office of United State District Attorney Hayward, said today that he soon would talk with Mr. Hayward about the evidence that was given at the sensational trial.

"I want to see if there is anything to warrant prosecution of anyone else whose name was dragged into the trial," Mr. Winne said.

The jury was out thirteen hours and five minutes before it brought in the acquittal verdict before Federal Judge Mack shortly before midnight Saturday. The verdict was fifteen minutes after Judge Mack had told the jurors that he would look them up over Sunday, to report Monday morning, if they did not arrive at an agreement before midnight.

The testimony brought into the record the names of United States Senators Edwards and Edge, Former Attorney General Daugherty, Former United States Senator Frelinghuysen and a number of New Jersey political leaders of more or less prominence Foley formerly was secretary to Edwards when the latter was governor of New Jersey.

TWO DEATHS IN PISTOL -- DUEL IN PHILADELPHIA

Philadelphia, Pa., March 30—The second death as a result of a pistol battle which grew out of the stealing of an orange from a huckster's cart was reported tonight. Mario Villio died yesterday a few hours after the battle in which four men participated. Tonight's victim was Costine Gentile. The other two participants, Vanpelli Paloni and Samuel Granevese, both of whom were slightly wounded, were arrested and charged with murder. A woman shopper was shot in the leg and several others had narrow escapes. Approximately a dozen shots were fired, Police said.

Ten year old Pasquale Paloni, according to the authorities, was responsible for the trouble. He is alleged to have stolen an orange from Villio's cart and to have received a severe beating from Villio for this act. The fight started when the boy's father took Villio to task. Gentile was said to have rushed to the aid of Villo and Granevese to that of Paloni.

MINNESOTA EXPERIENCED A SEVERE BLIZZARD

St. Paul, Minn., March 30—Amid clearing skies and low temperatures, this section of the northwest today was busy digging itself out of huge snowdrifts, an aftermath of one of the worst storms on record here.

Two deaths had been reported and damage estimated at hundreds of thousands of dollars was caused by the storm. Wire communication and traffic were halted, trolley company officials reporting the worst tie-up in forty years. Only a few street car lines were in operation today.

Railroad traffic out of the twin cities, which was stopped yesterday, was being resumed gradually tonight, and telephone and telegraph companies were at work replacing poles. Damage to communication equipment alone was estimated at several hundred thousand dollars. The snowfall will be worth millions of dollars to farmers of the northwest, according to agricultural experts.

GROWTH OF THE NIGHT CLUB DANCE IN LONDON

London, March 30.—Night dance club life has grown so rapidly in London within the last year that all the art galleries and exhibition rooms of any size have been commandeered for this purpose. The artistic life of London is threatened by this course of events, Sir David Murray, R. A., at the head of a delegation of artists, has represented to the owners of the exhibition halls.

The artists say that the limit was reached when the famous Greenary-Yallery Grosvenor gallery of Gilbert and Sullivan changed over to the club life. Almost all of the large galleries on Piccadilly and Bond street are closed to the arts. The effect has already been noticed in the fact that many of the prominent continental artists no longer exhibit in London.

BOSTON MUSICIANS TO GET DOUBLE PAY FOR RADIO WORK

Boston, March 30.—As a result of complaints by union musicians, a new by-law providing for payment for services in connection with the broadcasting of concerts by radio has been adopted by the Boston Musicians' Protective Association, affiliated with the American Federation of Labor, it was made known today.

The ruling, which would result in the doubling of the pay of many members, was adopted as a result of complaints that some musicians were being worked overtime while others said they had lost their jobs through the broadcasting of concerts.

Amateur burglars entered Windham High school, early Saturday morning and made an unsuccessful attempt to break into the large safe in the office of Principal Egbert A. Case, using a four pound railroad sledge and an ordinary three-eighths bolt as tools. The burglars had pounded off the dial and knob from the safe door when they were interrupted in their work by the arrival of the police. The intruders made their escape, however, and left but a few faint clues.

Apparently the men were making their first attempt at safe robbing. They seemed to be either unafraid or unconscious that the noise they were making with the big four pound hammer could be heard in houses across the street from the school. A resident of Prospect street notified the police of the noise in the vicinity of the school and Officers William Hurley and Roderick Lariviere responded in quick order. The officers were seen approaching the school and the safe-breakers made their getaway, running through the Latin room and jumping to the roof of the boiler room and from there to the ground. Officer Hurley was on that side of the building and in the darkness he made out one of the men running though Kirtlands yard. The officer chased the man and ordered a halt but the burglar proved to be a good runner and outdistanced the officer. Officer Hurley then fired two shots in the direction of the fleeing man but this only served to accelerate his speed.

Principal Case was notified and he came to the school building. It was found that entrance had been made by forcing the door of the boiler house, in the southeast wing of the building. The intruders must have been familiar with the building. They made their way into the office room, which appeared to be the only part of the building disturbed. A compartment in Principal Cases desk had been tampered with, but the lock was not broken. On two previous breaks into the school building the safe had been tampered with but the last time more damage was done that at any time before.

The burglars had not turned on the school lights and were probably working with a flashlight. The safe is an ominous affair and it was pointed out that had the robbers continued their crude safe breaking method for a week they could never have succeeded in opening the door. It happened that the safe did not contain anything of monetary value.

The officers scouted about the city during the remainder of the night. About 1 a. m. a young man was taken in to the police station and quizzed by Lieutenant McLean, but he furnished a good alibi and was released later. Saturday forenoon the police were given a blue cap which was found in the yard of Miss Ada D. Littlefield, at 50 High street. It is believed that the cap was worn by the culprit who was chased by Officer Hurley. The cap is of blue cloth, fairly well worn, size 7 1-2 and for a trademark has a hand holding playing cards with the inscription 'Royal Flush". The police were attempting to locate the store where the cap was purchased Saturday. The four pound chisel hammer which was used by the burglars has a N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. stamp on it.

Ten years ago Willimantic Lodge, No. 1311, B. P. O. E., elected its first exalted ruler, the late Daniel P. Dunn and immediately started out on a program of service to the community, with a view of extending welfare to the people as a whole and to the needy in particular. For this the public has taken a keen interest in the lodge and is pleased to know that the lodge has started negotiations with architects for a new home on the crest of the summit of Elks' park. The building committee from the lodge plans to celebrate the next anniversary of the organization with the completion of the structure. The plans for the new building are elaborate and, true to Elks' principles, everything will be of the best.

The tenth anniversary banquet and entertainment is to be held this (Monday) evening at the state armory on Pleasant street. The Elks' band will give a concert at the Main street approach to the footbridge from 6:30 to 7:30 o'clock. The festivities at the armory will be fore Elks and their guests only, but the concert will be public to allow local people to share to some degree in the celebration.

The case of Mrs. Joseph Marino of Flanders road, Coventry, came up at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon before Judge Frank W. Seymour in the Windsted town court but was further continued, to May 2. Mrs. Marino is out under bonds of $2,500 on charge of reckless driving, as the result of an accident in which Mrs. William Hasaig of Winsted was seriously injured some two weeks ago.

Thomas King of Bridgewater, Mass., was charged in police court Saturday morning with defrauding a restaurant keeper, George Brown, who conducts the Star Lunch room in the basement of the Hanover block on Union street. The amount was $6 and debt alleged by Brown to have been contracted last August. King said that he owed the bill but has told Brown only the day previous that he would make a settlement as soon as possible. Brown said that King paid for some meals and then secured three two-dollar meal tickets. The tickets should have been paid for in advance but King got them on "tick" and when they were used up he had not paid for them. When King was refused credit again he left town. King came back last fall and told Brown that he would pay up some day. When he came to this city again Friday and gave nothing but another promise, Brown brought suit against him.

King said that he had left a dress suit case with Brown as security when he first left this city. Judge Dean found the accused guilty and imposed a fine of $10 and costs amounting to $17.21 which was paid and King was ordered to pay the restaurant bill.

At the concluding session of the conference of high school principals held in the residence hall of Willimantic State Normal school, Dr. A. R. Meredith of Hartford, state commissioner of education delivered an inspiring address on "The Place of Trade Education." Dr. Meredith urged strong cooperation between the principals of non-vocational schools for the furtherance of the trade school movement and he gave some interesting data on the work carried on at this type of school.

The state administrative manual for secondary schools is now complete and will soon be ready for the printer. The conference had been called to revise the material in the manual. It is hoped, by this manual, to have a more uniform method of administration in the high schools throughout Connecticut. Complete eradication of percentage marking in favor of letter symbols has been advocated. Dr. Jesse B. Davis, who was in charge of the session in this city, both this and last year, left Saturday morning for New Haven.

At a round table conference held at the Y. M. C. A. last week the work for young women and girls, the manner in which the other agencies in the community work and the basis for membership, were discussed thoroughly. These are considered the outstanding problems of the local association. The conference was in charge of Herbert W. Huber, chairman of the committee on affiliated agencies. Some thirty-five members were present. Under the Albert B. Smith administration the conference is the first of its kind held here. The general secretary and the directors expressed themselves as highly pleased with the results. Guests of the evening included Harold W. Fiske, general secretary of the Meriden Y" and F. B. Condon, Tolland county secretary. They gave brief, informing talks. As the conference was called strictly for the purpose of discussion, no action was taken.

Thirty-four births were recorded at the office of Town Clerk Frank P. Fenton as having occurred in the town of Windham during February. Of the newscomers twenty were males and fourteen females. Following is the list:

1—Marion Esther, daughter of T. Arthur and Alma J. Josephson Barrows.

Asher Bartlett Holmes, a well business man of the Thread City, will today (Monday) turn the key in the door of his store at No. 72 Church street, to spend the remainder of his life at his home on "The Hill" in company with his wife. Mr. Holmes is 74 and after battling in the whirlpool of business for fifty six years will now enjoy a merited rest. Throughout his life Mr. Holmes has been a school teacher, a fish and oyster dealer, a master painter and paper hanger, and he conducted a store of supplies for the last two lines of business. During the past two generations Mr. Holmes and his men have at some time or other painted over about one-half of the houses in Willimantic besides redecorating the interiors of many churches in this section and doing a large volume of work outside the city. Within forty-five years Mr. Holmes had conducted his business in this city from at least five different locations. For twenty-six years he has conducted a paint supply and wall paper store at 72 Church street in connection with his painting business. The building was formerly known as the Morrison block and is now owned by Minot S. Fryer. Mr. Holmes gave up the contracting work two years ago and spent his time in the store. Mr. Holmes has a host of friends who wish him many years of peace and happiness after his arduous life. Mr. Holmes was born in the town of Griswold, Conn. He was named after his grandfather, Asher Bartlett Holmes. He was graduated from the Griswold grammar school at the age of fifteen and spent three years at the Plainfield Academy. For ten years he was a school teacher in the Griswold school, at Canterbury and for seven terms at Niantic in the town of East Lyme. He learned the painting and paperhanging trade during the school vacations.

In 1851 he established a fish and oyster business in this city in the basement of the Bassett block. Later he moved to the European block across the street in the place now occupied by Dennehey Brothers. Later Mr. Holmes sold his business to Strong & King. There were seven fish dealers in the little borough of Willimantic at that time. Mr. Holmes then entered the painting and paperhanging business. February 5, 1852, he married Helen M. Moredock, of South Coventry. The ceremony was performed by Rev. R. S. Free, of the local Congregational church. In politics Mr. Holmes is a democrat of the Jefferson type. He cast his first vote for Samuel J. Tilden for president. Among some of the town offices which he has held are those of selectman, assessor, and member of the board of relief. He was alderman-at-large for two terms and several terms was a member of the town school committee.

PLAINFIELD

Following an illness of three months with heart disease, Mrs. Elizabeth Palmer Gallup died Wednesday afternoon at her home on Gallup street. During her illness, Mrs. Gallup had been up and about the house some of the time, but for the last eight weeks she was confined in her bed.

Mrs. Gallup was born in Plainfield September 29, 1847, at the old Palmer homestead, where Jason Lathrop now lives. In 1894 she married Herbert A. Gallup. For fifteen years Mr. and Mrs. Gallup lived in Oneco when they moved to Plainfield. She was the daughter of Walter Palmer and Hannah S. Shepard.

Mrs. Gallup had the rare faculty of making friends. Her first interest was in her home, where she never spared herself for the welfare of her family. She was a life-long member of Packer Baptist church, but also a supporter and active worker in the First Congregational church where her children are members. She was especially interested in the recent changes and improvements made at the church, subscribing liberally for the work and in the first bazaar Mrs. Gallup was one of the most active and ardent leaders, working untiringly for the department over which she was in charge. Up to the time of her recent sickness, Mrs. Gallup was the efficient chairman of a committee in the Ladies Aid society.

Mrs. Gallup was kind and sympathetic, ever ready to assist those in need, a kind neighbor and a good friend.

She is survived by a sister, Mrs. Jason P. Lathrop of Plainfield and a brother, Walter Palmer, who has been traveling the last year and is now at Harbor Island, in the Bahamas, and she is survived by three children, John A. Gallup, deacon in the First Congregational church, Helen Palmer Gallup, who has faithfully cared for her mother through all her illness, and Lewis H. Gallup, a student at Plainfield High school. Mrs. Gallup will live on in her children, whom she has left to take up her work.

The funeral services were held at her home on Gallup street Saturday afternoon at two o'clock. Rev. William C. Prentiss, pastor of the First Congregational church officiated. The male quarte: of the church, James Royle, Sidney Mathewson, Christopher Krauss and Ray Green, with Alfred Royle, accompanist, sang two hymns. There was a very large attendance of relatives and friends, many coming from out of town. There were beautiful flowers. The bearers were, Walter Lathrop, Raymond Lathrop, Chas. Dodge, Fred Briggs, Everett Colvin and Robert Dawlye. Burial was in the family lot in Evergreen cemetery, Central Village.

Plainfield swimming team carried off the honors again, Thursday evening, at the South Manchester natatorium, when they defeated the South Manchester team, 37-16. Plainfield's regular team experienced little difficulty in beat the South Manchester boys. Following were the events: 50 yard dash, 100 yard swim, underwater swim, fancy diving, and the six man relay. In the 50 yard dash, Greene took first place, and Ely took third for Plainfield; second place going to South Manchester. Greene placed first with Vincent third in the 100 yard swim. In the underwater swim, Vincent took first place and Devoe third for Plainfield. Greene captured first with Devoe third in the fancy diving, South Manchester taking second place in all these events. The only events in which South Manchester made a first place( was the relay race, teams of six competing. Plainfield's team was as follows: Greene, Vincent, Devoe, Ely, Peterson, Lee.

Another meet with South Manchester will be held at the pool in the Community House Friday, April 11. These meets are for a cup, three meets being held each year, the team winning two meets out of three holding the cup for that year. The meets will be held three years, and the team which succeeds in winning the cup for two of these three years, will be presented the cup, to hold permanently. There are only six candidates out for the team at present, and Captain Ray Greene has expressed a desire for more swimmers.

A meeting of the executive board of the Lincoln club is to be held at the home of the secretary, William F. Hall, this (Monday) evening, to plan for the meeting to be held Friday, April 18.

Mrs. Evelyn Hudson Davidson, of Chicago, formerly of Plainfield, is spending a few days with her mother, Mrs. Davidson, who was a member of the Congregational church choir when she resided in this village, sang a very pleasing solo at the morning service in the church. She leaves in a few days for England, going to London, where Mr. Davidson is at present. She has been cordially welcomed by all her Plainfield friends.

A special sermon for women was preached at Saint Paul's Episcopal church Sunday by the rector, Rev. Thomas M. Melrose.

After an illness of four weeks with Bright's disease, George Tyrer died at his home in Wauregan, at 9.45 Sunday morning. Little hope has been held out for Mr. Tyrer during the past three weeks. Mr. Tyrer was an ex-service man, and many friends in this town are extremely sorrowful at the thought of the passing on of this fine man.

Prohibition officers have been active in this vicinity the past week, several places having been raided. However nothing was found that would warrant the arrest of any persons.

Horace Parkhurst of Jewett City, and N. J. Lyons of Canterbury were callers at the home of Fred Lyons, Sunday afternoon.

The mother of Mrs. Henry Starkweather, Mrs. Louise Fay of New London, suffered a severe shock last week. Mrs. Sarkweather was sent for, and went to New London, returning home later. Little hope is held out for the recovery of Mrs. Fay.

JEWETT CITY

Adelarde Dufresne has been called to Canada by the serious illness of his father, and expects to be absent for a week. Mr. Dufresne is an only child and his mother died several years ago.

Mrs. John T. Stewart and Miss Irene Stewart spent the week end in Norton, Mass., with Mrs. Stewart's sister.

Fire Chief Wakely received a call at 3 a. m. Saturday from Versailles asking him to bring help to fight the fire which was then destroying the school building. With five other men and chemicals he made a record trip in an automobile and the party rendered every assistance possible.

Cleaning, repairing, dyeing of all clothing; steam machine; low prices. Muscatine's, 17 Soule St.—adv.

When Mrs. W. H. Brown entertained the adies' Aid society of the Baptist church at her home Thursday, she was assisted by Mrs. Emma Raney, Mrs. Nelbert Myott, Miss Ida Foster, Mrs. S. P. Brown, Mrs. John Harris and Miss Alice Brown.

Mrs. F. E. Robinson, assisted by Mrs. Wm. Dealtrey and Mrs. R. F. Cheney, was in charge of a food sale held in the Congregational church vestry Saturday, under the auspices of the Ladies' society.

One hundred and sixty-five enjoyed the Community club, Thursday evening and listened to one of the best programmes yet given. The committee in charge was Mr. and Mrs. F. H. P. Clement, Mrs. Idelle Babcock and Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Parks. The programme consisted of community singing, a song by seven pupils of Pachaug school, several songs by Mr. Rush of Norwich, accompanied by Miss Scott, A dialogue by Roland Goldstain and Robert Bitgood, readings by Frances Sweet and Mrs. Ethel King. The address of the evening was by Rev. Alexander H. Abbott of Norwich, his topic being, The Four Grades of Men. It was one of the best addresses given before the club.

Coffee and cake were served by the committee. For the April meeting Mr. and Mrs. Albert Reynold, Miss Ethel Roode, Hubert Miller and Miss Ethel Morgan are the committee.

NEW LONDON HEARS OF TRACK WALKER KILLED BY TRAIN AT MIDWAY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 30.—Daniel Davis of Ledyard is missing from his home, having disappeared Saturday afternoon and today Mrs. Davis requested the New London authorities to assist her in locating her husband. No reason could be assigned by Mrs. Davis for her husband's disappearance.

Davis is described as being 27 years of age and about five feet 11 inches in height, medium build, light hair, blue eyes, and light complexion. When he left home he wore a grey overcoat, corduroy trousers and brown felt hat. He was last seen in a Dodge touring car when he went to 50 Denison avenue, this city, to deliver packages, this being about 6.30 o'clock in the evening. Since then all trace of him has been lost. The police have made inquiries in an effort to determine Davis' whereabouts.

This evening Davis put in an appearance at his home and explained his absence as being due to his assisting a New London man in performing work.

Mrs. Lucia Louisa Stevens Kirkland, 61, widow of Col. Eugene Thorn Kirkland, died suddenly of heart trouble at her former home, 51 Glenwood avenue Saturday morning. Mrs. Kirkland for the past fortnight had been confined to her home. She is survived by two sisters, Misses Amelia and Anna Stevens of New York, annual summer residents in New London. Col. Kirkland died about six months ago. Mrs. Kirkland rose Saturday morning shortly after 8 o'clock and almost immediately suffered a heart attack, being found by her nurse, Mrs. Kirkland was in a condition of extreme weakness and the family physician was summoned. With the arrival of the physician heroic measures were adopted, but Mrs. Kirkland expired about half hour later. She had resided in New London many years, having been a guest at the former Pequot hotel when she visited New London with her parents. She was conspicuous during the world war, lending her aid in many movements connected with the activities of the Red Cross.

An automobile owned by Lieutenant Cope, stationed at the submarine base and operated by J. C. Gilbraith, was in collision with a horse-drawn vehicle on Bank street Saturday. The automobile was damaged.

The annual complaint against youths playing baseball in Williams park has been received by City Manager Holt and as a result of the objection to boys using the park for their favorite summer pastime the police have received instructions to cause the practice to stop.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Jacob M. Linicus, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Linicus of Neptune park to Miss Rose Dillon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah Dillon, of 242 Ocean avenue.

Ensign Thomas B. Congdon, attached to the U. S. S. Wyoming, is spending the week end with his father, Director of Fiance Carey Congdon.

Mrs. Golden of 11 Tenth street, reported to the police Saturday night that Madison Ayers, 13, who had made his home with Mrs. Golden for some time, was missing, having disappeared Saturday afternoon about 3 o'clock. The youth has black hair and dark complexion. When he left home he wore a blue sweater, brown cap and brown trousers.

Miss Catherine Woods of Broad street, Omar Caron of Uncasville, Harold Nash of Groton, Miss May Pont of Stonington, Mrs. Thomas Malley of Bank street, Mrs. Harold Ames and infant daughter, of Lyme, Roland Nash of Groton, Mrs. William Beauchfort and infant daughter of Westerly, Marchelle Paniera of Westerly, Mrs. Hugh Ward of Stafford Springs and Edward Phillips of Hempstead street, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were able to return to their respective homes Saturday.

Henry Gavitt of 8 Pearl street, has had his automobile operator's license returned to him by Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel. The license was suspended several weeks ago when Gavitt's automobile was in collision with another machine in Danielson. Gavitt was fined in the town court of that place for failure to have an operator license in his possession.

Vito Bellucci has sold to John B. McCormick and Mary McCormick two building lots on Jefferson avenue.

Stephen J. Crouch of Ledyard will be in the police court Monday morning for violation of the automobile law in not having an operator's license in his possession. Crouch was discovered by Patrolman Thomas Cavanaugh operating an automobile and not having proper credentials to do so.

Carmon Rietes was found helplessly intoxicated in a Howard street yard, Officer John Sullivan was called to render assistance to Carmon, but when he tried to arouse him John balked, and the officer called the patrol wagon. Skids were used to get the helpless man aboard. That plan succeeded. Carmon told the police court that he was "a little drunk." He said it just happened so because he did not know. As he had never been in the court prior to Saturday, Judge Prince warned him of the danger of drinking the intoxicating liquor that is peddled about nowadays and suspended judgment that Carmon might go to work.

Trout fishermen are anxious for the first day of April to arrive that they may pursue their favorite sport, but they fear that the brooks are so swollen and the water so cold that there will be poor fishing for a few weeks.

A Bank street resident said today that a larger number of drunks were seen on that street Saturday than had been noticed in many days since the prohibition law became effective. It is questioned whether a new source of supply has been established in that section.

William Lipps is confined to his home on Summer street by illness. His condition is somewhat improved but it will be a fortnight before he will be able to return to business.

Since the seizing of four alleged rum-running boats off Watch Hill, Tuesday afternoon, by the crew of the revenue cutter Semiole, boats that have been known to have been operated at regular intervals to the rumfleet lying between Block Island and Montauk Point, have abandoned their trips for liquor, for with the cutter together with the cutters Manhattan and Tampa doing duty in that vicinity also, the chances of small craft being able to secure a load of liquor and make the shore is almost impossible. Operators of craft that have run out of this port and from ports between New London and Providence have undoubtedly decided to remain away from the liquor laden supply ships for the present for since the seizure of the four boats there has been a noticeable absence of fishing boats and craft of that type awaiting cargoes.

State Policeman and Mrs. Bernard Kenerson entertained relatives and friends at their home on Crystal avenue last week to celebrate the fourth anniversary of the wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Kenerson and the birthday of the former. The evening was spent in a social manner, whist being the popular diversion. Among the guests were several members of the state police force stationed at Groton barracks.

John Herschak of Mystic, Mrs. Frank Wilcox of 7 Crest street and Tony Greenwich of Fishers Island, patients at Home Memorial hospital, have been discharged.

Mr. and Mrs. Clayton W. Howard of Waterford have been spending a few days in Springfield, Mass.

Mrs. Stephen R. Wightman has returned to her home on Williams street having spent three weeks in Washington, the guest of Mrs. Billard, wife of Rear Admiral Frederick C. Billard, U. S. C. G., formerly located in New London. Mrs. Wightman was accompanied home by her daughter, Miss Helen Wightman, a student at the Columbia Law school, Washington.

Mr. and Mrs. James E. White and children of Westport, have been the guests of Mr. and Mrs. John Walsh.

The funeral of Edward D. Ruddock, formerly of New London, whose death occurred at Hartford several days ago, was held Friday afternoon at 3.30 o'clock at the First Baptist church. Rev. Chester H. Howe, pastor of the church, conducted the services. The bearers were former associates of Mr. Ruddock when he was employed by the Whiton Machine company. Burial was in Cedar Grove cemetery.

Word was received here from Torrington Friday of the death the previous night at Southern Pines, N. C., of Luther G. Turner, 78, a former president and general manager of the Turner & Seymour manufacturing company. He was stricken with pneumonia while returning from Florida, where he had spent the winter in company with his wife and daughter. Mr. Turner was born in New London. He was associated with the Turner & Seymour company for 48 years and was a director of other industrial and banking institutions. He was a member of the Sons of American Revolution, the Society of Colonial Wars, the Mayflower Society, the Masonic order and various other organizations.

His wife, two daughters and a son survive. The son is in the consular service in Ceylon.

Barney Hanrahan, aged about 40 years, was struck and instantly killed by a New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad train in Midway yard Saturday night while walking the tracks to reach a shack occupied by railroad employes. Hanrahans body was terribly mangled, portions being strewn along the tracks for a considerable distance.

Hanrahan, who was employed as a section track walker, with other members of the section gang, occupied the shack. Shortly after 7 o'clock Hanrahan left the shack to go to a store at Poquonpoc to purchase a supply of groceries. Upon receiving his purchases he started to walk the tracks to the shack. While passing through the yard it is believed that Hanrahan stepped from one of the main tracks to avoid an approaching train and did not hear a train from the opposite direction, being run down and dragged beneath the wheels. About 8.15 o'clock yard workers observed a quantity of groceries strewn along the rails and on investigation they found parts of Hanrahan's body distributed for a distance of at least an eighth of a mile. Medical Examiner Hewes was notified and after inspecting the site of the fatality and obtaining such information as was obtainable, which was meagre, he ordered the remains moved to an undertaking establishment. So far as is known Hanrahan has no relatives in this vicinity.

The grocery and confectionery store 700 Bank street, conducted by Mrs Collino, was entered by thieves Friday night and plunder consisting of two gallons of olive oil, two cans of fish, two cans of cocoa, two cartons of cigarettes and a small quantity of cigars were stolen. No trace of the thieves was obtained.

Patrolman John Hogan was standing at the corner of Bank street and Jefferson avenue about 1 o'clock when two young men informed him that the entrance of the Collino store was opened. With Patrolman John Sullivan the two officers visited the store and after determining that the place had been burglarized, the officers located Mrs. Collino, who ordinarily sleeps in the store, at the home of her daughter on Shaw street. Mrs. Collino went to the store and after determining her loss caused the place to be locked for the remainder of the night. It is believed that entrance to the store was gained by a duplicate key.

Kenneth Clark, 11 Brewer street, operator of one of the busses owned by Michael Baldelli, running between New London and Niantic, was exonerated of the charge of reckless driving in the police court Saturday, by Judge Victor Prince. The bus was in a head-on collision Friday night on Bank street with a trolley car of the Connecticut company. Clark explained that the collision was caused by his attention being diverted from the operation of the car when Barney Kozakow, a Bank street merchant called to him just as the bus had passed Howard street. In looking around in an endeavor to ascertain the reason for Kozakow's call, Clark unconsciously turned the steering wheel so that the bus was operated to the trolley tracks just as the trolley was about to pass. The bus and trolley car were slightly damaged.

Mrs. Gladys Caldrello, 27 Truman street, was arrested Friday night by Patrolman John Hogan, charged with breach of peace by the woman's husband, Tony Caldrello, a public service operator. The accused, however, was not presented in the police court Saturday morning, being discharged as the facts in the case did not warrant the woman's prosecution.

William H. Wetmore was taken into custody Saturday, charged with intoxication. He was released upon furnishing a surety on his bond of $25 for appearance in the police court on Monday morning, Pauline Peck qualifying as surety.

Edward Childs, 19, of Highland Park Detroit, Mich., was arrested Saturday night by Special Agent E. F. Hunter of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad when found loitering in the railroad yard. He was turned over to Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield.

Annie Cuddy was arrested tonight by Patrolmen John Sullivan and Frank Philopena, when the woman was found on Bank street much the worse for indulgence in strong drink. The woman had two male companions and when near the Rialto theatre the men deserted the woman. She used the buildings as a means of support and was on the verge of collapsing when the officers took charge of her. When placed under arrest the Cuddy woman used language that fairly steamed with profanity and was taken to the quarters of Niagara Engine company to await the arrival of the police patrol.

Mrs. Beebe, wife of Police Lieutenant Benjamin Beebe suffered a heart attack late last night and today her condition is serious at her home on School street. During Mrs. Beebe's illness Lieut. Beebe will be absent from his desk at the police station.

The grocery store of Charles W. Clarke, 351 Broad street, was burglarized Saturday night, the burglary being discovered this forenoon when Clark visited the store. The plunder obtained consisted of about $3 taken from a money drawer and about $3 worth of cigarettes. Entrance to the store was gained by smashing a rear

ANNOUNCEMENTS

BREED THEATRE

Yesterday at the Breed theatre, Metro's production of The Fool's Awakening, opened a three day engagement, giving picture goers a treat in a thoroughly entertaining film acted by a well chosen cast under the direction of Harold Shaw.

Harrison Ford plays the leading role of John Briggs who builds up a network of lies and has a hard time living up to his fictitious past. Enid Bennett is the heiress whom he marries without revealing his secret to her, and Mary Alden, her companion who tries to protect her. The rest of the cast moves through the exciting situations and dramatic scenes with a convincing air.

The Tale of Triona, William J. Locke's well known novel, was adapted for the screen by Tom J. Hopkins, who also wrote the continuity. J. J. Hughes was art director and Allan Siegler photographer for The Fool's Awakening.

Other pictures on the bill include the Pathe news and an Educational comedy.

Broadway Theatre

A very diversified program of real Keith vaudeville acts has been arranged for the first half of this week and it promises to eclipse all previous offerings.

Booth Tarkington's done it—written an original story for the screen—and for Tom Meighan at that. It's "Pied Piper Malone," which opened at the Broadway theatre last night, a comedy with the star in the role of Jack Malone, third mate of the S. S. Langland, Captain Clarke in command. George Fawcett plays the captain. Malone is a regular "Pied Piper" to all the kiddie in town. He is "Uncle Jack" to all in this case there's not a girl in every port, only in Oldport, Jack's home town, and that's Patty Thomas, the mayor's daughter. Lois Wilson has this part. Charlie Crosby (Cyril Ring), second officer of the Langland, has always claimed Patty as his girl. There is great rivalry between the two men.

Malone is unjustly accused of the responsibility for the loss of the Langland while under the influence of liquor when on duty. Only his parents, Patty and the children believe in him. He beats up Charlie Crosby, when he finds him urging Captain Clarke to "have another" on him in Oldport's only blind tiger. He brings Clarke back into the good graces of the community, the latter in turn sets Jack aright with townsfolk. Malone gets another vessel for Clarke and sails himself as first officer. Patty is on the dock to see them off. She will be waiting—for Jack when they return.

Strand Theatre

A powerful, smashing story of the love of two women for the same man, feminine types from the melting pot of humanity that helps make up the world, is to be told upon the screen at the Strand theatre today when Evelyn Campbell's sensational magazine novelette, "Yesterday's Wife," opens a week's engagement there.

No love was greater than that of Megan Daye and Gilbert Armes. She was a city girl—with city ways. He was raised on the farm. Their love led to the altar and their happiness knew no bounds when they started a turtle-dove existence. She was his to have and to hold and to keep through life. Megan loved Gilbert devoutly and sincerely. Gilbert loved Megan sincerely and passionately and too well. Suddenly a rift in the sky of blue. Gilbert's crude ways were distasteful at first—then disgusting to Megan. Instead of bridging what was really a lovers' quarrel, there came a breach and then the parting of the ways.

Megan goes her way with her heart full of love for the man. She devotes her time as companion to a wealthy woman. Gilbert falls for a yellow-haired telephone operator. They marry. Fate directs the steps of the newlyweds to reach the same hotel where the former wife is stopping.

The action speeds when another man would marry the ex-wife. The plot almost reaches its climax when the new wife flirts behind her husband's back. She also digs up an old flame in a traveling man, who is some pumpkins as a dancer and is a maniac for motor speed. A business trip separates the newlyweds. The wife decides to have a lark and also plans the disgrace of the first wife.

Things happen quickly after that. There is a tensely dramatic scene in a country roadhouse patronized by a fast set. Then off into the night speeds the second wife and her old sweetie. They are the victims of an accident—speed has exacted its toll.

Palace Theatre.

Charles K. Champlin and his famous company at the Palace all this week. At the present time, while it is almost impossible for the producer of Broadway shows to send them on the road on account of the cost of production, railroad fares and expenses in general, it is pleasing to note the fact that Charles K. Champlin, the well known stock manager, has been able to secure for his annual four such well known Broadway successes as he is offering his patrons and to prove that he was wise in doing this, in every town where his company has played packed houses have been the consequences. The Charles K. Champlin company will appear at the Palace theatre for the whole week commencing today, when will be presented the great New York play entitled "East Is West." On Tuesday will be given "The Love Child," a play full of heart interest, in which Janet Beecher secured such a success on Wednesday the great laughing success, "Twin Beds," one of the funniest and cleanest farces written in years will be presented. On Thursday, one of the most discussed plays of the age, "Why Women Divorce." On Friday "The Woman in Bronze" will be offered. On Saturday, matinee, one of the best of all the mystery comedy dramas, "Captain Applejack," will be played. On Saturday night to keep up with the variety will be presented "That Girl Mickey," a new play to the east, which will be the closing bill. The management assures all attending the performances of "East Is West" today, one of the greatest comedy sensations ever presented on an American stage.

This Week at United Congregational Church.

The Sodalitas will hold its postponed meeting in the church school rooms at quarter of eight, on Monday evening. There will be a business meeting and the second lesson in basketry.

The last of the Union mid-week gatherings will be held at the Central Baptist church, at half past seven on Thursday evening, when Dr. M. A. Honline, of California, will give his final lectures on Bible and Pedagogy.

The Camp Fire will meet at the Community house, at seven o'clock on Friday evening, for hand-craft.

The Philanthea class will hold its regular meeting Friday evening, at eight o'clock, in the United Church School rooms. Mrs. May Young and Miss Ruth Breckenridge will be the hostesses.

The doctor's bill is about the hardest dose the patient has to swallow.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

At twelve o'clock, noon, Saturday at the home of the bride's father, Miss Rose Evelyn Bitgood, daughter of Fred H. Bitgood, was united in marriage with Herman Mendenhall Coulter, elder son of Mrs. C. E. Coulter of Akron, Ohio. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Walter Byron Williams, pastor of the Westfield Congregational Church of Danielson.

Mrs. Coulter is an alumna of Killingly High school and a graduate with the degree of Bachelor of Science, of Connecticut College, at New London. Since graduation from college she has lived at the home of her father on Broad Street.

After graduation from the high school at Seville, Ohio, Mr. Coulter spent two years of special preparation for service in the treasury department of The Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company of Akron, Ohio. He served with that company continuously at Akron and at a branch office in Dallas, Texas, until the entrance of our country into the World War. During the war he spent a year in special service at various training camps.

On his discharge from the army, Mr. Coulter came to Goodyear Cotton Mills at Killingly, where he has remained, serving as cashier and later as Assistant Secretary-Treasurer of that company.

Following a brief trip Mr. and Mrs. Coulter will be at home after May 1st at 70 Broad street.

Malcolm R. Wibberley, Yale graduate, is one who practices modern dairy methods and proves that brains and hard work overcome natural disadvantages.

Without any intention of disparaging the town of Canterbury, it is safe to say that the State of Connecticut has few less promising agricultural sections than the neck of woods where Malcolm R. Wibberley is building up a dairy herd and wresting a living from a one-time abandoned farm. Farm homes are few in that particular district and there's a reason. The land is rough, most of it is forested and the cleared land is cleared only of trees—rock ledges offering insurmountable obstacles to any but the stoutest-hearted farmer.

Any city chap who figures that the hardy spirit of the early pioneers is dead, should visit the Wibberley farm. The road is long and rough and narrow and the farm itself is anything but pretentious. On this farm, however, Mr. and Mrs. Wibberley are making a living for themselves and five small children; and the dairy herd, although small, is a distinct credit to Windham County's dairy industry.

Mr. Wibberley didn't start out to be a farmer. He was born on the farm he now operates, but he early decided that he wanted to be an electrical engineer and went to Yale where he was graduated in the electrical course. After graduation he went to Pittsburgh, Pa., where he worked for a year in the big Westinghouse plant. Life in the city didn't appeal to him and in spite of the unpromising outlook on the home farm he longed for the country. He returned to the farm for one season's work, then spent a year in work on a dairy and fruit farm in New Hampshire. Then, in the spring of 1916 he entered the employ of E. A. Moore, one of the leading breeders of Guernsey cattle in the country, as superintendent of Moorland Farm, near New Britain.

It was at the Moore farm that he discovered just where the big mistake had been made on the home farm—it was in the quality of the dairy cows. He became interested in purebred cattle and studied them intensely. His father had abandoned the home place and was ready to turn it over to the son. After three years with Mr. Moore, Mr. Wibberley felt sufficiently confident to make an attempt at running a farm of his own.

A good testimonial of the quality of his work for Mr. Moore, at New Britain, is the fact that when he embarked on the new enterprise his former employer made him a present of an imported Guernsey bull. With this bull and five grade cows he started his dairy business on the home farm which had not been worked for several years. As the former fertility of the land had been depleted, pasture largely grown up to brush, buildings ill-fitted for dairying of a high standard, and capital very limited, it was a formidable venture.

From the first he has planned gradually to work into purebreds. Therefore, as soon as an opportunity came, Wibberley bought a registered Guernsey cow. She now has two daughters by the imported bull, so with good luck Wibberley should in a few years be well along the way toward the goal of a purebred herd. But most of the calves raised have been grades, and their improvement over their dams is striking proof of the value of well selected, purebred bulls. The Windham County Farmers' Association is now engaged in a campaign to replace all scrub bulls in the county with good purebreds. A visit to the Wibberley farm ought to convince the most skeptical of the importance of this movement.

Milk from his present herd of eight cows is separated on the farm and the cream is sold at Plainfield at 50 cents a quart. Surplus skim milk finds a sale among neighbors who keep hens. Milk and butterfat records are kept and heifer calves to be raised are selected so far as possible from the best producing cows. The herd is now averaging somewhat over 250 pounds of butterfat annually. This, the owner admits, is less than the breeding of the cows would justify him in expecting, but the reason is to be found in the quantity of the feed. Even the best of dairy cows must have a liberal ration of a high class of roughage as well as a generous feed of grain, to give their maximum results. As he is enabled to increase the quality of his roughage he expects to get better production from his cows. He now has a good start with alfalfa and alsike clover and has put up a silo the past year.

PUTNAM

A husband who disappeared several weeks ago, a mother who became mentally deranged and was committed to the State Hospital at Norwich, Saturday afternoon, leaving five children destitute, was one of the saddest cases that has ever come before a juvenile session of the Putnam city court. Three of the children were committed to the Windham County Temporary Home at Putnam and the two youngest were put in a good private family in the town of Woodstock.

The case came to the attention of the Child Welfare Association. The husband, Charles Prsetacznic, being thrown out of work, left the city and his whereabouts could not be ascertained. The mother struggled to keep together the family of five, the youngest two and the oldest ten years of age. She weakened under the strain and finally the condition of the family was brought to the attention of the authorities, it was found that the mother had become deranged and unfit to care for her little flock and that the children were not getting the care and attention necessary for their welfare.

After an examination the mother was committed. This left the children to be disposed of. A special session of the court was held in chambers Saturday afternoon. Five bright little ones appeared, one being carried in the arms of the captain of police, a little boy who won the sympathy of all. It was a proceeding that touched the hearts of all, but the children did not cry and made no trouble, apparently feeling that they were in the hands of friends.

A stranger in Putnam Saturday wanted to know if it was election day or if there was a circus parade scheduled to pass through the business section. When asked why he thought something out of the ordinary was happening, or about to happen, he replied: "Look at all of the men standing about the street."

While the observer noted a fact, the sight has become so common a one to Putnam citizens that it causes no comment. As far as known no a textile mill in Putnam was in operation Saturday. The few mills that are running are on short time and Saturday is a holiday for all. Never in the memory of the oldest inhabitant have there been so many unemployed in Putnam as at present. Before the situation is relieved a readjustment will be necessary, but this will soon take place, it is hoped and believed.

The current issue of The Journal of Social Forces contains an article, "William Jennings Bryan As a Social Force" written by Malcolm M. Willey and Stuart A. Rice, members of the faculty at Dartmouth college. Mr. Willey is a graduate of Putnam high school, and with Mrs. Willey passed the week end with relatives in Putnam. The current issue of The Psychoanalytic Review contains an article by Mr. Willey, "Sleep as an Escape Mechanism."

Sidney C. Hayward of Hartford, a sophomore at Dartmouth college spent the week-end with Putnam friends.

The annual meeting of the Arcanum Club and the Arcanum Club association, were held in the club rooms on South Main street, Friday evening. The membership was well represented. Officers of the club were elected as follows: President, James F. Rafferty; vice president, A. F. Raistrick; secretary and treasurer, Lucius P. Merriam; executive committee, Thomas Rawley, chairman, J. Otis Fox, Frederick M. Prince, Richard Whalen, Ellsworth L. Kelley; collector, George Lewis, Jr. John Slattery was elected a trustees of the association for a five year term. Following the business session chicken sandwiches, cake and coffee was served.

At a special meeting of the town school committee Ralph C. Jenkins, superintendent of schools, was re-elected for two years with an increase in salary of $100 each year. His salary for next year will be $3500, the maximum ever paid a superintendent, and the following year, $3600. Mr. Jenkins came to Putnam in October 1922 to succeed E. C. Witham and has given excellent satisfaction both to the members of the school board and is popular with teachers and the public.

Mr. Jenkins is forced to vacate the house he now occupies. The matter of securing a suitable residence is a perplexing one as there are few empty ones in the city. If it were possible under the law the town might well afford to buy a home to be used by school superintendents as an extra inducement to hold such a man as Mr. Jenkins up to attract other good superintendents, should Mr. Jenkins, for any reason, leave Putnam.

The father of the twelve year old girl who accused Augustus Warren, 54, of making a criminal assault upon her, Warren being held under $5,000 bonds for trial in the superior court, has a broken bone in his right thumb. The fracture is the result of a blow which the father struck Warren as the father was leaving the hearing, Friday evening. The man lost his temper and his head and, had it not been for interference on the part of police and court officials Warren might have received a severe beating. A short time after the man struck the blow his thumb began to pain him and to swell up. He visited a doctor, who found a bone broken.

Hyde Smith, head of the S-A Amusement company, running a chain of theatres in Putnam, Danielson and Rockville, is minus a twelfth of a dozen Cadillac coupes. The car was stolen from Mr. Smith in Webster, Friday night and he reported it to the Putnam police Saturday.

Mr. Smith lives in Worcester. He was on his way to Putnam Friday evening and when he arrived in Webster parked his car, first locking it. He returned to the place where he left the car ten minutes later and found that it had disappeared. Mr. Smith notified the Webster police of his loss and then called up his associate, Jacob Alpert, in Putnam, who drove to Webster and brought Mr. Smith to this city.

The Grosvenordale Company's mill in the village of Grosvenordale resumes operations this (Monday) morning after being shut down for a week. This mill is the smaller of the company's two mills, the larger mill being at North Grosvenordale.

There is a dispute on among the employes of the Putnam Light and Power Company. The dispute will be settled Tuesday night when the "Hole Diggins" will meet the "Pencil and Pen Pushers". The employes doing the overall and jumper work believe that they can knock down more pine per string than can their white-collar brothers. The first bowling match between teams composed of employes is attracting considerable interest.

The treasury of the Athletic Association of Putnam high school is in better condition by a substantial sum from the presentation of a three act comedy, "Deacon Dubb" given in the school auditorium, Friday evening, by Abington citizens. The amateurs had previously presented the comedy and this enhanced the smoothness with which the plot was unfolded in Putnam, the performance was well received by an audience that filled the hall. Pupils of the school sold tickets in advance and there was a good sale at the box office the night of the performance.

Boxing fans of this city are glad to learn that Jerry Bernard has been reinstated by the state boxing commission. Bernard has been seen in one ring performance and he gave a good account of himself. He was down on the last card arranged at Danielson and did not show up at the ringside. His default was occasion of his immediate suspension by the boxing commission being present at the bout. Bernard has explained to the commissioners that just before the date set for the bout he developed an ulcerated tooth while on a visit out of the state. No one would expect a boy with an ulcerated molar to take a chance of getting a crack on the jaw. The boxing commission accepted Jerry's explanation and he is now eligible for further performances and will probably appear at the next meet in Danielson. Putnam now has two boys in whom it is interested, Bernard and Young Breault, who substituted for Bernard.

Colonel Henry J. Thayer, one of Putnam's prominent citizens and a member of the town school committee, has just rounded out 52 years of mill office work, all but eight years being consecutive years of employment in one Putnam mill.

Colonel Thayer, who has been paymaster of the Manhasset Manufacturing Company since that company took over the old Monohansett mill, was born in Woonsocket. His first employment was in a mill office in Blackstone where he remained for eight years before coming to Putnam to enter the office of the Monohansett mill. He remained with this company and its successor and is one of the few employes still working for the company, now in the hands of receivers.

In his younger days Colonel Thayer joined the local military company, Company G., C. N. G., and through his interest and application to his soldier duties rose to the rank of captain of the company and later became colonel of the regiment.

Colonel Thayer is still active and would pass for a man much younger than his actual years. He is genial and affable, attracts friends, and is known to all citizens of Putnam. For years he has been a member of the school committee and is regular in his attendance at meetings of the board. His favorite sport is golf and he may be found on the links at the Putnam country club during his spare time.

WESTERLY

A social session of the third district court was held Saturday afternoon before acting Judge M. Walter Flynn, when two arraignments were made. Frank Coon, of Potter Hill, arrested by Patrolman George Champlin on Canal street, was charged with possessing intoxicating liquors contrary to prohibition laws. He was found guilty and fined $25 and costs, amounting to $28.80, which was paid.

The second arraignment, also on a violation of prohibition laws, was that of Hugh F. King, who was arrested by Patrolman Michael Curtin. He was found guilty and fined $25 and costs, amounting to $28.80, which he paid and was discharged.

While returning in a Ford touring car, Saturday night, to their home in Ashaway, Elwood Eccleston and William Webber ran off the road at the top of Vincent Cart Hill on High street and struck a telephone pole. The automobile was wrecked, the men being thrown out and under the machine. Both men were unconscious and the report spread that they were killed. Police Officers Fred T. Mitchell and George Champlin were summoned. On their arrival a crowd was found gathered and medical attention was given to Eccleston by Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, the patient being found practically uninjured and later was sent to his home in Ashaway. Webber was attended by Dr. Charles Crandall, being taken to the doctor's office in Westerly, where he was treated for cuts and bruises, before being taken to his Ashaway home.

Following the bridge tournament play in the four-club bridge tournament series, the standing of the teams was announced as follows: Hook & Ladder Co., Mystic, 75,124 plus; Masonic club, Westerly, 54,294 plus; Cycle club, Westerly, 23.21 minus; Mistuxet club, Stonington, 10,650 minus. To make up for a date omitted, Thursday, April 17, has been added to the schedule, which was to close on April 10th.

Miss Lillian Gleason of Norwich has been a visitor the past week with Mrs. William Alexander, in Westerly.

Miss Margaret W. Grant, agent at the Putnam station of the New Haven road, was the guest Sunday of her sisters, Miss Elizabeth and Sarah J. Grant, at their home in Westerly.

A second patriotic affair at the annual state conference of the Daughters of the American Revolution, held at Providence Biltmore with mid-day luncheon was that the past week in which Mrs. Samuel H. Davis of Westerly, a former state regent and a past regent of Phoebe Green Ward chapter of Westerly, gave an address, her subject being "Citizenship Obligations."

John H. Sutcliffe of the West Side was an automobile visitor in Boston Sunday, going to visit his sister in Saugus, Mass., to return with his mother, Mrs. Thomas Sutcliffe, to their home in Pawcatuck.

Yello Taxi No. 1, similar to those in use in other cities, made its first appearance on the streets of Westerly, Saturday evening. Local patrons of jitneys will now have an opportunity to compare distances traveled with prices charged.

The burial of Mrs. Hannah Floyd, 84, who died in New York Wednesday, daughter of Miner and Mary Slack Noyes, took place Saturday afternoon at the Slack burial lot, in Wequetequock. The services were conducted by Rev. W. F. Williams of Stonington. Mrs. Floyd formerly reside din the house now occupied by Harry B. Mitchell, Wequetequock, which was built by her husband.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sisson of Westerly were business callers in Boston Saturday.

William B. Senior of the West Side was in Providence on business Saturday.

Harold D. Campbell, formerly of Norwich, passed the week end at his home in Groton, returning to Westerly Saturday night.

J. Frank Champlin arrived in Westerly from New York Friday to visit and inspect alterations being made at the Ocean House, Watch Hill. He has returned to New York, expecting to visit Watch Hill again in two weeks.

Henry C. Rowe of New Haven, after a visit at his winter home "Sunny Pines," Daytona, Florida, arrived in Westerly Saturday noon to take up his residence for the summer season at "Shawondasee," Watch Hill.

C. Edwin Gove, Jr., of Beverly, Mass., was a week end visitor in Westerly and Watch Hill, where he was formerly engaged in building and contracting business. Mr. Gove has returned to Boston, where he is now interested in the fish business.

James Fleming and Stephen Perrin, both of Boston, were interested attendants at the Battery E-Stafford Springs K. of C. basketball game Saturday evening, at the state armory on Dixon street.

Constance Rathbun, a first year student at Wellesley college, arrived home Friday to spend her vacation with her parents in Westerly.

Robarts Barber, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Barber of the West Side, is home for the spring vacation at Phillips Andover academy, Andover, Mass.

Charles E. Redford of New London, formerly of Westerly, was the week end guest of Westerly friends.

Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the home of the groom's mother, 10 Newton street, Miss Mildred Abigail Stratton of Meriden, became the wife of Harry Aylsworth Heflin, of Westerly, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick W. Heflin. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. Edgar Tobin, rector of Christ Episcopal church, the double ring service being used. The bride, the daughter of the late Albert E. and Anna Keyes Stratton, was given in marriage by her brother, William Stratton of Meriden. She was attended by her sister, Miss Alberta Stratton as bridesmaid; the best man being A. M. Carrier of Middletown. The house was decorated with palms, carnations and flowers. The bride carried a shower bouquet of sweet peas. Following the wedding a reception was held and supper was served. A short automobile trip will be taken and on their return Mr. and Mrs. Heflin will make their home at 10 Newton avenue. The groom has been an artist in the employ of Datson & Thomas for some time and the bride a stenographer for the Connecticut Telephone company at Meriden.

Pleasant View Fire Chief, Charles M. Lamb and First Assistant Engineer Albert F. Kinney were called into service at Pleasant View Sunday. A party from Stonington visiting their cottage near Benson avenue attempted to burn some rubbish in the back yard and in spite of the damp condition the blaze got away from them, setting fire to the short beach grass. The timely arrival of the firemen prevented the flames from destroying property but several acres of ground were burned over.

The re-organization of the Westerly Fire Police was begun last Monday night and will be carried toward completion this (Monday) night. The force is at present made up as follows: Captain, Shelby G. Nicholas; clerk, William R. Wilcox; treasurer, Ralph Spargo. It is planned to hold meetings on Monday night at the hose house and the present membership of eight or ten will be augmented from time to time, as the membership is approved.

March 22—Doenico DeCristofaro of Bristol, R. I., to Giacomo Pucci, et ux, three lots, Nos. 59, 60 and 61.

March 27—Tristam D. Babcock, et al., to William A. Wilcox, a certain lot or parcel of land with buildings and improvements on the west side of Main street and the south side of Commerce street.

Lillian Washburn of Livermore, Me., to Horace E. Burdick, et ux., a lot or parcel of land with buildings and improvements on the west side of Sunset avenue, Watch Hill.

March 28—John L. Breen, et al., to Roger F. Dunham, a lot or parcel of land on theh north side of Pasadena avenue, Watch Hill.

John L. Breen and Thomas L. Breen to Henry B. Joy of Grosse Point Farm, Detroit, Mich., a lot or parcel of land on the south side of Pawcatuck river and north side of Pasadena avenue, Watch Hill.

March 29—Joseph H. Macomber to Paul Uzzi and wife, a lot or parcel of land on the east side of High street.

Mr. and Mrs. T. D. Thatcher of New York arrived in Westerly Sunday and visited Watch Hill to inspect their cottage, "Intermere," Niantic avenue, returning to the city Sunday afternoon.

Edward Cundall, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. T. Cundall, returned to Wentworth institute, Boston, Sunday night, after a vacation with his parents in Pawcatuck.

Mrs. Isaac F. Smith and son Gordon W. of Westerly were guests of friends in Providence over the week end.

Miss Bernice E. Whipple, a teacher in the schools of New York, has been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. Whipple, in Westerly for a vacation.

Mrs. Mary Honor Vare Burdick, of Dansville, N. Y., 73, who die dat Orlando, Fla., March 21st, was a sister of the late Enoch Vars, of Bradford.

LEONARD BRIDGE

A surprise party was given Alfred Hughes Friday evening the 21st by neighbors in honor of his birthday. After a social hour a lunch of sandwiches, cake, coffee and chocolate candy was served. There were two birthday cakes, one bearing inscription, "Happy Birthday," and the other "Birthday Greetings 1868-1924," with ornamental frosting. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Elmer N. Geer, Mr. and Mrs. Leon Choquette, Mr. and Mrs. David Walsh and Kenneth L. Cummings with Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Hughes.

Mrs. Elmer N. Geer entertained a few friends from the neighborhood at her home Wednesday afternoon. Those present were Mrs. Julia Geer, Mrs. James Choquette, Mrs. Charles M. Geer, Mrs. Kenneth Cummings, Mrs. Leon Choquette and little son, Mrs. Elmer Geer and daughter, Miss Janice Geer. The guests carried their sewing and a social time was spent.

Miss Clara Gillett has been substituting at Goshen Hill school the past week, as Mrs. Calvin McCal the regular teacher has been caring for her husband, who is ill with quinsy.

Alfred Hughes went Wednesday to Providence whence he will go to New York city on a busines trip.

Alex Woron cut his foot badly on Wednesday while peeling ties with a broad axe. He was carried to his home by Mr. Rich who lives near where Mr. Woron was at work. A Williamantic physician was summoned to dress the injured member.

Alfred Hughes has a pair of choice White Wyandotte pullets, one of which laid on Mr. Hughes' birthday, an egg which measured eight inches around the long way and seven inches around the other way and weighed just four ounces. When broken the egg had two perfect yolks.

Mr. and Mrs. David Walsh and S. Nadel were in Norwich Monday.

GOSHEN

Many new summer visitors from the sunny southland were noted here last week. Just at evening two flocks of wild geese, numbering 100 strong were seen at a high altitude, traveling directly north.

A chopping bee is the anticipation here this week when a year's supply of firewood is to be secured for the church.

A new shingle roof was being put on one of the oldest houses in Goshen last week on what was once called the Henry Peckham place, now owned by E. H. McCall, on Goshen Hill. Two things worthy of note about this historic homestead farm house, was the heavy frame construction and it was built on the points of the compass, facing north, east, south and west. The large chimney, which has stood the test of two centuries, built before the day of the spirt level, stands as true as a die today, and the shadow it casts is almost as good as a time piece on a clear day, telling the noon hour.

Mrs. J. A. Randall was a visitor in Lisbon Monday.

The snow storm, called the "maple sugar snow" in northern New England, that came Wednesday made it seem like winter once more. The snow made good sledding around the farm Thursday.

A. J. Randall was a visitor in Natick, Mass., Thursday.

THE JOHNSON CANDIDACY

Johnson won in South Dakota. It was that long anticipated contest between the candidacies of President Coolidge and Senator Johnson under the conditions that exist in South Dakota today and where the senator from California had given the impression that he would be the victory by a smashing vote. He won out by so small a vote that it aroused resentment in his own expressions. It caused him to charge that the other side used unfair means and all those customary things that are said by those who lose hard.

Had Johnson lost South Dakota no more would have been heard of his campaign. As it is he squeezed through by so small a margin that the loss of the state's delegation would not have been much more serious. It is quite evident, even in South Dakota, that Senator Johnson isn't making the appeal that he had been imagining and claiming that he would, while it does appear that President Coolidge, even though he lost, stands strong in a section where it had been felt that he would develop weakness if anywhere.

But even if Senator Johnson still clings to the belief that there is a demand for him as a presidential candidate, and believes that he can get the coveted nomination at Cleveland he has but to turn to the views of those who have been giving him more or less support to get a positive and convincing opinion otherwise.

One of the outstanding figures mentioned as backing the Johnson campaign is William Wrigley, Jr. Despite the fact that he had previously been considered as wavering in his allegiance, he nevertheless maintained it until after the South Dakota disclosure. Thereafter he was convinced and he was not backward in admitting that while favorably disposed to Senator Johnson he was no longer backing his campaign. He saw the futility of it. North Dakota was an eye opener and South Dakota finished it. How long will it take now for the senator from California to come to the same view of the situation?

THE LEVIATHAN'S TRIPS

When the shipping board recently offered a long list of vessels for sale it was stated that the Leviathan, the leader of the fleet, was not excluded. This means that the Leviathan is on the market the same as the others, and if the price offered for it is satisfactory it will be disposed of. It isn't to be inferred from this that the big ship is to be given away, and it may be a long time before anything approaching an adequate offer will be received, but the ship is nevertheless on the market.

In this connection it is interesting to note that some figures have just been made public concerning the profit and loss account of the several trips that the big liner made last year, especially when it is shown that as the result of eight trips across the Atlantic there was incurred a loss of over $70,000, solely on a basis of operations. There were three trips that showed a profit of $273,000 but the next five ate that all up and $70,000 besides, the seventh trip alone having shown a loss of $174,000.

Evidently there are times when the steamship business is more profitable than at others. Certainly transatlantic travel has its effect and there was apparently a time when the prestige of the big ship drew business, but running such big vessels with small passenger lists is expensive. This is one of the reasons why the big liner is on the market and perhaps why there has been no heels over head rush to buy it. Another thing to do with the high costs is the restriction under which vessels flying the American flag have to do business in comparison with those of other countries. Government operation is not as likely to eliminate the waste as much as private management, but even the latter must face competition which, in view of favorable foreign laws and subsidies, is hard to meet.

The Leviathan has lost money on more than half of its trips, but a study of those may be sufficient this year to alter the situation. It is certain however, that it would have made a worse showing from deterioration alone had it been allowed to remain idle.

POINCARE'S NEW CABINET

Whether Premier Poincare was clever enough to seize upon the vote that indicated a lack of confidence as a means of eliminating some of the handicaps in his cabinet, or whether this was a course that he decided upon following his reacceptance of the premiership, he has unquestionably made the most of an opportunity that presented itself.

Premier Poincare stays but only two members of his cabinet are retained. He has considered it desirable to surround himself with those who not only stand for his policies but who have shown themselves to be men having strength and a large following throughout the country. They are men who not only promise to aid the government in its policies at the present time but to have a good effect upon the election which is not far off.

While the vote was one upon which the chamber of deputies would doubtless have acted differently had there been anywhere near a full membership in attendance, the vote as recorded has unquestionably served the administration's purposes instead of weakening it. In the first place it has been demonstrated that Poincare is the man of the hour, that France needs him and that his policies are strongly endorsed. And in addition the chance has been presented of strengthening the recognized weak places in the cabinet.

All this coming at a time when the Dawes report is expected, when much depends upon the reception it gets and when some of the new cabinet members are known to be favorably disposed to reparation agreements along such lines as have been intimated will be recommended, gives promise of a satisfactory outcome of an incident that was regarded at the time as unfortunate and disconcerting. Premier Poincare has turned what threatened to be a body blow to his own advantage. He has made much more secure and firm a cabinet that was suffering from disintegration and the Poincare policies have been shown to be France's policies.

THE DAUGHERTY HEARING

According to two members of the Daugherty investigation committee the inquiry is not going to halt now that the former attorney general is out of office. That is, of course, as it should be. The idea that the hearing should end because the object of it is out of office, because the object for which the inquiry was started has been accomplished, is unwarranted.

There were charges made concerning the attorney general for inquiry into which the committee was named. It is to be expected that the hearing will go on. The inquiry has not been completed. There have been many witnesses heard, much hearsay evidence has been presented and much has been related that is based upon alleged statements of dead men. Thus far the inquiry has been entirely one sided. There has been no opportunity given the accused to appear and defend himself, and even though he has been dismissed from the cabinet and is out of the important office which he probably held too long, it is only right that the hearing should go to its logical conclusion. To trump up a lot of charges, to produce questionable testimony, to accept as facts a lot of unproved claims by those disappointed and seeking vengeance isn't a logical conclusion to a senate hearing even though such a course has forced a man out of office. Daugherty should have his day before the committee if he wants it. It is the whole story, not half of it that should be gotten, and the committee should insist upon getting both and not solely one side of the story before it finishes. This doesn't mean the waste of a lot of time, however.

CUTTING EDUCATION EXPENSES

We are getting to that time of the year when more or less thought is sure to be turned to the graduation dress or dresses. It is a problem for many, and one that has received attention in various ways.

The girls of the senior class of the Woonsocket high school have recognized, like many others, the wisdom of placing restrictions upon the expenditures for dress during commencement, and have come to the agreement following a conference with the principal whereby they will have but two dresses each to cost in the aggregate not over $25. They will have a sport gown for class night, and a graduation dress that will also be worn at the commencement ball. This displays a desire to relieve the embarrassment that might be experienced by many and a commendable attitude in regard to thrift.

From time to time there have been those classes, operating on a similar basis, which have recognized the desirability of keeping such expense to the minimum. Highly commendable results have been displayed where the girls of the class have even made their own dresses, where simple rather than elaborate graduation gowns have been insisted upon and where a determination has been shown to keep down and keep uniform the expenses of such occasions. It creates a better spirit among the members, especially where the members number those whose family pocketbooks might range from the silks and the satins to the calico. It is an example that may well be emulated by others. The Woonsocket girls have made a wise decision.

Senator Johnson should be careful lest he be suspected of having contracted that mouth disease which calls for a liberal application of soap and water.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Angelica makes an attractive garnish for little frosted cakes and whipped cream. A small amount will last a long time.

If the metal tips come off your shoe laces, dip ends in melted beeswax and twist tightly between thumb and finger.

For serving cold beverages on the summer porch, use paper cups in a wire frame such as is used for sterilizing infants' bottles.

Hard boil six eggs, mash the yolks and mix with three tablespoonfuls of sardines in mustard dressing. Season and stuff halves.

For a quickly made and delicious cake filling, mix thoroughly 1-2 cupful of sugar, 1 cupful of grated pineapple and 1 tablespoonful of lemon juice.

When mayonnaise curdles, set it aside and start making a fresh supply. As soon as this begins to thicken beat in the curdled mixture slowly.

If the matches have become damp and refuse to light, they can be used after having been rubbed back and forth in the bristles of a clothes brush.

Don't put puddings made with milk in a very hot oven, for the intense heat curdles the milk.

Soup should simply simmer and not boil. Boiling it affects the delicacy of the flavor.

Rust spots can be removed from white linen with salts of lemon put up in powdered form. Put the salts on the spot and dampen slightly.

A dustless duster can be made by cutting cheesecloth into desired shape and size, dipping it in turpentine and then letting the fumes evaporate in the air.

Take slices of fresh ham and put in a dish. Cover with milk. Let stand an hour. Then cook. Most of the salt will fall to the bottom, leaving only enough to flavor the ham nicely.

COOKERY TABLE

Loaf bread should be baked 40 to 60 minutes; rolls and biscuits 10 to 20 minutes, graham gems 30 minutes, gingerbread 20 to 30 minutes, sponge cake 45 to 60 minutes, plain cake 30 to 40 minutes, fruit cake 2 to 3 hours, cookies 10 to 15 minutes, bread pudding one hour, rice and tapioca one hour, Indian pudding 1 to 3 hours, steamed brown bread one to 3 hours, custards 15 to 20 minutes, piecrust about 30 minutes, plum pudding two to three hours.

FOR NIGHT LIGHT

If night lights are burned in your house try this: Take a wax candle, cover the top, which has been burned level, with a thin layer of salt, and leave only the black end of the wick exposed. Light the candle and it will give a faint but steady light all night.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

One successful exponent of youth prolonged into the eighth decade says that muscular activity is the whole secret of preventing old age.

Sometimes small calluses form persistently on the hands. These should be rubbed gently a little each day with pumice stone. Do not irritate the skin.

After a thorough massage with oil or cream, the elbows should be rinsed in cold water or rubbed with a little piece of ice if you have any handy. This astringent treatment tends to draw up the loose skin. Then when you dress to go out you will find that you can rub a little powder into the elbows and that they will be as soft and white and smooth as you could desire.

Besides using a softening lotion and removing hardened surfaces, it is wise to give the hands a general treatment once a week. If the hands are inclined to be thin, apply a food cream thickly. Draw on a pair of loose gloves and wear them over night, use an astringent cream and wear rubber gloves as they cause the hands to perspire and thus lose fat.

BAGS DEFT FINGERS CAN MAKE

Silk bags, each for its own frock and occasion, is a fancy of the day. Brocade ribbon in a vivid patch pattern, built on an ordinary frame, makes a handsome purse to go with tailored things. The smart little black moire wallet that swings from a bracelet is just a twice folded strip of ribbon, lined and provided with compartments, fastening with a strong snap. For the octagonal bag with the girl head medallion, narrow double-faced satin ribbon is used for the handle and the outlines, and wider satin ribbon, slightly gathered, covers the sides. The buckram foundation is padded with a layer of cotton flannel, and a short metal top and clasp are required. Scalloped ribbon in circle foundation, with a doll's head center, makes the false but charming front to the tasseled party bag. It is made on a buckram disc, which is covered on the other side and tacked to one side of a plain, flat silk bag. One strip of heavy moire ribbon makes the unlined party bag on the ivory hoop. The ribbon is laid double over the hoop, right sides in, and sewed together, beginning three inches down from the hoop on each side in order to leave the side openings at the top. The end is simply fastened in a slip knot. A fold of the ribbon makes the strap handle. Stunning handle loops for bags may be made from the novelty ribbons of this season.

BUY GOOD MATTRESSES

Never economize when buying mattresses. A really good hair mattress will last a lifetime, can be cleaned "as good as new" over and over again and will be far more comfortable and wholesome to sleep on than one filled with cheap material. Blankets also should be as good as you can possibly afford, as the cheaper kinds, being a mixture of cotton and wool, are far heavier than those made entirely of wool, and the great essential of bed clothing is that is should combine lightness in weight with warmth.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A street dress for the young girl is made of navy blue taffeta. These taffeta frocks are shown in a number of styles for spring.

The most springlike of wristbags is a delectable affair, round as a bouquet and covered thickly with little silk flowers in various springtime colors.

Pillows covered with rough orange linen are fringed on all edges and have narrow lacings of black ribbon. These pillows would look well with wicker furniture and in the sun room.

A graceful fashion is the veil of black tulle with an embroidered border of gay flowers. The veil is not worn over the face, but across the front of the hat and down the right shoulder.

With the rejuvenated popularity of Irish lace, this trimming is being extensively used today on lingerie. Sheer white batiste is almost loaded down with Irish lace insertion, medallions and edging.

A dainty little blouse of dimity is designed especially for the girl of school age. In a variety of colors, it has a low Peter Pan collar, long sleeves with a small cuff and two rows of plaits down the front.

A sport costume of much distinction has a short box coat of brown suede, hand painted with an all-over design in orange. A small hat is covered with the same material. The two are worn with a plaided skirt and jumper of beige jersey.

A three cornered bag is made of rows of narrow dark-blue ribbon put together without any fulness. Around the top is a row of flat roses made of pink and silver edged ribbon and this pink is repeated in the lining. A long blue tassel finishes the bag.

The familiar cloche gains a new luster when it is embroidered with small metal beads. These little felt hats are particularly good when the castor and taupe shades are used and the beading is done in bronze and steel.

LINEN TABLE DOILIES

Styles in table linen change almost as frequently as do styles in clothes, and it is an up-to-date and alert woman who can keep up with them. Centerpieces and large plate doilies have taken a firm hold upon the feminine mind and are seen at every meal from breakfast to dinner. A beautiful set made by skillful Russian fingers is of cream-colored linen heavily embroidered in magenta, yellow and dark blue. The centerpiece is square, and there are six square plate doilies and six smaller ones.

COAT TO MATCH FROCK

The fashion of having a coat to match a frock is in a way rather an economical one, especially if both are of heavy crepe or in black satin, which is so smart this season. The long lines of the coat and its flattering touches of fur at neck and sleeves make it an appropriate garment to wear on many occasions over other dresses. Particularly attractive are coats of heavy black satin trimmed with white fur and decorated with the white braiding or dull silver galloon.

NEW ENVELOPE BAG

The envelope bag is now a permanent part of the tailored costume. Some of the new bags show delightful little touches that stamp them as being extremely up to date. A rather small envelope bag of beige suede has the button fastening of the flap made of a round moonstone set in etched silver. Inside the bag are two little flat cases; one for money and the other for mirror and puff.

LAUNDRY HINTS

A spoonful of vinegar to each quart of rinsing water will sometimes revive faded colors.

To launder paint spotted overalls, boil them in water containing a spoonful of turpentine for each gallon of water.

Be sure you wipe stationary tubs dry after using them and always keep the plugs in the holes. Leave the cover off a little while to let them dry and you cannot have musty tubs. If you leave the plugs out you will get all the bad odors from the pipes and traps.

Fold all small pieces that do not require careful ironing before putting them through the wringer. They will not look as mussed.

REMOVING STAINS

To clean an aluminum saucepan that has become stained from boiling water or fresh vegetables, take a few cranberries and boil them in the stained vessel for a few minutes, and it will be like new.

To remove ink from material quickly and without injury to the fabric, spread the cloth over a bowl and wet the ink with peroxide, then sprinkle liberally with bicarbonate of soda.

To remove indelible ink from linen, soak in salt water, then wash in water to which ammonia has been added.

To remove scorch from white goods, rub the spot with the cut end of an onion, lay the garment in the sun, and every trace of the scorch will be gone in a short time.

To remove chocolate and cocoa stain, sprinkle with borax and soak in cold water.

In washing white enamel woodwork, try using baking soda. This removes stains and finger-marks and does not hurt the gloss.

Oil or grease spots on marble may be removed by spreading with a paste made of fuller's earth and water. Allow to remain for two days, wash off and polish.

Spirits of campher will remove white spots from furniture. Rub well with soft cloth and polish with oil.

THE DOOR THAT FITS BADLY

There is nothing more aggravating in winter time than a door that is always gaping.

In a damp house a door will swell, particularly round about the lock. If this happens try that very useful implement known as a "spokeshave." Its name ably describes this tool. Just shave off that swollen part, and carefully paint over the shaved part the same color as the door, so that it will not be noticeable.

A shrunk door is a little more difficult. The lock should be removed and put forward just sufficient to catch and keep closed. Unless very badly shrunk, this should remedy the defect.

Occasionally the door hangs badly, which means that it has not been put on evenly with a plumb line or level. There is very little to be done in a case like this except to take off the door. This is not a difficult matter. Many women who entertain a great deal frequently remove the doors of living rooms in order to make more room for guests. When a door is rehung in this way, it is best to fill up the old screwholes and set the door at a different angle.

A good tip for a draughty door is to put a rod at the top from which to hang a curtain, also to tack a piece of felt along the bottom.

TO CLEAN FEATHERS

You can clean solid quills and feathers very nicely if you put them in a box of corn meal. Shake the box gently. Then remove the feather and shake out the meal.

CONCERNING WOMEN

The latest United States census lists 270 women who earn a livelihood as lumbermen, raftsmen and woodchoppers.

Miss Mary Collins, Britain's first woman pastor, was a successful journalist before she began to study for the ministry.

Through its pioneer mothers' pension legislation the British Columbia Government is now aiding 900 widows and their families.

A recent endeavor to determine the most popular Christian name for girls in England disclosed the fact there is a girls' school in London where, out of 600 pupils, 180 answer to the name of Joan.

French women have been admitted as students of engineering at the principal schools and colleges since 1916, and, though the percentage is still small, they have already done good work in the laboratories, or on the commercial side of engineering.

OVEN DOORS

Don't open the oven door until the pastry has been in at least 10 minutes. By that time it has had time to set and will not fall.

RECIPES

Oatmeal Tart: Cook 2 ounces of oatmeal in 1 pint of milk for 20 minutes. Flavor with sugar and vanilla. Mix in 2 well-beaten eggs. Pour into a tin covered with pastry crust. Bake in hot oven for 30 minutes. This tart can be served hot or cold. The ingredients for the crust paste are as follows: 1-2 pound flour, 1-4 pound butter, salt, 4 to 6 tablespoonfuls of water. For four persons.

Oatmeal Nut Bread: 2 cups oatmeal, 2 cups of boiling water, 1-2 cup lukewarm water, 2 yeast cakes, 1 1-2 teaspoons salt, 1-2 cup brown sugar, 3 tablespoons melted fat, 4 cups flour, 2 cups chopped nuts.

Pour the boiling water over the oats, cover and let stand until lukewarm. Dissolve yeast cakes in the warm water, and sugar and fat and stir into the oatmeal. Add 1 1-2 cups of flour, beat well, cover and set aside to rise for one hour or until light. Then add the salt, the nuts and rest of the flour or enough to make a dough. Turn out on a floured board and knead until smooth; then place in a greased bowl, cover and let stand again in a warm place until doubled in bulk or for about 1 1-2 hours. Shape into two small loaves, put into well greased pans, filling them a little more than half full. Let rise to the top of the pan and bake 45 minutes in a hot oven —400 degrees.

Guarding Interests of the Aliens.

Mr. Editor: In reply to someone who forgot to sign his name I would like to say that I am an American citizen as I was born in the state of Indiana.

Now that same person has taken the responsibility of speaking for the United States. He goes on and tells me that an alien has the full protection of the American flag. I would like to have that same person explain how the American flag is going to protect field crops and farm stock from destruction.

Furthermore when I went to school, and I dare say it is the same today, every child in school without respect of nationality said first thing in the morning, I pledge allegiance to my flag and to the republic for which it stands, with liberty and justice for all.

Now how does liberty and justice compare with that law? If it is liberty and justice, why does an American citizen need more protection than an alien as the citizens are allowed to have a gun and aliens aren't?

Please tell me where any nation has the right to come in any person's house and seize personal property from their aliens and not their citizens? My opinion is that it is discriminating against other nations of the world.

I understand that the world is free to anyone, as long as he or she is not criminals, and have the same right as the citizens of a country outside of voting.

Yours respectively,
JOSEPH E. I. UNDERWOOD.

THE DIGNITY OF EARNING MONEY

By Esther H. Doolittle

Why not let the children earn money? Very early with pins and pennies and pennies as the medium of exchange they begin of their own accord to conduct stores and shows. Why not make use of this tendancy by teaching the child to do something well enough to earn a pecuniary reward? Since money is in the world to stay, let us show the little ones how to regard it sanely, as a means to an end, and how to use it to further their own advancement and growth.

It is surely an evidence of development when a child earns by his own labor the wherewithal to purchase birthday and Christmas gifts for friends and relatives. No amount of given money can produce the same feeling of satisfaction and self-respect his own earnings do, when he is allowed to spend them for someone he loves.

To learn that money does not grow, nor in some magical way flow into Dad's pocket, but comes as a result of service rendered, is to take an important step in life's journey. To develop in a child the feelings of independence and self-reliance is to give him an invaluable equipment.

Here are a few definite ways and means of earning money. For the small boy, running errands, feeding animals, and simple duties about the house and garden suggest themselves. As he grows older, fire tending, wood carrying, snow shoveling, lawn mowing, lettuce, celery or cress growing, chicken raising, and selling papers or magazines take precedence.

It is a mistake to feel that a boy must not "peddle" his work among friends and neighbors, providing, of course, his work is useful, necessary and reasonably priced. Broad-minded and thinking people will respect a child who shows an inclination to produce rather than only to consume the world's commodities. The thoughtless people surely do not count. From them come the wasters and many of the failures of our communities.

For girls; baby tending and house work, such as dish washing, dusting, and table setting as possible tasks. Even little girls can be successfully taught to do some useful things about the house, and for the older girl the opportunities are practically limitless. A money making enterprise for her may be cooking of one or more home made foods—cookies, rolls, nut bread, candy, salad dressing, and orange marmalade.

The establishment of a regular trade, learning to keep accounts, figuring to produce a fair profit, purchasing supplies, keeping the materials separate from the house supplies, and tidying the kitchen after work is done are all benefits quite aside from any financial considerations.

A girl who draws well will be able to make place cards to order. Also most housewives are in constant need of well made, reasonable priced holders and aprons.

It goes without saying that money earning must not be allowed to interfere with a child's plaything nor to assume too important a position in his scheme of things, neither should it deteriorate into the bribing habit. The child should be made to realize that his own money making schemes are in no way connected with the many services he can do for Mother. If Mother wishes Son to help her or to run errands, she should be met with instantaneous and glad response and not the question, "How much will you give me?" All of us know families in which the policy of bribing children is carried too far. If this pitfall is avoided, there is nothing more salutary for the child than the self-reliance and knowledge which come through working for himself.

LLOYD GEORGE, THE POOR BOY

In a meager home on a mean street of remote Manchester, in then downtrodden Wales, Lloyd George was born, the son of the sickly schoolmaster to rough workingmen's children.

The boy was three years old when his father died, and he saw the home and the furniture sold out soon afterward. Raised in the abode of his uncle, the village cobbler, for whom his mother kept house, the lad constantly felt the grip of poverty and denial.

Law was studied from old books at night. Articled at 16 to a solicitors' firm, he did not have, when admitted to the bar, the $15 to buy robes, without which he could not practice in court.

Then for years a country-town lawyer living on his earnings—and earnings were small.

When he aspired to Parliament the Tories sneered that he "had been born in a cottage," his life was threatened frequently and many of his meetings were raised.

A member of Parliament, he shared a bed with a fellow countryman, in the attic of a London inn, and often went hungry. English was like a foreign tongue and had to be mastered.

In Parliament, he fought Joseph Chamberlain and withstood Gladstone, for Wales. When England went into the Transvaal, he risked his career, revolted against his party leaders and braved death-threats in his campaigns for the Boers and peace.

When chosen president of the Board of Trade, many gasped at the idea of the "mob-orator" being entrusted with England's industry and commerce—and he made a record of success.

As Chancellor of the Exchequer, he was the advocate of measures of great benefit to the police as a whole. As Minister of Munitions during the war, he turned England's weak munition supply into an arsenal, as Premier he was one of England's strong war leaders of history and a world power.

His life has been a constant battle.

"I do not care what office I hold, just so I get things done," he said.

Tomorrow—Wilson had to change his career.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

DURANGO

"Durango City, the capital of the state of the same name in Mexico which hovers on the borderline of the one of the most peculiarly manufactured ice supplies in the world," reports a bulletin from Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"When the maguey, or century plant, has had the seven years of growth necessary to blooming and its bud has been tapped to pulque, in most places it is destroyed. At Durango, however, all the plants are assembled in one place, usually in the gardens in the eastern part of the city, where the leaves are laid out with their cupping surfaces upward on the ground, which has been covered with straw for the sake of cleanliness.

"Into each leaf is poured about two quarts of water. Although the temperature is not low enough to freeze water in the canals or when it is placed in some domestic utensil, it does freeze in the maguey leaves. The ice is gathered in the early morning and put into the ice hguses, which are built abode and are about 20 feet square, and 20 feet deep. The ice is thrown in through an opening in the roof and the slivers melt and form a solid mass. Later on it is cut out and sold to the cheaper trade in competition with that from the city's ice factory as long as it lasts, which is usually until about the middle of July or the first of August of the year.

"No explanation has been offered as to why this peculiar method is used, but scientists are surmising that it is because the leaves, being shallow, give a broader surface exposed to the excessive evaporation and consequent cooling which naturally occur in such high altitudes, for Durango lies more than 6,000 feet above sea-level.

"Some of the streets of this city, often called the 'town of sunshine' because of its wonderful climate, are paved with flagstones measuring about 18 by 30 inches in size, which contain large quantities of almost pure tin in kidney ore, some of the single stones having as much as three or four pounds of tin in them. Where the softer stone has worn away, the metal protrudes in a manner painful to the feet as one gets the sensation of walking over marbles scattered on the pavement.

"The region around this state capital of 30,000 inhabitants is said to be a veritable hunter's and fisherman's paradise with its duck and large game shooting and the abundant fish life in its streams, but the fly in this blissful ointment is a poison scorpion whose bite causes from 30 to 40 deaths each year.

"The Spanish Conquistadores found the site pleasing. Alonso Pacheo in 1563 laid the foundations for the present-day city under the direction of Governor Francisco de Ibarra, who named it for a city of his native province in Spain.

"The history and development of Durango are irrevocably linked up with the Cerro del Mercado, a hill of high grade ore estimated to contain 460,000,000 tons of metal, assaying from 70 to 75 per cent of pure iron, which was discovered in 1562.

"The hillsides of the state of Durango are fairly bursting with metals. They have been famed since colonial times for their output of silver and gold. The city of Durango formerly was the seat of a Mexican mint, built in 1811, which coined more than a million dollars worth of silver and gold each year. The silver and gold output today are valued at several million dollars. Mines in the state also yield quantities of copper, iron, cinnabar, zinc, and lead.

"The Avino mine opens its rich vein of silver grey ore and pours it out in an open quarry which is still yielding the precious metal, though it has been mined for 350 years, since the time when the owner deeded it to those white inhabitants living near it, who would build their houses close enough to protect them from the raids of the savage Indians. The cathedral which now stands in the city of Durango owes its very existence to the Avino mine. The taxes placed upon its output built the church. It has been told also that several of the mines in the vicinity permitted the miners to carry out a piece of rich ore, which they presented as an offering to the priest, who sold it for building materials.

"The engineers of old Durango built well, for the water works of the city, which were dedicated in 1722, are still intact and the canals built at the same time still traverse all the principal streets, from which the court yards of the houses obtain water for irrigation. Though a modern system of water works has been installed in later years, the old water works are still in use and alone serve the outlying districts."

BIG SQUAD OF OFFICERS MAKE LIQUOR RAIDS AND EIGHT ARRESTS

A squad of nineteen, local, county and local officers spread consternation in certain circles in this city and Taftville Saturday night in half a dozen liquor raids from which eight prisoners were brought in and liquor was seized as evidence. The prisoners all obtained bonds, each in $1,000, and their cases will come up in the city court on Tuesday morning.

The raiders were armed with warrants issued through the prosecuting attorney of the city court and assembled at police headquarters where they were in consultation with Capt. D. J. Twomey and the active operations of the raids were under the direction of County Detective William Lewis of New London. The federal officers, who were brought here from several sections of the state, included E. P. Manteuffel, William Congdon, Stanford Briggs, John Morse, Stewart W. Hinman, Walter Kiernan, E. E. Teolan, Edward Flaherty and Joseph Fitzpatrick.

Their ranks were augmented by Sergeant Thomas Murphy and Officers Perry, T. Driscoll, F. Driscoll, J. Farrell, J. Dombroski, and P. Murphy of the Norwich police, with County Detective William E. Jackson of Willimantic and Constable George Hoxie of Lebanon.

The first raid was at the so-called Italian club in the cement block on West Thames street, where Nicholas Paradis, 42, and Dominick Pasqualine, 30, were arrested and about 14 1-2 gallons of alleged whiskey were seized,—contained in wicker covered flasks, holding five gallons each. A cash register and several bottles also were seized.

About 7.30 the officers started for Taftville and Occum, in machines driven by the two county detectives and the Norwich motor patrol wagon driven by Officer P. Murphy the last named going to Occum.

At the place of Constant Beauregard on Norwich avenue, the door was broken in and Sergeant Murphy vaulted the bar in time to catch Beauregard dumping the contents of a glass jar into a pitcher. At the place of Armand Bassenett about opposite Taft's station, a seizure was made and Bassenett was arrested with Hormisdas Germaine, who opened the door and was accused of having punched Detective Lewis.

Tofil Lajeunesse, 41 was arrested at his place on Merchants avenue where three bottles of near-beer were seized and Henry La Plante, 28, was arrested at his place nearby on Merchants avenue. Three one-gallon jar one two-gallon stone jar and a quart jar with their contents were seized here.

At one of the Taftville places it was stated by the officers that a case marked Scotch was found outside the back door, with the straw wrappers in it but the bottles were missing.

Peter Brunelle, 26, was arrested at his place in Occum but nothing was found there. It is understood that the authorities have evidence of a sale that will be produced against Brunelle.

GRACE CHURCH BELLS DEDICATED BY BISHOP

The chimes recently installed at Grace Episcopal church at Yantic were dedicated Sunday afternoon by Rt. Rev. E. Campion Acheson, suffragan bishop, at a special service held in the church. Clergy present in addition to Bishop Acheson and Rev. R. B. Day, rector of the church were Archdeacon J. Eldred Brown, rector of the Trinity church, and Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey, pastor of the Norwich Town Congregational church. The order of service was as follows:

Processional hymn; Apostles' Creed, prayer, Archdeacon Brown, leading; Hark, the Sound of Holy Voices, choir; dedication of the bells by Bishop Acheson. The congregation marched to the rear of the church where the dedication took place after which the chimes were sounded. At the close of dedication, the choir sang the Nunc Dimittis, by E. Bunnett, while the congregation filed back to their seats. Benediction was pronounced by Bishop Acheson. Kipling's recessional, God of Our Fathers Known of Old, by De Koven was sung by Lawrence Hamilton, tenor soloist. Robert Otis presided at the organ.

The inscriptions on the bells are as follows: E Flat—Given by public subscription to the glory of God and in grateful memory of those who gave of their substance in the war 1914-1918. Spare us yet, Judge of the nations, Lest we forget, Lest we forget. Easter 1924.

Second bell—Glory of God and in loving memory of Harriet Wickham Haughton, late president of the Woman's Guild, given by Sister Louise Carolina Fitch, Easter 1924. On the other side of the bell appears the following: Glory of God, in loving memory of Regina N. Rudd, given by her daughters, Margaret R., and Mary St. John Rudd. On the same bell appears the following: Our voices rise with one accord, to bless and praise our risen Lord.

Third bell—Hark the sound of Holy voices, Hallelujah, Lord to Thee. In loving memory of her parents, Nathaniel and Clementina Rudd and sister Marion Say, given by Mrs. C. E. Carpenter.

JUDGE HEARS EVIDENCE IN AUTOMOBILE SUIT

Judge C. B. Waller reserved decision in the common pleas court here Saturday after hearing the evidence on two suits against Rev. Ludovic Paradis, pastor of the Catholic church at Voluntown, because of an automobile accident on the night of Dec. 2, 1921 on the road between Jewett City and Voluntown. Each suit was for $500 the plaintiffs being Catherine Osaga of Voluntown, who sued for personal damages, and Marcia Osaga, her mother who sued for injuries to a horse and waron which were in collision with Father Paradis' automobile, which was driven by his employe, Wilfred LaChapelle. The chauffeur claimed that the horse and wagon were on the wrong side of the road when he hit them.

Attorney John J. Barry was counsel for the plaintiffs and Attorney J. J. Desmond for the defendants.

AUTOMOBILE TURNS OVER ON CHELSEA PARADE

A Ford roadster, registration number C-754, owned by E. P. Winward & Son, Water street, and driven by Frank Pratt, turned upside down on the triangular section of Chelsea Parade at the junction of Broadway and Crescent street about 7.30 Sunday evening. Mr. Pratt was driving down Broadway and evidently in the fog, mistook Crescent street for Broadway. The machine ran into the triangular section of the Parade and turned over. Mr. Pratt and a friend who was riding with him escaped uninjured.

The top of the roadster was badly smashed as was the windshield. The wrecked machine was righted by local garagemen and towed away for repairs. The police conducted an investigation of the accident. When they arrived the driver and his passenger had left the scene of the mishap. The registration was found in the machine.

Called on Former Norwich Boy

George Guile of Kinney avenue, was included with other members of the Norwich Radio club, who left Friday morning to atttend the First District convention of the American Radio Relay league, held in Springfield, Mass., Friday and Saturday. While there he called on Scen Dedrickson, a former Norwich boy, for a number of years a member of Christ church choir, of which Master Guile is also a member. Before returning home he was a caller at the home of Mrs. Benjamin H. Goodale of Newington.

INCIDENTS IN SOCIETY

Miss Mary Aiken is spending several days at Concord, N. H.

Mrs. Charles D. White, who has been at Ormond, Florida, has returned to her home on Broadway.

Mrs. Albert Lewis has arrived from Boston for a visit with her cousin, Mrs. William H. Palmer, of "Elm Hill."

Judge and Mrs. Gardiner Greene, who have been spending several months on a Mediterranean trip and in France and England, were due to reach New York Sunday and will return to their home on Washington street this week.

REV. J. R. DANFORTH SPEAKS UPON "CHRIST AND MAN"

At the second of the Lenten luncheons at the Y. M. C. A. of Friday noon, Rev. J. R. Danforth of New London took as his subject "Christ and Man." He said in part: Last week we thought of Christ and Youth and the quality of understanding which comes from experience. Christ understood youth for He had been a child.

So Christ understood men, for He was one. That is just as true as that He was divine. He who denies the human nature of Christ loses the complete view of the Master, just as much as he who denies the divine nature of the Master loses upon that side. Christ had exceptional manhood.

The manliness of Christ is evident to all who read the gospels. He was no weak half-man, pale sufferer, master only of the passive virtues. He was not only the Christ of the crown of thorns but He was also the Christ of the scourge of small cords. He could call a Pharisee a whited sepulchre and yet rebuke Peter and John for wanting to call fire from heaven to destroy a Samaritan village.

By being the child before He was the man Christ could understand the lingering immaturities in men, the belated childishness which are no true part of the childlike heart by which we enter the kingdom of heaven but are faults surviving the natural period of their elimination, vestigial difficulties puzzling self and others. He understood the wrong paths often pursued by natural powers, the misspent energies of life. He knew our fluctuations of hope and purpose, the lagging performance. And He knew how to train men until we gain the efficiency of an army without losing individual liberty and initiative.

The more of a man you are, the more of a grip Christ can get upon you. This lays upon us double duty of development, for all external advantages and all the inner glories, too. Nothing bad is really essential to humanity. A worm hole is not a necessary part of an apple.

Christ told Nicodemus he must be born again. And it was explained to him that this did not mean to become a baby for the second time. Neither was he to become a patched and mended thing. Rather to become a new man in Christ Jesus. This means real renewal of essential humanity.

And just as Christ in his manhood did not forget that He had been a child, so now He does not forget that He, too, was once man with men. He meets us in our prayers and by His presence and His providences shows that same experimental understanding of our manhood which can help us to the uttermost and lead us to complete confidence in Him and oneness of life and purpose with Him.

So far as we are men we can touch the Son of man; and so far as we are men we will do it. To the manliness of others we can carry the manliness of Christ. Let us do it.

OBITUARY

James Lewis Smith.

Following a general breaking down in health, which had confined him to his bed since the day after Thanksgiving, James Lewis Smith, 84, died at his home, 129 Broad street, shortly after 8 o'clock, Sunday morning.

Mr. Smith was born in Deckertown—now Sussex—New Jersey, July 28th, 1839. He came of honored Colonial ancestry, moaments having been erected to a number of his forefathers in various towns of the state of New Jersey. His grandfather, John Smith, who came over from Holland and settled in Summerset, N. J., in 1743, was one of seventeen children. The sixth son, Isaac, married Catherine Loder and had twelve children, their son, Abram, born in 1780, being the father of James Lewis Smith. His mother was Jane Adams, also of Deckertown.

JAMES LEWIS SMITH

Members of the family became notably in many lines of civic and industrial endeavor throughout the state, so that their names and the results of their influence are familiar in nearly every section of New Jersey.

James Lewis Smith was educated in the schools of his native state, entering business at an early age. As a young man he was in the furniture business, also owned and operated a factory in Newark for the manufacture of bells—including the first bicycle bells—and other articles; he was also engaged in the leather business in the same city.

Upwards of eighteen years ago he retired from active business and although then in vigorous health, some time afterwards he was taken ill and his physicians ordered him South. For a time, the mineral waters of Green Cove Springs, Florida, appeared to benefit him; but this was only temporary and his health has continued to fail.

In Norwich, October 1st, 1890, Mr. Smith married Miss Julia L. Rugen, the ceremony taking place at Christ church, the officiating clergyman being the rector, Rev. Richard H. Nelson, now bishop of Albany. Since making his residence in Norwich Mr. Smith has been a member of Christ church. The pleasant home of Mr. and Mrs. Smith, at 129 Broad street, has long been the center of cordial and genuine hospitality.

Mr. Smith came of a musical family. He possessed a fine, well trained voice and when a young man was soloist in a Chicago church, by a coincidence when its pastor was Rev. Dr. Leander Chamberlain, later pastor of Broadway Congregational church, Norwich. When ill health compelled him to give up vocal music, he found satisfaction in choosing and collecting an unusually fine set of victrola records, and was happy in entertaining guests with some of the choicest and most costly of these reproductions obtainable.

In spite of his years of impaired health, he retained his patient, amiable traits, and being well read and well informed, was always a most interesting and entertaining companion. His generous nature led him to respond liberally to all requests for aid, and it was his happiness to exercise charity quietly and without letting his benefactions be known. His rare qualities of mind and heart, and his artistic tastes, won him many lasting friends.

Mr. Smith's wife survives him; and of his large family there is now, only one sister, Mrs. Paul Richter, of Newark, N. J. He outlived his brother, Richard Smith and his sister, Elizabeth, the latter the wife of Senator Jacob Gould, of New Jersey. He was fond of having with him his nearest of kin, who are his four nieces and a nephew, four great-nieces, also five great-great-nieces and a nephew, living in New Jersey and Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Smith have been accustomed to spend their winters in Florida, also in Washington, D. C., with the latter's sister, Miss Carrie E. Rogers and a number of seasons were passed at Greenwich, Conn., at "The Castle," the beautiful home of Mrs. Smith's uncle, the late Robert M. Bruce, benefactor and philanthropist of that town.

Erastus Nelson Roach

The long life of Erastus Nelson Roach of Ledyard came to an end peacefully on Saturday morning in this city where he was brought about four weeks ago for treatment. He was born in Ledyard, the son of Thomas and Lydia Avery Roach. He was of Revolutionary stock, his father being in the war of 1812 and his grandfather in the war of 1776. In early life he went on the water and later owned and conducted a farm in Ledyard. In 1883 he married Mrs. Emma J. Phillips, who died in 1923. He was the last of his immediate family. He leaves three nieces, Mrs. Lucy A. Greene, Mrs. Edward Cook, and Mrs. N. S. Brown, all of this city, one nephew Albert O. Roach of Mystic, also several grandnieces and nephews.

John Dombrowski

After an illness of four weeks John Dombrowski, of 356 West Thames St., passed away Saturday. He was born in Poland 44 years ago and came to this country 21 years ago, making his home in Norwich since that time. By occupation he was a forge worker and was employed for many years by the International Silver company.

Surviving besides his wife are three daughters, Frances, Sophie and Edith Dombrowski, one son, Stanley Dombrowski and a sister, Mrs. Stanley Symkoski, all of Norwich.

Mrs. John T. Sullivan

After an illness of some duration Elizabeth Naughton, wife of John T. Sullivan died Sunday evening at 6 o'clock at her home at 304 Central avenue. She was a faithful member of St. Mary's Memorial church and a member of the Ladies' Charitable society.

Mrs. Sullivan was a devoted wife and loving mother, the greatest interest of her life being for her home and family. She had many friends who learned of her death with profound sorrow and sympathy is expressed for those left to mourn her loss. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Horace Corning and Mrs. Patrick McMahon; two grandchildren, Horace Corning, Jr., and Bernard McMahon; one sister, Mrs. Michael Clifford and several nephews and nieces.

Mrs. Patrick H. Kennedy

Following several days illness of pneumonia the life of Annie Lawler, beloved wife of Patrick H. Kennedy, came to a close early Saturday morning at her home at 532 Boswell avenue.

Mrs. Kennedy was born in Lowell, Mass., but had made her home in Norwich for some years, and was a member of St. Mary's Memorial church. Surviving besides her husband are, a brother-in-law, John Howarth, three nieces, Marion, Mary and Betty Howarth and one nephew, Thomas Howarth.

Mrs. Kennedy was a woman of fine character and leaves many friends in this city to mourn her loss.

Mrs. W. E. Mathews

Elizabeth F. Mathews, wife of W. E. Mathews, died Friday at her home No. 61 Sylvan street, Springfield, Mass. She was born in Norwich the daughter of Sarah Murray and the late James France. While a resident of this city she was a member of the Greeneville Congregational church. She had resided in Springfield for the past 11 years.

Surviving her besides her husband is one daughter, Doris E. Mathews, of Springfield, Mass., her mother, Mrs. Sarah Murray France of Norwich, a brother, John S. France and one sister, Mrs. Andrew Christie, both of New York city.

Mrs. Henry L. Lynch

Eleanor E. Harrison, widow of Henry L. Lynch passed away early Saturday morning at her home at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y. Mrs. Lynch was born in Halifax, N. S., in 1845. The greater part of her married life was spent in this city where Mr. Lynch was employed at the Richmond Radiator company. Surviving are three children, Arthur G. Lynch of Ivorytown, N. Y., Mrs. Charles P. French of Dobbs Ferry with whom she had made her home of late, and Miss Jessie P. Lynch of Norwich. There are also six grandchildren. Mrs. Lynch was a member of Christ Episcopal church and leaves a wide circle of friends in this city who learned of her death with deep regret.

Ara D. Miller

The death of Ara J. Miller, 82, occurred Saturday evening at the home of his cousin Mrs. Albert M. Herrick of 43 Hedge avenue after an illness of some duration. Mr. Miller had been a cripple since the Civil War and about three years ago suffered a shock which crippled both sides of his body. About three months ago his strength began to fail and he lost strength steadily until his death.

He was born in Westfield, Vt., July 22, 1841, the son of Josiah and Susan Gilman Miller and spent the greater part of his life in that city and in Newport, Vt. When the Civil War broke out Mr. Miller enlisted with Company D, Sixth Regiment, Vermont Volunteers and served until 1863 when he was disabled and discharged from active service. He was with the Federal troops sent to New York during the draft riot and it was there that he received an injury that paralyzed one limb.

He returned to Westfield and continued to live there until the death of his wife eight years ago. He then made his home in Attleboro, Mass., with his cousin, Mrs. Herrick, coming to Norwich to reside with them when they moved from Attleboro.

Surviving Mr. Miller are a brother, Charles Fremont Miller of Westfield, Vt., his cousin, Mrs. Herrick of this city, and nephews and nieces in Vermont and Rhode Island.

The body is to be sent this Monday morning on the 6.17 o'clock train to Westfield, Vt., where burial services is to take place.

LOCAL "Y" SWIMMERS WIN EASILY FROM NEW LONDON TANK STARS

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 30.—The Norwich Y. M. C. A. swimming team upset the dope and took the New London "Y" swimmers into camp Saturday night at the local "Y" swimming tank, by a score of 41 to 26.

Norwich showed a complete reversal of form over the previous performance of this team. In winning the meet, Norwich captured six places out of a possible eight. From the very first event the 150 yard relay swim, which went to Norwich New London seemed to be in a state of bewilderment from which she never recovered. The form that had been evident in the state meet which won the Whalers second place was not there. From the very beginning Norwich had its own way. Grover of Norwich was the outstanding star of the meet. He took three first places in the three events that he entered. In the 150 yard relay swim of which he was anchor man, it was his final spurt that gave Norwich its victory. Grover was high individual scored with 16 points. Kundig also of Norwich was second with 14.

The first event of the evening, the 150 yard relay was a thriller, from the very start. Not three yards separated either team at any one time. Walsmith the first swimmer for New London got the jump over Sayles of Norwich on the take off. Walsmith finished abut three yards in front of Sayles. Hindricks and Fellows for Norwich made up some of the lost ground on Woodruff and Reeves and when Grover and Deter took the water, it was on an even keel. Grover surprised the fans present by finishing out ahead and gaining first place for Norwich.

The team score was Norwich 5 New London 0. The Norwich team was made up of the following: Sayles, Hindricks, Fellows and Grover. New London, Walsmith, Woodruff, Reeves and Dexter.

The next event on the program was fancy diving. As was expected, Kundig of Norwich carried off the first place honors and gave Norwich 5 points. Donohue of New London was second and Foskett also of New London was given third place. The scores for the event were New London 4 Norwich 5.

In winning the 40 yard free style swim, Grover of Norwich showed a dash of speed that marked him as an experienced swimmer. He made the two lengths of the pool in 21 seconds flat that almost equals the time that was made by Sullivan of Naugatuck who won first place in this event in the state meet. Walsmith of New London who finished second in the state meet again finished second and Dexter was clocked third. Points, New London 4, Norwich 5.

Kundig of Norwich again repeated in his win of the 60 breast stroke. Again the state meet is referred to in which Kundig the only Norwich man entered in the finals won this event with plenty to spare. In making the length of the pool three times in 49 seconds flat, Kundig chopped off three quarters of a second of the time he made in winning the event in the state meet. McNamara of Norwich was second and Cleveland of New London third. Score, Norwich 8, New London 1.

In winning the 220 yard free stroke swim, Walsmith sprung the surprise of the evening in this event. Kundig was favored by all to win this swim without struggle but some unexpected opposition came from an unexpected quarter, when Walsmith came in first. Where the 220 yeard swim was duration contest in the state meet, it developed in a good swim Saturday. The time of Walsmith the winner was 3 minutes, 18-1-2 seconds. The time of this same event in the state meet was 3 minutes 31 and 2-5 seconds. The reader can readily see for himself that Saturday's meet was closely contested Kundig came in second and Cleveland straggled in third. Score New London 8, Norwich 3.

Foskett did what was expected of him when he finished first in the plunge for distance, by shooting a distance of 56 feet one inch, almost the length of the tank. Two Norwich men were next in the order. Ely second with a distance of 49 feet and one inch and Wyman third with 43 feet and one inch. The final score was Norwich 4, New London 5.

There was some disapproval of the decision of the judges, in rendering Grover the winner in the 60 yard back stroke. The finish was close and where the writer of the article was sitting it looked as though Walsmith was about one foot ahead of the Norwich swimmer at the finish. However the judges decided in Grover's favor, and he won the event in 43 and 1-5 seconds. Score, Norwich 5 New London 3.

In the last event the 100 yard free style swim, Grover of Norwich after winning the preceding swim entered also and won first place. If he was hindered but by his swim in the previous event he did not show it and he went right ahead and showed the fans minute 6 and 4-5 seconds. Dexter of home fast swimming. His time was 1 Norwich was third. Score, Norwich 6, New London was second and Sayles of New London 3.

The officials of the meet were, Starter Corey, Judges, Williams, Geer and A. R. Dawson. Timer, Tracey. Clerk of course, Roger Farrell. Reporter, John DeGange and Joe Barry.

The teams scores are as follows:

| | N. L. | N |
|---|---|---|
| 150-yard relay | 0 | 5 |
| Fancy Diving | 4 | 5 |
| 40-yard dash | 4 | 5 |

SUB BASE TAKES MEASURE OF ESSEX TOWN FIVE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 30.—Thirty-six points for the Submarine basketball performers one day, 47 the next, 23 for Stonington one day, 36 for Essex the next, the sign at the Submarine Base, "Try the goba first," does not seem to agree with the above named teams. Essex came into town Saturday night expecting to gain an easy victory over the sailors, but at the state armory floor where the contest was played, the fans present were treated to some of the best basketball passing that was ever exhibited in this city by the Base which eventually spelled defeat for the visitors.

For the first 17 minutes after the whistle blew, announcing the beginning of the game, a pretty basketball duel was in progress. So interested were the fans in the contest that if a pin had been dropped it could have been heard over the entire armory. But as the old saying goes, it takes two teams to stage a contest, but Essex didn't last and shortly after the second half got under way the Essex boys began to crack and were more or less cracked for the rest of the game. The Base kept up its terrific pace that it set from the very outset, whereas the visitors did not, and the former team ran away from the latter.

The speedy defensive pace set from the very beginning by the Base was maintained until the final whistle blew ending the game. Essex, on the other hand, developed a flat wheel and bumped along like a milk train on the ties.

Bilfinger, the only Essex reliable, opened the contest with a basket from the first tap-off. From this time on it was Essex and then the Base in the lead. The score at all times in the early minutes of play was so close that the fans present, whether Sub Base or Essex rooters, shifted uneasily in their seats as the ball would sink through the draperies for a score.

Out of the both Submarine Base victories of Friday and Saturday nights, Compton and the elongated Greene stand out as the most prominent figures. In Saturday night's game, especially, this pair were [illegible] the limelight, either increasing the Base lead or would keep the sailors from up the river in the running. Compton accounted for ten baskets from the field, while Greene accounted for a total of 18 points which represented nine field baskets and one foul. Every Base score was made from within the foul line area and in order to get the ball within shooting distance, it took the other three members of the Base team, Bartz, O'Hare and Harris, to work the ball down the court. It was a creditable showing that this trio made in passing the ball out of the reach of the visitors' hands.

For Essex, Bilfinger was the only member of that team that was a consistent performer all evening. While the other members of that team were adept in the art of passing, they tried too many long shots and failed to follow them up.

The referee's position was well handled by Snare. Not once did either team protest over his decisions.

In a preliminary game to the Sub Base-Essex contest, the Service Battery of Danielson easily defeated the Headquarters Battery of New London by a 33 to 23 score. Because of the rough playing by both teams the contest failed to be interesting. Time and again the fans and the players of the Danielson guardsmen expressed their disapproval of the referee's decisions. Booing and hooting greeting the referee on many occasions when he failed to call a foul when a member of either team was guilty of unnecessary rough playing.

STAMFORD "Y" FIVE TOO STRONG FOR NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 30.—The Stamford Y. M. C. A. basketball team gained a decisive victory over the New London "Y" team in the game for the state Y. M. C. A. title, held at the Meriden "Y" floor Saturday afternoon. Stamford easily outclassed the locals and a 51 to 28 score found the team from near New York state in the front.

The New London defense was easily penetrated, and the Stamford forwards found it easy to send the saw hide through the hoop for scores. New London got the jump on Stamford in the early minutes of play when Risch dropped in the first score made by either [illegible]. It did not take Stamford long to get under way after this score and but seven minutes of playing convinced the fans present that the Stamford outfit was the better of the two.

The scoring was evenly divided between the Stamford players. They showed no desire for individual play, teamwork was their best asset. New London also played well together, but had difficulty in bringing the ball past the center of the floor. The defense of the state champs was strong and almost impossible to break through.

For New London, Risch, picked by many as the best forward in the city, was the outstanding performer. He accounted for 13 points, more than half the total of the entire New London team.

RANGERS SPLIT EVEN IN WEEK END GAMES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, March 30.—The New London Ranger soccer team obtained an even break in their two games played over the week end. The first game played at Taftville found the local team winning by a 1 to 0 score in a thrilling match. Today the Rangers journeyed to Crompton, R. I., where they took on the team representing that city. The Rhode Island city players won by a 5 to 3 score.

Saturday's game with Taftville was fast throughout. Only a goal by Herbert in the first half gave New London the score which proved later to be the margin of the Ranger's victory. Only twice during the second half were the Taftville players able to work the ball down in the Rangers' territory. The Rangers threatened to score several times, but some good defense work by the home city team prevented scores.

In engaging the Crompton eleven the Rangers had their hands full. They lost this match by a 6 to 2 score. The Rangers did not show the best play that this team is capable of playing. The cause that this can be attributed to is the continual change of the personnel of the team. Almost every contest that the Rangers engage in several new faces are in the lineup.

But in losing today's game to Crompton, no disgrace falls on the local team. The Crompton eleven had in its lineup several professionals and these men in the home team's lineup strengthened it considerably.

On Saturday afternoon at Crompton, the Polish eleven played the Howard and Bulloughs team from Providence to a 3 to 3 tie. The latter team is considered the second best in the eastern section of the country.

JUNIOR OLYMPICS PLAN FOR BOYS' WEEK

Chicago, March 30. — A world-wide Junior Olympic, open to boys in 26 countries, is a feature of plans for boys' week, April 27 to May 3, according to announcement by the national boys' week committee, of which President Coolidge is the honorary head. Four events are to be run off simultaneously in thousands of cities and towns on May 3, and winners' names and time will be sent here by cable and telegraph.

The events are to be a sprint, distance throw, broad jump and bar chinning. Scores will be tabulated here and the winner announced.

The Olympic will be the first time any such world-wide competition by wire has been attempted, the committee said.

Western Soccer.

Cleveland, Ohio, March 30.— The Chicago Swedish Americans defeated the Cleveland Magyar Americans, 2 to 1, here today in the western final of the national amateur soccer cup race. Chicago meets Boston for the national title and right to represent American in the Olympic games.

BOXING INTEREST CENTERS ABOUT MC TIGUE-STRIBLING BOUT TONIGHT

New York, March 30.—An attempt to settle a controversy of long standing will be made tomorrow night when Mike McTigue of Ireland will defend his light heavyweight boxing title against Young Stribling, Georgia schoolboy, in a 12-round no-decision bout at Newark N. J.

The two boxers met before in Columbus, Ga., last October and conflicting decisions were reported as to who won the contest. McTigue declared he was the winner, and asserted he entered the ring with his right hand injured and virtually useless. Stribling was just as insistent that he won the bout. Both boxers were confident of victory tonight.

"I'll stop him inside of 10 rounds," McTigue said. "It's the first time I ever boasted before a battle but there is more than ordinary ring rivalry between us. I fought him a draw before with one broken hand; what will I do to him with two mitts? I've trained for a knockout and I never was in better condition."

The 19-year-old Stribling, supported by "Ma" and "Pa" and his brother, had ideas exactly opposite to those expressed by the champion.

"I'll be light heavyweight champion of the world after the bout," he stated, "and if McTigue didn't have his handpicked referee at Columbus I would be wearing the crown today. I outpointed him then and I'll knock him out tomorrow night."

Stribling must knock the champion out to take the title unless Michael fails to respond to the bell at any round.

Ring experts were inclined to give McTigue a slight edge over his youthful antagonist but admitted the possibility of a Stribling victory. McTigue has been nursing his injured hand and has not fought since his October battle with his present challenger the latter has engaged in numerous short contests.

Among many boxing fans McTigue ruled a slight favorite in the betting although it was reported that few wagers had been made because of the fact that the bout would be a no-decision affair.

The two boxers will enter the ring in the best of condition. McTigue has trained harder, perhaps, than he ever has trained before and Stribling's many bouts in different parts of the country have kept him in first class shape. He has worked under the careful supervision of "Pa" Stribling, and "Ma" has watched his diet. McTigue has filled his camp with sparring partners of varying sizes and has practiced punching from every angle and every distance.

OFFICIALS TURN OUT LIGHTS ON ATHLETIC MEET

Louisville, Ky., March 29. — With one international interscholastic indoor record broken twice by the same entrant, and two and two-fifths seconds unofficially clipped from another, the annual athletic carnival, sponsored by the Louisville Amateur Athletic federation, came to a halt at midnight while an attempt was made to persuade county officials to permit the running off of the few remaining events. At midnight lights in the hall were turned off, representatives of county officials declaring the place was a "public amusement hall" and as such could not remain open after midnight on Saturday.

Norma Zilk, 15-year old Chicago girl, twice broke the national indoor interscholastic record for girls in the 50-yard dash. Her time in the trial was 10 1-5, bettering the record previously held by Miss Ethel Dryer, of Chicago, by the three-fifths of a second. In the finals she covered the distance in ten seconds.

Nellie Todd, Chicago, took two and two-fifths seconds from the record for the 80 yard low hurdles when she negotiated the distance in 11 seconds. This record, however, will not be recognized by the Amateur Athletic union at Miss Todd broke one of the hurdles.

H. Phillips, Butler college freshman, furnished the surprise of the night when he covered 880 yards in 2:01 2-5 to win from Joie Ray, Illinois Athletic club. Butler fans here said it was Phillips' first race.

AMERICA WILL ENTER OLYMPIC RUGBY MATCHES

Paris, March 30.—Three matches will comprise the competition in the rugby football games at the coming Olympic games. The countries competing will be the United States, France and Rumania. The team winning two out of three games will be crowned champion. France will play Rumania May 4, Rumania will meet the United States May 8 and France will play the United States May 11.

Should France defeat Rumania and Rumania beat the United States, and the United States in turn win from France, making all three countries tied with one victory each, the competition will be continued, the first team losing two matches being eliminated and the survivors playing the final. Experts figure that both the United States and France will defeat Rumania and that the May 11 match between France and the United States will prove to be the final.

FALL RIVER SOCCER TEAM WINS AMERICAN TITLE

St. Louis, Mo., March 30.—The Fall River, Mass., football club, with a smooth running attack, and well-nigh impenetrable defence, became America's soccer champion today by defeating the Vesper-Buicks, of St. Louis, aggressive contenders for the national title, 4 to 3.

Fall River displayed faultless passing, shooting with deadly accuracy, which bewildered the Buicks, who only occasionally showed the form which made them victors over western competitors. The valuable right foot of Harold Brittan, the easterners' ace, scored the final goal, one-half minute before the end. A clear day and dry field, made playing conditions ideal.

Foreign Results.

London, March 29. — Newcastle United and Aston Villa qualified to enter the final of the English association cup series when they won their soccer matches in the semi-final round today. Newcastle defeated Manchester City, 2 to 0 and Aston Villa triumphed over Burnley, 3 to 0.

INDIANS ARE CERTAIN TO BE IN THE RACE

By Stoney McLinn

Lakeland, Fla., March 29—A visitor to the spring practice headquarters of the Cleveland Indians is positively thrilled. From "Old Gray Eagle"—otherwise Tristram Speaker, the manager—down to the most lowly rookie, there is enthusiasm, comradeship and confidence which is pretty to look upon.

That they will be "1-2-3" contenders from start to finish is the firm conviction of the Indians. The pennant? Well, mention a team that will beat them to the finish line and they'll present a dozen reasons why you are wrong.

Frankly, not one of the effervescent Ohioans stated outright that the Indians would win the 1924 pennant. But since no other club in the American League was granted first place by the confident Cleveland company, draw your own conclusions.

The return of George Burns to the garments worn by Ohio's b. b. Indians is the principal reason for the great joy. Cleveland fans announce to the world that the pennant would have been theirs last season had Burns been the first sacker from April to October.

There were some murmurings of disapproval last winter when the Indians traded Steve O'Neill, catcher; Wambsganss, infielder, and Connolly, outfielder, for Burns, Chick Fewster, infielders, and Al Walters, catcher.

Now all is "jake" in Cleveland. The fans have become convinced that Burns alone is worth more than O'Neill Wamby and Connolly.

Southpaw Batsmen

Jamieson, who hit .342, will play left field and lead off; Summa, whose average with the bat was .328, will hit second and grab flies in right field; Boss Speaker, who finished with the high mark of .380 in 1923, will hit third and do his stuff in center field. All are left-hand batsmen.

Joe Sewell, who has the shortstop berth clinched and who slapped the apple for .355 last season, probably will do the cleanup job—bat in fourth position. Then will come Burns and Stephenson, both right-hand hitters, whose averages in the '23 campaign were .319, respectively.

Lutzke, the boy with the mammoth hands who plays third base, hit .256 last season. He hit .325 for Kansas City in '22. The alibi for him is that he was 25 pounds off in weight last year, now tips the beam at 181 pounds, his normal heft this spring, and will be himself at the plate—a .300 or better batsman.

Then there is Glenn Myatt, who probably will do the bulk of the catching and who batted .370 to top the American Association batsmen in 1922. Glenn hit .236 last campaign with the Indians, but promises to climb into the select set this coming season.

Coveleskie Comes Back

Another reason why Cleveland players and b. b. supporters are jubilant is because of the spring camp comeback of Stannie Coveleskie, former ace of the almost extinct tribe of spitball pitchers. The coal miner was a faded flower last campaign. He won 14 and lost fourteen, though he led in effectiveness with the low average of 2.76 earned runs per game.

George Uhle, who was a glutton for punishment last season — who took part in 54 games, winning 36, more than any other A. L. pitcher, and losing sixteen, is in tiptop shape at the training base. He is touted for another big year.

Sherry Smith, made over by Speaker after Uncle Wilbert Robinson cast his adrift, won nine and lost six last season. He is expected to do as well in '24 with his ancient left arm.

However, the faces of the Cleveland party in the Florida practice camp fairly beam when Shaute and Edwards, two young southpaws who came to the fore in the closing of last campaign, are mentioned. Shaute, particularly, is rated a big winner.

O'Neill Will Be Missed

Among the newcomers on his staff, "Gray Eagle" seems to prefer Roy, from Chattanooga, in the Southern League; Vondrashek, a semipro last year; Jeric, a Cleveland sand-lotter who made a name for himself in the play-off for the independent championship, and Kuhn, a tall, well-built kid who learned his baseball at Michigan Agricultural College. All employ the right arm.

To catch these pitchers the Indians have on their payroll Glenn Myatt and Luke Sewell, with the club last season, and Al Walters, obtained from the Red Sox. None is a star—not yet.

Infield Good Defensively

Cleveland's infield is settled. Burns on first, Stephenson on second, Joe Sewell at short and Lutzke on third will play their positions in every game which finds them physically fit.

Defensively, the quartet is satisfactory. There are flashier infields, but none that will work more earnestly. Burns is not so active as he once was, but he is a capital fielder just the same.

The utility infields probably will be Brower, sub first sacker but also an outfielder of real ability; Chick Fewster, obtained from the Red Sox in the big trade, and Larry Gardner, who will do more coaching than actual playing.

Knode, a first baseman who was with the club last season; Thompson, a lad who played fine ball for California University, and Turk, a semipro kid from Pittsburgh, are recruits who are trying out for infield positions. All three may be sent out for minor league experience.

With Jamieson, Speaker and Summa as regular outfielders, the one drawback is that all bat left-handed. And the only outfield candidate who swings a club the right way is Clarke, last season a member of the Birmingham club, of the Southern Association.

Summing up, as it were, we should say that Cleveland has strengthened its club where it was weak by adding Burns; the loss of O'Neill as a catcher may not be felt. The Indians will have a hard-hitting club; it's pitching staff will loom larger if Coveleskie delivers.

SPORT WORLD BRIEFS

The National Lacrosse Association of Canada was organized in 1867.

The annual championships of the Pacific Northwest Golf Association will be staged at Vancouver, B. C., the week of June 23.

William E. Hammond is the real name of Capt Bob Roper, the well-known heavyweight pugilist. He is 29 years old and a native of Mississippi.

Among the rookies with the New York Giants, Pitcher Wayland Dean looks to have the best chance of becoming a fixture with the McGraw outfit.

Some years ago two Portuguese pugilists engaged in a prize fight of 1127 rounds. They fought six hours a day, stopping at noon to eat and smoke.

President Coolidge has been signed by the Washington club to throw out the first ball when the Senators open the season with the Athletics on April 15.

Jim Thorpe, the famous Indian athlete and former major league baseball player, has been engaged to play the coming season with a semi-professional team in Boston.

From the very strong showing made by their pitching staff in the practice games it looks as though the Cleveland Indians should be well up in the league standing this year.

The Portland (Ore.) Gun Club will pay the expenses of Frank Troeh, former world's champion trapshooter, when he goes to Paris this summer to compete in the Olympic matches. Troeh is a member of the Portland club.

Bob Fitzsimmons' first appearance in the ring was at an amateur boxing tournament given by Jem Mace, a Timaru, New Zealand, in the early eighties. On that occasion "Rub Robel," the future world's champion, knocked out four men in one night, and was rewarded with a gold watch.

Probably the oldest athlete to figure as an active contestant in the coming Olympic games will be Lew Richardson, the long-distance runner, who will be among the members of the South African team. Despite his 44 years, Richardson still holds the South African record for four miles.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES

TO A MOUSE

Wee, sleekit, cowering, timorous beastie,
O, what a panic's in thy breastie!
Thou needna start awa' sae hasty,
With bickering brattle!
I wad be laith to rin an' chase thee,
With murdering pattle.

I'm truly sorry man's dominion
Has broken nature's social union,
And justifies that ill opinion
Which makes thee startle
At me, thy poor earth-born companion,
And fellow-mortal!

I doubt na, whyles, but thou may thieve;
What then? poor beastie, thou's maist hae!
A daimen icker in a thrave
Is a sma' request;
I'll get a blessin' in the lave,
And never miss it.

Thy wee bit housie, too, in ruin!
It's silly wa's the winds are strewin'!
And naething now to big a new ane
O' foggage green!
And bleak December's wind ensuin'
Baith snell and keen!

Thou saw the field laid bare and waste,
And weary Winter comin' fast,
And cosie here, beneath the blast,
Thou thought to dwell,
Till, crash! the cruel coulter past
Out through thy cell.

That wee bit heap o' leaves and stibble
Has cost thee many a weary nibble!
Now thou's turned out, for all thy trouble,
But house or haniel,
To thole the Winter's sleety dribble,
An' cranreuch cauld!

But, Mousie, thou art no thy lane,
In proving foresight may be vain:
The best-laid scheme o' mice an' men
Gang aft a-gley,
And lea'e us naught but grief and pain
For promised joy.

Still thou art blest, compared with me!
The present only toucheth thee;
But, och! I backward cast my e'e
On prospects drear!
An' forward, though I canna see
I guess and fear.

—Robert Burns.

MY NATIVE LAND

Breathes there a man, with soul so dead
Who never to himself hath said,
"This is my own—my native land!"
Whose heart hath ne'er within him burned,
As home his footsteps he hath turned
From wandering on a foreign strand?
If such there breathe, go, mark him well;
For him no minstrel raptures swell;
High though his title, proud his name,
Boundless his wealth as wish can claim—
Despite those titles, power, and pelf,
The wretch, concentrated all in self,
Living, shall forfeit fair renown,
And, doubly dying, shall go down
To the vile dust, from whence he sprung,
Unwept, unhonored, and unsung.

—Sir Walter Scott.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES

At least five boys and girls who wrote letters to the Wide Awakes during the past ten days are going to be disappointed when they do not see them in print on the Wide Awake page. They will without doubt be quite surprised when they learn the reason why their letters do not appear. The reason is because they neglected to sign their names to their letters. Of course, without signatures, Uncle Jed has no way of telling who wrote the letters.

Four of these boys and girls very evidently forgot this very important matter and the other writer, for some reason, signed simply "Anonymous." All of the letters were exceptionally good and one or two of them would have gotten into the prize book list if the writers had only signed their names so that Uncle Jed would know who to send the books to.

Hardly a week goes by but what one or two writers neglect to give their names. Very often boys and girls give their names but fail to give the name of the town, city or village they live in. Addresses are just as important as signatures for should the letter be a prize winner Uncle Jed would not know where to send the prize. Sometimes, too, Wide Awakes who live in the larger cities and towns do not give their street and number. This makes it difficult for the mail man to deliver the prize books as there may be several people in the city who have the same name as the writer.

It is a good plan to look over your letter before you seal it up and make sure you have signed it and given your address, with street and number, R. F. D. route or postoffice box number.

WINNERS OF PRIZE BOOKS

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

POSTAGE STAMPS

Dear Uncle Jed: The making of postage stamps requires almost as much care as paper money and many of the processes are the same. These are drawn and executed with great care, and when they're finished, they are put in proper sizes. Sometimes artists have to make these several times before a satisfactory one is found.

When a suitable one has been selected, they are sent to engravers which are the best the country can afford. Each engraver works on a separate piece of steel. Sometimes he has to work on his part for a week or a month. When all parts are done they are assembled. This means they are put together in proper places to form one perfect die.

A postage stamp might be printed from this die but not used for this purpose. Billions of pieces go through the United States mail every year of which a larger part are letters. Postage stamps are printed in sheets of 400 each. Many presses are required for printing. Each one is in charge of a man and two girls. Each of the workmen has to keep a record of the number of sheets used and so on. Many workers are needed after the stamps are printed because there are many more things to do.

The first machine for punching holes in postage stamps was made in 1854. A postage stamp goes through the hands of two hundred people when done.

ABOUT NATHAN HALE

Dear Uncle Jed: In history we have been studying about Nathan Hale. It is especially interesting to me because he was born in the town I live in, Nathan Hale was born in Coventry, June 6 1755. Hale graduated from Yale college. He taught school at East Haddam and later in New London. He was one of the first men to volunteer to go to Cambridge from New London. He fought bravely and skilfully at Long Island. He volunteered to act as a spy for Washington. This means to go into the enemy's camp and get all the information you can. He got safely into the camp, procured his plans and started back, but was recognized by a Tory cousin who betrayed him. How, the general offered to free him, if he would join the British army and fight on the side of the British, but he refused. He was hanged as a spy. Hale's last words were, "I only regret that I have but one life to lose for my country."

A TRUE STORY

Dear Uncle Jed: It is a long time since I have written to you and the Wide Awakes. I hope you will enjoy this true story. Shep is a little black dog. He belongs to Mr. Jones who has charge of a large office. While Mr. Jones sweeps he tells Shep to go and shake the mats. There are seven of them, and away goes the dog at his master's command, with the mats in his mouth, beats it against the pavement.

If any one attempts to touch his work he will bark and growl. When he has finished he carries the mats back in the office and puts them in their places.

A MOTOR BOAT

Dear Uncle Jed: One day my uncle made a visit to New York and while he was there he bought a motorboat and had it shipped by train to Providence where we were waiting for him.

He arrived in Providence late that afternoon. The motorboat had just arrived. My uncle took the motorboat to the river and he said that he would take us home in it and that he would take us to see the submarines.

So we went after dinner and had a very nice time and saw many submarines.

ON THE ICE

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about an afternoon on the ice this winter. One day about three o'clock I thought of a skating party which was on a pond about a half mile away.

I asked mother and father if I could go. They said yes. So I fixed my skates for the pond and reached there in time to put them on with the others.

We skated for a long time and played hocky and can in the sing and many other games. After we were tired of skating we ate some cake and drank some coffee and took off our skates. I bid my friends good night and went home.

A GHOST STORY

Dear Uncle Jed: It had been a very quiet night when I went off to bed by myself. My room seemed to be haunted. It gave me such a feeling of being in company with a ghost that I was paralyzed with fright. I seemed to see a very thin person clad in white standing before me. I soon failed to see the figure and hurriedly undressed and jumped into bed.

During my long sleep I seemed to have rested. I had been asleep for about four hours, when there arose such a clatter that to my surprise I jumped from my bed and looked around the room. Right in the midst of the room was a slender frightful figure, I was so dreadfully scared that I didn't know what to do. I thought of an idea and soon carried my plan out. I threw a pillow and soon solved the question whether the figure was real or imaginary.

Something was made of paper on that ugly looking creature for my pillow hit him and made the paper crackle. Someone began to laugh. I then recognized my younger brother's voice. My brother had put a flour bag and a sheet over his head and looked exactly like a ghost. He has promised me never to disturb my sleep again.

ISREAL PUTNAM

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first time I have written to you and I am going to tell you about Isreal Putnam. He was a very poor man and he lived on a small farm. His neighbors were very kind to him.

One year an incident happened that is always remembered about him. His neighbors kept a small number of sheep and as time went on the sheep kept disappearing. On one certain night a group of farmers watched and saw with their own eyes the tragedy. At last they found the den and they set a rugged trap which they supposed would hold the wolf. They tended the trap regularly but the wolf was never seen.

But one night they went to the trap not finding the wolf but one of his claws. They then knew that the wolf would not be foolish enough to go in that part of the den again. So they then went to Putnam for help. Thus he gave his help and went with them to the den. As they approached the den he said to them "now I am going to tie this rope around my waist. This done he crawled into the den and as he was about to turn a corner he saw a pair of green shiny eyes. He raised the rifle which he had in his hand and fired. His answer was a groan which he expected. Thus he was praised for his deed which no other man would have tried to do.

A GOOD LITTLE MOTHER

Dear Uncle Jed: This is the first letter I have written to you. I am going to tell you about. A Good Little Mother. There is a little girl who is a very good little mother. Every day when she comes home from school she has to take care of her sister's baby. When it cries she takes it in her arms and walks up and down the sidewalk until it falls asleep. Then she puts the baby into its carriage.

THE TOBACCO INDUSTRY

Dear Uncle Jed: Tobacco is grown in the West Indies, Central America, India and the United States. The states of the United States which raise tobacco are Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio, Pennsylvania, Wisconsin and Connecticut. Tobacco needs a warm climate and wet, rich soil. To plant tobacco they first cover the ground with wood and brush and burn it to kill the insects. Then they have to plow the ground and the tobacco is planted. It is cut just one inch from the ground and carried to barns to be dried.

The United States produces more than one hundred million dollars worth a year. It is used for smoking and chewing. The cities exporting tobacco are Louisville, Richmond, Tampa, Havana and Baltimore. It is one of the most important industries of the United States.

A WRONG IMPRESSION

Dear Uncle Jed: I couldn't understand my aunt's enthusiasm because she had a box seat at the theatre. I thought a box would be a very uncomfortable seat and I was sure I didn't want to sit on one. One day I went to a show with her, and I wanted to know where they kept the box seats. When I saw what they really were, I was very much surprised. I'm sure I would be enthusiastic too, if I could sit in one.

ST VALENTINES DAY

Dear Uncle Jed: It was near St. Valentine Day and all of the children in the neighborhood were saving their money so they could buy Valentines to send. Valentine Day came and the children gathered around and made valentines at school. They had paper of various colors and cut out pictures from some old magazines. Some of children made valentines just as good as if they were bought. Some of the fun began in the morning. All of the children found a valentine at school. Most of them were very pretty.

MY NEW GRAPEVINE

Dear Uncle Jed: One day I had just found a bush and I did not know what kind of a bush it was, so I thought that I might as well plant it and find out. So I planted it, and when I put the bush in the ground remembered that we were going to move a week later, but I said that I would leave it in the ground.

When we had moved I started to get lonesome but after a while I got some friends and we had a lot of fun.

About five weeks later we said that we were going to move back to the same house that we lived in before, and I forgot about my grapevine bush.

Just as we got into the house I said that I would go and see some of my friends, and just as I got out of the house I saw a big grapevine and then I remembered that it was the bush that I planted the last time we lived there. I was much surprised to see it so big in such a little time.

MY GEESE

Dear Uncle Jed: This is my first story I am writing to you. So I want to tell you about my geese. Last year I had a pair of geese.

One day one goose laid an egg but it fell out of the nest and broke. So I waited until it laid some more. Then my mother set a hen. We had good luck because a little goose came out of every egg. A few days later I took the geese over to the brook They began to swim and the hen began to cluck.

A STORY ABOUT RABBITS

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you something about rabbits. Rabbits, and their first cousins, hares are kept for pets, and also for food and fur. They must have a house or hutch with some straw in it for a bed, and must be kept very dry and clean. Their food is all kinds of vegetables, cabbages, turnips, both root and tops, carrots, root and tops, celery tops, chickweed, dandelions, plaintains and other weeds, corn, oats, etc. They must have fresh water to drink. If they are allowed to run, see that they do not do damage to your neighbors' gardens. I hope all the Wide Awakes will enjoy reading this story.

A VISIT TO STORRS

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about my visit to Storrs college. One Sunday afternoon we took a ride to Storrs college. There we saw chickens and pigeons, geese and cows and sheep. We saw little calves and poultry. We saw the boys milk the cows and get the eggs from the henhouses. When we were starting for home I was tired and I went to sleep in the car. When we got home it was about nine o'clock.

LONGFELLOW

Dear Uncle Jed: Longfellow was born Feb. 27, 1807, in a low rambling house in Portland, Maine. Portland was then a brisk little town with a fair lumber trade. Longfellow and his comrades would often go down to the wharves and listen to the old sailors tell stories of their adventures. When he was fourteen years old he entered Bowdoin College. He was a very bright scholor and graduated with honors. A professor of Bowdoin College asked him to teach a class of modern languages. He went abroad to study them and when he returned he taught in Bowdoin College, and then went abroad again.

When he again returned he taught at Harvard. While he was here he wrote many poems. Some of the poems he wrote are Hiawatha, The Psalm of Life and The Childrens Hour. Forty of his poems are set to music. He wrote many poems for children and when he died children and grown people in both Europe and America mourned him.

THE NORTH STAR

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you of our school book named North Star. All of the children in the North Grammar school helped to make it. In it are compositions, poems, jokes and ads. Each child has a turn to take it home. It is very interesting.

EASTER

Dear Uncle Jed: Easter is one of the most joyful days of all the Christian years. During the second century after the birth of Christ, Easter was the cause of a serious dispute between the Christians Jewish and those of the Gentile descent, as to the proper date of the festival. It was finally decided that Easter day should always be the first Sunday after the full moon which occurs next after March 21st, and if the full moon occurs on a Sunday then Easter day is the Sunday following. This year Easter Sunday comes on April 20.

A NARROW ESCAPE

Dear Uncle Jed: It was summer in the Berkshires, glorious summer, with her balmy air, lovely flowers and smiling skies. High upon one of the cliffs of the mountain, a little cottage was built. In this abode lived Bobby and Sue Brown, their mother and father and two little fox terriers.

One afternoon Bobby and Sue decided to go fishing. They bade their mother an affectionate farewell and started for the little mountain stream which was some distance from the cottage.

About an hour later, with goodly number of fish they started home "I say," began Sue. Before she could finish the sentence she slipped and with a cry, she fell down the precipice. Down, down, she went, until she landed in an unconscious heap on the soft moss below.

After one horrified look Bobby ran to the cottage as fast as his little legs could run, and, between gasps for breath told the terrible tale. Mr. Brown at once went down the mountain and in about an hour he returned with poor Sue. The doctor was summoned and he declared she was not injured greatly as the moss had saved her. She recovered in about a week but to this day she has not forgotten her narrow escape.

REPAIRING THE M. E. CHURCH

Dear Uncle Jed: I have not written to you and the Wide Awakes for a long while, so I thought I would write and tell you about repairing the M. E. church.

Early last fall the M. E. church at Voluntown started having suppers so as to get enough money to paint and repair the outside of the church. They succeeded in getting enough money so started to work. They painted it and had a new door made and also fixed the belfry. When this was completed they again started having suppers. This time to repair the inside. When we received nearly enough money they started to work on the inside. They also helped a great deal. They are going to paint the whole interior and put down a new carpet and perhaps lay part of a new floor. There was no church for two Sundays as the church is not repaired yet.

OUR FLAG

Dear Uncle Jed: According to the Institution there were many forms of early flags, and Colonial types were used by individual colonies and militia regiments, before the flag of the United States was established by Continental Congress on June 14, 1777, now celebrated as Flag day. The National Museum has an early naval star type flag said to have been flown by John Paul Jones during the war of the Revolution. From the time of the revolution the stars and stripes have varied. There were thirteen stars during the revolution, fifteen in the War of 1812, twenty-nine in the Mexican War, thirty-three in the Civil War, forty-five in the Spanish war and forty-eight today.

The stripes were changed first from thirteen to fifteen and then back again to thirteen.

The American flag of the highest historic and most value to the whole country is in the National Museum collections. It is the original Star Spangled Banner, which flew over Fort McHenery in Baltimore harbor during bombardment in September, 1814. I hope all the Wide Awakes like my story.

THOUGHTS OF MOTHER

Dear Uncle Jed: A boy, who was later to be the governor of the state of Massachusetts was once nearly drowned. On a bright summer day when blossoming flowers perfumed the air, he set out to the river to have a row. On reaching the center of the river the boat capsized; but, after a strenuous swim of a mile he got safely to shore.

On reaching home, he told his mother about his adventure. The mother asked him, "What kept your strength?" The boy replied promptly, "I thought of you, mother."

A WALK IN THE COUNTRY

Uncle Jed: One day we went for a walk. After we had been walking quite awhile we saw a squirrel. We thought the little squirrel was gathering nuts for the coming winter. As we approached the tiny creature it was so frightened that it ran and hid among the bushes.

We walked on a little farther and we met some children and the children had pails full of wild cherries. As it was getting late we thought we would start for home. We went a different way than we came. On our way home we gathered flowers and also apples and nuts. When we arrived home it was about 6 o'clock. We all went and had our supper and went to bed early.

A QUEER PET

Dear Uncle Jed: Jim was the third pet crow we had, and he was the funniest. He was one of a family of three crows, and when papa cut down the nest the other two were killed. Jim must have been lonesome for he would perch on the shoulder of Catherine (my sister) and tuck his soft head under her hair as though it were his mother's wing. He was very fond of fat beetles, and once nearly choked himself in an attempt to swallow a particularly fat one. Once he thought the nipple from Nathan's bottle was a beetle. Nathan is my baby brother. Once Robert found a little green snake on the lawn, and Jim would have that, too. He began to peck at the tail end, and the snake wrapped itself around Jim's beak. Elizabeth (the oldest of my sisters) rescued the poor snake, who crawled slowly away. Poor Jim is dead now though we don't know what caused his death. We think it was a big rooster, which once attacked our pet. We had his supposed murderer for a Sunday dinner a few days later.

A WEASEL

Dear Uncle Jed: The weasel generally works at night but if it is real hungry it will attempt to enter a henhouse in the day time.

It is known to be very destructive. A weasel usually attacks the fowl by the throat and drawls the blood and then attacks another, leaving the first one behind.

I know one of our neighbors had 15 prize winning pullets of which he was very proud. One night a weasel entered the pen and killed every one. The farmer was very angry and declared he would get that weasel if it took him a month.

He watched day and night. On the tenth day he was rewarded for all his careful watching for he captured the weasel.

The hide now hangs on the side of the henhouse where the weasel had once enjoyed himself by having an undisturbed chicken dinner.

ORANGES

Dear Uncle Jed: Oranges grow only in a warm climate. They need warmth and sunshine. Their native home is in eastern Asia, but they are cultivated in Florida and California.

The orange tree is very beautiful. It has glossy green leaves all the year round. Its white blossoms are very fragrant. They are often used in bridal wreaths. The deep yellow fruit is an ornament to the tree. The ripe oranges are carefully picked, wrapped in tissue paper, and packed in wooden boxes, or crates to be shipped to all parts of the country. When you eat an orange you are drinking the sunshine of Florida or California, which the sweet juicy fruit has hoarded for you.

THE STUDY OF BIRDS

Dear Uncle Jed: We took ten cents to school and for this we got six booklets, six pictures of birds and a button.

We have to learn about these birds. There are six pictures of them, two of each picture, for one is colored and the other one isn't. That's the one we color ourselves.

I will write the names of the birds: The cardinal, phoebe, red winged blackbird, goldfinch, crow, and the purple martin.

We have studied about the crow and the purple martin and have colored their pictures. The ones who colored or drew theirs the best had them hung up. Mine was hung up and also some of my friends.

We have learned that the purple martin catches the mosquitoes which harm us very much in the summer time.

MY NEW BICYCLE

Dear Uncle Jed: Last week I received a bicycle which I had sent for two weeks before. I unpacked it at the station and rode home on it. It is painted a bright blue with blue mudguards.

The next day I rode to Jewett City and coming home I nearly got hit by an automobile.

One day I got caught in a storm while riding to Baltic. I stayed at a farmer's house until the storm was finished. When I got home I changed my cloths because I was very wet.

WHERE WAS THE CAT?

Dear Uncle Jed—I am sending you a story and the name of it is, A Question. A man once had a cat, of which he took great care. He had ordered that a pound of mincemeat should be given it every morning, but even with this it seemed to thrive very badly. One morning the man noticed that it had wasted away to a mere skeleton. So he called his boy to him, and asked if he had given the cat a pound of mincemeat that day, as he had ordered.

The boy replied that he had, but the man would not believe him, and said that he had either pocketed the money or eaten the meat himself. He ordered the scales and the cat to be brought, and it was found that the cat just weighed a pound. "There," said the boy, "I told you I gave him a pound of meat this morning." "Then," said the man, "if this is the pound of meat, where is the cat?"

STATE HUMANE SOCIETY WATCHFUL FOR CHILDREN

That the Connecticut Humane society is accomplishing much from time to time, in the way of relieving children of abuse and neglect, is indicated by the following references: Because a little girl ten years old was unable to do certain chores about the farm her stepmother assaulted her and cruelly beat her with a strap. Both of her eyes were discolored and there were many other marks on her face, also marks of the strap on back and arms. An officer of the society found the child at a neighbor's, and brought her to the home of the society on Washington street in Hartford. The full record in this case is a very long one but the brief facts—the stepmother was arrested and convicted on the charge of assault and the child was given into the custody of the society until a suitable home was found.

Unhappy days began for a family of five children when they were left to the mercies of a worthless father after the death of their mother. Officers of the society used every effort to impress upon the father his responsibility and duty but finally gave up hope and petitioned for the commitment of four of the children. An older boy was placed in a family home. While a charge of neglecting his children was pending against the father he was arrested on a complaint of selling liquor. After his release on bail he disappeared. The police are helping the society to locate the father, who if found will be made to serve out a suspended jail sentence.

While the above are but two instances, in 1923, the society had under its supervision 1,031 families, concerning 3,562 children who were either being ill-treated, neglected, without proper guardianship, or in moral danger. 272 children were provided with hospital or medical care and 333 children were placed with relatives or through other agencies.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT

By DAVID CORY

Stopped by Danny Fox

In the spring a budding fancy
Turns into a flower rare.
In the spring the hopes of summer
Blossoms beautiful and fair.

But, of course, Little Jack Rabbit didn't know this. He thought Miss Springtime Wind brought the flowers in her apron and scattered them here and there and everywhere, and that Mr. Merry Sun walked over the big blue sky for exercise.

The Old Bramble Patch was turning green and the pretty crocuses were coming up through the warm, soft earth in Lady Love's garden. The canary bird was seeking from her cage to watch Bobbie Redbrest build a nest in an old apple tree.

"Heigh, ho!" laughed the bunny boy, skipping out of the front door. "I guess I'll make a call on Granddaddy Bullfrog and off he hopped to the Old Duck Pond. But before he had taken 22 hops, something happened. Doesn't it seem too bad that something is going to spoil this little rabbit's fun?

All of a sudden, just like that, out sprang Danny Fox from behind the Old Fence and stood right in front of the little bunny before he could jump into a hollow stump.

"Good morning," whined Danny Fox, as nice as you please, licking his lips with his long red tongue and turning his eyes crossways.

"Oh, I'm not feeling as well as I did a minute ago," answered the bunny boy, looking all around for a place to hide, licking his lips.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear!" thought the little rabbit, "I'm done for."

Just then, all of a sudden, the Yellow Dog Tramp jumped through the bushes. Away went Danny Fox as fast as he could run.

"In the nick of time," barked the Yellow Dog Tramp, wagging his tail. The next minute, who should come by but dear Uncle Lucky himself in the Bunnysnowobile. Beg pardon, I mean the Luckymobile, for now that spring had come, and the snow had melted, the old gentleman rabbit had taken off the four little red sleds and put back the wheels.

"Come out for a ride in the Luckymobile.

The wheels are just dying to spin. First wipe off your feet and hop on the seat.

Hold tight to your big diamond pin. For we're going to go like a whirlwind of snow,

So, put on your goggles and pull down your cap,
For we're going to go just lickety-clap."

He shouted.

And if the Policeman Dog doesn't stop them for breaking the speed limit, I'll tell you more about these little rabbits and the Yellow Dog Tramp.

POETRY

The City of God

City of God, how broad and far
Outspread thy walls sublime!
The true thy chartered freemen are
Of every age and clime.

One holy Church, one army strong,
One steadfast high intent,
One working band, one harvest song,
One King Omnipotent.

How purely hath thy speech come down
From man's primeval youth;
How grandly hath thine empire grown
Of Freedom, Love and Truth.

How gleam thy watchfires through the night,
With never fainting ray;
How rise they towers, serene and bright,
To meet the dawning day!

In vain the surge's angry shock,
In vain the drifting sands;
Unharmed, upon the Eternal Rock
The Eternal City stands.

—Samuel Johnson.

The Things I Love

These are the things that I love best,
These are the dreams I'll hold
Against my saintly thrilling heart
When I am old;
The color of the sky at night,
When it still throbs with sunset light;
The dawn's first gold;
The shading of the trees that turn
So scarlet, and the fires that burn
On my hearthstone—
These are the things that I love best,
That I will hold against my breast
When youth has left me, and I rest
The end alone.

The purpose pansies that I plant
When early summer wakes,
The green of leafy dew-kissed woods
When morn first breaks,
The irridescence of the sea
That creeps so far away from me!
The blue lakes.

A dress I loved, of silent gray;
A silken sash of yesterday;
A prism that once hung beside
A window when the daytime died;
The wonder of a baby's eyes,
That seemed to speak of paradise,
And love's first kiss—
These are the things that I love best,
That I will hold against my breast,
The while I whisper, "Life itself
Was less than this!"

—Margaret E. Sangster, in Saturday Evening Post.

Two hundered and ninety-eight vessels of the American merchant marine were lost during the year. 19 were sold to alien flags and 279 were abandoned, their tonnage being: Lost, 127,694; sold, 219,401; abandoned, 167,816.

Lord Beaverbrook has brought the Pall Mall Gazette which was founded in 1865. It was based on the "Pendennis"-Thackeray idea of a journal "written by a gentleman for gentlemen," and was noted for its high literary quality.

The two teachers of the Colored City (Md.) school, Mrs. Loella Crosse and Miss Clara Gunby, feature the need of extra equipment for the reading course and seeing no money with which to buy it, performed janitor service for some time and used the money thus saved to buy the materials.

The trumpet flower, or datura, found in most tropical countries, although not deadly in the open air, is highly dangerous in a room. Unknowing people, fascinated by its coloring and scent, take it indoors, and soon fall into a trancelike slumber, developing into a deadly stupor, from which they may possibly never awaken.

A newspaper of St. Petersburg, Fla., in its issue of January 13 carried the notice: "Free today. Don't pay." It was the 72 time the paper had been without price to readers, although it has had a standing offer for more than thirteen years to give copies away when the sun declines to show itself to the "Sunshine City."

A strange medical case in a small Missouri town has been described. A man complained of pains in his feet. His physicians removed his teeth but the pains continue. They removed his tonsils, but still the pains remained. As a final resort they removed his shoe and the X-ray revealed a long needle imbedded in his heel.

PIMPLY? WELL, DON'T BE

People Notice It. Drive Them Off with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

A pimply face will not embarrass you much longer if you get a package of Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. The skin should begin to clear after you have taken the tablets a few nights.

Cleanse the blood, bowels and liver with Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets, the successful substitute for calomel. Have no sickness or pain after taking them.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets do that which calomel does, and harmonize effectively, but their action is gentle and safe instead of severe and violent.

No one who takes Olive Tablets is ever cursed with a "dark brown mouth," a bad breath, a dull, listless, "all-gone" feeling, constipation, torpid liver, bad disposition or pimply face.

Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color.

Dr. Edwards spent years among patients afflicted with liver and bowel complaints and Olive Tablets are the immensely effective result. Take one or two nightly for a week. See how much better you feel and look. 15c and 30c.

SATURDAY'S MARKET.

New York, March 29.—Stock prices drifted irregularly lower in the desultory trading which characterised today's short market session. Feeble efforts to prolong yesterday's late rally were frustrated shortly after the opening by profit-taking which spread through a great part of the industrial list and drove the average price of 20 leading stocks into new low ground for the year.

Absence of any well-defined speculative interest was reflected in the small volume of business transacted. The week's trade reviews indicated some uneasiness over the failure of future orders to develop on a larger scale, although the current trade activities were reported undiminished, uncertainty over the exact status of the trade situation, combined with the tendency to await further developments at Washington, deprived the market of what little buying had been present and caused some shading in railroad issues despite favorable earning reports.

Selling pressure today was directed mainly against the Independent Steel stocks, many of which were carried down to new low levels for the year. The attack apparently was based on reports of an increase in competition, and the fear that it would result in a further shading of prices. The reduction in buying by automobile manufacturers, it was felt, also might have a serious effect on earnings. While plants of the United States Steel corporation were reported this week operating at almost full capacity, first indications of a falling off in forward business appeared on the horizon.

Fear that the Independents would be the first to feel the effects of slackening business inspired selling of Gloss-Sheffield, Vanadium, American Steel Foundry and Youngstown, all of which moved into new low ground for 1924.

Selling pressure against the Industrial leaders was lightened, resulting in only fractional recessions in steel while Studebaker recorded a slight gain. Corn Products, which dropped 4 points in the first hour, later rallied on short covering and closed the day with a fractional net gain.

Although price changes throughout the rest of the list were narrow, they were sufficient to establish new minimum figures for the year in a number of the less active industrials. These included Continental Can, Pressed Steel Car, Miami Copper, General Cigar, Submarine Boat, Cluett-Peabody, Texas company, Pierce-Arrow preferred and Kelly-Springfield 8 per cent. preferred.

CANTERBURY PLAINS

Rev. A. Gallup with helpers of Danielson conducted a meeting last Sunday afternoon and another Thursday evening for a good size audience. The people seem to take an interest in these meetings and it is hoped that good will be accomplished by them. He is to be at the M. E. church Sunday afternoon, April 6 at three o'clock.

Miss Grace L. Dawley spent the week end of March 23 with her sister Mrs. John H. Perkins at New Haven.

B. E. Lewilleger of Danielson is to furnish a Raido concert at the grange Wednesday evening April 2.

Gertrude Hansen, Emma and Lucy Eastland, of Killingly High school have been spending the vacation with their parents here.

Mrs. Fred Kinne entertained her aunt and cousins of Norwich Thursday.

William Parkhurst who has been going to Trade school is spending a few weeks with his father.

Mrs. Irene Frink and children who had been visiting Mrs. Charles Frink at Ekonk, returned home Thursday.

Mr. and Mrs. M. Dobley are at their summer home here for an indefinite stay.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dean and Mrs. Allen Moffitt visited Mrs. Henry William last Sunday and attended church on the plains.

Mrs. James Pope left Friday night for Jewett City to care for Mrs. John Perkins, who was expected home Saturday from New Haven hospital.

Kin Of Stevenson's Deported

Robert W. Stevenson, cousin of the famous Robert Louis Stevenson, well known writer and poet, who was deported from the United States on the S. S. Assyria, as undesirable. He came here some time ago to sell some of his literature, but the editors and publishers here did not believe it to be as good as his world-famous cousin. He is returning to Glasgow, Scotland, bitterly railing at the America that would not receive his works.

Pursuant to a Judgment of the Superior Court for Windham County dated February 19, 1924, in the case of Flina Alberstad vs August Alberstad, to me directed as a committee to sell the following real estate as a whole at public auction on the premises to the highest bidder on April 15, 1924, at eleven o'clock in the forenoon. I will sell at said time and place by public auction to the highest bidder the following described real estate situated in the Town of Canterbury, County of Windham, State of Connecticut.

One certain farm or two tracts of land with all the buildings thereon standing situated on the North Society road so-called, in said Canterbury, containing about 112 acres, more or less, bounded and described as follows:

First tract, bounded east by land of Anne E. Dawson and land of Horace G. Crawford, south by land of Edward Baker, Abel Larson, west by land of Anne E. Dawson, north by land of Horace G. Crawford, land of William Hill, land of Anne E. Dawson. This tract is divided by the above mentioned highway. Second Tract, the woodlot containing about 12 acres located south from the North Society road, bounded and described as follows: Southerly by land of Horace G. Crawford and land of the Town of Canterbury, easterly by land of Edison and Carpenter, land of said Town of Canterbury and said Crawford, westerly by land of Hart W. Goff, land of Abbie Safford, northerly by stone wall abutting on land of said Crawford and said Edison and said Carpenter, said premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated March 24, 1919, and recorded Canterbury Land Records BK. 33, Page 282. Also another tract of land in said Canterbury bounded and described as follows: On the south side of the highway leading from the dwelling house of Frank E. Miller to North Society and known as the Pellet lot. Beginning at the northeast corner of land formerly owned by heirs of Hestus Hyde, and following said highway westerly about 28 rods to the northwest corner of said lot, thence southerly by fence or wall about 27 rods to the southwest corner, thence east by north by land formerly owned by Isaac Knight to land of said Hestus Hyde heirs, about 28 rods, thence north by east by said Hyde's land to place of beginning, containing three acres more or less, being the same premises conveyed to the Plaintiff and Defendant by deed dated July 10, 1918, and recorded Canterbury Land Records BK. 36, Page 23.

Excepting from said three described tracts a tract of land containing about 1 3-4 acres deeded by the Plaintiff and Defendant to Horace C. Crawford October 26, 1919, recorded Canterbury Land Records, Bk. 36, Page 10, said tract described as follows: One certain piece or parcel of land situated in Canterbury on the highway leading from Frank Miller's dwelling house to North Society School House, bounded and described as follows: North by land of Horace G. Crawford about 140 feet from northwest corner to stake and stones near gap in wall about 150 feet abutting on the west by land of said Alberstads, thence east to stake and stones at said highway about 250 feet, bounded south by land of said Alberstads, thence north on the west side of said highway to land of said Crawford about 250 feet bounded eastery by said highway, containing about 1 3-4 acres more or less.

Terms to be stated at time of sale.

TAFTVILLE

Miss Fawn Jewett, who has been spending a week with Miss Calena Adams of North Third avenue has returned to her home at Clark's Corners.

Miss Mathilde Stapfer of the Ponemah House has returned from New York, where she spent the past week.

Miss Dorothy Wood has resumed her studies at the State Normal school, at Willimantic, after passing the spring vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family of South Second avenue.

Notice has been received by Allan Bygle, Clerk of the Taftville Congregational church, that the new pipe organ which is to be installed in the church has been shipped from the factory of the Moller Organ company. Men will come from the factory to erect it. It is believed that the work will be completed by Easter, if the organ arrives within a reasonable time.

T. B. Dawson of Hartford was a business caller in the village on Friday.

Olaf Carlson has resigned his position with the No. 4 weaving department of the Ponemah company.

People who reside near the village of Occum, are having their residences wired for electricity, which is shortly to be furnished them by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

The New System Wet Wash is installing a new boiler at its plant on the Occum Road. The boiler weighs about 12tons, and it will be approximately three weeks before it will be in operation.

Men, posing as college students working their way through schools by taking subscriptions to well known magazines and newspapers, have been quite active in the village this week. Most of those who pay them the 98 cents, which is the price of a subscription, never hear from them again. It is said that one of the papers, that they are soliciting subscriptions for, suspended publication about two months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bousquet have taken a house on Terrace avenue and Mr. Bousquet has accepted a position with the Ponemah company.

A family arriving here from Canada this week stated that because of the quota law, entering this country was more difficult. The family applied at the American consulate for the necessary papers, after selling their farm and all they possessed, and were told that they would have to wait their turn, owing to the quota at the time being exhausted. They had to remain in Montreal about two months before they were allowed to cross the line.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chatelle have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

With the approach of the trout fishing season, local dealers are displaying poles and other fishing tackle.

Harry E. Bell of North Fourth avenue has resigned his position with the Ponemah company, because of ill health.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Charles F. Geer of 76 West Town street, was pleasantly surprised Friday, when in observance of her birthday, relatives and friends from New London and Waterbury, called at her home laden with good things preparatory to a dinner, although the date of the anniversary was Saturday, March 29th. Upon the arrival of her guests, Mrs. Geer, with the assistance of her sister, Mrs. Frank Case, soon had things in readiness for the following tempting dinner, which was served at 3 o'clock: Sword fish, mashed potatoes, mushrooms, Parker House rolls, celery, lettuce, cream puffs, charlotte rousse, and a fruit and nut birthday cake made by Mrs. Case. Besides a number of gold pieces, also box of beautiful flowers, Mrs. Geer received congratulations over the telephone, as well as numerous post cards from friends.

The musical hour at Backus hospital Sunday afternoon, was in charge of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church of Norwich. The participants were Miss May Guile, violinist and Miss Lucile Guile, pianist, who gave the following entertaining programme: The Connecticut March, by Nassann; Kiss of Spring, waltz, Rolfe; Bebe, fox trot, Silver; The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers, Tessel; O' Sole' Mio, Di Capua; It's a Long Long Way to the U. S. A. and the Girl I Left Behind, Pilver; Salut d'Amour, Elkar, There's A Long Long Trail, King; Southern Dream Waltzes, Lincoln; Mood Pensive, Zamecnik; byEsprit de Nil, (The Spirit of the Nile); Nocturne, Zamecnik; Just Because You're You, That's Why I Love You, Robinson; Star of Hope, Reverie, Kennedy; Spring's Awakening, Bach; Bambalina, Youmans; Wonderful One, Whiteman; You Tell Her, I Stutter, fox trot, Friend; The Battle Song of Liberty, by Bigelow.

The musical at the hospital Sunday, March 23rd, was under the direction of Grace Circle of the King's Daughters. At this time the Guile Trio furnished a fine programme of music, the Misses Guile having the assistance of their brother, Master George Guile.

METHODISTS SELECT DELEGATES AT CONFERENCE AT PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Providence, R. I., March 29.—In the morning session of the New England Southern Conference at the Mathewson Street Methodist church, upon motion of R. J. Chrystie, it was voted to complete the merger of the conference Historical Society with the New England Methodist Historical society, which has already been begun.

The following names were read, the committee on examinations, the committee on conference relations and the district superintendent reported upon them and they were admitted to the conference on trial: R. W. Hibbard, G. C. Capen, George H. Parker, G. Lewis Porter, H. Kenneth Smith, Arthur T. Kent, and Edwin H. Hughes, Jr. Of these R. W. Hibbard and Arthur T. Kent, were elected to deacon's orders under the seminary rule.

The cases of Frank Chamberlain and of Edward N. Dabrits were taken up and each was elected to deacon's orders as local preachers. Norman V. Peale and E. S. Johnson were elected to elder's orders under the seminary rule. A. O. Kenyon was elected to elder's orders under the chaplaincy and massionary rule. A. T. Schulmaier, C. E. Chase and B. T. Lippincott were discharged from the course of study, having completed the four years' course satisfactorily. Of these A. T. Schulmaier and C. E. Chase were elected to elder's orders, but B. T. Lippincott was recognized as an elder already, he having formerly been ordained as such.

The great event of the week which is the address of the bishop to the entering class, took place at this time. The names of the class were called and they came to the altar. Following are the class: M. A. Carter, J. B. Claypool, R. Connelly, C. M. Coulter, H. P. Davis, A. M. Dietterich, D. M. Kitch, F. W. Knickrehm, N. V. Peale and W. C. Wampler. This address was characteristic of Bishop Hughes—full of good advice, but yet sparkling with anecdotes of experience and ready wit which kept things moving.

The address was generally a graphic portrayal of some of the critical moments of the bishop's own ministry. He had no sympathy with the minister who points to his head, and say "I do my work with this end of me" and then points to his feet and adds "not with that end of me," meaning that he is too big to do pastoral visiting. No minister can afford to neglect that part of his work which allows him to know his people. He did not think it safe for a minister to omit the use of the pen. He should write his sermons, not necessary to preach from manuscript, but to help attain a style and vocabulary essential to the realization of a true extemporaneous preaching. He warned against the theory often in practice that our intellect is to be cultivated and our emotions to be repressed. A man should be normal, giving each part of his nature due recognition and recognizing also that the congregation contains normal men and women. No man can afford to confine his effort to one-third of his possibilities and then man who is simply intellectual or only emotional or always emphasizing the power of the will in any case would produce a defective ministry. The bishop told how he had found some of these defects at times in his own ministry and how he had struggled with them and in some ways had been able to overcome them. As the bishop let the young men into some of the secrets of his own inner struggles of heart and mind a feeling of deep fellowship and sympathy was evident as the address was concluded.

Rev. Dr. E. J. Bass, agent of the conference claimants fund, gave his report. H. A. Field and E. L. Roberts were reelected as trustees of the East Greenwich Academy, and H. H. Critchlow and R. E. Bisbee reelected as directors of the New England Methodist Historical society.

The conference voted in favor of a memorial to the general conference asking for some form of reorganization and consolidation of the benevolent and educational boards of the denomination but the conference did not commit itself to any particular plan of reorganization.

At the afternoon session the conference voted to join in the memorial to the general conference that methods be devised to create an adequate financial support to our institutions for theological education. It was voted that the conference endorse the petition being made by the Italian pastors that the general conference continue the method in use for the examination of Italian young men entering our ministry.

A spirited debate took place on the resolution petitioning the general conference not to permit the board of Epworth League to lose its identity by any consolidation with the board of Sunday schools. However, this resolution was adopted.

Miss Marion Hope, superintendent of the Fall River Deaconess home made an eloquent and moving appeal in behalf of the splendid work being done by the deaconesses of the conference.

Rev. Dr. J. E. Lacount was elected to serve on the advisory committee of the American White Cross. The report of the board of education was read by Rev. W. I. Ward. Several reports from committees and boards were presented as the conference adjourned at 4 p. m. to meet again at 9 a. m. Monday.

Ministers' Wives' Association

The Ministers' Wives association holds a meeting and reception every year at the seat of the annual conference which is always looked forward to by many of the wives of preachers as a red letter event. This year, it was the source of much regret that Mrs. W. H. Bath of Norwich the much loved president of the association was detained by sickness and was unable to be present. However, the occasion took place at 4 p. m. on Saturday at the parsonage, 411 Lloyd Avenue and was a very enjoyable affair. Although the weather was slightly wet, there was a large attendance. Delightful musical selections were given by a trio. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. John S. Bridgford; vice presidents, Mrs. J. N. Patterson, New Bedford district; Mrs. M. E. Ganter, Norwich district; Mrs. R. S. Moore, Providence district; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Ira W. LeBaron. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Bath expressing the hope of the association for her speedy recovery. The secretary's interesting report of the year's work included an exchange of letters with some sisters in the parsonage of the Montana Conference and some tangible expressions of friendship. In the receiving line were Bishop and Mrs. Edwin H. Hughes, Mrs. R. D. Hollington, Mrs. John S. Bridgford, Mrs. Ira W. LeBaron, and Miss Ethel V. Glandon. Bishop Hughes gave a very entertaining address in which he paid a tribute to the ladies of the parsonage. Dainty refreshments were served and a very pleasant social hour closed the program.

Electoral Conference

The joint session of the lay electoral conference with the ministerial conference took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. B. F. Thursten of Newport, R. I., who was president of the lay electoral conference addressed the conference. He told the audience which filled the entire auditorium that the lay electoral conference had voted unanimously in its session to unite in the request to the general conference that Bishop Edwin H. Hughes be returned to the New England area for another quadrennium. (Great applause). The delegates, both ministerial and lay, were introduced to the congregation.

The following are the lay delegates to the general conference elected at the morning session of the lay electoral conference: Everett J. Horton, Providence; Guy B. Dolbeare, Norwich; John Goss, Fall River; Benjamin F. Thurston, Newport. Reserves, Harry B. McKenzie, Mystic; Evan W. Thomas, Brockton; Harrison P. Borden, New Bedford.

At the executive session of the conference on Thursday there was a plan adopted looking toward the increasing of the endowment fund held by the conference. The plan calls for the raising of $150,000 to add to this fund, the effort to extend over a term of five years, if necessary. This project was submitted to the lay electoral conference today with the result that it was adopted by them also so that now it will go before the local churches fully endorsed by the joint recommendation of both the ministerial and the lay conferences.

ELECTED DELEGATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Providence, R. I., March 31—Following the reading of the journal of yesterday's session of the Methodist conference, the following men were passed in character and admitted to the conference in full connection: Albert M. Dietterich, James V. Claypool, Charles M. Coulter, M. A. Carter, R. E. Connelly, D. M. Kitch, Norman V. Peale, Fred W. Knickrehm, and W. C. Wampler. Of the above the following were elected to Deacon's orders: Albert M. Dietterich, James V. Claypool and R. E. Connelly; and the following were elected to elder's orders: Charles M. Coulter, D. M. Kitch, Fred W. Knickrehm, and W. C. Wampler.

The first ballot for delegates to the general conference was taken, it being ordered that there should be four names placed on each ballot that being the number of delegates to which this conference is entitled.

While the tellers were counting the ballots, the conference listened to some of the official representatives entitled to speak. Rev. E. V. Hinchcliffe of the Deaconess Hospital, Boston, for the White Cross society; and Dr. E. B. Hingeley for board of conference claimants. He presented a check for $250, the first quarterly payment.

The tellers reported the first ballot showing the total number of votes as 124, necessary to a choice 63. Of these two candidates were reported as being elected: Ira W. LeBaron with 91 votes and James I. Bartholomew with 89 votes.

Another ballot was ordered to secure the election of two more.

Rev. Dr. Titus Lowe of the foreign mission board and Rev. E. Talmadge Root of the Massachusetts both gave interesting addresses about the work they represent.

The tellers returned and reported as follows: Total votes cast 119. Necessary to a choice 60. Robert L. Roberts and Robert S. Moore each received 66 and were declared elected. Another ballot was ordered to elect three reserve delegates with the understanding that each ballot contain three names and the three names receiving the highest number be chosen.

Upon motion M. J. Creeger was added to the list of assistant treasurers.

E. V. Claypool addressed the conference representing the work of the Anti-Saloon League, especially explaining the bill now adopted by the Rhode Island House of Representatives and now before the people of that state.

The report of the tellers showed that the ballot for reserve delegates had resulted as follows: Total number cast 111, of which W. H. Bath received 94, R. A. Colpitts 74, and Joseph Cooper 59, these three men being declared as elected.

The following actions were taken regarding memorials and propositions to the general conference. The memorial asking that the church elect its bishops for a term of eight instead of the life tenure now in effect was laid on the table. On the memorial asking that the annual conference nominate its district superintendents and that there be a time limit of six years, an amendment stating that the annual conference should name twice the number of men needed to be appointed from which the bishop shall make his choice was suggested and after some discussion the whole proposition including the amendment was adopted.

Other memorials of minor interest were rejected.

After suitable announcement the morning session closed.

VERSAILLES SCHOOL, STORE AND BARN-GARAGE BURNED

The Versailles fire which was raging on Saturday morning when The Bulletin went to press resulted in a loss estimated at $25,000.

The combination store-pool room and dwelling owned and occupied by John Grobusky in which the fire started was a total loss with but a small abmount of insurance carried on the building. The Grobusky family escaped in their night clothing and were unable to save any of the contents of store or dwelling.

From the store building the fire spread to a barn used as a garage by the Connecticut state highway department and residents of Versailles. Two trucks belonging to the state were taken from the garage and one removed from near the garage. A sedan and speed wagon, the property of G. H. Tetreault, beside three other cars, were removed from the danger zone, some being locked at the time but they were pushed to safety by willing hands before their owners arrived.

The Versailles school building, a two story four room building was badly burned the roof falling in, but the both floors are still standing with side walls left in an uncertain condition, the heater and some of the school fittings were saved.

The home of G. H. Tetreault which was but a few feet from the burned buildings was kept from burning by a bucket brigade until the arrival of the Norwich and Taftville companies. Had there been a few minutes delay in the arrival of the visiting companies the Tetreault home would have been a mass of flames. The paint was blistered and blackened and window glass broken by the heat.

The fire was fought under the able direction of Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich department, assisted by the members of the Norwich company No. 1 and the Taftville company, both companies making record runs to the fire, reaching there before many Versailles residents were present. The fight was made under trying conditions as there are no water mains from either village of Occum or Versailles within 1,500 feet. Three lines were laid to the mill channel of the Totokett Manufacturing company, nearly 1,300 feet away, from which the pumpers of both Norwich and Taftville companys sent excellent streams of water. The soft condition of the ground off the state highway was one of the obstructions under which the fire was fought, keeping the heavy pumpers from getting to a nearer water supply.

Frank Corey and Thomas Quirk both having lodgings in the ground floor of the burned store building lost the greater part of their property.

The fire which was evidently burning some time before discovered at a few minutes before two o'clock had gained a big headway, the cause of which is not known. The fire started in the pool room portion of the building. All spoke highly of the excellent work done by Chief Stanton and assistants in the way the fire was handled. Had there been a wind blowing at the time doubtless a much larger loss would have resulted as there are many shingle roofs within a few thousand feet.

A large number of sightseers visited the scene of the fire during Saturday and Sunday.

NEW MANAGER COMES TO PALACE THEATRE

William H. Harding's resignation as manager of the Palace theatre has been accepted and he will be succeeded by Robert Elliano, who will enter upon his duties as manager today (Monday). Mr. Elliano has had thirteen years experience and training in some of the best theatres of New England. He was identified with the Shea circuit which operates and owns theatres in Worcester and elsewhere in New England. He will make his home in Norwich residing here with his family.

PENALTIES ENFORCED FOR DRIVING OVERLOADED TRUCKS

The licenses of twenty-four drivers have been suspended in the first quarter of this year for operating overloaded trucks on the public highways of the state, according to announcement made at the state motor vehicle department. Most of them were deprived of their right to drive for ninety days. During all of last year 118 licenses were suspended for the same cause.

Since the motor vehicle and state highway departments joined hands in an effort to prevent the great annual damage to state highways by heavy trucks breaking through the road surface, there has been a considerable decrease in arrests for overloading, but, at this season of the year, when the frost is coming out of the ground and many of the highways are softer than usual, a close watch is being kept, in which the state police are assisting.

The success of the Connecticut movement against overloaded trucks has attracted much attention in other states. The latest request for information as to the Connecticut method of enforcing the law against overloading, has come from New Hampshire in the form of a telegram from Highway Commissioner F. E. Everett of that state.

The maximum weight allowed on any Connecticut highway at any time, without special permit from the highway commissioner, is 25,000 pounds, including the weight of the vehicle. In addition to this restriction there is the further provision that commercial motor vehicles must not carry loads greater than their rated capacity, which means the capacity at which they are registered with the motor vehicle department. The usual fine for convictions of violators of these regulations is $100. The maximum fine provided by law is $600. Scales are being maintained at convenient points on the state highways which are most used by motor trucks, to aid enforcement officers in determining whether trucks about which they have some doubt are overweighted.

LENTEN PREACHER SPEAKS AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

"Be not forgetful of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some count slackness; but is long suffering not wishing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance," quoted Rev. J. Demers of the LaSalette college, Hartford, speaking Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church. A sudden shudder of Godly fear comes over us as we learn of God chastising individuals and nations as sinners, doing so in the very moment of their sin. What may be the torments that would afflict us through all eternity should God strike us?

God brought down punishment upon the Israelites for revolting against Him; He caused the earth to swallow them up. Whole cities were destroyed and even the earth suffered a deluge because it was filled with iniquity. God is the same now as then, he is just as powerful. We wonder why God does not punish the sinner at once, why He allows the devil to tempt the world and call it evil. All this means that God is patient and has a reason for remaining patient. He is biding His time and has all eternity in which to punish.

You have friends who are not living the life they should live. It is your duty to heap coals of fire upon their heads, coals of fire of charity. Let us all be meek and humble of heart, but expect of others what we do not expect of ourselves.

Remember the words of the Lord to the Pharisees, "Go and learn what this means; I will have mercy, not sacrifice." Alas, how many expect God to have mercy and yet go ahead and do the things He does not expect His people to do.

The day of vengeance shall come. God causes the rain to fall on the good and bad alike. He caused the sun to shine on the evil and the good, but, when he sends out His angels He orders them to bring in the good but bind the bad and burn it. Christians must do good and avoid evil, giving the unconverted a chance to become converted. By doing this those not changing their ways have only themselves to blame.

When we consider what some do to work out their own salvation, how they work on foreign fields or at home to bring life of faith into pagan hearts, we ask ourselves what have we done that we expect salvation? Now is the time, God is merciful. For those who are ungrateful, God waits impatiently, but more severely will He deal with them, for after death comes judgment. During this Holy season of Lent when we honor the mystery of our redemption we should ask that our hearts be impressed with the tragedy of Calvary, that we might suffer death than commit one single mortal sin. Let the spirit of the Son of Almighty God fill our hearts with the peace the world can never give to us.

Precious to the sermon Weigand's Vespers were sung by the choir of the church, with solo parts most pleasingly carried by Mrs. George Roberts, Mrs. F. L. Farrell, Mrs. Bernard Coyle, Miss Loretta Bellefleur, Mrs. Joseph Ellers, Daniel Gleason and Frank R. Murdy.

The Fourth Word, from the seven last words of Christ, by Dubois was sung in effective voice by Mr. Murdy, baritone.

Youthful Organist Played Well

Miss Dorothea Tucker, organist of the First Baptist church, played the recessional by Alfred Renaud at St. Patrick's church Sunday evening. Although only 14 years old she handled the large organ in masterly fashion.

CELEBRATED THEIR SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A goodly party of friends, many of them those who attended the ceremony twenty-five years ago, celebrated with Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Glasbrenner their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening in the Bradford homestead on Raymond hill, where the wedding took place on the bride's birthday anniversary, March 29, 1899. The officiating clergyman was Rev. G. H. Morse.

Mr. Glasbrenner subsequently purchased the Bradford homestead and has been one of the prosperous farmers of the community.

A delightful evening was enjoyed Saturday by the friends present for the anniversary and dainty refreshments were served. The arrangements were made by the three daughters, Pauline, Jennie and Alice. Of special interest to the guests was the showing of the bridal dress and slippers of twenty-five years ago and a copy of the Bulletin which contained the account of the wedding.

Many beautiful gifts in silver and in money were received by Mr. and Mrs. Glasbrenner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bradford, Miss Jessie Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Aurwood and Earl Aurwood of New Haven, William Glasbrenner, Mrs. Lillian Turner, Mr. and Mrs. John M. MacDougall, Miss Lucy MacDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Dolbeare, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. ### TAFTVILLE

Miss Fawn Jewett, who has been visiting a week with Miss Celena Adams of North Third avenue has returned to her home at Clark's Corners.

Miss Mabelle Stapfer of the Ponemah House has returned from New York where she spent the past week.

Mrs. Irving Wood has resumed her studies at the State Normal school, at Willimantic after passing the spring vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Wood and family of Second avenue.

Notice has been received by Allan Bowen, clerk of the Taftville Congregational church, that the new pipe organ is to be installed in the church is being shipped from the factory of the Moller organ company. Men will be sent from the factory to erect it. It is believed that the work will be completed by Easter if the organ arrives in reasonable time.

Mrs. Dodson of Hartford was a business caller in the village on Friday.

Mr. Carlson has resigned his position in room No. 4 weaving department at the Ponemah company.

People who reside near the village of Taftville are having their residences wired for electricity, which is shortly to be furnished them by the Eastern Connecticut Power company.

The New System Wet Wash is reading a new boiler at its plant on Norwich Road. The boiler weighs about 4 tons, and it will be approximately three weeks before it is put in operation.

Men going as college students seeking their way through schools by taking subscriptions to well known magazines and newspapers, have been quite active in the village this week. Most of those who pay them the 99 cents which is the price of a subscription never hear from them again. It is said that one of the papers that are soliciting subscriptions for, suspended publication about two months ago.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bousquet have taken a house on Terrace avenue and Mr. Bousquet has accepted a position with the Ponemah company.

A family arriving here from Canada this week stated that because of the quota law, entering this country was more difficult. The family applied at the American consulate for the necessary papers, after selling their farm and all they possessed, and were told that they would have to wait their turn, owing to the quota at the time being exhausted. They had to remain in Montreal about two months before they were allowed to cross the line.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Chatelle have taken a house on Norwich avenue.

With the approach of the trout fishing season, local dealers are displaying poles and other fishing tackle.

Harry E. Bell of North Fourth avenue has resigned his position with the Ponemah company, because of ill health.

NORWICH TOWN

Mrs. Charles F. Geer of 76 West Town street, was pleasantly surprised Friday, when in observance of her birthday, relatives and friends from New London and Waterbury, called at her home laden with good things preparatory to a dinner, although the date of the anniversary was Saturday, March 29th. Upon the arrival of her guests, Mrs. Geer, with the assistance of her sister, Mrs. Frank Case, soon had things in readiness for the following tempting dinner, which was served at 3 o'clock: Sword fish, mashed potatoes, mushroons, Parker House rolls, celery, lettuce, cream puffs, charlotte rousse, and a fruit and nut birthday cake made by Mrs. Case. Besides a number of gold pieces, also a box of beautiful flowers, Mrs. Geer received congratulations over the telephone, as well as numerous post cards from friends.

The musical hour at Backus hospital Sunday afternoon, was in charge of Trinity Methodist Episcopal church of Norwich. The participants were Miss May Guile, violinist and Miss Lucile Guile, pianist, who gave the following entertaining programme: The Connecticut March, by Nassani; Kiss of Spring, waltz, Rolfe; Bebe, fox trot, Silver; The Parade of the Wooden Soldiers, Tessel; O' Sole Mio, Di Capua; It's a Long Long Way to the U. S. A. and the Girl I Left Behind, Pilver; Salut d'Amour, Elgar, There's A Long Long Trail, King; Southern Dream Waltzes, Lincoln; Mood Pensive, Zamecnik; L'Esprit de Nil, (The Spirit of the Nile); Nocturne, Zamecnik; Just Because You're You, That's Why I Love You, Robinson; Star of Hope, Reverie, Kennedy; Spring's Awakening, Bach; Bambalina, Youmans; Wonderful One, Whiteman; You Tell Her, I Stutter, fox trot, Friend; The Battle Song of Liberty, by Bigelow.

The musical at the hospital Sunday, March 23rd, was under the direction of Grace Circle of the King's Daughters. At this time the Guile Trio furnished a fine programme of music, the Misses Guile having the assistance of their brother, Master George Guile.

METHODISTS SELECT DELEGATES AT CONFERENCE AT PROVIDENCE

(Special to The Bulletin)

Providence, R. I., March 29.—In the morning session of the New England Southern Conference at the Mathewson Street Methodist church, upon motion of R. J. Chrystie, it was voted to complete the merger of the conference Historical Society with the New England Methodist Historical society, which has already been begun.

The following names were read, the committee on examinations, the committee on conference relations and the district superintendent reported upon them and they were admitted to the conference on trial: R. W. Hibbard, G. C. Capen, George H. Parker, G. Lewis Porter, H. Kenneth Smith, Arthur T. Kent, and Edwin H. Hughes, Jr. Of these R. W. Hibbard and Arthur T. Kent, were elected to deacon's orders under the seminary rule.

The cases of Frank Chamberlain and of Edward N. Dabritz were taken up and each was elected to deacon's orders as local preachers. Norman V. Peale and E. S. Johnson were elected to elder's orders under the seminary rule. A. O. Kenyon was elected to elder's orders under the chaplaincy and massionary rule. A. T. Schulmaier, C. E. Chase and S. T. Lippincott were discharged from the course of study, having completed the four years' course satisfactorily. Of these A. T. Schulmaier and C. E. Chase were elected to elder's orders, but S. T. Lippincott was recognized as an elder already he having formerly been ordained as such.

The great event of the week which is the address of the bishop to the entering class, took place at this time. The names of the class were called and they came to the altar. Following are the class: M. A. Carter, J. B. Claypool, R. Connelly, C. M. Coulter, H. P. Davis, A. M. Dietterich, D. M. Kitch, F. W. Knickrehm, N. V. Peale and W. C. Wampler. This address was characteristic of Bishop Hughes—full of good advice, but yet sparkling with anecdotes of experience and ready wit which kept things moving.

The address was generally a graphic portrayal of some of the critical moments of the bishop's own ministry. He had no sympathy with the minister who points to his head, and say "I do my work with this end of me" and then points to his feet and adds "not with that end of me," meaning that he is too big to do pastoral visiting. No minister can afford to neglect that part of his work which allows him to know his people. He did not think it safe for a minister to omit the use of the pen. He should write his sermons, not necessary to preach from manuscript, but to help attain a style and vocabulary essential to the realization of a true extemporaneous preaching. He warned against the theory often in practice that our intellect is to be cultivated and our emotions to be repressed. A man should be normal, giving each part of his nature due recognition and recognizing also that the congregation contains normal men and women. No man can afford to confine his effort to one-third of his possibilities and then man who is simply intellectual or only emotional or always emphasizing the power of the will in any case would produce a defective ministry. The bishop told how he had found some of these defects at times in his own ministry and how he had struggled with them and in some ways had been able to overcome them. As the bishop let the young men into some of the secrets of his own inner struggles of heart and mind a feeling of deep fellowship and sympathy was evident as the address was concluded.

Rev. Dr. E. G. Boss, agent of the conference claimants fund, gave his report. H. A. Field and R. L. Roberts were reelected as trustees of the East Greenwich Academy, and H. H. Critchlow and R. E. Bisbee reelected as directors of the New England Methodist Historical society.

The conference voted in favor of a memorial to the general conference asking for some form of reorganization and consolidation of the benevolent and educational boards of the denomination but the conference did not commit itself to any particular plan of reorganization.

At the afternoon session the conference voted to join in the memorial to the general conference that methods be devised to create an adequate financial support to our institutions for theological education. It was voted that the conference endorse the petition being made by the Italian pastors that the general conference continue the method in use for the examination of Italian young men entering our ministry.

A spirited debate took place on the resolution petitioning the general conference not to permit the board of Epworth League to lose its identity by any consolidation with the board of Sunday schools. However, this resolution was adopted.

Miss Marion Hope, superintendent of the Fall River Deaconess home made an eloquent and moving appeal in behalf of the splendid work being done by the deaconesses of the conference.

Rev. Dr. J. E. Lacount was elected to serve on the advisory committee of the American White Cross. The report of the board of education was read by Rev. W. I. Ward. Several reports from committees and boards were presented as the conference adjourned at 4 p. m. to meet again at 9 a. m. Monday.

Ministers' Wives' Association

The Ministers' Wives association holds a meeting and reception every year at the seat of the annual conference which is always looked forward to by many of the wives of preachers as a red letter event. This year, it was the source of much regret that Mrs. W. H. Bath of Norwich the much loved president of the association was detained by sickness and was unable to be present. However, the occasion took place at 4 p. m. on Saturday at the parsonage, 411 Lloyd Avenue and was a very enjoyable affair. Although the weather was slightly wet, there was a large attendance. Delightful musical selections were given by a trio. The following officers were elected: President, Mrs. John S. Bridgford; vice presidents, Mrs. J. N. Patterson, New Bedford district; Mrs. M. E. Ganter, Norwich district; Mrs. R. S. Moore, Providence district; secretary and treasurer, Mrs. Ira W. LeBaron. The secretary was instructed to send a letter of sympathy to Mrs. Bath expressing the hope of the association for her speedy recovery. The secretary's interesting report of the year's work included an exchange of letters with some sisters in the parsonage of the Montana Conference and some tangible expressions of friendship. In the receiving line were Bishop and Mrs. Edwin H. Hughes, Mrs. R. D. Hollington, Mrs. John S. Bridgford, Mrs. Ira W. LeBaron, and Miss Ethel V. Glandon. Bishop Hughes gave a very entertaining address in which he paid a tribute to the ladies of the parsonage. Dainty refreshments were served and a very pleasant social hour closed the program.

Electoral Conference

The joint session of the lay electoral conference with the ministerial conference took place at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. B. F. Thurston of Newport, R. I., who was president of the lay electoral conference addressed the conference. He told the audience which filled the entire auditorium that the lay electoral conference had voted unanimously in its session to unite in the request to the general conference that Bishop Edwin H. Hughes be returned to the New England area for another quadrennium. (Great applause). The delegates, both ministerial and lay, were introduced to the congregation.

The followings are the lay delegates to the general conference elected at the morning session of the lay electoral conference: Everett J. Horton, Providence; Guy B. Dolbeare, Norwich; John Goss, Fall River; Benjamin F. Thurston, Newport, Reserves, Harry B. McKenzie, Mystic; Evan W. Thomas, Brockton; Harrison P. Borden, New Bedford.

At the executive session of the conference on Thursday there was a plan adopted looking toward the increasing of the endowment fund held by the conference. The plan calls for the raising of $150,000 to add to this fund, the effort to extend over a term of five years, if necessary. This project was submitted to the lay electoral conference today with the result that it was adopted by them also so that now it will go before the local churches fully endorsed by the joint recommendation of both the ministerial and the lay conferences.

ELECTED DELEGATES TO GENERAL CONFERENCE

(Special to the Bulletin)

Providence, R. I., March 28—Following the reading of the journal of yesterday's session of the Methodist conference, the following men were passed in character and admitted to the conference in full connection: Albert M. Dietterich, James V. Claypool, Charles M. Coulter, M. A. Carter, R. E. Connelly, D. M. Kitch, Norman V. Peale, Fred W. Knickrehm, W. C. Wampler. Of the above the following were elected to Degcon's orders: Albert M. Dietterich, James V. Claypool and R. E. Connelly; and the following were elected to elder's orders: Charles M. Coulter, D. M. Kitch, Fred W. Knickrehm, and W. C. Wampler.

The first ballot for delegates to the general conference was taken, it being ordered that there should be four names placed on each ballot that being the number of delegates to which this conference is entitled.

While the tellers were counting the ballots, the conference listened to some of the official representatives entitled to speak. Rev. E. V. Hinchcliffe of the Deaconess Hospital, Boston, for the White Cross society; and Dr. E. B. Hingeley for board of conference claimants. He presented a check for $360, the first quarterly payment.

The tellers reported the first ballot showing the total number of votes as 124, necessary to a choice 63. Of these two candidates were reported as being elected: Ira W. LeBaron with 91 votes and James I. Bartholomew with 89 votes.

Another ballot was ordered to secure the election of two more.

Rev. Dr. Titus Lowe of the foreign mission board and Rev. E. Talmadge Root of the Massachusetts both gave interesting addresses about the work they represent.

The tellers returned and reported as follows: Total votes cast 119. Necessary to a choice 60. Robert L. Roberts and Robert S. Moore each received 66 and were declared elected. Another ballot was ordered to elect three reserve delegates with the understanding that each ballot contain three names and the three names receiving the highest number be chosen.

Upon motion M. J. Creeger was added to the list of assistant treasurers.

E. V. Claypool addressed the conference representing the work of the Anti-Saloon League, especially explaining the bill now adopted by the Rhode Island House of Representatives and now before the people of that state.

The report of the tellers showed that the ballot for reserve delegates had resulted as follows: Total number cast 111, of which W. H. Bath received 94, R. A. Colpitts 74, and Joseph Cooper 59, these three men being declared as elected.

The following actions were taken regarding memorials and propositions to the general conference. The memorial asking that the church elect its bishops for a term of eight instead of the life tenure now in effect was laid on the table. On the memorial asking that the annual conference nominate its district superintendents and that there be a time limit of six years, an amendment stating that the annual conference should name twice the number of men needed to be appointed from which the bishop shall make his choice was suggested and after some discussion the whole proposition including the amendment was adopted.

Other memorials of minor interest were rejected.

After suitable announcement the morning session closed.

VERSAILLES SCHOOL, STORE AND BARN-GARAGE BURNED

The Versailles fire which was raging on Saturday morning when The Bulletin went to press resulted in a loss estimated at $25,000.

The combination store-pool room and dwelling owned and occupied by John Grobusky in which the fire started was a total loss with but a small amount of insurance carried on the building. The Grobusky family escaped in their night clothing and were unable to save any of the contents of store or dwelling.

From the store building the fire spread to a barn used as a garage by the Connecticut state highway department and residents of Versailles. Two trucks belonging to the state were taken from the garage and one removed from near the garage. A sedan and speed wagon, the property of G. H. Tetreault, beside three other cars were removed from the danger zone, some being locked at the time but they were pushed to safety by willing hands before their owners arrived.

The Versailles school building, a two story four room building was badly burned the roof falling in, but the both floors are still standing with side walls left in an uncertain condition, the heater and some of the school fittings were saved.

The home of G. H. Tetreault which was but a few feet from the burned buildings was kept from burning by a bucket brigade until the arrival of the Norwich and Taftville companies. Had there been a few minutes delay in the arrival of the visiting companies the Tetreault home would have been a mass of flames. The paint was blistered and blackened and window glass broken by the heat.

The fire was fought under the able direction of Chief Howard L. Stanton of the Norwich department, assisted by the members of the Norwich company No. 1 and the Taftville company, both companies making record runs to the fire, reaching there before many Versailles residents were present. The fight was made under trying conditions as there are no water mains from either village of Occum or Versailles within 1,500 feet. Three lines were laid to the mill channel of the Totokett Manufacturing company, nearly 1,300 feet away, from which the pumpers of both Norwich and Taftville companys sent excellent streams of water. The soft condition of the ground off the state highway was one of the obstructions under which the fire was fought, keeping the heavy pumpers from getting to a nearer water supply.

Frank Corey and Thomas Quirk both having lodgings in the ground floor of the burned store building lost the greater part of their property.

The fire which was evidently burning some time before discovered at a few minutes before two o'clock had gained a big headway, the cause of which is not known. The fire started in the pool room portion of the building. All spoke highly of the excellent work done by Chief Stanton and assistants in the way the fire was handled. Had there been a wind blowing at the time doubtless a much larger loss would have resulted as there are many shingle roofs within a few thousand feet.

A large number of sightseers visited the scene of the fire during Saturday and Sunday.

NEW MANAGER COMES TO PALACE THEATRE

William H. Harding's resignation as manager of the Palace theatre has been accepted and he will be succeeded by Robert Elliano, who will enter upon his duties as manager today (Monday). Mr. Elliano has had thirteen years experience and training in some of the best theatres of New England. He was identified with the Shea circuit which operates and owns theatres in Worcester and elsewhere in New England. He will make his home in Norwich residing here with his family.

PENALTIES ENFORCED FOR DRIVING OVERLOADED TRUCKS

The licenses of twenty-four drivers have been suspended in the first quarter of this year for operating overloaded trucks on the public highways of the state, according to announcement made at the state motor vehicle department. Most of them were deprived of their right to drive for ninety days. During all of last year 116 licenses were suspended for the same cause.

Since the motor vehicle and state highway departments joined hands in an effort to prevent the great annual damage to state highways by heavy trucks breaking through the road surface, there has been a considerable decrease in arrests for overloading, but, at this season of the year, when the frost is coming out of the ground and many of the highways are softer than usual, a close watch is being kept, in which the state police are assisting.

The success of the Connecticut movement against overloaded trucks has attracted much attention in other states. The latest request for information as to the Connecticut method of enforcing the law against overloading, has come from New Hampshire in the form of a telegram from Highway Commissioner F. E. Everett of that state.

The maximum weight allowed on any Connecticut highway at any time, without special permit from the highway commissioner, is 25,000 pounds, including the weight of the vehicle. In addition to this restriction there is the further provision that commercial motor vehicles must not carry loads greater than their rated capacity, which means the capacity at which they are registered with the motor vehicle department. The usual fine for convictions of violators of these regulations is $100. The maximum fine provided by law is $600. Scales are being maintained at convenient points on the state highways which are most used by motor trucks, to aid enforcement officers in determining whether trucks about which they have some doubt are overweighted.

LENTEN PREACHER SPEAKS AT ST. PATRICK'S CHURCH

"Be not forgetful of this one thing, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day. The Lord is not slack concerning his promise, as some count slackness; but is long suffering not wishing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance," quoted Rev. J. Demers of the LaSalette college, Hartford, speaking Sunday evening at St. Patrick's church. A sudden shudder of Godly fear comes over us as we learn of God chastising individuals and nations as sinners, doing so in the very moment of their sin. What may be the torments that would afflict us through all eternity should God strike us?

God brought down punishment upon the Israelites for revolting against Him; He caused the earth to swallow them up. Whole cities were destroyed and even the earth suffered a deluge because it was filled with iniquity. God is the same now as then, he is just as powerful. We wonder why God does not punish the sinner at once, why He allows the devil to tempt the world and call it evil. All this means that God is patient and has a reason for remaining patient, He is biding His time and has all eternity in which to punish.

You have friends who are not living the life they should live. It is your duty to heap coals of fire upon their heads, coals of fire of charity. Let us all be meek and humble of heart, not expect of others what we do not expect of ourselves.

Remember the words of the Lord to the Pharisees; "Go and learn what this means; I will have mercy, not sacrifice." Alas, how many expect God to have mercy and yet go ahead and do the things He does not expect His people to do.

The day of vengeance shall come. God causes the rain to fall on the good and bad alike, He caused the sun to shine on the evil and the good, but, when he sends out His angels He orders them to bring in the good but bind the bad and burn it. Christians must do good and avoid evil, giving the unconverted a chance to become converted. By doing this those not changing their ways have only themselves to blame.

When we consider what some do to work out their own salvation, how they work on foreign fields or at home to bring life of faith into pagan hearts, we ask ourselves what have we done that we expect salvation? Now is the time, God is merciful. For those who are ungrateful, God waits unpatiently, but more severely will He deal with them, for after death comes judgment. During this Holy season of Lent when we honor the mystery of our redemption we should ask that our hearts be impressed with the tragedy of Calvary, that we might suffer death than commit one single mortal sin. Let the spirit of the Son of Almighty God fill our hearts with the peace the world can never give to us.

Previous to the sermon Weigand's Vespers were sung by the choir of the church, with solo parts most pleasingly carried by Mrs. George Roberts, Mrs. F. L. Farrell, Mrs. Bernard Coyle, Miss Loretta Bellefleur, Mrs. Joseph Eilers, Daniel Gleason and Frank R. Murdy.

The Fourth Word, from the seven last words of Christ, by Dubois was sung in effective voice by Mr. Murdy, baritone.

CELEBRATED THEIR SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

A goodly party of friends, many of them those who attended the ceremony twenty-five years ago, celebrated with Mr. and Mrs. Paul P. Glasbrenner their silver wedding anniversary Saturday evening in the Bradford homestead on Raymond Hill where the wedding took place on the bride's birthday anniversary, March 29, 1889. The officiating clergyman was Rev. G. H. Morss.

Mr. Glasbrenner subsequently purchased the Bradford homestead and has been one of the prosperous farmers of the community.

A delightful evening was enjoyed Saturday by the friends present for the anniversary and dainty refreshments were served. The arrangements were made by the three daughters Pauline, Jennie and Alice. Of special interest to the guests was the showing of the bridal dress and slippers of twenty-five years ago and a copy of the Bulletin which contained the account of the wedding.

Many beautiful gifts in silver and in money were received by Mr. and Mrs. Glasbrenner. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. George H. Bradford, Miss Jessie Bradford, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Auwood and Earl Auwood of New Haven, William Glasbrenner, Mrs. Lillian Turner, Mr. and Mrs. John M. MacDougall, Miss Lucy MacDougall, Mr. and Mrs. Walter G. Tebeare, Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose Sullivan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Mc Gordon Moran, Miss Mary Woods, the Misses Pauline, Jennie and Alice Glasbrenner.

SENATE IS IN A QUAGMIRE OF POLITICAL POLLUTION

Senator Dill Has Presented a Resolution Calling for the Resignation of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt—Senator Wadsworth, in Defense of Mr. Roosevelt, Referred to Senator Dill as "Another Sniper Rising From Political Trenches"—Correspondence Shows That Roosevelt Opposed the Transfer of the Oil Reserves to the Interior Department.

Washington, March 31.—While the senate oil committee was in recess today, opponents of the leasing of the naval reserves were restricted in their action to the floor of the senate where developments centered around a resolution by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington calling for the resignation of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt. It proposes to express the "sense of the senate," that President Coolidge should ask for the assistant secretary's resignation.

Senator Dill introduced his resolution without comment but Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, took the first opportunity to attack the evident motive behind it," declaring the author of the resolution had deliberately withheld the facts bearing upon his preamble.'" Senator Wadsworth contended the purpose was a crass attempt to besmirch by false innuendo the name of a public official." He referred to the Washington senator as "another sniper rising from political trenches."

A letter from Assistant Secretary Roosevelt to state Senator William W. Campbell of New York, was read into the record. Reciting the assistant secretary's connection with the oil reserves it declared he had opposed their transfer to the interior department and was ignorant of the leases which opened until they had been announced publicly. Senator Wadsworth also presented a letter from Rear Admiral Robert S. Griffin, retired, a leading of the anti-leasists in the department confirming Mr. Roosevelt's statement of the facts.

Chairman Ladd, republican, North Dakota, announced there had been no change in the scheduled reconvening of the oil committee tomorrow, despite the failure of subpoena servers to locate William Boyce Thompson former chairman of the republican national committee's finance committee, who is to be questioned respecting campaign contributions.

Plans for forthcoming hearings do not go beyond delving into campaign contributions from oil interests. Members of the committee said, that there was no confirmation of reports that an early conclusion of that body's activities was now foreseen.

R. H. Wilson, once a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Oklahoma, is expected to be the next witness. Other witnesses include W. L. Kistler, an oil promoter, of Tulsa and George White, former chairman of the democratic national committee.

Senator Dill, who is a member of the committee, left Washington tonight for speaking tour in which he promised to amplify his contention that Assistant Secretary Roosevelt should not remain in office.

The letter from Mr. Roosevelt to State Senator Campbell upder date of January 15 follows:

"My dear senator:

"I have just received your letter of January 11th. Thank you so much therefor.

"In connection with the oil lease matter as follows: Shortly after President Harding's induction into office Secretary Denby sent me a copy of a proposed executive order transferring the Naval Oil Reserves to the Department of the interior, without recourse. He sent at the same time a copy to the bureau of engineering. After getting my copy of the order, I asked Admiral Griffin, who was then chief of that bureau, and who had the oil under his particular care, to talk it over with me. I knew very little of the matter, but Griffin felt very strongly that this transfer would be a mistake. After thinking the matter over, I decided he was probably right. My grounds for coming to this conclusion were that the interior department has as its general mission the development of the resources of the United States, whereas the oil and belonging to the navy should not be developed except in a case of necessity, and that therefore there would be a conflict of ideas. I went to the secretary and urged that the lands be not transferred to the interior department.

"He informed me that my protest in the matter was made too late because the transfer had already been agreed by the president, Fall and himself. After this I went back and discussed the entire situation with Griffin and certain other officers. It occurred to me that if we could get an amendment to the original order to transfer, making it necessary for the interior department to gain the consent of the navy department before leasing or drilling was undertaken, we could guard the lands against improper exploitation. A number of amendments with this end in view were submitted to me. I took them to the secretary and discussed them with him. After considerable discussion he agreed to a modified form of one of them. He told me to take it to Secretary Fall and that if I could get him to agree to this amendment, it would be all right with him. I took the amendment to Secretary Fall who agreed to it. I then took it to the White House for signature. This amendment read as follows:

"'But no general policy as to drilling in reserving lands located in a naval reserve shall be changed or adopted except upon consultation and in cooperation with the secretary or acting secretary of the navy.'

"You can see that this reserves to the navy supervision over the oil reserves. It was on account of this amendment that all of the leases under discussion by the senate committee at this time were countersigned by Secretary Denby. They could not have been accomplished without the OK of this department.

"At this point, my active participation in the entire matter ceased. It so happened that I was not consulted on any of the oil leases. I did not know they were under contemplation until after they were signed. With reference to the Teapot Dome lease in particular, I did not know there was a plan on foot to lease Teapot Dome. I did not know Sinclair was interested in any of the leases. I heard of them only after they had been made to the general public.

"Insofar as my connection with the Sinclair company goes, it is as follows: I was among the group of bankers who were interested in its original fromation. I was a director of the company until the outbreak of the war in 1917, when I resigned. My last stock in the company was sold during the war, not later than 1918. I am inclined to think in 1917. My wife bought one thousand shares of Sinclair stock, however, in 1920, but sold them at a loss some short time before the leases with the navy department were signed.

"Merely parenthetically, I have engaged in no business of any kind since the war, and my entrance in politics, and have therefore made no money of any kind in business.

"All of the above is in the hearings—perhaps not quite in such ample form as I have given it to you, and fairly well scattered over a couple of days.

"You may show this letter to any one you wish to show it to, but do not let it get into the press, because I don't want at this time to look as tary Denby in his time of trouble I were trying to "run out" on Secretary Denby.

"Believe me,

"Yours very truly,

(Signed) "THEODORE ROOSEVELT"

SENATE HAS TABLED THE MELLON RESOLUTION

Washington, March 31—A resolution designed to oust Secretary Mellon from office on technical legal ground, launched last Friday by Senator Kellar, democrat, Tennessee, bobbed up automatically in the senate today only to land on the table with no one demanding action upon it.

It was buffeted severely by Mr. Mellon's republican defenders before it stranded, while Senator McKellar's was the only voice urging it on its way. Whether it will be refloated later is a matter of dispute among senate democratic chieftains, who conferred during the debate on the wisdom of pressing it, while Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, who returned to Washington after an absence of several days, disclaimed responsibility for the move initiated by the Tennessee senator. Senator McKellar declared he was not charging Mr. Mellon with any wrongdoing or failure, but merely insisting upon enforcement of old statutes forbidding the appointment as federal fiscal officers of men "interested or concerned" in the currying on of commercial enterprises.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who led the defenders, asserted from personal knowledge that Mr. Mellon had divested himself of every commercial and industrial connection that could be questioned in any way before he went to the treasury.

SINCLAIR INDICTED BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Washington, March 31.—Indictment by a federal grand jury here today of Harry F. Sinclair, to whom the government leased the Teapot Dome oil reserve, on contempt charges resulting from his refusal to testify before the senate oil committee constituted the first action of the kind to grow out of the senate's investigation of oil leases. The action eventually, it is believed, may lead to a ruling by the United States supreme court on the authority of congress to develop evidence along lines followed in the present inquiry.

Counsel for Sinclair here stated that the oil operator was not in Washington but that it was their belief he would return voluntarily to face the indictment. Ten counts were listed in the indictment, which was signed by District Attorney Gordon, and Atlee Pomerene, and Owen J. Roberts, as special assistants, each referring to specific questions asked Sinclair by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, in the course of the oil committee's inquiry.

The questions, which Sinclair declined to answer, declaring he would "reserve any evidence" he might be able to furnish for the courts, were declared by the grand jurors to have been "pertinent to the matters and questions then under inquiry before the said committee."

The indictment recited at length the oil policy determined upon by congress and declared the senate oil committee was authorized to inquire into all phases of the leasing of naval oil reserves, which, it was held, was being done at the time of Sinclair's refusal to answer questions.

ROOSEVELT DECLINES TO COMMENT ON SENATOR DILL

Auburn, N. Y., March 31.—Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, who is here to deliver an address tonight at a Masonic gathering, refused to comment when informed that Senator Dill had introduced a resolution demanding his resignation.

"I have nothing to say in reply," he said.

He visited a local school today to study the work of Americanization being carried on there and later was the guest of the American legion.

$50,000 LIQUOR APPARATUS SEIZED IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., March 31.—More than $50,000 worth of apparatus and supplies for making beer and other liquors was seized this afternoon, when two score of federal agents, local liquor squad officers and policemen swooped down on two stores in the Green and Water streets district in what was claimed to be the biggest raid staged in this city since the advent of prohibition.

The places raided were the Boston Jobbing company at 160 Water street, and the American Malt & Hops company at 98 Green street.

SENATE COMMITTEE VOTES CUT OF 1923 INCOME TAX

Washington, March 31.—The provision in the revenue bill for a 25 per cent. reduction on income taxes payable this year, was approved unanimously tonight by the senate finance committee.

It was agreed to increase the corporation tax 12 1-2 per cent. to 14 per cent. and eliminate the special tax on capital stock amounting to $1 for each $1,000 of stock.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who proposed the action, said it would make no material change in the amount of revenue collected from this source but that present administrative difficulties would be lessened by elimination of the capital stock tax. The vote on the motion was five to four.

Senator Reed also proposed the amendment, which was carried by a similar vote, to make taxable the income from state and municipal securities hereafter issued. Opponents argued such action was unconstitutional and would have to be brought about by a constitutional amendment. Such an amendment was defeated this session by the house, which also rejected a proposal such as was adopted tonight.

Both the corporation tax change and the tax-exempt securities proposal were carried by non-partisan votes, Senator McLean, Connecticut, republican, and Gerry, Rhode Island; Walsh, Massachusetts and King, Utah, democrats, supporting Mr. Reed's motion, while Senators Stanfield, republican, Oregon; and Simmons, North Carolina; Jones, New Mexico, and Harrison, Mississippi, democrats, opposed them.

Approval of the reduction in income taxes payable this year, means that if the bill is enacted into law, only one-half of the next tax installment, due June 15, and only three-fourths of the last two installments will have to be paid. If the tax has been paid in full a refund of one-fourth will be made the taxpayer.

POINCARE INSISTS UPON PAYMENT OF REPARATIONS

Paris, March 31.—By The A. P.)—In his ministerial declaration to parliament today, in presenting his reconstituted cabinet, Premier Poincare insisted upon the payment of reparations by Germany, with France holding the Ruhr until an equitable settlement was made, and upon guarantees of security from an unprovoked attack. As for the internal affairs of the country he spoke for safe and sane financial measures, application of the fiscal reforms just voted by parliament and stringent economies.

The premier made reference to the role which he said the league of nations was destined to play as arbitrator of the nations international differences. But in his opinion intervention by the league was somewhat distant.

"When the treaty has been fully executed and we have obtained reparations, security and, justice," he declared, "France, with maintenance of her independence as her only desire, will be the first to give an example of magnanimity and will help to develop the league of nations, the idea and ideals of which she first conceived, and in which she has played the role of conciliator for the past four years."

8,000 INSURANCE AGENTS WILL LACK LICENSES

Hartford, March 31—Approximately 8,000 insurance agents in Connecticut will be unable to write any business tomorrow because of negligence on the part of companies in filing with the insurance commissioner applications for 1924 licenses which become effective April 1, Commissioner Dunham said today.

Every insurance company and every agent and broker who does business in Connecticut must be licensed by the state department. All of the company licenses for 1924 have been issued, but out of approximately 16,000 agents and brokers in the, state, only 7,500 have reached the permits, under which they must operate from today until March 31, 1925.

BILLY SHOWLES, FAMOUS BAREBACK RIDER, DEAD

New York, March 31.—Billy Showles, known to circus goers of two generations ago as one of the most daring of bareback riders and who spent more than forty years with the Barnum and Bailey, Sells Brothers and Ringland shows, died tonight at Bellevue hospital.

When he was admitted to the hospital suffering from an incurable disease he made no mention of his former occupation but said he was William Showles, elevator operator in a New York apartment. Old show friends discovered his condition and his sick room was filled with gifts and flowers when the end came.

Tells of Deception In Texas Land "Deals"

Victims Were Treated to Liquor and Then Sold Land That Turned Out to be Misrepresented.

Washington, March 31—Tales of being on gay excursions to the Rio Grande valley in Texas and treated to liquor enroute but guarded from contact with inhabitants and then sold land that turned out to be misrepresented, were told in letters read from the files of the post office department before the senate committee investigating alleged land frauds in that region. James R. Page, Kansas City attorney, who is assisting Senator Heflin as prosecutor in the investigation read the letters from land purchasers. During the session telegrams sent from Washington by R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman from Texas charged with being a party to alleged land "deals" and by his attorney, George A. Hill, Jr., and received by them here since December 1, were given in to the keeping of the committee over the protest of Mr. Hill and telegraph officials.

The letters read were in answer to questionnaires sent by Postal Inspector J. M. Donaldson, at aKnsas City, Mo., to persons alleged to have been defrauded in the Rio Grande land purchases.

John Gooseman of Donna, Texas, whote that he had "joined an excursion from Kansas City in 1918" had been "treated loyally with liquor" and was told of three crops a year in the Rio Grand Valley region, low freight rates to the gulf and few frosts.

"We were taken to the homes of older residents used as baits", he wrote. "We were taken to the pumps of another company and told they were ours. "We were not allowed to mix with residents." Since he had settled on the land, he said. It had taken, "everything I can make to live and meet expenses."

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF CHILDREN EMPLOYES

Washington, March 31—Children under 16 years of age entering regular employed for the first time showed a marked increase in number. Statistics issued today by the children's bureau also what for 34 cities reporting the number of certificates issued for such employment the total was 90,166 in 1923 as compared with 79,686 in 1922, an increase of more than 19 per cent.

Only five cities in the group showed decreases. They were: Washington, D. C., 3.6 per cent; Detroit, 3.8 per cent; Minneapolis, 11.2 per cent; St. Paul, 5.0 per cent. and Fall River, Mass., 25.8 per cent.

Waterbury, Conn., had the highest increase with 139.0 per cent. The increases over 1922 in other cities were: Bridgeport 28.0; New Haven, 14.3; Boston 18.3; New Bedford, 59.7; Somerville 16.9; Springfield, Mass., 23.1; Worcester 19.1; New York City 12.4, Providence 18.2.

PRESIDENTIAL PRIMARIES IN WISCONSIN TODAY

Milwaukee Wis. Mar. 31.—Managers and party workers in Wisconsin today were closing the fight for convention delegates in the campaign of four candidates for the presidency, to be select in tomorrow's primary. Senator R. M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, and President Clavin Coolidge, republicans, and W. G. McAdoo, California, and Governor Alfred Smith, of New York, democrats are the presidential candidates.

In addition, the name of Senator James A Reed, of Missouri, has been filed as a candidate seeking democrat delegate votes. Manager for Senator Reed, however, filed no slate of delegates.

NEW ENGLAND MILK PRODUCERS REDUCE PRICE

Boston, March 31—The sales committee of the New England Milk Producers' association tonight announced a reduction of one half cent per quart for April in the price of milk, bringing it to six cents a quart delivered in Boston. This is the fourth consecutive month in which the association has announced reductions, the price having fallen from 9 1-3 cents in December to six cents in April.

In a statement accompanying the announcement the committee said the present action was brought about by the refusal of a large cooperative system in Maine to pay the 6 1-2 cent price in force during March.

REPARATION EXPERTS BOOK RETURN PASSAGE

Paris, March 31—Charles C. Dawes and Owen D. Young, who as unofficial representatives of the United States have had a leading part in the investigations of the reparation experts into Germany's financial and economic problems, have booked passage tentatively for their return to the United States on an American vessel sailing from Cherbourg April 22, the work of the experts, which is now drawing to a close, has engaged the Americans in Paris since the first of the year.

POLICE DOGS FAILED TO PICK UP MURDERER'S TRAIL

New York, March 31—The failure of an American bloodhound and a German police dog to pick up a 6 days-old trail today marked the latest effort of scores of detectives to track down the man in brown" who murdered Mrs. Maude Baur beside a lonely road in Chelsea, Staten island.

The dogs' services were offered by J. R. Margaroff of Westover, N. J., a police officer who asserted they often picked up scents severals days old which led to the discovery of lost persons or missing bodies.

FLINT HAD HABIT OF BORROWING FROM BANKS

Ukiah, Calif., March 31—Charges made in California of bank swindling against D. A. Flint, 52, will take precedence over any pending in the east, authorities asserted here tonight.

When Flint was arrested and questioned last night, he was alleged to have confessed not only the defrauding of a bank of this county of $7,000, but also the swindling of the First, Second and Merchants National banks in New Haven, Conn., of $15,000.

Flint was said to have represented himself as worth $700,000 when "borrowing" money from the various banks.

Seven New York Dentists Indicted

For Presenting and Collecting False Claims Against the Government for Work Not Performed.

New York, March 31.—The federal grand jury which has been investigating complaints made by ex-service men against the Veterans' bureau today indicted seven New York dentists on charges that they had presented and collected false claims on the government for work not performed.

The indictments, which were returned to Judge Edwin L. Garvin in the United States district court, named as defendants Charles Simonson, Irwin K. Girsdansky, Lambert R. Oeder, Irving H. Cantor, Charles J. Meyer and Nathan Fox. The indictment of the seventh dentist was temporarily placed under the seal of the court because of the illness of his wife.

While the false claims set forth in the indictments range only from $10 to $150, Colonel William Hayward, U. S. attorney, said they would aggregate many thousands of dollars when all the facts were divulged. The present indictments, he asserted, applied only to cases where the proof of fraud was thought unmistakable.

The inquiry, which is limited to violations of the federal statutes, will be continued before the April grand jury and Attorney Hayward predicted further indictments would result.

FORMER ARCHDUKE OF AUSTRIA DEAD IN NEW YORK

New York, March 31—A man who said he was Duke Archduke Jonann Salvator, who disappeared from the Austrian court in 1889 and was supposed to have died in a steamship wreck a year later, died in a Bronx hospital today.

New York city's official records show it to have been the former Austrian archduke. In spite of the fact that he had been reported to have died on many occasions.

Dr. John Grimley, who attended the distinguished looking old gentleman, said he was convinced his patient had been the former nobleman because of his apparent intimate knowledge of European courts. So the death certificate signed by Dr. Grimley carries the name of Johann Salvator, and not that of Ononlow, as he was known here for twenty five years.

Mrs. Charles H. Fairchild, a society photographer, said she had "discovered" the one time archduke a year ago. She said he had "admitted" his identity to her, telling her that the real reason for his flight from Vienna was that he had blackened the eyes of Emperor Franz Joseph for applying a vile name to his mother. Having broken his sword and thrown the pieces at the feet of his emperor, he told his bearers, he stalked from the palace, refused his soldiers' proffer to place him on the Austrian throne, and left the country for ever.

COMMITTEE TO CONTINUE DAUGHERTY INVESTIGATION

Washington, March 31.—A decision to continue its work was reached today by the Daugherty investigating committee. Disregarding the resignation of the former attorney general the committee in two executive sessions laid out a tentative program which will, Chairman Brookhart announced, keep it in open session for the taking of testimony until the end of this week. Notwithstanding the indicated purpose of the committee's members to seek new light in the further proceedings on the department of justice record of war fraud and anti-trust prosecutions, its closed sessions today were given over largely to consideration of problems arising out of its earlier airing of charges against Mr. Daugherty.

SENATE PRUNING THE HOUSE REVENUE BILL

Washington, March 31—House amendments to the revenue bill again fell under the pruning knife of the senate finance committee today as the rate schedules were taken up.

Rates in the present law for the taxes on produce exchange sales and on drafts and promissory notes were voted back into the bill. The house ways and means committee had cut in half the tax sales on produce exchanges of two cents for each $100, which it was estimated would reduce revenue, $4,000,000 annually, and had repealed the tax on drafts and notes of two cents for each $100 which it was estimated would cost the government $2,150,000 annually in revenue.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY IS FORECAST BY BANKERS

Find That Statistics of Trade and Industry For the First Quarter of 1924 Are Reassuring—A Widespread Decline in Business Activities in New England in the Month of March is Reported in Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston—Considerable Depression in Shown in tabe Shoe and Cotton Industries.

New York, March 1.—Wall street bankers generally state that the nation's business is fairly well balanced and that the immediate future holds prospect of continued industrial activity at a big brate, statistics of trade and industry for the first quarter of 1924 reveal a greater volume of business than in many corresponding periods of previous years.

The United States Steel corporation has a hidden asset totalling more than $50,000,000, it was reported today. For years the corporation's management has deducted from its inventories a reserve to guard against possible losses, which is said to constitute a tangible asset although it does not appear on the company's balance sheet. Last year's contribution to the reserve amounted to $1,759,798, bringing the total to $51,220,-000. Eventually, it is believed this will be diverted into surplus. Distribution of the credit on the common stock would give each share more than $16.

The street heard predictions that New Haven for March was expected to show surplus over charges of about $474,000, which while below the same item for the previous shorter month, would be better than any monthly showing for last year.

DECLINE IN BUSINESS ACTIVITY IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, March 31.—A widespread decline in business activity touching the majority of industries of New England in the month of March was reported today in the monthly review of the federal Reserve bank of Boston. Despite the decline, business activity is near the normal level, the review said.

The first three weeks in March brought reductions in commodity prices. Affected in part by weather conditions and by the lateness of Easter, the volume of business of department stores showed a falling off after the first of March. Distribution of merchandise by the railroads continued larger than at the corresponding time a year ago, however. Manufacturing conditions, reported far from uniform, showed considerable depression in the shoe and cotton industries. Money rates were relatively low.

The decline in commodity prices followed a decrease in the prices of basic raw materials late in February.

"The general wholesale price leve of all commodities, including manufactured goods, as well as raw materials, averaged slightly higher in February than in January,' the review said * * *

"The department store merchants did not report a satisfactory volume of business during the first two weeks of March although their report for February showed a good margin of increase over sales in the same month in 1923. Beginning about the first of March, however, the volume of trade began to suffer, partly because of poor weather conditions. * * *

"Practically all of the Easter trade will come in April rather than in March. Department stores as a rule have comparatively low stocks on hahnd and are maintainging a high rate of turnover.

"Distribution of merchandise by the railroads of New England continues to be in larger volume than it was a year ago at this time. * * *

"Manufacturing conditions are far from uniform in the various industries of New England. There were a number of reports received during March from concerns which had been operating on curtailed schedules that they were to increase their output. On the other hand, a number of factories already on part time schedules reported a further curtailment. * * *

"One of the most depressed of the New England industries is the cotton textile industry, and according to the consumption of cotton by the mills in this district during February, they were operating at less than 75 per cent. of their established normal production for that month. Normal production is considerably less than capacity production. The boot and shoe industry is another of the prominent ones of New England to report a comparatively low output during February.

"Banking conditions in this district remain favorable from the business man's standpoint. Money rates are relatively low, but consumers' commercial requirements at the banks is the more important. New England centers increased sharply during the first three weeks of March, after having declined almost without interruption since last October."

78TH BIRTHDAY OF FATHER OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

Plymouth, Vt., March 31—John C. Coolidge, father of President Coolidge observed his 78th birthday quietly at his home here today. Hale and straight in spite of his years and with few gray hairs he gave as his advice to those who desire longevity "No worry, hard work."

There was no birthday celebration at the white farmhouse where last August Calvin Coolidge was sworn in by his father as president of the United States. Mr. Coolidge had planned to spend the day cutting wood but the death of a distant relative who was to have been his companion cancelled his program. He passed most of the forenoon in the buxarlot of a neighbor where he was persuaded to pose for some camera men. In the afternoon he was called to a little general store across the road from his home to answer many long distance telephone messages of congratulation. Scores of letters arrived by the one mail of the day, and reading these occupied the rest of the daylight hours.

One letter was from President Coolidge and there was also a card from Mrs. Coolidge. The president's father said the letter from his son was "too personal" to make public. Among other things, President Coolidge asked his father not to work so hard and urged him to visit the white house as soon as possible. A letter from Frank W. Stearns, of Boston, long-time friend and supporter of President Coolidge caused the president's father much pleasure.

INVESTIGATION OF BUREAU OF ENGRAVING HELD UP

Washington, March 31—The house committee authorized to investigate alleged irregularities at the bureau of engraving and printing was prevented from beginning its hearing today by the refusal of Clerk Morgan H. Beach of the district of Columbia supreme court to turn over to the committee a batch of government bonds in his possession.

It is the contention of Charles B. Brewer, whose investigation of conditions at the bureau led President Harding to discharge 23 officials two years ago, that the bonds are duplicates. As a result of a suit by Brewer to prevent the treasury from gaining possession of the bonds they have been impounded by Justice Stafford.

Subpoenaed to turn them over to the committee today took the position that he could not do so unless instructed by the curt.

Members of the committee said they were confident that arrangements could be made to have a satisfactory custodian designated for the bonds and that Justice Stafford would agree to let the committee examine them.

WOOD ALCOHOL CAUSED SEVEN DEATHS IN TOLEDO

Toledo, Ohio, March 31.—With seven men dead tonight from drinking denatured and wood alcohol in commercial preparations, authorities announced there is no law regulating sale of legitimate articles containing large amounts of alcohol. All of the victims were residents of Toledo.

Police notified proprietors of all lodging houses if lodgers were found using preparations containing alcohol court action would be started against property owners and renters.

SENATE IS IN A QUAGMIRE OF POLITICAL POLLUTION

Senator Dill Has Presented a Resolution Calling for the Resignation of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt—Senator Wadsworth, in Defense of Mr. Roosevelt, Referred to Senator Dill as "Another Sniper Rising From Political Trenches"—Correspondence Shows That Roosevelt Opposed the Transfer of the Oil Reserves to the Interior Department.

Washington, March 31.—While the senate oil committee was in recess today, opponents of the leasing of the naval reserves were restricted in their action to the floor of the senate where developments centered around a resolution by Senator Dill, democrat, Washington calling for the resignation of Assistant Secretary Roosevelt. It proposes to express the "sense of the senate," that President Coolidge should ask for the assistant secretary's resignation.

Senator Dill introduced his resolution without comment but Senator Wadsworth, republican, New York, took the first opportunity to attack "the evident motive behind it," declaring the author of the resolution "had deliberately withheld the facts bearing upon his preamble." Senator Wadsworth contended the purpose was "a bare attempt to besmirch by false innuendo the name of a public official." He referred to the Washington senator as "another sniper rising from political trenches."

A letter from Assistant Secretary Roosevelt to state Senator William W. Campbell, of New York, was read into the record. Reciting the assistant secretary's connection with the oil reserves it declared he had opposed their transfer to the interior department and was ignorant of the leases which ensued until they had been announced publicly. Senator Wadsworth also presented a letter from Rear Admiral Robert S. Griffin, retired, a leader of the anti-leasists in the department, confirming Mr. Roosevelt's statement of the facts.

Chairman Ladd, republican, North Dakota, announced there had been no change in the scheduled reconvening of the oil committee tomorrow, despite the failure of subpoena servers to locate William Boyce Thompson, former chairman of the republican national committee's finance committee, who is to be questioned respecting campaign contributions.

Plans for forthcoming hearings do not go beyond the delving into campaign contributions from oil interests, members of the committee said, but there was no confirmation of reports that an early conclusion of that body's activities was now forseen.

R. H. Wilson, once a candidate for the democratic nomination for governor of Oklahoma, is expected to testify tomorrow. Other witnesses include W. L. Kistler, an oil promoter, of Tulsa, and George White, former chairman of the democratic national committee.

Senator Dill, who is a member of the committee, left Washington tonight for speaking tour in which he promised to amplify his contention that Assistant Secretary Roosevelt should not remain in office.

The letter from Mr. Roosevelt to state Senator Campbell under date of February 15 is as follows:

"My dear senator:

"I have just received your letter of February 11th. Thank you so much for it.

"My connection with the oil lease is briefly as follows: Shortly after President Harding's induction into office, Secretary Denby sent me a copy of a executive order transferring the Naval Oil Reserves to the department of the interior, without recourse. He sent at the same time a copy to the bureau of engineering. After getting my copy of the order, I asked Admiral Griffin, who was then chief of that bureau, and who had the oil under his particular care, to talk it over with me. I knew very little of the matter, but Griffin felt very strongly that this transfer would be a mistake. After thinking the matter over, I decided he was probably right. My grounds for coming to this conclusion were that the interior department has as its general mission the development of the resources of the United States, whereas the oil lands belonging to the navy should not be developed except in a case of real necessity, and that therefore there would be a conflict of ideas. I went to the secretary and urged that the lands be not transferred to the interior department.

He informed me that my protest in the matter was made too late because the transfer had already been agreed by the president Fall and himself. After this I went back and discussed the entire situation with Griffin and certain other officers. It occurred to me that if we could get an amendment to the original order for transfer, making it necessary for the interior department to gain the consent of the navy department before leasing or drilling was undertaken, we could guard the lands against improper exploitation. A number of amendments with this end in view were submitted to me. I took them to the secretary and discussed them with him. After considerable discussion he agreed to a modified form of one of them. He told me to take it to Secretary Fall and that if I could get him to agree to this amendment, it would be all right with him. I took the amendment to Secretary Fall who agreed to it. I then took it to the White House for signature. This amendment read as follows:

"'But no general policy as to drilling or reserving lands located in a naval reserve shall be changed or adopted except upon consultation and in cooperation with the secretary or acting secretary of the navy.'

"You can see that this reserves to the navy supervision over the oil reserve. It was on account of this amendment that all of the leases under discussion by the senate committee at this time were countersigned by Secretary Denby. They could not have been accomplished without the OK of this department.

"At this point, my active participation in the entire matter ceased. It so happened that I was not consulted on any of the oil leases. I did not know they were under contemplation until after they were signed. With reference to the Teapot Dome lease in particular, I did not know there was a plan on foot to lease Teapot Dome. I did not know Sinclair was interested in any of the leases. I heard of them only after they had been made to the general public.

"Insofar as my connection with the Sinclair company goes, it is as follows: I was among the group of bankers who were interested in its original fromation. I was a director of the company until the outbreak of the war in 1917, when I resigned. My last stock in the company was sold during the war, not later than 1918. I am inclined to think in 1917. My wife bought one thousand shares of Sinclair stock, however, in 1920, but sold them at a loss some short time before the leases with the navy department were signed.

"Merely parenthetically, I have engaged in no business of any kind since the war, and my entrance in politics, and have therefore made no money of any kind in business.

"All of the above is in the hearings—perhaps not quite in such ample form as I have given it to you, and fairly well scattered over a couple of days.

"You may show this letter to any one you wish to show it to, but do not let it get into the press, because I don't want at this time to look as Secretary Denby in his time of trouble I were trying to "run out" on Secretary Denby in his time of trouble

"Believe me,

"Yours very truly,

SENATE HAS TABLED THE MELLON RESOLUTION

Washington, March 31—A resolution designed to oust Secretary Mellon from office on technical legal ground, launched last Friday by Senator McKellar, democrat, Tennessee, bobbed up automatically in the senate today only to land on the table with no one demanding action upon it.

It was buffeted severely by Mr. Mellon's republican defenders before it stranded, while Senator McKellar's was the only voice urging it on its way. Whether it will be refloated later is a matter of dispute among senate democratic chieftains, who conferred during the debate on the wisdom of pressing it, while Senator Robinson of Arkansas, the democratic leader, who returned to Washington after an absence of several days, disclaimed responsibility for the move initiated by the Tennessee senator.

Senator McKellar declared he was not charging Mr. Mellon with any wrongdoing or failure, but merely insisting upon enforcement of old statutes forbidding the appointment as federal fiscal officers of men "interested or concerned" in the carrying on of commercial enterprises.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who led the defenders, asserted from personal knowledge that Mr. Mellon had divested himself of every commercial and industrial connection that could be questioned in any way before he went to the treasury.

SINCLAIR INDICTED BY FEDERAL GRAND JURY

Washington, March 31—Indictment by a federal grand jury here today of Harry F. Sinclair, to whom the government leased the Teapot Dome oil reserve, on contempt charges resulting from his refusal to testify before the senate oil committee constituted the first action of the kind to grow out of the senate's investigation of oil leases. The action eventuality, it is believed, may lead to a ruling by the United States supreme court on the authority of congress to develop evidence along lines followed in the present inquiry.

Counsel for Sinclair here stated that the oil operator was not in Washington but that it was their belief he would return voluntarily to face the indictment. Ten counts were listed in the indictment, which was signed by District Attorney Gordon, and Atlee Pomerene, and Owen J. Roberts, as special assistants, each referring to specific questions asked Sinclair by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, in the course of the oil committee's inquiry.

The questions, which Sinclair declined to answer, declaring he would "reserve any evidence" he might be able to furnish for the courts, were declared by the grand jurors to have been "pertinent to the matters and questions then under inquiry before the said committee."

The indictment recited at length the oil policy determined upon by congress and declared the senate oil committee was authorized to inquire into all phases of the leasing of naval oil reserves, which, it was held, was being done at the time of Sinclair's refusal to answer questions.

ROOSEVELT DECLINES TO COMMENT ON SENATOR DILL

Auburn, N. Y., March 31.—Theodore Roosevelt, assistant secretary of the navy, who is here to deliver an address tonight at a Masonic gathering, refused to comment when informed that Senator Dill had introduced a resolution demanding his resignation. "I have nothing to say in reply," he said.

He visited a local school today to study the work of Americanization being carried on there and later was the guest of the American legion.

$50,000 LIQUOR APPARATUS SEIZED IN WORCESTER

Worcester, Mass., March 31.—More than $50,000 worth of apparatus and supplies for making beer and other liquors was seized this afternoon, when two score of federal agents, local liquor squad officers and policemen swooped down on two stores in the Green and Water streets district in what was claimed to be the biggest raid staged in this city since the advent of prohibition.

The places raided were the Boston Jobbing company at 160 Water street, and the American Malt & Hops company at 92 Green street.

SENATE COMMITTEE VOTES CUT OF 1923 INCOME TAX

Washington, March 31.—The provision in the revenue bill for a 25 per cent. reduction on income taxes payable this year, was approved unanimously tonight by the senate finance committee.

It was agreed to increase the corporation tax 12 1-2 per cent. to 14 per cent. and eliminate the special tax on capital stock amounting to $1 for each $1,000 of stock.

Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, who proposed the action, said it would make no material change in the amount of revenue collected from this source but that present administrative difficulties would be lessened by elimination of the capital stock tax. The vote on the motion was five to four.

Senator Reed also proposed the amendment, which was carried by a similar vote, to make taxable the income from state and municipal securities hereafter issued. Opponents argued such action was unconstitutional and would have to be brought about by a constitutional amendment. Such an amendment was defeated this session by the house, which also rejected a proposal such as was adopted tonight.

Both the corporation tax change and the tax-exempt securities proposal were carried by non-partisan votes, Senator McLean, Connecticut, republican, and Gerry, Rhode Island; Walsh, Massachusetts and King, Utah, democrats, supporting Mr. Reed's motion, while Senators Stanfield, republican, Oregon; and Simmons, North Carolina; Jones, New Mexico, and Harrison, Mississippi, democrats, opposed them.

Approval of the reduction in income taxes payable this year, means that, if the bill is enacted into law, only one-half of the next tax installment, due June 15, and only three-fourths of the last two installments will have to be paid. If the tax has been paid in full a refund of one-fourth will be made the taxpayer.

POINCARE INSISTS UPON PAYMENT OF REPARATIONS

Paris, March 31.—By The A. P.)—In his ministerial declaration to parliament today, in presenting his reconstituted cabinet Premier Poincare insisted upon the payment of reparations by Germany, with France holding the Ruhr until an equitable settlement was made, and upon guarantees of security from an unprovoked attack. As for the internal affairs of the country he spoke for safe and sane financial measures, application of the fiscal reforms just voted by parliament and stringent economies.

The premier made reference to the role which he said the league of nations was destined to play as arbitrator of the nations international differences. But in his opinion, intervention by the league was somewhat distant.

"When the treaty has been fully executed and we have obtained reparations, security and justice," he declared, "France, will maintenance of her independence as her only desire, will be the first to give an example of magnanimity and will help to develop the league of nations, the idea and ideals of which she first conceived, and in which she has played the role of conciliator for the past four years."

8,000 INSURANCE AGENTS WILL LACK LICENSES

Hartford, March 31—Approximately 8,000 insurance agents in Connecticut will be unable to write any business tomorrow because of negligence on the part of companies in filing with the insurance commissioner applications for 1924 licenses which becomes effective April 1, Commissioner Dunham said today.

Every insurance company and every agent and broker who does business in Connecticut must be licensed by the state department. All of the company licenses for 1924 have been issued, but out of approximately 16,000 agents and brokers in the state, only 7,500 have reached the permits, under which they must operate from today until March 31, 1925.

BILLY SHOWLES, FAMOUS BAREBACK RIDER, DEAD

New York, March 31.—Billy Showles, known to circus goers of two generations ago as one of the most daring of bareback riders and who spent more than forty years with the Barnum and Bailey, Sells Brothers and Ringland shows, died tonight at Bellevue hospital.

When he was admitted to the hospital suffering from an incurable disease he made no mention of his former occupation but said he was William Showles, elevator operator in a New York apartment. Old show friends discovered his condition and his sick room was filled with gifts and flowers when the end came.

Tells of Deception In Texas Land "Deals"

Victims Were Treated to Liquor and Then Sold Land That Turned Out to be Misrepresented.

Washington, March 31—Tales of being on gay excursions to the Rio Grande valley in Texas and treated to liquor enroute but guarded from contact with inhabitants and then sold land that turned out to be misrepresented, were told in letters read from the files of the post office department before the senate committee investigating alleged land frauds in that region. James R. Page, Kansas City attorney, who is assisting Senator Heflin as prosecutor in the investigation read the letters from land purchasers. During the session telegrams sent from Washington by R. B. Creager, republican national committeeman from Texas charged with being a party to alleged land "deals" and by his attorney, George A. Hill, Jr., and received by them here since December 1, were given into the keeping of the committee over the protest of Mr. Hill and telegraph officials.

The letters read were in answer to questionnaires sent by Postal Inspector J. M. Donaldson, at Kansas City, Mo., to persons alleged to have been defrauded in the Rio Grande land purchases.

John Gooseman of Donna, Texas, whote that he had "joined an excursion from Kansas City in 1918" had been "treated loyally with liquor" and was told of three crops a year in the Rio Grand Valley region, low freight rates to the gulf and few frosts.

"We were taken to the homes of older residents used as baits", he wrote. "We were taken to the pumps of another company and told they were ours. "We were not allowed to mix with residents." Since he had settled on the land, he said. It had taken "everything I can make to live and meet expenses."

INCREASE IN NUMBER OF CHILDREN EMPLOYES

Washington, March 31—Children under 16 years of age entering regular employed for the first time showed a marked increase in number. Statistics issued today by the children's bureau sho wthat for 84 cities reporting the number of certificates issued for such employment the total was 90,166 in 1923 as compared with 76,686 in 1922, an increase of more than 19 per cent.

Only five cities in the group showed decreases. They were: Washington, D. C., 31.6 per cent; Detroit, 18 per cent; Minneapolis, 11.2 per cent; St. Paul, 5.0 per cent. and Fall River, Mass., 25.3 per cent.

Waterbury, Conn., had the highest increase with 123.0 per cent. The increase over 1923 in other cities was: Bridgeport 28.9; New Haven, 4.3; Boston, 16.3; New Bedford, 55.2; Somerville 16.9; Springfield, Mass., 22.1; Worcester 19.1; New York City 12.4 Providence 18.2.

Senator R. M. LaFollette of Wisconsin, and President Clavin Coolidge, republicans, and W. G. McAdoo, California, and Governor Alfred Smith, of New York, democrats are the presidential candidates.

In addition, the name of Senator James A. Reed, of Missouri, has been filed as a candidate seeking democrat delegate votes. Manager for Senator Reed, however, filed no slate of delegates.

NEW ENGLAND MILK PRODUCERS REDUCE PRICE

Boston, March 31—The sales committee of the New England Milk Producers' association tonight announced a reduction of one half cent per quart for April in the price of milk, bringing it to six cents a quart delivered in Boston. This is the fourth consecutive month in which the association has announced reductions, the price having fallen from 9 1-2 cents in December to six cents in April.

In a statement accompanying the announcement, the committee said the present action was brought about by the refusal of a large cooperative system in Maine to pay the 6 1-2 cent price in force during March.

REPARATION EXPERTS BOOK RETURN PASSAGE

POLICE DOGS FAILED TO PICK UP MURDERER'S TRAIL

New York, March 31—The failure of an American bloodhound and a German police dog to pick up a 6-days-old trail today marked the latest effort of scores of detectives to track down the man in brown" who murdered Mrs. Maude Bauer beside a lonely road in Chelsea, Staten Island.

The dogs' services were offered by J. R. Margaroff of Westover, N. Y., a police officer who asserted they often picked up scents severals days old which led to the discovery of lost persons or missing bodies.

FLINT HAD HABIT OF BORROWING FROM BANKS

Tulare, Calif., March 31—Charges made in California of bank swindling against D. A. Flint, 52, will take precedence over any pending in the east, authorities asserted here tonight.

When Flint was arrested and questioned last night, he was alleged to have confessed not only the defrauding of a bank of this county of $7,000, but also the swindling of the First, Second and Merchants National banks of New Haven, Conn., of $15,000.

Flint was said to have represented himself as worth $300,000 when borrowing money from the various banks.

Seven New York Dentists Indicted

For Presenting and Collecting False Claims Against the Government for Work Not Performed.

New York, March 31.—The federal grand jury which has been investigating complaints made by ex-service men against the Veterans' bureau today indicted seven New York dentists on charges that they had presented and collected false claims on the government for work not performed.

The indictments, which were returned to Judge Edwin L. Garvin in the United States district court, named as defendants Charles Simonson, Irwin K. Girsdansky, Lambert R. Oeder, Irving H. Cantor, Charles J. Meyer and Nathan Fox. The indictment of the seventh dentist was temporarily placed under the seal of the court because of the illness of his wife.

While the false claims set forth in the indictments range only from $10 to $150, Colonel William Hayward, U. S. attorney, said they would aggregate many thousands of dollars when all the facts were divulged. The present indictments, he asserted, applied only to cases where the proof of fraud was thought unmistakable.

The inquiry, which is limited to violations of the federal statutes, will be continued before the April grand jury and Attorney Hayward predicted further indictments would result.

FORMER ARCHHDUKE OF AUSTRIA DEAD IN NEW YORK

New York, March 31—A man who said he was the Archduke Jonann Salvator, who disappeared from the Austrian court in 1889 and was supposed to have died in a steamship wreck a year later, died in a Bronx hospital today.

New York city's official records show it to have been the former Austrian archduke, in spite of the fact that he had been reported to have died on many occasions.

Dr. John Grimley, who attended the distinguished looking old gentleman, said he was convinced his patient had been the former nobleman because of his apparent intimate knowledge of European courts. So the death certificate signed by Dr. Grimley carries the name of Johann Salvator, and not that of Ononlow, as he was known here for twenty five years.

Mrs. Charles H. Fairchild, a society photographer, said she had "discovered" the one time archduke a year ago. She said he had "admitted" his identity to her, telling her that the real reason for his flight from Vienna was that he had blackened the eyes of Emperor Franz Joseph for applying a vile name to his mother. Having broken his sword and thrown the pieces at the feet of his emperor, he told his hearers, he stalked from the palace, refused his soldiers' proffer to place him on the Austrian throne, and left the country for ever.

COMMITTEE TO CONTINUE DAUGHERTY INVESTIGATION

Washington, March 31.—A decision to continue its work was reached today by the Daugherty investigating committee. Disregarding the resignation of the former attorney general the committee in two executive sessions laid out a tentative program which will, Chairman Brookhart announced, keep it in open session for the taking of testimony until the end of this week. Notwithstanding the indicated purpose of the committee's members to seek new light in the further proceedings on the department of justice record of war fraud and antitrust prosecutions, its closed sessions today were given over largely to consideration of problems arising out of its earlier airing of charges against Mr. Daugherty.

SENATE PRUNING THE HOUSE REVENUE BILL

Washington, March 31—House amendments to the revenue bill again fell under the pruning knife of the senate finance committee today as the rate schedules were taken up.

Rates in the present law for the taxes on produce exchange sales and on drafts and promissory notes were voted back into the bill. The house ways and meaqs committee had cut in half the tax sales on produce exchanges of two cents for each $100, which it was estimated would reduce revenue $4,000,000 annually, and had repealed the tax on drafts and notes of two cents for each $100 which it was estimated would cost the government $3,150,000 annually in revenue.

INDUSTRIAL ACTIVITY IS FORECAST BY BANKERS

Find That Statistics of Trade and Industry for the First Quarter of 1924 Are Reassuring—A Widespread Decline in Business Activities in New England in the Month of March is Reported in Monthly Review of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston—Considerable Depression is Shown in tahe Shoe and Cotton Industries.

New York, March 1.—Wall street bankers generally state that the nation's business is fairly well balanced and that the immediate future holds prospect of continued industrial activity at a big brate. Statistics of trade and industry for the first quarter of 1921 reveal a greater volume of business than in many corresponding periods of previous years.

The United States Steel corporation has a hidden asset totalling more than $50,000,000, it was reported today. For years the corporation's management has deducted from its inventories a reserve to guard against possible losses, which is said to constitute a tangible asset although it does not appear on the company's balance sheet. Last year's contribution to the reserve amounted to $1,-769,792, bringing the total to $51,220,-885. Eventually, it is believed this will be diverted into surplus. Distribution of the credit on the common stock would give each share more than $10.

The street board predictions that New Haven for March was expected to show surplus over charges of about $474,000, which while below the same item for the previous shorter month, would be better than any monthly showing for last year.

DECLINE IN BUSINESS ACTIVITY IN NEW ENGLAND

Boston, March 31.—A widespread decline in business activity touching the majority of industries of New England in the month of March was reported today in the monthly review of the federal Reserve bank of Boston. Despite the decline, business activity is near the normal level, the review said.

The first three weeks in March brought reductions in commodity prices. Affected in part by weather conditions and by the lateness of Easter, the volume of business of department stores showed a falling off after the first of March. Distribution of merchandise by the railroads continued largest than at the corresponding time a year ago, however. Manufacturing conditions, reports far from uniform, showed considerable depression in the shoe and cotton industries. Money rates were relatively low.

The decline in commodity prices followed a decrease in the prices of basic raw materials late in February.

"The general wholesale price level of all commodities, including manufactured goods, as well as raw materials, averaged slightly higher in February than in January," the review said. • • •

"The department store merchants did not report a satisfactory volume of business during the first two weeks of March although their report for February showed a good margin of increase over sales in the same month in 1923. Beginning about the first of March, however, the volume of trade began to suffer, partly because of poor weather conditions. • • • Practically all of the Easter trade will come in April rather than in March. Department stores as a rule have comparatively low stocks on hand and are maintaining a high rate of turnover.

"Distribution of merchandise by the railroads of New England continues to be in larger volume than it was a year ago at this time. • • •

"Manufacturing conditions are far from uniform in the various industries of New England. There were a number of reports received during March from concerns which had been operating on curtailed schedules that they were to increase their output. On the other hand, a number of factories already on part time schedules reported a further curtailment. • • •

"One of the most depressed of the New England industries is the cotton textile industry, and according to the consumption of cotton by the mills in this district during February, they were operating at less than 70 per cent. of their established normal production for that month. Normal production is considerably less than capacity production. The boot and shoe industry is another of the prominent ones of New England to report a comparatively low output during February.

79TH BIRTHDAY OF FATHER OF PRESIDENT COOLIDGE

There was no birthday celebration at the white farmhouse where last August Calvin Coolidge was sworn in by his father as president of the United States. Mr. Coolidge had planned to spend the day cutting wood but the death of a distant relative who was to have been his companion cancelled his program. He passed most of the forenoon in the seclusion of a neighbor where he was persuaded to pose for some camera men. In the afternoon he was called to a little general store across the road from his home to answer many long distance telephone messages of congratulation. Scores of letters arrived by the one mail of the day, and reading these occupied the rest of the daylight hours.

One letter was from President Coolidge and there was also a card from Mrs. Coolidge. The president's father said the letter from his son was "too personal" to make public. Among other things, President Coolidge asked his father not to work so hard and urged him to visit the white house as soon as possible. A letter from Frank W. Stearns, of Boston, long-time friend and supporter of President Coolidge caused the president's father much pleasure.

INVESTIGATION OF BUREAU OF ENGRAVING HELD UP

Washington, March 31—The house committee authorized to investigate alleged irregularities at the bureau of engraving and printing was prevented from beginning its hearing today by the refusal of Clerk Morgan H. Beach of the district of Columbia supreme court to turn over to the committee a batch of government bonds in his possession.

It is the contention of Charles R. Brewer, whose investigation of conditions at the bureau led President Harding to discharge 28 officials two years ago, that the bonds are duplicates. As a result of a suit by Brewer to prevent the treasury from raising possession of the bonds they have been impounded by Justice Stafford.

Subpoenaed to turn them over to the committee today took the position that he could not do so unless instructed by the curt.

Members of the committee said they were confident that arrangements could be made to have a satisfactory custodian designated for the bonds and that Justice Stafford would agree to let the committee examine them.

WOOD ALCOHOL CAUSED SEVEN DEATHS IN TOLEDO

Toledo, Ohio, March 31.—With seven men dead tonight from drinking denatured and wood alcohol in commercial preparations, authorities announced there is no law regulating sale of legitimate articles containing large amounts of alcohol. All of the victims were residents of Toledo.

Police notified proprietors of all lodging houses if lodgers were found using preparations containing alcohol court action would be started against property owners and renters.

NORWICH BULLETIN

21 Church St. Telephone 1062

Judge George Hinman, of the Windham county superior court, has handed down a decision against State Policeman Harris J. Hulburt, in the case of Eben G. Chappell of Chaplin versus Harris J. Hulburt. Officer Hulburt is a member of the state police barracks at Stafford Springs. The case was tried in this city recently. The plaintiff is allowed damages of $50 and costs. Following is the memorandum of Judge Hinman: "No legal justification for the acts of the defendant which form the basis for this action is pleaded, or claimed on the trial—the defendant relying on a contention that there was no actionable restraint of the plaintiff's liberty. It is clear from the evidence, however, that the plaintiff was compelled to go where he did not wish to go and to remain where he did not wish to remain. He accompanied the defendant to the Stafford barracks, not voluntarily or willingly, but under the peremptory request of an officer in uniform, being compelled even to abandon the task of delivering a load of wood, in which he was at the time engaged. He was detained at the barracks for several hours at least, until interrogation of him by the officers there was completed, even if his stay over night was, as claimed, a matter of his own convenience, as to which it appears that his only alternative was to make his own way home in the night the long distance which he had been brought by the defendant from his home.

"The fact that the defendant is a state policeman and was at the time investigating a supposed criminal offense, has, however, led to a careful, though perhaps superfluous, further inquiry as to whether legal justification for the defendant's course of action might be afforded by his official situation and purpose. Such consideration leads to a conclusion in the negative. It is not claimed that the plaintiff was himself under even suspicion of having committed the crime which was under investigation. His unsatisfactory and contradictory testimony in the trial of another person charged with the crime led the officers to wish to interrogate him further, to obtain, if possible, a detailed and consistent statement as to matters within his knowledge. This they might legitimately do, provided that it be done in a manner not involving unlawful restraint; but whatever may be the limits of the means which may lawfully be employed in obtaining clear and truthful statements from an evasive or stupid witness, neither reason nor precedents found, justify such procedure as was followed here. Much less of detention without process of law and without a view to prosecution has been held to constitute actionable false imprisonment.

"The defendant is liable to the plaintiff for such damage as the latter has proven. As to this, the defendant was not actuated by malice but, by a zeal in the performance of his duties which led him, mistakenly, to exceed his lawful powers. The plaintiff has magnified the mental and physical effects of his experience and was not materially damaged in reputation. Judgment that the plaintiff recover of the defendant $50 damages and his costs."

Practically every town in Connecticut was represented by delegations who witnessed the exemplification of the third degree of l'Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique at the Al-Pierre tabarin, Sunday afternoon. Four hundred members came from Norwich, Plainfield, Wauregan, Baltic, Taftville, Danielson, Jewett City, Moosup, Putnam, North Grosvenordale, Hartford, Stafford Springs, Torrington, Bristol, Winsted and Waterbury.

The meeting was opened with a brief address of welcome by President Pierre J. Laramee of this city. Rev. Fathers E. A. Mathieu and H. C. Lelee of St. Mary's parish were among the guests. The degree work was in charge of Captain Henry Desormeau and his team. In the class of 43 candidates upon whom the degree was conferred, each council in Eastern Connecticut was represented. The degree was under the auspices of Conseil Florimond, No. 74, of this city. Mayor Hermidas Dion, one of the national directors, represented the district bureau. As part of the entertainment Wilfred J. Lavaude gave fine piano selections. Luncheon was served.

The efficient committee in charge of the arrangements comprised: Hermidas Dion, chairman; F. J. Bergeron, Henry Desormeau, Albert J. Piche, Alfred Lambert, Arthur Marrotte, P. J. Laramee, Wilfred Pageau, George Lavigne, Philippe Roy and J. Albert Roy.

In the police court Monday morning, Martin Shea was charged with non-support. Shea said that he could see no reason why he should hire counsel nor why he should be brought into the court again on the same charge of which he was found not guilty some time ago. He said that he had a good home for his wife and he was not to blame if she did not take advantage of it. Shea said that if the court wished to proceed with the case he would act as his own counsel. Prosecuting Attorney Harvey asked for a continuance of the case until this (Tuesday) morning when witnesses would testify for the plaintiff. Deputy Judge Dean granted the request.

Albert Pehi and James H. Donohue were charged with intoxication in police court Monday morning. Donohue wanted to be let off easy so that he could go back and support his aged mother. Pehi wanted to be able to keep his good job. He worked steadily but unusual circumstances landed him in the court. Judge Dean imposed a fine of $10 and costs, amounting to $17.15 in each case. The assessments were paid.

A lively but harmonious annual meeting of the Windham Center district was held Saturday evening in the assembly hall of the new school building. The life of the meeting came from one of the attendants, Mrs. Emma Kenyon Robinson who strongly opposed certain improvements which were taken up for discussion and the levying of the usual two mill tax to cover the district expenses for the year.

Members of the district committee last year who were anticipating re-election this year were apparently not in the favor of Mrs. Robinson. She named candidates in opposition of Charles Larrabee and Miss Josephine M. Bingham. Mrs. Robinson was defeated but she bore her disappointment with glorious composure. There was one change in the re-election of the committee members. Guy S. Richmond, who was third member last year is now second, and Miss Josephine M. Bingham is now third. Rev Arthur W. Clifford, pastor of the Congregational church, was moderator and Mrs. Lena F. Potter, clerk. The report of treasurer, Mrs. Potter, showed a balance of $295.08 on March 29, which is $8.80 less than last year. The report as read by Collector Hopkins showed that on the two mill tax on the district assessment of the town's grand list, amounting to $330,-700, he had collected and paid the treasurer the sum of $461.40 with uncollected taxes amounting to $38.52. The expenditures for the year were $381.74, according to the report of the committee, which was presented by Chairman Larrabee. Mrs. Lena F. Potter was re-elected clerk and treasurer without opposition, as was also Paul E. Hopkins for the office of collector. F. E. Guild and H. Clinton Lathrop were chosen auditors.

When the matter of electing a district committee was taken up, Mrs. Robinson offered the name of Guy S. Richmond, in opposition to that of the present incumbent, Charles Larrabee. Mr. Richmond declined to run as first member, or chairman of the committee and Mr. Larrabee received a unanimous vote. For second member of the committee the name of Guy Richmond was again called out and he was selected. For third member Miss Josephine W. Bingham found opposition when Mrs. Robinson presented the name of Horace Rood. The contest came to a vote and Rood went down to defeat, 25 to 6.

The usual two mill tax was levied on the district's grand list. The proposition to make a permanent sidewalk from the Congregational church property south, by the old school house, to a point near the Richard Watrous property and the repair of one of the short streets leading from the Windham inn to the road leading to the Plains road, past the home of Dr. F. E. Guild, were passed by unanimous vote. Another improvement favored was the closing of the two stretches of road from the inn which go in a westerly direction.

The funeral of Miss Dorothy Edith Sweeney was held Monday morning from the family home, 233 Jackson street. The solemn high mass of requiem at St. Joseph's church at nine o'clock was largely attended. The celebrant was Rev. John E. Clark. Rev. C. S. Beaumister was deacon and Rev. Charles M. Kelly, sub-deacon. The organ music was by Mrs. E. R. Perrilance. A trio, Mrs. Henry Mathieu, Mrs. Louis Peters and Miss Monica McKeon, sang "Mother Dearest, Mother Fairest," as the body was borne into the church. "Pie Jesu" was sung by Miss McKeon at the offertory and as a waiting hymn Mrs. Mathieu gave, "Thy Will Be Done." There were beautiful flowers. The flower bearers were Henry O'Loughlin, John F. Collins, Jr., Thomas O'Rourke and Thomas Sullivan. Burial was in the family plot in St. Joseph's cemetery where the committal service was by Fathers Clark, Beaumister and Kelly. The bearers were Delphis Boucher, Jr., John O'Loughlin, James M. Tighe, Leo Sullivan, Cyril Brondin and Luke Hevrin. Pupils of the fifth grade of St. Joseph's school, classmates of Miss Sweeney, attended the services in a body. Arrangements were in charge of Killourey brothers.

Mrs. Helena Y. Chandler, 78, widow of Thomas C. Chandler, died early Monday morning at her home, 70 Chestnut street. She was born at Cape May, N. J., May 30, 1846, a daughter of Henry and Emeline Corson Stites. She leaves five daughters, Mrs. Frank P. Hamilton, of Chicago, Mrs. Charles F. Merrill, of Ridgewood, N. J., and Misses Virginia, Marcia, Lucy and Anna Chandler; three sisters, Mrs. David Clark of Putnam and Misses Artimesia and Lydia Stites of this city; two brothers, Wellington of Tennessee and John Stites of Providence, R. I., and several grandchildren. She was a member of the Baptist church.

Mrs. Charles Kenfield, 68, who died Sunday afternoon at St. Joseph's hospital, was born in Franklin, January 12, 1859, a daughter of Alexander and Mary Beckwith Crandall. Besides her husband she leaves two daughters, Mrs. Elbert H. Richards of this city, and Mrs. Ethel Todd of Conantville and two sons, H. Earl Ward of Haverhill, Mass., and Everett L. Kenfield of this city. Mrs. Kenfield was married three times.

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Greene, 82, of Westerly, R. I., died Saturday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Dewey A. Griggs, No. 41 Mountain street. She was born August 27, 1840, in Westerly, where she spent seventy-five years of her life. October 11, 1859 she was united in marriage with Samuel P. Saunders, who died at Carolina, R. I., February 18, 1869. Three children were born to their union, the oldest, Mrs. Carrie A. Griggs, being the only survivor with a grandson, Edwin D. Hawkes of Westerly, who has lived with his grandmother since seven years old. November 9, 1880, she married William H. Greene, ... of New Haven, who died March 21, 1921. A daughter, Elizabeth G. Greene, wife of George E. B. Janes, and three young grandchildren of Kenyonn, R. I., survive. Mrs. Greene was a member of the First Baptist church in Westerly for 70 years. She was a life member of the Rhode Island Woman's Christian Temperance union, also a life member of the Women's Baptist Foreign Missionary society. She was a devoted mother and a true friend.

Chamber of commerce members have been asked not to overlook the last supper of the season this (Tuesday) evening in the chamber rooms. Principal Egbert A. Case of Windham High school and Henry T. Burr, former principal of the Willimantic State Normal school will debate on a timely question.

Beatrice, the three year old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene J. Dion, of 21 North street, accidentally swallowed a portion of the contents of a bottle of mitigated alcohol, Sunday, while visiting at the home of Joseph Lefebvre, on Spring street. The child was in a comfortable condition Monday.

Wilfred A. Gagnon was made assistant treasurer and manager of Wilson's, effective today (Tuesday), at a meeting of the directors of the company. Frederick J. Williams, who has been acting manager will become secretary of the company.

"Should a young man go right to work or should he attend college first?" is the vital question which will be debated upon at the chamber of commerce meeting this (Tuesday) evening at 6.30 o'clock. Members of the Woman's Relief corps are to serve supper.

Mrs. John Hargreaves entertained members of the Sewing club at her home on Turner street Sunday evening, in celebration of her birthday, receiving a beautiful gift. Primarily the party was a surprise shower for Miss Florence Howie who is engaged to Philip Dean and to Miss Antoinette Girard, engaged to Dr. Thomas J. Keegan.

Disciples of Isaak Walton will whip the trout brooks today, April 1. Over two hundred licenses were issued from this city.

Watch your step today, the wiseacres will tell you. It's April Fool day, the date for practical jokes, such as loaded cigars, red pepper candies, etc.

PLAINFIELD

An important hearing was held at the Plainfield Community House on Monday afternoon, when a good number of men of this town met several of the railroad officials regarding steps to be taken to insure greater safety at the local railroad crossings. George Babcock, local agent, had charge of the meeting, calling upon Stephen Wilbur, who read a petition, framed and signed by forty citizens of the village, asking the railroad to provide gates at the crossing, and that the hours of protection by flagmen be lengthened. G. A. Poore, Superintendent of the Providence division, and spokesman for the railroad officials stated that the railroad was in favor of longer hours for the flagmen, at the crossing, with no switching over the crossing, during hours when the flagmen were not on duty. Nevertheless, he thinks that gates at the crossing will give no added protection. He promised for the railroad, that the matter would be taken up by the officials of the road immediately and promised satisfaction to the townspeople.

Superintendent Poore was accompanied by Trainmaster W. A. Dodge. Among the townspeople present were, Stephen Wilbur, Herman Chapman, Arthur C. Tillinghast, Benjamin H. Briggs, First Selectman Besette, Second Selectman Louis Gendron, Benjamin F. Dawson, Henry Fontaine, James Coffey, Rev. Thomas M. Melrose, Samuel T. Butterworth, Charles Heap, Rev. Fr. R. P. Morrissey, Payson Babcock, Ray W. Greene, and Cecil L. Butler.

Work is progressing rapidly on the new salesroom being erected by Leon Frink on Main street. John Newton, has a force of workmen on the job. Excavations have been made, and the foundation is being laid. Work on this building is being rushed, Mr. Frink desiring to commence business in it as soon as possible.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at the home of Benjamin Parkhurst, in Moosup for Mrs. Susan F. Parkhurst, 87, who died in Moosup, Friday. Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield, officiated at the funeral. Mrs. Parkhurst is well known in this village, having been a resident here formerly, and being a member of the First Congregational church here. She is survived by several daughters, and grandaughters, among them Miss Ethel Parkhurst, private secretary to Principal John L. Chapman.

A meeting of the grange is to be held this (Tuesday) evening. A special program is to be presented by the men of the grange. A program similar to this was put on by the women at a meeting about a month ago, and there is much speculating as to whether the men can equal the performance of the women. This meeting is to be public.

Funeral services were held Monday evening at Wauregan, for George Tyrer, who passed away at his home Sunday morning. Rev. William Fryling of Wauregan, and Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield, officiated. The body will be sent to New Bedford this (Tuesday) morning and a second service will be held Wednesday.

Theodore Peltier, formerly a clerk in the store of Dearnley and Clarke, leaves today (Tuesday) for Stamford, where he is to take a course in Tree Surgery at the Bartlett Cooperative school. Richard Provost of this village, and Robert Battey of Moosup, are already at this school, and are taking the same course. Elton Nolan, formerly a clerk in the Plainfield Public Market, is working in the Westinghouse plant, at Stamford.

Monday afternoon, the doors were closed for the last time, on the Clarke and Dearnley store. The closing of this business house removes one of oldest and best patronized stores in this village. For several weeks this store has been selling its stock, prior to closing, the partnership of Mr. Dearnley and Mr. Clarke having been dissolved some time ago. The surplus stock from the Plainfield store is to be moved to the Jewett City store, Mr. Dearnley having purchased Mr. Clark's interests in the firm, planning to continue operations in Jewett City. Tentative plans have been made by Charles D. Salisbury, to move his business into the building vacated by the now occupied by Mr. Salisbury in the Kingsley building, to be taken by Mr. Forster of Moosup, who plans to open a store there.

Mr. and Mrs. Walter Kershaw spent last week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Cooper, Mrs. Cooper accompanying them to their home in Avon, Mass., on Saturday, spending the week end with them. Mrs. William Kershaw of Pawtucket, R. I., is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Cooper at the present time.

LITTLE JACK RABBIT
by DAVID CORY

Rescuing Uncle Lucky's Hat

Dear me! The Luckymobile went so fast that it whissed into this story before I could think where Uncle Lucky and Little Jack Rabbit were going. And if Uncle Lucky hadn't put on the brakes, just in time it would have crossed the bridge before the old lame duck toll keeper could have waved her little red flag.

The eagle soon began with Uncle Lucky's old stovepipe hat.

"How much is the toll?" asked the old gentleman rabbit, pushing his right paw into his pantaloon pocket for a handful of carrot cents.

But, Oh dear me, just as the two little bunnies reached the middle of the bridge, Hungary Hawk grabbed Uncle Lucky's stovepipe hat and flew away with it. Now, what could the poor old gentleman rabbit do? He couldn't fly, you know, although he was mad enough to do almost anything.

"Goodness gracious meebus!" he cried out loud. "There goes the thing I love best," and he wiped a tear from his eye.

"What's the matter, Uncle Lucky?" all of a sudden asked the kind voice of the great American Eagle.

"Oh, dear, oh, dear! That dreadful hawk has stolen my old wedding stovepipe hat," answered poor Uncle Lucky, pointing up into the sky. But all you could see of that old bird rober was the tip of his tail.

"I'll get it for you," promised the kind American Eagle, and away he flew, like a bullet from a gun. Dear me! It wasn't long before that old robber hawk wished he'd never touched Uncle Lucky's wedding stovepipe hat, let me tell you. For before that big American Eagle was done with him there were enough feathers floating around to fill a mattress, and wasn't it nice when the Eagle came back with Uncle Lucky's old wedding stovepipe hat? Well, I just guess it was. You should have seen Uncle Lucky. He was so glad that he almost hugged the big American Eagle.

When you do a friend a turn
And the thing is righted
You are tickled most to death
If he acts delighted.

Thanks sound well inside a book
But I like a pleasant look,
Speaks much louder than a word
To the ear of this old bird."

sang the feathered king of the air shaking hands with Uncle Lucky. Then away he flew, and when up, ever so high, he unfurled a red, white and blue flag and shot off his pistol.

Children make constipation a habit—relieve them with Kellogg's Bran

Children punish themselves terribly by ignoring nature's demands. They bring constipation upon themselves. They invite the many other diseases which can be traced to constipation. Immediate steps should be taken to rid them and keep them free from this disease.

It takes ALL bran to be 100 per cent effective. That's what Kellogg's is—ALL bran. That is why doctors everywhere recommend Kellogg's. That is why Kellogg's Bran carries a money-back guarantee to bring permanent relief, if eaten regularly, in the most chronic cases of constipation. That is why Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, has brought glorious, glowing health to thousands—because it is ALL bran.

No matter how long one has suffered with constipation, Kellogg's Bran will bring permanent relief IF EATEN EVERY DAY—at least two tablespoonfuls—in chronic cases, with every meal.

Kellogg's Bran is delicious. It has a crisp, nut-like flavor that simply delights the taste. It is a wonderful surprise if one has been used to ordinary, unpalatable bran.

There are many ways to serve Kellogg's Bran. Eat it with milk or cream. Sprinkle it over other cereals. Cook it with hot cereals. Look for the recipes on every package and try it in muffins, bread, griddle cakes, etc.

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is made in Battle Creek and is sold by grocers everywhere. It is served by the leading hotels and clubs.

DANIELSON AND PUTNAM NEWS

DANIELSON

Contradictory testimony as to what really did happen just prior to Mr. and Mrs. Henry Dorrance being killed in a grade crossing accident at Plainfield, two weeks ago last Friday evening, developed at the second day's session, Monday, of the inquest being conducted by Coroner Arthur G. Bill, at his office here.

Louis N. Beaudry, witness of the accident and resident in Plainfield, told the coroner that Flagman Harold S. Greene of the train crew that hurried in the accident did not reach the crossing as the cars were being backed down in time to give effective warning to the approaching automobiles.

Jacob Weschler owner of the automobile that crossed the tracks probably 50 feet ahead of the Dorrance car and escaped being hit, testified that the flagman was not at the crossing when his car went over and that he saw no warning lanterns or other signals of danger. Weschler was riding on the rear seat of his automobile, which was being driven by his son. Also in the automobile was a young woman who is in Mr. Weschler's employ. Mr. Weschler's son and this young woman have been summoned to testify at the inquest and it is expected that they will give their testimony today. (Tuesday).

Some of the conflicting testimony already taken may be finally reconciled, at the conclusion of the inquest by the fact that persons standing in different locations in the vicinity of the crossing and seeing the accident from different ranges of vision may have gained varying impressions. The coroner expects to be able to sift out the facts when the inquest is completed and a careful study of the testimony made.

This particular grade crossing accident is of widespread interest in eastern Connecticut not only because of the prominence of those in the fatality, but also because it appears so strange that Mr. Dorrance, who was driving his own car, should have been caught in such a disaster.

With all the ceremony that might be attendant upon the observance of a great spring festival, the trout fishermen are today spreading like bees from a hive over every area hereabouts through which a trout brook runs.

The advance guard of this host was away before dawn this morning, the cold notwithstanding. Their hour of realization was at hand, after the many evenings of "fireside" fishing during the long winter. They were the same jovial, expectant, enthusiastic crew—each and every one with the idea of getting a big one the first day out.

They were happy in their khaki and duxback, their sweaters and rubber boots—and all kinds of tackle from the effective pin and string on an alder stick to the nifty split bamboo, silk lines, et al. One especially fastidious fisherman is said to have taken out a can of silk worms for bait, but in these modern days, as of old, one can't believe more than one-half of one per cent. of what the darned fishermen say.

Their relatives from Boston, Winthrop, Everett, Dorchester, Truro and Wellfleet, Mass., and from Portland, Me., gathered here Saturday evening for the golden wedding observance of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Elliott. With one exception all the brothers and sisters of each, their three children and their grandchildren were present to congratulate them and to help make the anniversary one of very special joyousness.

At 7.30 the golden wedding party of 20 sat down to a splendid turkey dinner at the Attawaugan hotel. A very happy hour was spent about the tables and adjournment then taken to the home of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Anderson, Broad street, Mrs. Anderson being a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elliott, for a continuance of the wedding anniversary observance and family reunion.

Mr. and Mrs. Elliott received many beautiful gifts and included in the remembrances were a number of gold pieces.

The other branch of the farm business besides dairying deserves special mention. One really good part of the farm was the apple trees, about a hundred in all, consisting of excellent varieties, set out by Mr. Wibberley's father some thirty years or more ago. During the first winter at Echoland Farm, Wibberley and his helpers thoroughly pruned the trees and gave the orchard a good cleaning up. Since then, spraying and fertilizing have been regularly done and some profitable crops of good quality fruit have been harvested. The apples have been a great help while the dairy herd was becoming established and the fields being restored to a fertile condition. The fruit is retailed in the village of Plainfield for the most part though many of the neighbors come for Echoland Farm apples to supplement their own supply.

Much fruit not otherwise readily marketable is made up, with Mrs Wibberley's help, into apple jelly, which, put up in neat labeled packages, finds a ready sale among the cream customers.

The first five years must have been hard sledding but to show for them Mr Wibberley now has an excellent though small herd of cows, the buildings have been repaired, he has plenty of silage and last season he cut three crops of alfalfa from one small field. With better feed his cream sales ought to increase considerably and with the larger income he can add to his herd. He is now working on plans for remodeling a room in the ell of the house for use as a dairy room.

The herd is on the Federal Tuberculosis-Free-Accredited list, and has just passed the third annual test. It is exceeding good fortune that not one reactor has been found on the farm.

The Wibberleys give much credit for the recent success of the farm to Maurice Jacobs, the young man who has been with them the past year and a half as assistant herdsman and general helper; also to some of the neighbors who have helped with building and filling the silo and at other critical times. Mr. Wibberley's father, too, although past the three score and ten mark, occasionally comes over from his home in Plainfield to lend an able hand in a pinch.

The interesting phase of this story is that a Yale graduate, qualified for a position as an electrical engineer, should prefer to grub out a livelihood on a rocky farm back in the woods. Well, what is the sense of it? Wibberley, with good management, and his present rate of progress, should, in another five years, have a sizable herd of valuable dairy cows. He probably will be in a position to move to a larger, better farm if he desires. Looking at the matter from a purely financial standpoint, the question is whether ten years as an electrical engineer and with a family of children to care for would have enabled him to acquire an equal value in property or savings. The facts are all against it. He started with but little except the gift of a purebred bull. He and his wife are leading the outdoor life which they prefer and they have made a living for themselves and five healthy children. And, to some persons, the strange part of the story is that they are native born Americans. Perhaps the race is not so "soft" as it has been advertised!

Mrs. Charles A. Russell was reported Monday as seriously ill at her home here.

A class numbering forty three will receive the third degree as members of Rose of Lima council, K. of C., on Palm Sunday. Members of the council are to receive communion in a body at St. James' church Palm Sunday morning.

PUTNAM

Before this season is very much older, a project that will result in the supplying of illuminating gas manufactured in this city to Dayville, Elmville, and Danielson will be under way.

The undertaking involves the laying of nine miles of 4-inch pipe from the gas manufacturing plant of the Putnam Light and Power company here to Dayville, thence southward to Elmville and into Danielson, where the present mains of the Danielson and Plainfield Gas and Electric company will be met.

Both the Putnam and Danielson lighting companies are subsidiaries of the Eastern Connecticut Power company, with headquarters in Norwich. The past year a big gas container has been erected in this city. Gas manufacturing facilities here are more than ample to meet the needs of Putnam, the merging being sufficient to warrant installing the proposed high pressure line and furnishing gas to the communities to the south. Dayville and Elmville never have had gas service and will greatly appreciate its coming. Danielson has had gas service for more than 30 years, but will welcome the additional supply which the new line will make available.

It is understood the new line will run from the gas plant near Aron street in this city southward past the property of the Putnam Country club, on toward Attawaugan crossing, past Alexander's Lake and into Dayville, thence following the state highway route through Dayville into Elmville and on to Danielson, where gas mains are laid northward to above the borough line.

The charters of the interested companies give them the right to make the necessary excavations. It is hoped to excavate for and lay as much as a mile of pipe a week when the job is under way. The pipe will be welded. The pipes will be put in a trench about three feet deep and it is likely this will be dug with special mechanical devices prepared for such work.

When the line is ready for use gas will be forced through by a high pressure system.

Of more than passing general public interest, due to the extent of state police officer's authority involved, is the decision filed Monday in the office of the clerk of the superior court here by Judge George E. Hinman in the case of Eben G. Chappell vs. Harris J. Hurlburt, a state police officer stationed at Stafford Springs barracks at the time the incidents resulting in the court action occurred.

Chappell, a resident of Chaplin, caused a legal action to be instituted against State Officer Hurlburt, charging that he had been illegally put under restraint in connection with the investigation of the disappearance of a horse from a farm in Mansfield. Chappell was taken by Officer Hurlburt from Chaplin to Stafford Springs, questioned, furnished sleeping quarters at the police barracks over night and, the next morning taken back by the officer to Chaplin. Judge Hinman found for the plaintiff and gave judgment for him to recover $50 and costs.

The spring season brings with it another plan for the establishment of a business enterprise in Putnam. Closely following last week's announcements that the Dayville Grain and Coal company has acquired land here and is to build a grain mill and elevator comes another that Morris Foster, a wholesale dealer in fruits and produce, is to open an establishment in Putnam. The Foster concern, having headquarters at Moosup for several years, has plans for several years, has plans for covering the entire county thoroughly. It has established a new station at Danielson. Putnam also is to be a station, so also is Willimantic.

Before the papers carrying this item aarrive in Putnam this Tuesday morning, the most ardent of its trout fishermen will have long since been whipping brooks in territory hereabouts for the first time this year. These enthusiasts were a bit subdued Monday afternoon as a sharp northwest gale howled and punished with its severity, but most of them were for taking a chance on the weather being a little more favorable this morning.

Investigators among the fishermen had contrasting tales to tell about the condition of the brooks. Some said the water is too high and no good fishing can be done today, the weather notwithstanding. Others found the brooks to their liking and the prospect excellent for good catches. Today will tell the story.

There are trout fishermen living in this city who were abed almost as early as the chickens Monday evening, with a view to being on the road to their favorite brooks as early as 4 o'clock this morning.

In carrying out the regular monthly change of police officers, Patrolman William Durand has gone on night duty for the month of April and Patrolman Alpherie Sponsey, on night duty in March, is doing day duty this month.

It was stated here Monday that arrangements were being completed to file a bond of $5,000 for the release of Augustus Warren of this city, held at Brooklyn jail since last Friday, to answer in the superior court to a statutory charge.

Numbers of the members of Cargill council, K. of C., will be at Danielson Palm Sunday to witness the conferring of the third degree on a class of 43 members of Rose of Lima council of that place.

The distribution of 42 pure bred bulls in dairy herds throughout the county as a result of a campaign being conducted by the Windham County Farmers' association is as follows: Thompson, 4; Plainfield, 5; Woodstock 20; Windham, 2; Pomfret, 7; Putnam, Killingly, Canterbury, Brooklyn, 1 each.

Tenants are making ready to move into the new Sedar block, which has been built with the plan of having it ready April 1. Some of the offices already are receiving such special equipment as the professional men who will occupy them require.

March said a snappy goodbye to Putnam for this year. There was much of the lion and little of the lamb in its going away, a real fresh and cold breeze blowing steadily all day out of the northwest.

Next Sunday will be observed as Passion Sunday at St. Mary's church.

Putnam's evening school now drawing to the close of a series of sessions extending from last fall, has been very much of a success and of real value.

An increase is promised with the coming of better weather in the number of public service cars in use in this city.

WESTERLY

The fire departments on both sides of the Pawcatuck river were called out by fire alarms Monday. The Westerly fire department was called in the morning for a grass and brush fire near Weekapaug and in the afternoon for a fire of a similar nature near Burden's pond, the latter requiring considerable time of the firemen.

At about 1.30 Martin McGrath saw flames rising from the shingle roof of the large wooden two story frame building on the left side of Cogswell street, owned by Edwin S. Stillman and occupied on the first floor by James Kelleher and Fred Parks and on the second by Wayland Stillman. Mr. McGrath turned in an alarm from Box 46 near the Walton block on West Broad street. The fire, which had gotten a good start, had evidently caught from the chimney on the roof or from sparks sent out by a passing locomotive. Day Patrolman Francis McMahon, who happened to be in the F. S. Barber Hose house at the time took the fire truck out and had it at the fire almost before the whistle alarm had ceased to blow. A stream of water was turned on the burning shingles but not before some of them still blazing were blown across Cogswell street, landing on the roof of the barn occupied by Amos Burdick and owned by Fred S. Ople. Well directed streams of water on this roof as well as an adjoining one, which had also taken fire soon ended danger from that quarter. The blaze was a serious menace owing to the high wind prevailing. A hole of considerable size was burned through the roof of the Stillman building so that it was necessary for the firemen to enter the building and visit the top floor to be sure that there was no fire in the partitions.

To fill the place of coach of the Westerly High school baseball, filled last season by John F. Gallagher, this year coach of the Stonington High school baseball team, "Joe" Sherman, well known to baseball followers in Washington county, was the choice announced Monday. Monday afternoon baseball team candidates met the new coach for the first time, there being some thirty-five in the string.

Miss Helen Kelliher returned to Willimantic Monday afternoon, after a visit in Pawcatuck over the week end.

Eugene O'Neil returned to Providence Monday morning, after a week end visit with relatives and friends on the West Side.

Miss Elizabeth Ann Carr has returned to Westerly after a week end visit with relatives and friends in Providence.

Barney Fagan of Norwich was in Westerly Monday.

Walter R. Higgins of Pawcatuck and James Dowd of Westerly were Sunday evening visitors in Norwich.

John Crandall of New London was a business caller in Westerly Monday.

Thomas H. Shea of Westerly returned to his work in Uxbridge, Mass. Sunday night after a week end visit with relatives and friends in town.

Miss Ethel M. Wilson is confined to her home on West Broad suffering from a burned foot, hot water being accidently spilled on it.

Adin R. Sheldon, supernumerary policeman, in Pawcatuck, was the acting patrolman on the West Side Monday night, in the absence of the regular night patrolman, Charles W. Connors.

Archibald Bamford visited in Mystic Sunday.

A bad hole in the highway on Main street where the water connections were made with the new Washington Trust Co. building, is in need of attention. The rain water has settled in the hole between the car tracks which hole every passing automobile makes deeper.

The Westerly highway department has begun work on resurfacing School street and a permanent top will be placed on that street. The graveling of Atlantic avenue from Weekapaug bridge to the Atlantic Beach Casino, is also to receive the early attention of the department.

MYSTIC

Miss Frances E. Shields, of Willimantic, a teacher in the employ of the state board of education for the blind, was in Mystic this week in the interest of her work. Miss Shields is sent out by the state to teach the blind to read with the alphabet designed specially for this purpose, also basketry, knitting and sewing. One of her pupils here is Mrs. Robert Mattison, who is ninety-two, and who is learning the blind alphabet, also knitting. Miss Shields also has pupils in Stonington, Poquonnoc, at the Spicer home in Groton, and in New London. When those having instruction have become proficient in sewing and can make aprons, etc., their work is sold for them, if they so desire. Miss Shields has a pleasing personality and is very skillful in her work and her visits are looked forward to by those whom she is instructing.

This is the day when the fishermen arise in the wee, small hours of the morning with their fishing tackle which they have been getting in shape and at which they have been looking longingly for days, all in the best of trim and start off on the trail of the wary trout. It is the day of days to the sportsman and whether the trout bite or not his enthusiasm from year to year is unfailing, when the first day of April comes.

Mrs. W. P. Rathbun was a caller on relatives in Willimantic Sunday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Paige spent the week end in Springfield, Mass., with their son, Andrew F. Paige and his family.

Miss Marion Gray has returned to New York after a visit at her home here.

Rev. J. C. Sallis and Harry E. MacKenzie have returned from Providence where they attended the New England southern conference of the Methodist church. Mr. MacKenzie was elected one of the reservese to the general conference of the Methodist church to be held in Springfield, Mass., next May.

Everett W. Earnshaw, 19, son of Oscar E. and Elizabeth King Earnshaw, died Sunday morning at his home on Willow street following an illness of several weeks from typhoid fever. He was born in Mystic, June 22, 1904, and attended the local schools where he was well liked by his schoolmates. He was a young man of excellent character and his demise brings sadness to a large circle of friends. He is survived by his parents and a brother, Eldred E. Earnshaw.

Mrs. Frances M. Aiken was in Stonington Monday afternoon, attending the funeral of her sister-in-law, Mrs. Asa C. Wilcox.

Mrs. Lucy Tanner of Brooklyn, Conn., is the guest of her niece, Mrs. W. H. Gray.

Professor George W. Woodward, of Westerly, lay reader, conducted service Sunday morning at St. Mark's church in the absence of Rev. J. B. Beauchamp.

Mrs. Moses W. Wilson was a visitor in Willimantic Sunday.

Mrs. Robert Mattison has returned from a visit with Groton friends.

Fanny Ledyard Chapter, D. A. R. is to meet Wednesday afternoon when reports will be given of the State Conference held at the Center church, New Haven, Thursday and Friday of last week. The committee in charge of the program and refreshments is: Mrs. Mary P. Denison, Mrs. Linda R. Denison, Mrs. Edith M. Morgan, Mrs. Minnie E. E. Phillips, Mrs. Adelaide H. MacDonald, Mrs. Marie N. Dickinson, Mrs. Ella E. G. Wheeler and Mrs. Lizzie M. Paige.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burroughs and Mr. and Mrs. William Van Pelt motored to Hartford Saturday afternoon to call on Mr. and Mrs. David Cudworth, who are patients in a hospital there.

Mr. and Mrs. George McKenzie gave a party Saturday afternoon in observance of the birthdays of their sons, George and Donald, who are ten and eight years old respectively. The birthdays of both occur in March. Games were played and a Jack Horner pie and birthday cake added to the enjoyment, as did the delicious refreshments served. The guests were: Helen Foley, Mary Brannigan, Louise Rossie, Winfield Gaskell, Robert and Daniel Brannigan, Charles Caullins, David Trant and James Hanley.

Henry Beebe is seriously ill at his home on the west side.

John Hreschak has returned from the New London Hospital where he has been a patient.

Randall Newbury went last week to Meriden where he has secured employment with an electrical concern.

Mrs. George Wallace was a New London caller Friday.

Oscar Foote, student at New Hampshire State College, is home for the spring vacation.

James L. Rathbun is spending the spring vacation with his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. James W. Lathrop.

Mrs. Marion O. Pomeroy left Saturday for a visit in Hartford.

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

During the past week building operations in and about Norwich have continued to increase with the approach of better and more favorable weather. At the office of Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton six building permits were granted, three for new frame houses, one for a brick garage, one for a frame garage and one for a small frame store. These permits bring the total for the first three months of the year to 53, exceeding the number of permits for the same quarter in 1923 by 13. This sets a record for the number of permits issued during the quarter and is taken as an indication that the year 1924 will be a record-breaking year in the building line. The total valuation of the buildings outlined in the permits issued is close on to $150,000 which is approximately 50 per cent. more than for the same quarter last year.

Not only has this quarter shown a remarkable increase in building but there has been an extra large amount of work done on buildings that were started last fall, many of them having been completed. The mild and open winter has been favorable to the contractors and work has been pushed along. At the Norwich State hospital the excavation work for the new buildings is progressing rapidly and by the end of another month the contracting company will start on the superstructure. Like progress has been made on other work in the city. At the Richmond Radiator Co., the new shed is almost completed only a small section of the building remaining to be finished.

To D. J. Barry to erect a 2-story house at 86 Penobscot street. The house will be of frame construction with stone and concrete foundation. It will be 28x30 feet and will contain eight rooms and bath. The exterior finish will be in clapboards with composition shingle roof. The interior will be finished in plaster and hardwood.

To D. J. Barry to erect a frame house at 40 Penobscot street. The house will be 24x41 feet, one story, with stone foundation and concrete underpinning. The exterior will be shingled and the interior will be finished in plaster and hardwood. There will be five rooms and bath.

To Erminia Parrotta to build a brick garage, 15x50 feet on Washington street. The foundation and floor will be of concrete.

To George E. Boucher to erect a building at 216 Boswell avenue for Harold Dahl. The building will have a glass front and veranda and will be used as a store. The foundation will be of stone with brick underpinning. The building will be 7x18 feet.

To C. Klis to erect a 1 1-2 story house on Corning road. The house will be of frame construction with concrete and stone foundation. There will be five rooms and bath finished in plaster and hardwood. The house will be 26x28 feet.

To C. Klis to erect a frame garage in the rear of his new house on Corning road. The garage will be 12x15 feet.

Clarence Sholes has nearly finished building his new bungalow on the Norwich and New London road consisting of five rooms and bath, a cement cellar with a 10 foot veranda finished with cypress and hard plaster and tile bath to be completed by April 1.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

There were 19 sales of real estate in Norwich during the past week as compared to 9 sales for the corresponding week in 1923. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $31,340 and $18,700.

In New London there were 12 sales of real estate during the past week as compared to 8 sales for the same week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $44,225 and $17,700.

THE STATE SITUATION

The record of building permits granted in the leading centers of Connecticut for the week show a more decided leaning towards spring, 317 permits having been issued in these towns, for new construction to cost $1,718,544, comparing with 177 permits in the like week of the previous year, when the new building cost $517,450, and 220 permits in 1922, the new work aggregating $730,185.

NEW LONDON

Work has been started on a cottage to be built for William E. Faitoute on Fowler court. The house will be 25x27 feet, two stories high. It will be provided with the usual improvements and will cost about $5,000. Most of the work will be done for the owner by the day.

A New London architect is preparing plans for extensive changes to the recreation hall at Ocean Beach, at the corner of Steward and Dyke streets. In place of the present hall there will be 11 four-room apartments. The proposed work will consist of thorough interior alterations, with new plumbing and wiring and the erection of partitions.

A second story addition, 22x50 feet will be made to the building owned by Max Lewyant at 885 Bank street. The new construction will be of brick and hollow tile and will cost about $2,500.

The contract for interior alterations to the Masonic Club at 105 Huntington street has been awarded at an estimated cost of $1,000.

The contract for the erection of a frame building for Ella Braverman at 55 Prest street has been awarded The building will be 22x26 feet, one story high.

The contract has been awarded for the erection of an addition to the brick dwelling of Mary A. McGarry at 43 Tilley street. The addition will be 21x18 feet. New plumbing and electric wiring will be required.

Applications for Building Permits

J. F. Gilmartin, alterations, 21 William street $800.

Ella Braverman, shop, 55 Prest street $800.

Giarvano Cesarini, dwelling, 37 Summer street $4,000.

Number of permits issued for the week, 13; estimated cost of buildings, $36,650.

ESSEX

The contract for the erection of the new building for the Essex Savings Bank has been let to the Mott Construction Co. of New Haven. The building will be of tapestry brick with artificial stone trim. The interior will have public space and working space, with bronze screens and marble counter, directors' room and vault, and steam heat.

ROCKVILLE

The county commissioners are considering plans of J. Henry McCray, of Rockville, providing for the reconstruction of the barn, sheds and ice house of the Tolland County Jail, recently destroyed by fire. The commissioners are Dr. William L. Higgins, Sheriff F. O. Vinton and Rufus Leonard.

A free test of a way to fight film on teeth

This ten-day test is yours for the asking. It will show you the way to whiter, cleaner teeth. It will convince you that old methods of teeth cleaning are wrong.

Let us prove that to you.

Film—your enemy

That viscous film you feel on teeth is the foe you have to fight. It clings and stays. No ordinary tooth paste can effectively combat it.

Food stains, etc., discolor it, then it forms dingy coats. That is why teeth lose luster.

Film also holds food substance which ferments and forms acid. It holds the acid in contact with the teeth to cause decay. Germs breed by millions in it. They, with tartar, are the chief cause of pyorrhea.

Thus film causes most tooth troubles.

Modern science has for years sought ways to fight that film, and two methods have been found. One disintegrates the film at all stages of formation, one removes it without harmful scouring.

These methods have proved themselves effective in many careful tests. A new-type tooth paste has been created to apply them daily. The name is Pepsodent.

Leading dentists everywhere began to advise it. Now careful people the world over employ this new-day method.

You'll quickly see

Pepsodent brings astonishing results. It does more than fight film. It multiplies the alkalinity of the saliva, which is there to neutralize mouth acids. It multiplies the ptyalin in saliva, which is there to digest starch deposits on teeth.

These combined results will be a revelation to you.

Send the coupon for a 10-Day Tube. Note how clean the teeth feel after using. Mark the absence of the viscous film. See how teeth become whiter as the film-coats disappear.

Compare the new way with the old, and you will know in ten days what is best. Cut out coupon now.

Protect the Enamel

Pepsodent disintegrates the film, then removes it with an agent far softer than enamel. Never use a film combatant which contains harsh grit.

RIGHT, REGARDLESS OF EFFECT

There is bound to be speculation as to what the effect is going to be upon President Coolidge because of his dismissal of Harry M. Daugherty. There have been those who have insisted that Daugherty held such political power that it would be a serious matter to cross him, and there are those who maintain that Daugherty and his political following, whether large or small, could not enter into the situation. It was a case of serving the country and if Daugherty stood in the way he must be eliminated.

When President Coolidge acted he was conscious of the political effect that had been sought in connection with the Daugherty inquiry and he was likewise fully aware of the talk about the effects of antagonizing the Ohio following of the attorney general. His dismissal had been deferred in order to avoid the injustice of removing a cabinet member until there was ground for it. Daugherty properly insisted upon a hearing, something which he hasn't as yet received, but when it was disclosed that the department was suffering from the inability of the incumbent to give it the proper amount of attention there was no other course to pursue. And there is no reason to believe that the president gave a second thought to the adverse effect that might be experienced from the action taken.

Those who may be rated as Daugherty supporters are not going to deny the embarrassment which the attorney general had become to the administration, even though much of the testimony at the hearings has been of a highly questionable character. They are not going to insist that the department of justice should have been allowed to drag along with only partial attention from the one at the head. The situation had gotten to the point where no other course was advisable. The president's action is certain to be endorsed, and even though it was not welcomed by the former attorney general it has not even created an antagonistic resentment from him. It would however have made no difference if it had after the president had been shown ground for action.

UNCLE SAM NOT INVOLVED

Claims that this government had offered Grover Bergdoll a light sentence if he would return to this country, as set forth by a German newspaper, are based entirely upon a misunderstanding of the situation, and are not in accord with the facts.

This government has made no overtures to Bergdoll to come back under the promise of immunity or reduced sentence. It has sent no representative to plead with him to come back, but it has stated in response to such statements that nothing of the kind would be considered. When Bergdoll decides to come back, if he does, he must do so with the understanding that there is medicine waiting for him and he must be prepared to take it. There is going to be no sweetening of a bitter pill and no hero worship for a draft dodger.

What seems to have misled the German newspaper is the fact that there were those, including a representation of the American Legion, who have been Bergdoll in an effort to persuade him to come back and face the music. Those Americans were given what amounts to certificates of character by the government, the same as is available to representatives of organizations of good standing. They were virtually letters of introduction that identified them, and it was such that made possible the misinterpretation of their position. It doesn't even appear that those who visited Bergdoll misrepresented the position of the government, but if such was the case it has since been securely nailed by the government officials, that no favors are planned or can be expected for this man who has defied the laws of this country.

This government has no ground for seeking to lure Bergdoll back. It is far preferable that he should remain in Germany, or at least outside the limits of this country. This country can get along better without men of such stripe, but if he elects to return to these shores he should understand that there is a sentence hanging over his head and it can be expected that he will be called upon to serve it. Bergdoll has greater reasons for wanting to get back than this government has for seeking his return. He cannot satisfy his decrees in this respect, however, without paying the price.

NO TIME FOR A RACE

When it is declared that Major General Patrick of the air service turned down the proposition of making the round the world trip a race between the planes of this country and that of the British it will be regarded as a wise decision.

The trip was not planned with the idea of seeing how fast the globe could be circled. Consideration was given to making the circuit and by doing so plotting a course for future flights in the same direction. Attention was also centered upon eliminating all possible danger, and by planning certain of the hops at times when steamers would be in the line of flight this point was covered. The American aviators are to follow a schedule that takes into consideration much more than fast time. The aviators will to a certain extent feel their way around and reserve the opportunity for racing or lowering records until some future time.

The aviators of the two countries are not going to follow the same course. Each air service has mapped out its own and in opposite direction, so that the only possible race would be that against time. It is no small undertaking. The hopes are that the pioneers will succeed. Plans have been made as they have for that purpose. There will be plenty of time for racing after the important preliminary work has been accomplished and it may be well for the British officials to stress the importance of doing all possible to insure the success of the initial flight before planning into the possible sporting event which they suggested.

PROTECTING PARK LAND

The larger liberty is the mere valuable and necessary is the kind that is devoted to park purposes. It invariably requires a hard struggle to obtain the setting aside of property, especially if it has to be acquired, for park purposes, but even after that has been done there are those who are quick to see the merits of such recreation spots for other purposes.

Just at the present time New York is having a fight on its hands to prevent the use of Central park as the site for a music and art center. It is maintained that it is an admiral location for such a building and there is no one denying such a claim, but there are many who are offering objections to such a use of the land and are going to the legislature to prevent it regardless of the fact that the mayor of that city is one of the advocates of the project.

When such a plan is inaugurated park land is invariably advocated for the site because it is the most valuable. It can be readily appreciated that if Central Park had been used for the buildings which it has been desired to erect thereon there would be little of the park left by this time, and it is one of the objections urged in this instance that while but six acres are wanted for the building there is no telling where it would end, and getting a site for such a center is a much easier thing to do in New York than getting new park land.

In communities where sites are not at such a premium the inroads upon park land may not be so great, and objection to the use of such public property might not experience any such opposition. In the large centers there is little enough opportunity provided for enjoying the delights of such a place as Central Park. The necessary breathing space is intended for the use of the public and it is only what ought to be expected when serious objection is raised to any proposed encroachment thereon which would reduce its acreage. New York does well when it objects to the establishment of any bothersome precedents.

MEETING ON TERMS

Since the present British government has had the reins there has been a demand for the reopening of the United States consulate at Newcastle, the closing of which followed the British charges made against the American consul stationed there and the recalling of their papers. Lack of consular service at that point has been bothersome since it is necessary to apply at the next nearest American consulate for such service.

The investigation which was conducted by this government into the charges made against the consul and vice consul at Newcastle back in 1921 failed to establish any ground for the protests that were made by the British and the withdrawal of their exequaturs. There has however been a refusal on the part of the British government to permit the consuls to return to that post. They have since been employed elsewhere but inasmuch as British opposition existed to their return to Newcastle no other representative has been sent there and no consulate has been maintained.

It, as reported, the new British premier is disposed to accept the demands of this government in order to have the benefit of consular services at that port where many visas are required it will mean the end of a much discussed affair which ought to have been adjusted long ago. It was a case however, where unjustified charges were made against American representatives and there was no ground for our state department insisting that all reflections in connection therewith should be removed. The compliance with our terms of settlement will be tardy but properly demanded.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

Washington, D. C., March 31.—The question of what congress will do regarding immigration laws is still uncertain. Senators and members of the house are overwhelmed with suggestions, instructions, protests and pleadings from men and women holding widely diverging views as to what ought to be done. Letters come by the thousand, both individual and in the form of propaganda. Some urge the Johnson bill, some protest against it, some urge the Reed amendment others are bitterly opposed to it.

Under these circumstances it will be impossible for any senator or member of the house to vote in a manner that will satisfy all his constituents and he must use his own best judgment as to what is best not only for his own community but for the country at large.

Senator Keyes of New Hampshire, is a member of the immigration committee and in a talk with him today it was learned that the proposition, as set forth in the Reed amendment is not likely to win the vote of the senate; nor will the Johnson bill as it is now framed. Senator Keyes sees much merit in both measures but believes neither can be passed unamended at the present session. Of course Senator Keyes is not laying down a law as to what will follow in the next three months, but merely outlined what he believed the course of congress is most likely to be. The thing that seems most urgent to Senator Keyes is the passage of some immigration legislation before the terms of the present law expires, in June. If that is not done then the flood gates of southern Europe will be opened and the United States deluged with immigrants without restriction or quota. The senator believes prompt action is imperative and later improved methods can be adopted, that could not now pass congress both on account of lack of time and the widely varying opinions as to what is best to be done. A compromise of senate and house bill will follow.

An effort will be made to secure the passage of a protective measure before the present law expires in June; it will probably include a new quota that will reduce the annual immigration from its present number of 350,000 to approximately half that number; it will provide for examination of would be immigrants before they leave the foreign country from which they register, through a new vise system that would look into their eligibility; it will probably include some provision for the keeping together of families, and not debar near relations and young children in status which have been "held-up" necessities under the present law; it will aim to keep families together and to allow entrance of the best class of immigrants, and in that way prevent the great number of deportation or perhaps it would be better to say "returns" that now clutter up the steamships and the immigration stations; selection at the source will be the chief feature as to quality and the new quota will prevent overcrowding the country with unneeded immigrants.

Senator Keyes of course does not say this down as the law to be followed but merely outlines roughly what he believes will result from the various bills now pending. Senator Keyes is emphatic in urging immediate legislation, and although he sees merit in some of the bills as presented, believes the most important thing of all is to get at this session legislation adequate needs of the country, and later pass a more comprehensive measure than can be rushed through at this moment, when crowded calendar and scarcely two months stand between the present moment and a complete letting down of immigration bars.

The published stories vary regarding the condition of Senator Greene of Vermont who was accidentally shot while walking in the street at the moment a skirmish between enforcement officers and alleged bootleggers was taking place. Intimate friends of the Vermont senator who see him daily state positively that his condition is still extremely serious and that statements "that he is doing finely" do not give the correct idea of his condition. One of the senator's colleagues, who is in daily touch with Senator Greene today authorized the following statement by your correspondent, requesting that his name be not made public, as he does not care to enter into a personal controversy with persons whose views differ. Said he: "I see Senator Greene every day. His right side is paralyzed—he can not walk one step; even with a cane; if helped to an upright position and then left to himself he would instantly fall to the floor; he cannot balance himself at all; he cannot talk, although occasionally he manages to utter a few consecutive words. His mind seems clear but he cannot express himself. All the talk about his being greatly improved is that while his death was imminent for several weeks he is now out of immediate danger. His physical condition is pitiful in the extreme although he smiles and makes the best of it. Mr. Green was in full physical and mental strength when the bullet fired in the night, entered his brain. Today he is a physical wreck, and whether he can ever recover seems very doubtful."

This statement regarding the health of the New England senator comes direct from a colleague who is a warm personal friend as well and admits of no doubt as to its correctness. All congress is filled with sympathy for the stricken man who is held in the highest regard by his colleagues, regardless of political or partisan sentiment.

Members of the senate judiciary committee have made it known in answer to questions, that it is unlikely any of the new constitutional amendment propositions now before congress will pass this session. They base this belief on two facts; first, there is a wide divergence of opinion as to the desirability of attaching too many amendments to the Constitution, and with this reluctance is coupled a multitude of different methods aiming at the same result, which would throw congress into prolonged and heated debate and possibly know all the amendments out; next, is the short time before the national conventions when congress hopes to adjourn and the overloaded congressional docket. That the docket can be cleared is seriously doubted and much must go over to the next session. Members of the senate and house feel it will be fortunate if the appropriations bill can be passed, a new immigration law be put on the statute books and the question of a soldier bonus be disposed of one way or another.

The hours spent in debate over controversial topics is rapidly eating up the time of congress, and there is really but little left for the passage of necessary bills, if adjournment is to be taken in the early summer. With all the house and one-third the senate coming up for election and with the two great national conventions to be held in June it is certain that not a baker's dozen could be held at the capital as a working squad after June first. Either an adjournment or a prolonged recess be urged and that will probably be the action taken with the adjournment as the best guess.

Although somewhat belated Washington has at last blossomed out into genuine spring. Shrubs are in bloom; trees in bud or in first green leaf, the springtime crowd has arrived, and persons seeking hotel accommodations are at their wits end, as crowded are hotels with the Eastern visitors, vacationists, people coming back from Florida, or from the north. Added to this crowd next week will see the D. A. R.'s here in full force of two thousand or more, and also the big organization of women who are coming here to urge congress and the president to see that laws are enforced.

Secretary Weeks this week made it clear that the round the world trip of army aviators is not a speed test, but taken for the purpose of marking out an air highway for further use. In fact the men are put under a speed limit, to ensure as far as possible, the safety of the expedition.

WILSON HAD TO CHANGE HIS CAREER

Woodrow Wilson, the boy and the youth, desired to be a lawyer and spent years in preparation—then found he was not fitted for the profession.

Born in Stanton, Virginia, in 1856, he suffered many of the hardships of the South in Civil War times. His father, a Baptist minister, changed his residence every few years, and each time new companions must be made.

Young Wilson did not learn his alphabet until nine years old and his education was tardy. In Augusta, the public schools were so poor that he attended a private one over the postoffice. At Davidson College less than a year, he was forced by illness to go home.

At Princeton University he was the forty-first of 42 honor men in his class. Chances for supremacy as a debater fell when he was assigned the subject, "Protection," and he refused to argue against free trade.

Excessive study of law while at the University of Virginia forced him to rest a year. Then to Atlanta, with little means but great hopes of success as a lawyer. Clients did not come, and after a year's waiting plans and hopes were abandoned. He then prepared to be a teacher.

Fifteen years as an instructor, much of it with only modest compensation, started at Bryn Mawr, with its 43 students, and ended at Princeton, where he became president. There he made many reforms and success was looming when a bequest of $3,000,000 in a will carried conditions discordant with his ideals, and he had to resign and seek occupation elsewhere.

Offered the nomination for Governor of New Jersey, he was elected by an overwhelming plurality, then had to fight the party bosses to convince them that the "teacher-politician" was the head of the organization.

He was elected and re-elected President of the United States. He was honored by leading countries of the world, his following was devoted and in his later years he successfully practiced.

HIS EFFECTIVE LIST

For hours the modest suburban home had been all a-flutter with preparation. Caroline was eager to live everything indicate her high standard of efficiency, for this morning her favorite college professor had telephoned that he was passing through Chicago and she had felt very much complimented when he accepted her invitation to take dinner with them that evening. She had always liked "Pollycon," otherwise political economy, and had great respect for Dr. Lawton's education, having taken every course he offered.

She had telephoned Ted and arranged that he should stop at the professor's hotel and escort him out to their home. Her one misgiving was that Ted would fail her. The poor fellow worked so hard during the day, as every struggling young lawyer must, that at dinner he often sat silent or, if he spoke at all it was in the lightest vein, some funny story he had heard or something to laugh about that would relieve the strain of the day.

Being resourceful as well as efficient, she decided to avert such a catastrophe by writing on a card, which Ted could hide in his napkin, a list (she adored lists) of subjects which would interest Dr. Lawton: 1. German-made goods and gate of exchange. 2. Soviet Russia. 3. Quake-ridden Japan.

Caroline knew that Ted could talk on any one of these subjects to the queen's taste.

A complacent Caroline greeted the men on their arrival and, in and aside to Ted, she told him of the list he would find on his chiffonier when he went up to dress. Ted fell right in with the plan, assured her that he admired a clear-headed wife who could foresee a situation and stole an extra kiss as he bounded up the stairs.

At first the table talk was desultory, indifferent; the learned professor didn't seem to be all there, he was so preoccupied. After a distressed look from his wife Ted consulted the list in his napkin. Then he asked: "Dr. Lawton, when do you believe that the time is coming when there will be no such problem as the disposition of garbage?"

Caroline immediately experienced a sort of a fainting, falling-through-the floor sensation, but the effect on the professor was astonishing. His tongue was loosed. He pointed out the fact that incinerators are not uncommon now even in small homes and all large establishments have them, and that the various substitutes for coal which will do away with ashes altogether, are replacing the old systems so fast that—really the subject was most interesting.

He pictured the model home in 1933 with all of its labor-saving devices and short-cuts to efficiency. When he stopped for a bite Ted took the opening before Caroline could say a word and asked whether in this new house plan the people of that day would have outgrown storm windows, too. And Dr. Lawton rose to the storm-window bait!

Despair settled over Caroline. Dinner was nearly over and not a word about Japan, rate of exchange or soviet Russia. With coffee and cigarettes Ted was asking Dr. Lawton for his opinion of Mary Garden. There wasn't a chance for Caroline to put in a word edgewise, yet she had to confess that without any effort at all Ted was getting on famously with their guest. One told a story that the other, until in the general laugh following an especially good one, the professor saw that he must leave at once or miss his train.

With his hurried good-by he indicated that he couldn't remember when he had had such a good time; he believed it was because they had not asked him to talk "shop," and might he please come again?

When he had gone, Caroline and Ted looked at each other with mixed emotions. "What I can't understand," she said, "is why you didn't introduce a single subject that was on that list."

"Bless you—that's all I did do!" Ted explained. "That old bird seemed to enjoy himself all right, but believe me, I never want to try that stunt again. That next one was a corker if he hadn't ducked when he did—say, look at that list!"

A glance was enough for Caroline. "Why, this is the wrong list—these are the things I want you to attend to before you leave for your trip!"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Frederick A. Delano, upon whom may fall the choice of the League of Nations for the position of financial controller of Hungary, is an eminent American financial executive now serving as vice president of the Federal Reserve Board. Before entering the service of the government he had had wide experience as a railroad man, beginning as a mechanic's helper in a locomotive shop and rising to the presidency of the Wabash system. For seven years, 1905 to 1912, he served as consulting engineer for United States Railways in the Philippines. Mr. Delano was born in Rome, Kong, where his father was engaged in the China trade. His early life was spent at Newburgh, N. Y., and in due time he entered an academy at Quincy, Mass., going from there to Harvard College in 1881. In addition to his work in railroading and finance he has been interested in many public enterprises. He has served as vice president of the American Unitarian Association and as an overseer of Harvard University.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

Fireproof Coal.

Mr. Editor—The writer is one of the many who read with greatest pleasure your sterling editorial in this morning's Bulletin entitled, "For Better Coal." The editor is to be congratulated as he hit the nail upon the head without fear or favor.

During the past two years Norwich coal dealers have received from the producers and brokers anthracite that would not burn as it contained more than 30 per cent rocks, stones, slate and bone and other impurities. Some dealers have the so-called "coal" in their yards and have refused to pay for same in the hopes that the brokers, who sit in their offices and never see a ton of the "coal," may be taught a well deserved lesson. When business is poor with certain members of the legal fraternity there are always those who will encourage clients to bring suits for collection of claims that are unjust and without merit just for the sake of the fee that is in it. The writer has heard within the past ten days of such an attorney, who, after inspecting a sample of rocks, stones, slate, bone and other impurities which was sent by his client to a local dealer under the name of "anthracite coal," started immediate action for payment of same. We will watch with interest the verdict of a jury in the matter.

If all coal dealers would refuse to pay for rocks, stones, slate, bone and other impurities sent them under the name of "coal" and if all members of the New London county bar would have a "gentlemen's agreement" not to handle any such unjust claims the brokers and producers would become discouraged and Norwich and New London county would never receive any more bad coal. Will the legal fraternity do this? Time will tell.

Yours very truly,
"DOMESTIC CONSUMER."
Norwich, March 29th.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

SUKHUM

Intricately curly, warm-toned wood of a circassian walnut dinner table or highly polished dresser are the classiest contacts most Americans have to lofty Caucasus Mountains where Soviet officials now repair for their health, according to news reports from Russia.

"Sukhum aspires to be not only a health resort for Russian government officials, but also a vacation paradise whose salubrity and beauty challenge that of Florida, California, the Riviera, Switzerland, and the lovely tropical isles of the South Sea," says a bulletin of the National Geographic Society from its headquarters at Washington, D. C.

"Wealthy Russians are encouraging this development by building splendid villas whose verandas command a magnificent view of the Black Sea, deep forests and lofty Mt. Elbrus, one-third of which is constantly covered with snow. It is even reported that some Americans, preferring a more sparsely settled paradise on earth, have transferred their affections to the Caucasus.

"Sukhum (Sukhum Kaleh, in full) is one hundred miles north from Batum at the eastern end of the Black Sea and is the only good port between Batum and the Sea of Azov. Mountaineers shun the city, fearing malaria, but the foothills of the frosty Caucasus, a background splashed against the sky with giant strokes, afford one of the most delightful climates in the world. It is natural that Russians make this district their vacation capital since the Caucasus is the only great mountain range in all Soviet land and presents a stark relief to the flat, but fruitful plains. A famous Alpine guide who went to the Caucasus by rail exasperated by endless horizontal lines in the Ukraine, finally broke out saying it was no use to go farther hunting for mountains since it was hourly becoming more evident that the world was truly flat.

"Though the Caucasus Mountains as a whole are barren, gaunt, rugged to a fault, the western strip along the Euxine, ancient name for the Black Sea, is clothed heavily with forests and almost tropical undergrowth. Warm winds sweeping eastward are robbed of moisture by the mountain ridge. What arid Turkestan loses, Circassia and Abkhasia use to grow circassian walnut trees for beautiful furniture. Observers report the Caucasus forests remarkable for their variety; in addition to walnut there are oak, beech, pine, and many other varieties growing side by side. One enthusiast declares plums and pears almost drop in the traveler's mouth as he rides down the Kodor Valley. Strawberries, raspberries, and currants abound in the glens.

"Botanists have found in this mountain retreat survivors of the vegetable world when the earth was young. Common plants, which ordinarily attain a height of one or two feet, become giants five or six feet tall. Mountainsides are great bouquets. The fireworks of flowers are said to recall Fourth of July skyrocket displays. There are great yellow arabilous flowers, azure columbines and crimson blooms like Alpine snakeweed. Beneath these gaudy canopies are found shade-loving blooms, geraniums, orchids, forget-me-nots, violets.

"Like the strange plants, the Abphasians, or the remnant of them, who inhabit this Caucasian paradise, are a race which seems to have no ties with the historical world. Ethnologists are said to have worked on the problem of their origin in vain. Like Northerners they are tall, fair-complexioned, blue-eyed, have auburn hair and love sports and athletics. Yet they have an oriental regularity of feature. Other similarities ally them to Semitic races. They have no written language. Their fruitful mountain slopes provide an easy living and not seldom an adventurer in the hills is reminded of old Greek idyls as he comes upon flock, grazing in infinite peace on a solitary mountain meadow.

"Herodotus knew the Caucasus the highest mountains with which the civilized world was acquainted. He reported that the people lived on fruit, and so they do to a great extent, even today. Leaves for making fast dye were obtained in the forests, he wrote, and the people were insensible to laws of decency or morality. To the Black Sea shore of the Caucasus came Jason in his tiny ship in search of the golden fleece. Perhaps the 'golden fleece' was merely an excuse, a business trip which would permit him to spend a summer at what the world has rediscovered as an attractive vacation resort.

"Prometheus was bound by the gods to the frozen flanks of Elbrus, legend has it. He was the god of fire and cultural progress, a friend of man, and it was for frustrating acts of despotic deities that he was chained to the highest peak in Europe. The story served as the theme for Shelly's 'Prometheus Unbound.'

"Elbrus" monarch mountain top with kingly ermine snow," is constantly clothed, but visitors say it does not compare in majesty to many other famous world peaks. Like Mt. Rainier, Elbrus is a volcanic cone. Many peaks of the Caucasian barrier were once volcanoes spewing lava. Though it is the highest mountain in Europe, its 18,470 feet are exceeded by some Alaskan peaks, many in South America, and a few in Africa and Asia.

"The Caucasus, as a mountain resort, lacks the lakes of Switzerland. Their numerous glaciers do not compare with the ice streams of Alaska's inland Passage. It has not the diversepess of the American Northwest, but it can depend on romantic grandeur of forested valleys and crystal mountain-tops to attract tourists. Near Sukhum Kaleh the temperature seldom falls below freezing and does not exceed 90 degrees. Rainfall is moderate throughout the year."

Due to a jellyfish getting spread out over an inlet pipe twelve inches in diameter, a large steamship was recently held up for sixteen hours in Durban harbor.

AN OPEN LETTER TO WOMEN

Tells of Mrs. Vogel's Terrible Suffering and how she was Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Michigan.—"My troubles were severe pains in my back and terrible bearing-down pains in my right side, also headaches and sleepless nights. I first began having troubles when I was 16, and they have increased as I grew older. A little booklet was left at my door, and I read what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has done for women and decided to try it. After the first week I could go to sleep every night and I stopped having that nervous feeling and got a better appetite. The doctor had always said that an operation was the only thing that would help me, but I never had any faith in an operation. Since the Vegetable Compound has started helping me I do not suffer the severe pains, feel stronger, and am able to do my own work. I am more than glad to tell my friends that it helps where other medicines have failed."—Mrs. Gus Vogel, 6306 Pelouze St., Detroit, Michigan.

A record of fifty years service must convince women of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

DENIES HOLLANDERSKY PERMISSION TO REBUILD

(Special to the Bulletin)

New London, March 31—The city council this evening denied to Meyer Hollandersky permission to rebuilt the structure at 157-159 Bank street which was damaged some six weeks ago by fire. The action may bring on a suit at law to determine what the rights of the owner of the property are and what are those of the city government. At the meeting this evening Mayor Scott called up the matter as the council was about to adjourn, asking the council to take some action unless there was reason for further delay. Thereupon Councilman Louisa Whiton offered a vote which denied to Mr. Hollandersky the privilege of rebuilding and repairing the structure on the ground that the damaged more than fifty per cent of its value; that the rebuilding and repair of the property would constitute a nuisance and that the rebuilding of wood is in violation of the ordinance which forbids the erection of a wooden building within the fire limits. Councilor Fox asked whether the council was proceeding in this matter with the advice of the director of law. He was informed by the mayor that the director of law had drawn the motion offered by Mr. Whitoh.

So the conflict is on as to his quotes that has been in dispute several weeks. Mr. Hilandersky has the privilege of building a new structure on the site of the burned building and of erecting a structure that will be fireproof, but the council's vote denies him absolutely the privilege of rebuilding the wooden structure.

SHOT WIFE IN HAND. HELD FOR SUPERIOR COURT

Joseph Selonski of Jewett City, who shot his wife, Della, in the hand at a house on Sherman street here on the night of March 15, was before the city court Monday morning on the charge of assault with intent to kill, the case having been continued from two weeks ago. His attorney, Thomas M. Shields, entered a demurrer which was overruled and Selonski was bound over to the criminal superior court. Bonds were placed at $7,500, the same amount as after his arrest.

BANQUET AND ENTERTAINMENT FOR UNCAS LODGE ANNIVERSARY

Monday marked the 61st anniversary of Uncas Lodge, No. 11, I. O. O. F., and the occasion was fittingly celebrated in the evening when members of the lodge gathered at Odd Fellows hall on Main street.

The exercises of the evening began with a banquet served at 6.30 o'clock by members of Hope Rebekah Lodge, No. 31, those assisting being as follows: banquet committee, Mrs. E. Grace Fowler, chairman, Mrs. Mary Green, Mrs. Kate Amburn, Mrs. Lillian Tuttle, Mrs. Eva John and Mrs. Jenny Mitchell; waitresses, Mrs. Carrie Howard, Mrs. Ora Spencer, Mrs. Alice Stapleton, Mrs. Gladys Bowers, Mrs. Faith Ryan, Mrs. Mildred Jackson and the Misses Charlotte, Hattie and Marion Fowler.

The regular meeting opened at 8 o'clock in charge of Noble Grand Herbert Spencer after which a delightful entertainment was provided, the numbers being as follows: soprano solo, Miss Charlotte Fowler; tap dancing and interpretive dancing by Miss Lois Bussey, accompanist, Mrs. Faith Ryan; reading of first constitution of Uncas Lodge, No. 11, by Past Grand Ashley T. Boon; interpretive dancing, Miss Gertrude Durr, piano solo, Mrs. Faith Ryan.

An interesting feature of the program came when Past Grand Ashley T. Boon, who was toastmaster at the 55th anniversary celebration read an account of the lodge history.

In the early forties, said Mr. Boon, the subject of forming a lodge of Odd Fellows was discussed and on Friday, March 18, 1843 at 10 a. m. Uncas Lodge No. 11 was instituted with seven charter members. The late John L. Devotion who later became grand master was the first noble grand elected, to whom the dispensation was granted. Most Worshipful Grand Master Charles W. Bradley of East Haddam was present and directed the institution ceremonies. The charter members were John L. Devotion, C. S. Williams, James D. Mowry, John N. Woodward, Edward Ellis and George Perry. The lodge grew in membership and in 1857 numbered 360 members. Funds of the treasury totaled $4,000 and was invested in the Uncas Hall building on Water street, the stock being sold to the members for $40 a share.

When the great panic of 1857 came the lodge was hard hit and members had to sell their stock, the building, then passing out of the hands of the lodge. The lodge however never surrendered its charter for on January 4, 1864 the lodge met in regular form and elected Col. Charles A. Converse, noble grand. At this meeting a resolution was passed asking that Uncas Lodge be allowed to retain its charter and effects and to proceed in the work of the order. Within a few years the lodge had again reached its feet and regained its former place among fraternal organizations. In 1880 there was a feeling among some of the members that there was need of another lodge in this city as Owaneco No. 27, formerly of Greeneville, had ceased operations during the panic. Shetucket Lodge No. 37, was then instituted. This lodge grew rapidly and Uncas Lodge has had proper cause to feel proud of her progeny.

During the life of Uncas Lodge over 1000 members have been raised, the lodge now having a membership of over 400, with over 50 past noble grands on its active roll.

In the life of Uncas Lodge credit is due to those who went before, whose efforts made the lodge a success. Among these are William D. Manning, admitted May 14, 1845; Past Grand Ellis Raphael, initiated in Covenant Lodge No. 35 of New York city in 1850, affiliated with Uncas Lodge by card April 18, 1864.

Past Grand Charles W. Spalding admitted January 16, 1866; Brother Monty S. Day, Empire Lodge No. 346, South Royalton, Ohio, affiliated by card Sept. 24, 1866; Brother Calvin A. Rosth, admitted May 4, 1866; Past Grand William N. Andrew, March 10, 1870; Brother T. W. Tracy, August 1, 1870; Brother James P. Miner, Feb 16, 1871; Past Grand Ashley T. Boon, Worcester Lodge No. 56, Worcester, Mass., admitted by card April 10, 1876; Brother Benjamin Cross, February 19, 1872.

In mentioning the members Mr. Boon told of the letter received at the 55th celebration from Brother George T. Bromley who then resided in San Francisco. Mr. Bromley at that time was the sole survivor among the members of Uncas Lodge in the year 1843, having been admitted on June 2, 1843. Mr. Bromley was brother to Isaac H. Bromley, a former editor of The Norwich Bulletin, who was also a member of Uncas lodge, admitted July 21, 1846. In his letter Mr. Bromley had told of meetings in 1843 when John L. Devotion was noble grand, the rooms then being on Shetucket street.

His letter told of the celebration of taking new quarters on Water street and closed with a message of kind regards for the members of the lodge.

The officers of Uncas Lodge, No. 11, for the year 1924 are as follows: Noble Grand, Herbert G. Spencer; vice grand, Frederick C. Blanchard; recording secretary, John F. Amburn; financial secretary, James H. Smith; treasurer, Frank M. Green; warden, Carleton F. Bowers; conductor, Fred W. Amburn; R. S. N. G., William N. Ortmann; L. S. N. G., Hiram H. Amburn; R. S. S., John O. Peckham; L. S. S., Merwin Leffingwell; R. S. V. G., Joseph Stott; L. S. V. G., William O. Bliss; O. G. Louis G. Ware; I. G., Arthur E. Fowler; chaplain, John A. Hawkes; P. P. G., Leslie W. Fowler.

The committee to whom the success of the evenings programme is due comprises the following members: Leslie W. Fowler, Carlton F. Bowers, and Herbert Willey.

GIFTS TO DR. COLLIER BY PATIENTS AND STAFF

At Norwich State Tuberculosis Sanatorium Monday evening, a farewell party was given by the patients of the institution to Dr. M. H. Collier who is leaving Norwich to become superintendent of the White Haven Sanatorium in Pennsylvania. He was presented a handsome watch as a testimonial of the esteem in which he has been held by the patients. Dr. Collier in a speech of acknowledgment expressed his regret at terminating his association with such an appreciative group of people. After wards there was musical entertainment by the patients, and with mutual wishes were expressed for the happiness and prosperity of the physician and patients.

Immediately following the party the sanatorium staff gathered at Dr. Collier's home and Miss Nora Downey a nurse at the Sanatorium in a speech of presentation, applauded by all present, in behalf of the staff gave the doctor and Mrs. Collier a beautiful set of Irish linen. Refreshments and games followed and the evening proved one of much jollification.

CONTRIBUTIONS OF $6,013 FOR KEREN HAYESOD

Cash contributions and pledges to the amount of $6,013 were received for the Keren Hayesod Sunday evening at an enthusiastic meeting of the Hebrew residents of Norwich at the Community House. This total will without doubt be substantially increased by additional contributions this week. The meeting of Sunday night marked the opening of the Keren Hayesod fund campaign in Norwich. The gathering was signally honored by the presence of Dr. Oslas Thon, one of the principal spiritual and political leaders of Polish Jewry, a member of the greater actions committee of the World Zionist organization, head of the Jewish bloc and chief rabbi of the city of Cracow Archibald Silverman, well known business man of Providence, and a brilliant orator, was also heard at the meeting.

Dr. Thon and Mr. Silverman arrived in New London at one o'clock Sunday afternoon and were met there by a reception committee headed by Abner Schwartz. The reception committee made the trip to and from New London in fifteen automobiles.

On arrival in Norwich, a reception for the speakers was held at the Wauregan hotel. Mr. Schwartz presented Dr. Thon at the reception and Dr. Thon, in a brief address, explained his object in visiting this country. He said his visit was not so much in the interests of the Keren Hayesod as in the furtherance of the Hebrew movement of Tarbuth.

Following the reception, Dr. Thon and Mr. Silverman were entertained at dinner at the residence of Rabbi and Mrs. Joseph N. Rosenberg. Present at the dinner in addition to the distinguished guests were S. B. Levenson of New Haven, director of the Keren Hayesod for District No. 2, which includes Connecticut and Rhode Island, Abner Schwartz, chairman of the reception committee, and Miss Rivy Rosenberg, daughter of Rabbi and Mrs. Rosenberg.

At 8:30 o'clock the meeting in the Community House was called to order by Rabbi Rosenberg, as chairman. M. I. Silverman was secretary and Rabbi Max Stamm, treasurer. Archibald Silverman of Providence made a stirring address in English.

Mr. Silverman said that the greatest pleasure in a man's life is to be a liberal giver. He illustrated by his numerous active participation in many organizations in Providence and throughout New England, helping orphan societies, taking care of newly arrived immigrants and in working for the Zionist and for the Palestine Foundation fund. Most of his spare time is taken up in furthering charitable movements. These things, he said, give him more energy for his own business. After all, he said, he knows that what he does for the Palestine movement is only an investment for the future generation. He appealed to the audience to give liberally to the Palestine Foundation fund, or the Keren Hayesod as it is known.

Following Mr. Silverman the chairman introduced Dr. Thon who gave a brilliant address in the Hebrew language.

Dr. Thon spoke on the Jewish Traditions in Eastern Europe. He stated that the Jewish position everywhere is better than it has been. By the provisions of the League of Nations the Jews are suing for the security of their national life and their own homeland. He said the security of the Jewish national life and their own homeland would help materially in overcoming the racial hatred to which they have been subjected to in the past.

Dr. Thon is a member of the Polish upper house or the seim as it is called. He told of the heated arguments which have featured the Polish governing body's meetings. However, he said, newspaper reports of Polish government activities are exaggerated. Conditions are improving there steadily. The Jewish people can help in progoing good will among the nations of the world towards their race by initiative in Palestine. The agenda of the nations of the world would then learn to respect the Jewish people as pioneers. The Halutsim or pioneers in Palestine, who have accomplished wonders in the Holy Land in a very brief period of time.

Since the World war 35,000 Jewish people have migrated to Palestine. All of them are young men and women, and most of them are former university students. They have built over two dozen colonies or settlements. That, however, is not sufficient. We should bring in there, he said, four or five times the number we have there now. Immigration to Palestine would lessen the congestion of people in European countries and at the same time greatly help in building up the Jewish state.

He spoke of a Jewish meeting which he addressed in an Ohio city last week. The chairman, mayor of the city and a Gentile, said to the audience: You cannot be good Americans if you don't do your duty in helping along that which is sacred to your people and to the Jewish traditions.

In closing he said: Unless you do your duty to the Holy Land, you are dishonoring that which is sacred to the Jewish people. Dr. Thon urged all to contribute liberally to the cause.

At the close of his address Rabbi Rosenberg announced that contributions were in order and a total of $5,013 was raised before the meeting adjourned about 11.30 o'clock. Some of the larger contributions follow:

M. Levine, $500; Norwich Chapter of Hadassah, $500; Harry M. Land, $400; Beckenstein and Taylor, $300; Aaron Gordon, $300; Jacob Sieberg, $300.

Kadish Bros., $300; Schwartz Bros. Inc., $200; Solamon Bros., $100; Strom Bros., $100; Dr. David Sussler, $100; Max Hanover, $100; S. Kadish, $100; A Cramer, in memory of his son, William Cramer, $150; Louis Atkind, $75; Isaac Siegal, $50; M. I. Silverman, $50; S. Ehrenberg, $50; A. Pasnik, $50; Charles M. Gordon, $50; David N. Gordon, $50; Alec Silverman, $50; I. H. Mandell, $50. The remaining contributions were in amounts of $35, $10, and $5.

In recording the names and amounts of contributions Secretary Silverman was assisted by Miss Sarah Stamm and Miss Leah Siegal. Samuel Taylor was chairman of the soliciting committee which comprised A. Cramer, A. Schwartz, I. H. Mandell, L. Sachner and Rammi Max Stamm.

The following letter was read;

M. I. Silverman,
247 Washington Street,
Norwich, Conn.

Dear Mr. Silverman. I am informed by the national office that the Norwich committee of the Keren Hayesod have been kind enough to invite me to visit your city for the purpose of launching a drive on behalf of the Keren Hayesod.

Taking into consideration the very splendid response which the Jewish community of Norwich has made to the Keren Hayesod, and also the devoted service which the members of the committee and yourself have put in for our cause, it would afford me the keenest possible gratification if I could have possibly arranged to in my itinerary. I shall, nevertheless, continue to watch with deep interest the campaign that you contemplate and hope and believe that you will be able to raise the whole of your quota and reach the high water mark of $16,000, as you did two years ago. Please do your utmost.

Thanking you and your colleagues for the very valuable assistance and cooperation you have given us and the loyalty you have shown to our sacred cause, I am

Very faithfull,

CHAIM WEIZMANN.

EIGHT MEN ARRESTED AT WATER STREET PLACE

When police headquarters received a telephone call between 5 and 6 Monday afternoon that a man had been thrown out of the place at 48 Water street with his head badly cut, Chief George Linton dispatched a squad of officers there who arrested James McGrath as the proprietor and seven men who were found in the place. All were charged with intoxication and McGrath was charged with violation of the liquor law as the police seized three bottles, two of them bearing whiskey labels, and all containing what is alleged to be intoxicating liquor.

Adelard Avery of Spencer, Mass., was found on the sidewalk in an intoxicated condition and with his head so badly cut on the top that Dr. Louis T. Cassidy was called to police headquarters to attend him. Avery was also booked on an intoxication charge.

McGrath secured his liberty when a Norwich man gave bonds on $1,000 for him.

Federal Officer Avery, and local officers M. Carroll, McFadden, Delaney and Kozlowski made the arrests.

PIANO RECITAL IS GIVEN AT PINEHURST

An audience that filled the parlors at Pinehurst, the home of Mrs. Charles W. Gale, enjoyed the privilege of a musical treat Monday afternoon in a piano recital by Mrs. Edwin Lapham of Plattsburg, N. Y., who appeared under the auspices of the Norwich Music association for the benefit of the piano fund.

Mrs. Lapham established a personal touch with her audience in the charming way in which she related interesting incidents about the composer of the selection she was about to interpret. Her programme ranged from numbers by Brahms, Grieg and Moszkowski to the moderns who were represented by Cyril Scott, Goossens, Percy Grainger and others, who were interpreted with poetic insight and delicacy that was delightful.

SLANDER AND ASSAULT SUITS TRIED TOGETHER

Two suits of Rose Chiodo against Vincenzo Figmanaro, both of this city, one for $1,000 damages for slander and the other for $500 for assault were tried jointly in the common pleas court here Monday before Judge C. E. Waller, who took the papers and reserved decision. Brown and Perkins were attorneys for the plaintiff, A. B. Davies and H. H. Pettis for the defendant.

The case grew out of a dispute on Silver street in this city on the 16 or 17, 1923.

HAD 23 CALLS FOR NORWICH FIRE DEPARTMENT

During March the fire department answered 23 calls, two of them ball alarms and the remaing 21 telephone calls. Two of the calls were out of town calls, both of them last week, one to the Adams' Tavern Garage fire in Norwich Town and the other to the Versailles fire last Saturday morning.

Busy Months for Backus Hospital

February and March were extremely busy months for the William W. Backus hospital. During the four weeks just passed the ambulance has answered 42 calls, a record for the year.

At New York Ringside

CHAMBER LETTER TOUCHES ON IMPORTANT POINT

A welcome to Norwich for one new industry, the H. H. Allyn Rubber Corporation, and the statement that attempts are being made to secure two other new industries to locate here are among the noteworthy items in the March membership letter of the Chamber of Commerce, which is as follows:

Community Advertising—The American Thermos Bottle Co., recently published Vol. 1, No. 1, of "Thermos" a publication setting forth sales talks favorable to their product. Its circulation is given as 1,000,000. In the first issue is a picture of their local plant at the bottom of which the following appears: "Plant No. 1 of The American Thermos Bottle Company at Norwich, Conn." A product so nationally advertised cannot but help materially in placing Norwich before the country. The Thermos Bottle Company are good supporters of the Chamber and good advertisers of our city. Thank you, Thermos.

Connecticut Lumber—We quote from a bulletin recently received from The Manufacturers Association of Connecticut regarding existing dimension stocks of lumber available in Connecticut at a saving to the people of this state.

—"There are concerns in Connecticut which are importing hickory plank from the Memphis region and there are numerous farmers who are chopping into cordwood fine second growth hickory which would produce small dimension stock much better for manufacturing than the imported material. They need to be brought into touch with the manufacturer and to learn of his requirements."—

—"We believe there are many manufacturers using small dimension stock who would be glad to purchase from sources near at hand if these were made available for them and in order to accomplish this, the association has arranged, in cooperation with the state forester, to act as an exchange between members and woodland owners."—

The local office will be pleased to give out members additional information to those interested.

World War Veterans—President Stanley H. Bullard, president of the Connecticut Chamber of Commerce sent out the following notice to members of the State Chamber:

—"I have been advised by the Employment Officer in charge of the employment activities of the Veterans Bureau in this state, that between now and July first; upwards of four hundred (400) Veterans will have been trained to the point of employability in their particular vocations —which vocations offset their war disabilities."—

—"The Bureau suggests that when one of our members is in need of a man—for any kind of work—industrial, professional, commercial or agricultural—they immediately get in touch with the Employment Department, United States Veterans Bureau No. 883 Main Street, Hartford, and the bureau will at once select one or more specifically trained vetgrans to call on them for an interview."—

Justice is due to these veterans at least in giving them first chance to secure a position whereby they can again resume their place in the business world after giving their services to the country.

Thames River—During the past month a committee from the chamber conferred with Major Peterson in Providence regarding the proposed deepening of the river channel from Allyns Point to Norwich. The Major has not filed the report of the survey with the Board of Army Engineers in Washington and the purpose of this conference was to ascertain whether or not additional data would be necessary. It is very evident that the army officials must be convinced that before any considerable sum of money is spent by the government on this project, Norwich and Eastern Connecticut must prove the necessity. This is the job and the problem at the present time.

H. H. Allyn Rubber Corporation—Norwich welcomes the advent of a new industry—one that materially adds to the diversity of our manufactured products. This concern has commenced operations of the "Allyn Self-Seal Leak Proof" inner tube for automobile tires, occupying two floors of the Wauman Shoe Co., plant on Thames street (incidently Mr. Wauman recently purchased the building). At present twenty people are employed; orders for several thousand of these tubes are now on hand; and general sales offices have been established in New Mexico, Texas, Alabama, Florida, Maryland, Delaware, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia, Connecticut, Massachusetts, Rhode Island. The product will be nationally advertised and Norwich, Connecticut will be placed prominently before the country as the result. Mr. H. H. Allyn has over thirty years experience in the rubber business and the product is the result of his ingenuity.

Colchester Road—The chamber has conferred with State Highway Commissioner McDonald regarding the poor condition of the gravel part of this highway near Colchester and a short stretch in Fitchville. Mr. McDonald has had several personal conferences on this road during the past few months and fully realizes its condition. The road was rebuilt nearly two years ago, the major part being macadamized, insufficient funds to macadamize the entire highway was the one reason for not completing the job. The Commissioner assures us that as soon as funds become available this important highway, which is the connecting route from Norwich to Hartford, will be taken care of.

School Houses—The need for providing school houses large enough to take care of the increasing number of school children has been brought to the attention of our citizens in the Norwichtown schools, including Town street; West Town street; and Yantic, demand immediate attention and consideration. In fact a progressive school building campaign should be inaugurated. Every city in the state has built several new schools and made additions to some already erected, during the past ten years. Many of them are contemplating new ones at present. Norwich built one new school in a period of thirty years.

Modern Street Lighting—Members and others have made inquiries as to when our new system of street lights in the business section is to be accomplished. We have assurances from propef officials that the delay is caused by circumstances over which there is no control. Many conferences with officials of The Connecticut Co. who maintain the trolley poles have been necessary; investigations had to be made by the trolley company and the whole matter finally acted upon by the Directors of The Connecticut Company.

Fifty eight new steel poles will be necessary to replace eighty five poles —many of them wooden—now being maintained by the trolley company. A reduction in the number of poles on our business streets will prove beneficial. The new poles will have an ornamental base. All the equipment for the new system has been purchased by the city officials. It seems that the delay is caused by the necessity for awaiting the er

CHAPMAN TECH HAS MADE REMARKABLE RECORD IN BASKETBALL DURING SEASON

(Special to The Bulletin).

New London, March 31.—The Chapman Technical high school basketball team enjoyed its most successful season since the introduction of this popular indoor game as a major sport at this institution. Winning twenty out of twenty-six games that were played during the season, it was one of the most strenuous years of basketball that any team in this section of the state and other parts of the Nutmeg state domain played. Chapman Tech reached the culmination of its season in the games played at the tournament held at Storrs college. Here the Tech boys vanquished the teams that sent the Tech down to defeat in previous meetings.

The three games that the Red and Black won to give them the Eastern interscholastic title was Terrtellotte high school in the opening game of the tournament. The score of this game was 32 to 13 and the Tech team had easy going throughout. The second game was with the fast Windham High five on Saturday morning, it was the only game left in the semi-finals as Portland High had on the previous night sent Woodstock High down to a defeat and waited anxiously to see whether the Tech five or Windham would be her opponent for the title to Eastern Connecticut. Chapman Tech even surprised its most ardent admirers and gained a 34 to 22 victory over the Windham boys. The reason that a Chapmon Tech victory over Windham was unexpected was that early in the year, the latter team won from Tech and another victory for that team was expected.

Portland and Chapman Tech faced each other on the armory floor at Storrs, each team determined to bring home the bacon—which was the title to Eastern Connecticut. Although this was the second game within four hours, it did not bother the locals, who waded in and taking the lead from the start were never headed. Whatever chance Portland had for the Eastern Connecticut title went up in smoke as soon as Hewitt, the Tech center got into action. All told Hewitt accounted for 27 points all by himself, showing the Tech pivot man at his best all season. It was because of the brilliant game that he put up in this lone contest that had a decided bearing on his election to the captaincy of next year's team.

Some of the other leading teams in this section of the state that the Red and Black gained victories over was the Mebs quintet who recently won out in the Y. M. C. A. House league. Old Saybrook one of the contenders for the Connecticut Valley high school championship is also reposing on the losing side of the ledger of the Tech books. Another break was attained with Plainfield. Each team winning the game played on the home court. On the Plainfield home court the Tech outfit almost won out and but two points separated the teams after the last whistle had blown.

Killingly High is the only team to defeat the Eastern Connecticut champs. Both games were close, in the game played on the Chapman Tech home court, only one point was the difference of the Killingly victory. The second game played at Killingly found the teams deadlocked after 40 minutes of playing, and an extra 5 minute period had to be played to determine the victor. Killingly finally won out by a 33 to 45 score.

Madison high school, winners of the Shore Line league had to accept defeat on two occasions from the Tech five. Both scores by which the Shore Line champs were defeated by large margins.

By defeating Stonington High in the last game that marked the close of the Chapman Tech basketball season, the latter team registered a total of 60 points, making it possible to wind up the season with a grand total of 1002 points.

In the six defeats that were administered to the Tech outfit, the majority were by very small margins. Two of the defeats came at the hands of the Alumni and the Rhode Island State college freshmen teams. While one game was by a single point and another necessitated an extra 5 minute period to decide the contest.

In finishing the season with a total number of 1,002 points, a new era was hailed in local basketball circles. All previous records were shattered by the Chapman Tech team, when this grand total was reached.

Bernard Hewitt, center on the championship team, leads the individual scoring of the season with the huge total of 425 points. In piling up this enormous individual score, Hewitt has surpassed all the season's total of the Red and Black in previous years with the exception of last season, and he came within a few points of breaking last year's record. Hewitt's shooting ability accounted for a Tech victory on many occasions. His accurate eye and his finely tuned arms coupled with dexterous agility and indefatigable endurance are the constituents of his makeup, which surpasses the skill of any Chapman Tech basketball player before him.

Hewitt chalked up for his share of the 1,000 points made by the Tech 173 field baskets and 79 field goals. The only other player on record in the state during the past few years having reached or even hovered around this mark was Allen White of Crosby high school. This stellar forward considered by many as the foremost in the New England states, reached this mark two seasons ago. White has since graduated from Crosby, and when Crosby lost this stellar and versatile athlete, it lost one of the best ever turned out from that school, although Crosby basketball players rank as the foremost in college circles today. So is the case of Bernard Hewitt of Chapman Tech who reached the pinnacle of his basketball playing with the Tech outfit this season. Much is expected of him next year at Tech and when he enters college.

Next in the order of scoring was Linkletter, a sorrel-topped youth who received his early training as a basketball player at the local Y. M. C. A. Linkletter turned in a total of 248 points that represented 110 field baskets and 26 accurate heaves from the foul line.

Much credit is due to Andrews the lanky left forward. Andrews was only a part of a well oiled machine that the Chapman Tech team turned out to be. His playing is highly commendable at all times, although he did not finish first in the individual standings. He did more passing and less shooting. He finished the season with 64 goals from the field and 15 baskets from the foul line.

After the Chapman Tech season came to an end with the Stonington contest. The customary election of a captain was made to lead next year's team. E. Bernard Hewitt was unanimously elected to succeed Edward Cruise to the captaincy of the Red and Black quintet for the season of 1924-25.

The election of Hewitt to the leadership of the team came as no surprise. The wise ones around the Tech school building predicted that Hewitt would be chosen to the captaincy. His election came as a result of his hard and diligent efforts to land the Chapman Tech five on the top of the heap of the high schools in this section of the state.

Hewitt is a four letter men, having earned his letter in basketball, baseball, football and track. In baseball he played the position of first base surplanting Bernard Parsons at that position two years ago.

In football, Hewitt played at halfback. It was his run for fifty yards in the last Chapman Tech-Norwich Academy game, that gave the local team it's score. Probably many can remember that game that was played in a sea of mud.

The season's record follows:

BOWLING FANS AGOG OVER BARBER-FILLMORE MATCH

The bowling fans of Eastern Connecticut are worked up over the match this (Tuesday) evening between Frankie Barber of Danielson and Roy Fillmore of Norwich at the Aetna alleys. Much interest is also being shown in the match between McKenzie of Moosup and Dugas of Taftville which is to be rolled at Taftville on the Olympic alleys.

This will be Barber's first appearance on the local alleys this season and a large crowd is sure to be on hand to greet the Danielson bowler. Barber is popular throughout the eastern part of the state and has many followers. Fillmore is also a popular man with the bowling fans of Eastern Connecticut and will have a strong backing in his match tonight. This match bids fair to be one of the best in the league and the winner will be sitting pretty as far as the tournament goes. There is a report that several hundred dollars has been wagered on this match by outside interests.

The McKenzie-Dugas match will also be a good event with the odds favoring McKenzie to win the match. McKenzie is a strong bowler as was proved by his bowling in the trolley league two years ago.

New London Military Games

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 31.—In the scheduled games for the Military league Monday night on the State armory court, the J. N. Lapointe team failed to appear and an exhibition game was played. The Tabs easily winning this contest by a 48 to 30 score. The second contest of the evening which brought together the league leading Headquarters five and the New London Independents found the former just managing to squeeze through with a victory by a 23 to 19 score.

YOUNG BOXER IN CRITICAL CONDITION

New York, March 31.—Peter Swan, 18 year old boxer, who suffered concussion of the brain and a possible fracture of the skull when he was knocked out Saturday night in a boxing bout with Harry Mills, tonight was said to be in a serious condition at the hospital where he is under treatment.

Swan was knocked out in the fourth round after having fought a losing battle from the beginning of the bout. He remained unconscious for half an hour.

Game Postponed—Rain

Orlando, Fla., March 31.—The exhibition game between the New York Giants and the Chicago White Sox today was called off because of rain.

BATTERY E TAKES CLOSE GAME FROM STAFFORD

(Special to The Bulletin.)

Westerly, March 31.—A closely contested basketball match that was played between the Battery E, 243rd Field Artillery, and the Stafford Springs Knights of Columbus quintet on Saturday evening at the state armory on Dixon street was won by the former, 34 to 29. The speed of the game increased as the play proceeded. The first half of the game was marked by fast pass work and a rapid movement of the players up and down the hall as the possession of the ball changed hands. The teams seem to be evenly matched and although the local Battery boys took the lead and maintained it for the first half, the score Battery 16, Stafford Springs 13 at the end of the first period of play plainly showed that it was either team's game.

The Stafford Springs K. C. showed a burst of speed at the beginning of the second half, for it was but a short time after the play began when the score was 23 to 22 in their favor. The next basket scored was by the Battery player Shortman and restored the Battery lead, which they held until the game ended. Rougher play was noticeable and time out was taken frequently. Blanck and Bernardo starred for the K. of C., Plympton and McCloy being the Battery's big guns. Near the end of the game, with but few minutes of play left, Referee Rogers blew his whistle and gave the K. C. a try for goal from the foul line when he said the Battery men were deliberately stalling, which was the though the score was not changed.

As in some previous games, there was considerable "razzing", of the players from spectators on the side lines and seemed to be directed to both teams as well as officials. For the future patronage of games this tendency should be entirely eliminated.

Next Saturday night the Madison Square Garden Whirlwinds are signed to meet the South Kingstown team in the Westerly armory and when these teams clash all records for speed as well as attendance in previous games will undoubtedly be broken. The usual dancing followed Saturday night's game.

Battery E, 243rd F. A. Stafford Springs

| | |
|---|---|
| Plympton | Blanck |
| Left Forward. | |
| Torrey | Normandie |
| Right Forward. | |
| Stenhouse | Bernardo, Fitspatrick |
| Center. | |
| Shortman | R. Calchera |

NEW LONDON HIGH SCHOOL TEAMS HOLD PRACTICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

New London, March 31.—Although a sharp wind prevailed on Morgan Park, the hunting ground of both the Bulkeley and Chapman Technical high school baseball teams, squads from both institutions went through their paces this afternoon for a good two hours.

For the Chapman Tech baseball squad it is the first workout of the season and the aspirants for the baseball positions, were only put through a simple calisthenic drill. Assistant Coach Weaver was in charge of the squad that reported which numbered about 25.

Coach Robert Aldrich of the Bulkeley squad, began the second day of active practice which consisted of hitting and fielding. Coach Aldrich picked an infield and a short practice was had.

The first Bulkeley game will probably come earlier than was previously announced. The Bulkeley Alumni will oppose the undergraduates in a game which is expected to be played on April 12.

PUTNAM POWER CO. HAS FAST BOWLING TEAM

While the whole eastern part of the state is watching the bowling matches for the championship, a series has been arranged between two departments of the Putnam L. & P. Co., which to all reports will eclipse the interest in the championship matches.

The first game of this series will be rolled by the Hole Diggers and the White Collar Men at Vandale's alleys at Putnam Tuesday night. A side bet of $00,000 marks has been posted.

The announced lineup is as follows: Hole Diggers—Buell Mayotte, Farmer Rogers, Stuttering Green, Loud Speaker Gomo, Father Paige, Barney Fernier.

White Collar Men—Mickey Carter, C. A. Lucier, Stew Wilson, Bonny Beausolu, Spud Schoonove, General Sherman.

Both teams hereby issue a challenge to any Eastern Conn. Power Co. team in the state.

RACING SEASON AT BOWIE TRACK OPENS TODAY

Bowie, Md., March 31.—Horsemen and turf followers from all sections of the country will gather here tomorrow for the opening of the spring racing season. The meeting will run eleven days, with a daily distribution in purses of more than $12,000.

The inaugural handicap, $6,000 added, for three year olds, and up, over a distance of seven furlongs, is the first day's feature race. Sixteen thoroughbreds are entered, including Thorndale, Dunlin, General Thatcher, Reparation, Lord Granite and Opperman. The track is in fair shape and probably will be fast.

TENNIS STARS REACH FIFTH ROUND PLAY

New York, March 31.—Vincent Richards, defending title holder, and H. L. Bowman, P. L. Kynaston, Merritt Cutler and Jerome Lang, all of New York, won their places in the round before the semi-finals of the national indoor tennis championship singles today.

Richards defeated Horace Orser, New York, 6-1, 6-1. The champion often was caught in mid-court with the ball at his feet, or at the baseline, and had to extend himself on several occasions.

U. S. ATHLETES PROTEST AGAINST SECRET COURSE

New York, March 31.—Protest against keeping secret until the day of the race the course for the Olympic marathon in France this year has been lodged with the French Olympic committee by the International Amateur Athletic Federation. Advice to this effect has been received by the Amateur Athletic Union of the United States, which already has voiced its disapproval of the plan on the ground that there is nothing in the international rules providing for holding the event over a secret course.

Delaney Beats Leonard

Bridgeport, March 31.—Jack Delaney, of Bridgeport, recent conqueror of Paul Berlenbach, scored a technical knockout over Leo Leonard, of Wilkesbarre, Pa., in the third round of a scheduled 12-round bout here tonight. Delaney scored a knockdown in the second round.

STRIBLING DECISIVELY BEATS M'TIGUE, BUT LACKS PUNCH TO WIN THE TITLE

Newark, N. J., Mar. 31.—(By the Associated Press) — William L. "Young" Stribling, Georgia schoolboy, ringman, battered his way to spectacular victory tonight over Mike McTigue, world's light heavyweight champion, but his youthful eagerness cost him a golden chance to lift the coveted crown with his triumph.

A record crowd of nearly 15,000 in the first regiment armory saw the strapping Georgia youngster decisively outpoint his veteran rival from start to finish and have the champion on the verge of a knockout in the tenth round but McTigue weathered this storm and snatched back the title laurels that Stribling had within grasp. Under the New Jersey no-decision laws, a championship cannot change hands except by a foul or knockout and when McTigue was on his feet at the end of the twelfth and final round, his crown, though at a disjointed angle, remained on his head.

Stribling, fighting the most sensational and determined battle of his meteoric career, won every one of the twelve rounds, in the opinion of a majority of newspapermen, with his slashing, whirlwind attack. The 19-year-old youngster made a gallant bid for world title laurels, but his overanxiety at the crucial moment cost him the chance to gain that goal.

The fierce attack in the tenth that almost beat McTigue into submission followed a whirlwind ninth round in which two sharp rights to the head jarred the champion to his heels and had him visibly groggy. Near the close of the ninth, Stribling suddenly lashed with his right as they were battling at close quarters. It landed flush on McTigue's chin and the veteran rolled partially through the ropes and to one knee. He was badly hurt but rose before the referee had counted there and rushed into a clinch. Desperately, Stribling swung with right and left, but the champion hung on, blocked most of the blows aimed at his head and backed around while he tried to rally.

Stribling, sensing that he had the champion within reach tried repeatedly to break through McTigue's guard but the veteran's resourcefulness and shift defense saved him from further damaging punishment until the bell.

Throughout the two closing rounds Stribling carried the attack in an effort to finish the titleholder but McTigue, having tasted of the youngster's heavy artillery, kept out of range, blocked the Georgian's rushes and stayed completely on the defensive.

Stribling, setting a dazzling pace, was the aggressor from the opening bell in a bout that was repeatedly marked by rough tactics, frequent clinches and holding.

The rangy southern youth convincingly demonstrated his superiority over McTigue, thus setting a dispute that has existed since the pair, in their first meeting, staged a riotious draw at Columbus, Georgia, last October, but, at the same time, he also demonstrated that he lacks now at least, a punch decisive enough to land him in the championship class.

Stribling, whose victory was a distict upset to the "dope" that had established McTigue a 2 to 1 favorite in pre-battle wagering, outfought the champion at the latter's own game. The youngster, speedy afoot and displaying a clever defense, outboxed as well as outfought his rival, to whom he conceded ten years in age and six years in fighting experience.
